Those who have Chamberlain on the brain are gasping about his offence to the sensibilities of France. What's the matter with the sensibilities of Britain? Of course one must concede that the British people do not have visible sensibilities in many lines, but they have one very tender one, and it is the Queen. Mr. Chamberlain is part of the evidence.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The Royal Canadians are to have the honor of being brigaded with the Royal Highlanders. They will have good pacemakers, but the Canadian boys are as good as the best.

•• • ••

There is a wealth of contradictory detail reardding what occurred at the battle of Modder River, but there is one point on which all reports agree, and that is that the British soldier thoroughly upheld the traditions of valor above proof with which he has ever been credited.

•• • ••

The British are executing some beautiful bayonet charges in the present war, but the Boers don't linger on the ground to witness them.

•• • ••

The River Modder means literally "the river of mud." The English after this will know it better as the river of blood.

Some Famous Dogs.

'Tis as natural for a man to be fond of dumb animals as it is for him to breathe, and just as natural for boys and girls to care for their pets. If we look over the names of prominent men and women of tod-ay we will find that many of them are fond of dogs and take a good deal of satisfaction in caring for them. There is an appealing intelligence in the face of the well-bred dog which touches most people. There are times when one wants the companionship of a "mute friend. Nor is it necessary to cite the pets of famous people to prove that this is the rule. The deeds of remarkable intelligence which have been performed by dogs draws our attention to them, although we may not care for them enough to want to fondle them. They enlist our sympathies, we scarcely know how.

We have all heard of the St. Bernards which help the monks in their works of rescuing the wanderers on the Alpine Mountains. You have probably read the accounts in the daily papers of the faithful dogs which are stationed on the beaches and piers at some of the resorts this summer and were interested in the tales of how they helped to save the drowning. Railroad Jack is known to many of you by reputation. But I want to tell you a story of a dog who went through the service with his master in Cuba last year. He belonged to the Spanish General Linares and was with him at San Juan. He stayed at his side during the battle and when Linares was carried from the field on a litter the dog trotted along by his side to the hospital and watched over him there. Afterwards he was given to a nephew of Gen. Gomez, who in turn presented him to the Captain of the 2nd U.S. Volunteers and he was brought by him to the North. His first winter must have been a strange experience to him, for it is said that when it snowed he would lie down and gather up some between his paws and look as if he really would like to know what he really would like to know what it meant.

Poultry in England.

Messrs. Flavelle Bros., of Lindsay, conceived the idea of going extensively into the poultry business in Lindsay, and shipping direct to England. Buyers have been sent out in every direction within a radius of 50 miles of Lindsay, with the result that 20,000 turkeys, 2,000 geese and 4,000 chickens have been purchased, killed, plucked and shipped to the old country. This represents a cash value to the farmers of over $20,000. The payments to the pluckers alone for labor will be between $1,500 and $2,000. The fowl are all nicely arranged, graded as to weight and shipped in cold storage. It has been arranged that the shipments reach the other side just in time for the Christmas and New Year's trade. Mr. J. H. Hart left on Saturday last for London to look after the shipments and sale of the fowl. The quality and appearance of the birds have been very much improved since last year, but they are not quite as they should be. Messrs. Flavelle Bros. wish to point out to the farmers the necessity of growing the larger breeds and of taking greater care in the fattening of their poultry so as to get the best results. The industry is one that is well worth cultivating in every way, and should receive the best consideration of the farmers and every one interested.

When he was 50, he returned to his native town "just to see how the old place looked." He found it unchanged. The old store, where as a lad he had clerked it and sold calico and groceries to the old farmers, was just the same. He contrasted the sleepy old place with himself and felt a glow of satisfaction when he thought how much those 30 years had done for him. "They ought to be proud of me," he said to himself

"Waal, I declare, is it really you, Hank?" said the old man incredulously. "We've heard you've been prospering fust rate sence you went west. They've made you a railroad president or suthin of the sort, ain't they? I heard so, but I couldn't believe it. It's really true, is it? The Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto.

With another year's work added to the twenty-two years of its existence, the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, has sent out its report of the good that it has done. In 23 years the Hospital has nursed and treated 33,000 pain-stricken children, which is truly a great record. Last year over 5,000 children were treated in the indoor and outdoor departments. The fame of the Hospital has travelled far indeed, for the little patients are brought to its doors from all parts of the province. Some marvellous cures have been effected by its skilful physicians, while many a little crippled child has recovered the use of deformed limbs under the care of its surgeons. No expense is spared in any single case when there is the least hope of such expenditure proving beneficial.

The better to procure the appliances needed in curing the deformities of many little patients, the Hospital Trustees have this year added a very important department to the Hospital. A building adjoining the large Hospital on College street was purchased and in it were placed the machinery and material needed for the making of all kinds of appliances needed in different cases of surgery. An expert workman has been secured from New York to superintend the making of these appliances to the exact measurements and design submitted by the surgeons attending each case.

The results have been eminently satisfactory. Not only is it possible to get these appliances quickly and correctly made for each patient, but the expense has been greatly reduced, and endless savings will be effected.

Many of the little patients come from homes where every dollar is needed for every day needs, and where the parents could not possibly afford to supply the braces, supports and orthopaedic apparatus, let alone secure the attendance of the eminent surgeons who dedicate their services to the Hospital.

Picture the improvement that must follow to a crippled child piteously suffering from some sad spinal disease, lying perhaps in a dark corner on a hard bed, and attended lovingly but intermittently by a hard-working mother. Picture the improvement in that child's prospects of recovery when taken into the bright atmosphere of a hospital ward, where it will be carefully and tenderly nursed and where every care of modern surgical and medical science will be given it.

It would make one's heart ache to see the surroundings of discomfort where some of these little lives have been slowly ebbing away until word of the Hospital's mercies has brought a promise of health to the child and the pleasures of hope to the parents.

We take pleasure in telling our readers of this noble institution, for who knows but some of the little ones within this district may even now have need of its services! The trustees desire us to announce that the doors of the Hospital are thrown wide open to receive any sick or ailing child under 14 years of age who could be benefited by its skill. And its services are free to little children whose parents cannot afford the small fee charged. None are refused admission. For this Hospital was founded in 1875 by great-hearted men and women, who saw the need of the special care necessary for sick, destitute and friendless children, little ones who, through misfortune, disease and poverty could not help themselves, though to-day its fame has spread, and many of the Hospital patients come from stately homes as well as humble dwellings. What charity has so great a claim on the sympathies of men, women and children?

The Hospital is one of the largest institutions of its kind in the world. In it there is accommodation for 200 children. To-day there are more than 100 patients in the cots—babies, boys and girls.

In close affiliation with the Hospital is The Lakeside Home for Little Children the convalescent branch, where all the patients who can be moved are taken to spend the warm summer months. The Lakeside Home was a gift of a Toronto gentleman to the Hospital. It is located on the south-west corner of Toronto Island, and the situation is a breezy and health-giving one.

This great charity is supported by the voluntary contributions of the people of Ontario. The ordinary expenditure last year was over $35,000. Yet, thanks to the generosity of the public, this expense was met, and $25,000 was paid off the mortgage, which had been retarding and harassing the work for years.

There is still left a mortgage of $25,000 and a bank overdraft of $5,000, or a total debt of $30,000. If the friends of the Hospital are just a little more liberal this year, that huge indebtedness will be lifted, and the Hospital for Sick Children will swing into the twentieth century free from debt.

The Trustees are making a special Christmas appeal for money to discharge this debt. They know they have the kindly sympathy of every one for a mother charity, which stands erect, with arms outstretched, ready to gather into its embrace the sick and ailing little creatures who are entitled to health, the first great need to a fair start on life's journey.

They will be pleased to send a report or any required particulars to any reader of this paper.

All they ask is a dollar from each kind heart—or more if you feel you can spare it.

A donation of $2,000 will endow a cot for all time.

And $1 is an appreciable gift. For many dollars will follow yours. "He who gives quickly gives twice."

Through the columns of the Toronto Evening Telegram each donation will be acknowledged, as well as in the Annual Report. J. Ross Robertson, Chairman of the Hospital Trust, Toronto, to whom donations may be sent, will also send written acknowledgment of any donations as soon as received.

RECORD-BREAKING CITIES.

Western Towns Which Have Claims to Distinction.

Leavenworth, Kan., stands at the head of American cities in the shipment of apples. Indeed, more apples are shipped from Leavenworth than from any other point on either side of the Atlantic ocean. In addition to the large number of local packers engaged in the business at this place, hundred of packers flock to Leavenworth annually from other parts of the country for the purpose of shipping away fruit. There are two immense cold storage plants in Leavenworth, one of which is built to accomodate 75,000 bushels of apples.

Denver, Col., enjoys the distinction of having more bicycles in proportion to population than any other city in the United States. Though Denver numbers only 160,000 souls within her city limits, she boats of not less than 40,000 bicycles. Morning and evening alike, thousands of bicycles may be seen on the streets of Denver, mounted by men, women and children in every walk of life. Bicycles literally overrun things, and they are used in every line of business, and street car companies say they have lost $1,000,000 annually in traffic since bicycles have become the rage. Denver is said to be the only city in the country where the bicycle vote controls elections on municipal issues.

Albuquerque, N. M., has the record of the greatest number of sunshiny days in the year of any town on the American continent.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. Found on the Track

The body of the man found alongside the track by Wednesday's east-bound express, and brought into Lindsay, proved to be that of a farm laborer named Eahart, who, together with his aged wife, and grandson and wife, lived near the track two miles west of Mariposa station. He was on his way east to a swamp about one mile away from his home, to cut wood for the day, when he received the injuries which caused his death.

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

FRANCE LOOKS FOR TROUBLE

Some More Specimens of Insults Hurled at the Queen by French Journals.

NO WONDER CHAMBERLAIN WAS ANGRY.

Paris, Nov. 26.—Paris is growing more and more violent every day in its expression of feeling against the English. I have heard nothing hitherto of open insults offered to us in the streets, but it is even now impossible to pass along the boulevard without a number of some offensively anti-English "comic paper" being thrust under one's nose by a grinning camelot. Several of the English colony here have, I am told, written to Her Majesty's Ambassador, begging him to make representations in the proper quarter for the suppression of The Rire, but no steps to this end have as yet been taken, I am told.

In the theatre and music halls offensive allusions to England and the Queen are greeted with shouts of laughter and loud applause. In a song at the Capucines Her Majesty is included in a series of types of "fat old women," and spoken of in a manner which I cannot even quote. At the Bouffes Parisiens is being given an opera-bouffe called "Shakespeare," which is nothing more nor less than a sustained attack upon England and all things English.

Shakespeare a Poodle.

"Shakespeare" is a poodle dog—"as great a fool as his namesake William." British officers are represented as trafficking in prisoners of war for money, all the women in the play are habitually drunk, in a word, the whole thing is a virulent attack upon Great Britain, without wit, originality, or refinement to save it. And this is applauded every night by crowded houses.

"One of my friends, an Englishmen, has shown his opinion of the Rire by withdrawing his annual advertisements. This will be a loss to the proprietors of £80 per annum.

Meanwhile the daily papers continue their violent abuse, while many of them affect to lay the blame for the strained relations between our two countries upon the English press.

The Gross Attack.

The Echo de Paris yesterday says;—"A French illustrated paper was seized this morning at the shops. The motive for this? The first page represented a fat lady being whipped by a bearded Boer Underneath was written;—And this is called Victoria."

The Figaro publishes this morning, from a Frenchman who occupies a very high position in English society, a letter warning his countrymen to let Queen Victoria alone.

He says that an outburst of anger of which there is no conception in France, has been raised by the outrageous and filthy attacks made by the French journals on Her Majesty.

A Black Marck.

He has seen letters from Court, wherein it is stated that the Queen is most distressed at the caricatures and articles in question. Moreover the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Connaught are irritated to such a point that if the outrages continue there will be a serious boycott of the exhibition, for a black mark will be made at Marlborough House against anyone seen there.

Attacks on English policy and English statesmen go for nothing; but he warns his fellow-countrymen;—"Ne touchez pas a la Reine!"

Lastly, he says, if France does not change her tactics she is going straight to war with England. It will be a naval war, wherein England will not have a vessel the less or France a vessel more by reason of the war in the Transvaal

The Figaro expresses the hope that the more serious of the French papers, such as the Debats, Temps, and Siecle, will seriously try to counterbalance by their attitude these monstrous insults to the Queen.

Evening Journals.

The evening papers of the patriotic contingent all contain more or less violently anti-English articles, while the more sober journals Le Temps and Les Debats, refrain from criticism. La Patrie pretends to believe that hostilities between France and England are imminent, draws a picture of the activity reigning at Portsmouth, Devonport and Chatham, recalls the fact of the Channel Squadron's presence at Gibraltar, and quotes a number of Swiss papers to show that Mr Chamberlain is bent on war with France.

The Presse and La Liberte to-night devote their energy to attacking the Prince of Wales. The Presse says;—"No matter what he may say to the contrary, His Royal Highness will not be able to resist coming over to visit the exhibition side shows. While La Liberte devotes two columns to a would-be ironical article, in which the writer, after expressing himself flattered at England's choice of France as an antagonist, when all the other countries of Europe are as anti-English as she, mocks at the Queen, who is welcome, he says, to distribute her Bibles and her money to the beggars who will bow before her pony carriage in the road near Bordighera, and expresses the opinion that the only industries of Paris that would suffer if the Prince carries out his threat of remaining away from the exhibition would be those industries under the special protection of the devil.

COPPER MINING STOCKS

For several months shrewd investors have been putting their money into the shares of Copper Mines. This is true not only of men with large amounts of money at their disposal but also applies to those who have made a study of investments with a view to securing a large return for small investments. As high as THREE AND FOUR HUNDRED PER CENT. has to our knowledge already been realized on some of these investments. Americans were the first to make a specialty of Copper Stocks. They knew what they were doing, for the reason is not far to seek. Every Copper Mine in the world is at present taxed to its utmost limit to meet the growing demand for copper for electrical purposes. The reserve stores of copper are being depleted until it pays no longer to use copper in some eastern countries as a coin. Copper has gone up in price from 9c to 18 cents. The supply of Copper from the mines of the world to-day is only about 80 per cent. of the consumption. That is the reason why financiers have their engineers searching the four quarters of the globe for Copper Mines, and that is the reason the shares in promising copper companies are so eagerly picked up by investors.

If you have any money to invest we would ask you to consider the shares of the SUPERIOR GOLD & COPPER COMPANY, LIMITED. This Company owns and operates some valuable native copper properties. We are in a position to offer you a special opportunity in this stock which as an investment should give you a profit of at least 100 per cent in six months. Send for prospectus and particulars.

Occasionally we have an opportunity of giving our clients a special offer on some stocks, and we have this opportunity now. If you are interested write to us at once. These shares are sold in large or small blocks to suit buyers.

We deal in all legitimate mining shares on commission. If you want to buy or sell write us.

"Ordered To The Front."

From the London Daily Telegraph.

On Monday evening, 20 November, Mrs Brown-Potter, the celebrated American actress, recited, at the Empire Theatre, London, the following patriotic address, written by Mr. Henry Hamilton—

For England! once again out rings our battle-cry of old,
No lust of conquest taints its note, no huckster's greed of gold,
It springs from free men's souls a-fire from gallant hearts a-beat,
That wave of cheers that breaks to song adown the stirring street,
Out-ringing, irresistible, up-Thrilling to her Throne,
The voice of England for the Right and mindful of her own,
From Capital to Coast it finds its echo near and far,
To light the land and warn the world that what we were, we are!
It was no host of holiday; no passing show I ween,
That chivalry that two years gone with love engirth our Queen.
See them to-day—no gold, no gaud—in fighting khaki clad,
Commander, Captain, Subaltern, and simple soldier-lad,
Gone forth with "Duty" on each lip and "Duty" at each heart
As went their Fathers, and we know—to bear their Father's part!
These are the builders that have set our House upon the rock,
And hold it against foes who fight—and foes who dare but mock,
How ran their scoff? — "Fine soldiers, these!—a pampered nation's toys,
A motley rabble hired with gold—half blackguards and half boys."
Back from the battlefield to-day there comes the proud reply,
"We may be boys, we're not too young to show men how to die!
They've told us we're for ornament, they'll find that we're for use.
To fire as straight as does the foe—though not on flags of truce.
Blackguards we are not—witness bear both countryside and town,
Ask heathered hill and turfy bog and England's dale and down.
Ask hearths that miss and long for us; the homes where we were born,
The mothers proud of us that pray "God bless them night and morn."
"God bless them one and all!" say we, "Our Tommies and our Tars,
Whose four point seven marks the track of England's shooting stars.
Indomitable English hearts! as cool as on parade,
That face disaster's brief defeat undaunted, undismayed,
Disaster dear to those who seek to find Achilles' heel!
Who glory in the hoped-for harm they lack the pluck to deal.
Laugh, little folk! for joy to think that England's sun has set,
Her Fame laughs louder than ye all—and Freedom louder yet.
Take back your spite-engendered sneer, your conscript-nurtured scorn.
Hark! to the cry that comes from East out-heralding the Morn.
And Westward of the sunset—from the Race ye so revile.
From Continent to Continent it sounds—from isle to isle!
From by the broad St. Lawrence—from beneath the Southern Cross,
"We—we are England! Count with us before you count her loss!"
Longer than ocean's leagues it comes and louder than its foam,
"The Motherland is calling us—we're wanted, boys, at Home!
To fight the Empire's battles and to wear the English rose."
And clarion-like and clearer still it gathers and it grows!
"Take us!" their manhood cries as one, "we breed not limb nor life!"
"Take them! they're yours! we grudge them not," cry mother, sister, wife.
"Ten thousand men to fight for you of British blood and breed.
Ay, twice ten times ten thousand shall be with you if you need.
We are as staunch as brave Natal that bear the battle's brunt,
In gear and gold and side by side fights with you at the front!"
What rule the world has ever seen, what yoke of blood and iron
Has e'er compelled such service as our England doth environ?
Rule—rule Britannia! since your rule makes ever for the Right,
Ring the round world, and with the world roll onward into light.
True Country and tried Colonies, God keep you safe, serene,
With one voice 'neath the Union Jack to sing "God Save the Queen!"

THE MAGICAL MIRROR

A CURIOUS GLASS OWNED BY A WASHINGTON MAN.

Several Well Known Persons Have Seen Portentous Pictures Reflected in Its Oval Surface, Although It Will Not Work For All.

While all of us have heard in early childhood of the tales of magical mirrors, in which impossible heroes saw impossible beauties in danger, from which said heroes proceeded to rescue the fair maidens, yet such things have been relegated by most of us to the region of the imagination. We regard such things as being outside of the real world of today and belonging to the region of myth and fable. Yet, in spite of our prosaic nineteenth century, it is nevertheless a fact that a Washington gentleman is the possessor of an article which might be classed as appropriately belonging to the time of Aladdin and the wonderful lamp.

This strange acquisition is a mirror which came from India, and in which one can see the events which the future will bring forth. That such is its power is attested by some of the best known gentlemen of the city, who, for obvious reasons, do not wish their names to be mentioned.

This mirror came into the possession first of a Washington lady who was traveling in India, and, being interested in the religion of the country, took a trip to the famous temple of Alora, which lies in a rocky side of the foothills of the Himalaya mountains. This temple is now but a ruin of jagged rocks, jutting out harshly into the soft greensward that rolls smoothly down into the valley below. Above tower the vast mountains with their glittering caps of snow looking down on the peaceful tropical scene where for ages the followers of Brahma have performed their sacred rites.

The ruins of the temple stand open to the weather, and its ancient glory, which shone in such splendor before the English came to India, is now diminished. But a small band of Brahman monks still kept the sacred secrets and ceremonies alive. Few Europeans ever penetrate this section of the mountains, but the Washington lady mounted and visited the monastery. While there she managed to secure possession of one of the mirrors made by the monks and reputed to possess wonderful properties.

The lady brought the mirror with her on her return to town, and at her death it came into the possession of Mr. Lowdermilk. From him it was bought by a gentleman who takes great interest in such matters, but who would not like the fact of the existence of the mirror in his house to be known, as it would attract thousands of seekers after the curious. After paying quite a large sum for the glass the mirror was brought home and put to the test.

The mirror is oval in shape, about a foot long and is surrounded by a wooden frame two inches in width and painted a dark green. The back of the glass is coated with asphaltum and then covered with dark linen, so that the whole has the appearance of a lustrous opal. The method of use is by sitting with the mirror in one's lap and holding the glass so that there is no reflection of other objects shining on the surface of the glass. If the test is a success, there will appear in about a quarter of an hour a thin, cloudy mist, which will slowly float over the surface, and then the images of future events will be mirrored in the seemingly fathomless depth of the dark glass.

The gentleman who owns the mirror has never been himself successful in seeing anything, but a friend of his, a prominent judge and a thirty-third degree Mason, had a remarkable experience. He placed the mirror in his lap, and, after half an hour, a mist floated over the surface; then he saw reflected in the glass a picture of a coffin, within which was the still, white face of a dead man. At first glance the features seemed those of the gazer, but on looking closely it was seen that they represented exactly the brother of the gentleman—a man then in perfect health. In a second the picture shifted, and another face—that of a friend—appeared within the sides of the coffin. The gentleman in two weeks afterward lost his brother, and in a short while his friend, whose face he had also seen, passed to another world.

A son of the owner was one evening looking into the mirror, when he saw within a picture of a house in flames. There were the servants leaping from the porches, then returning to drag out the furniture. The glare shone around on a yard which the gazer recognized as that of his own farmhouse down the Potomac. By the mail two days afterward he received from his housekeeper an account of a fire which had destroyed his home, and the description tallied exactly with the picture seen in the mirror.

Another man, a gentleman employed in the bureau of ethnology and well known as a scientist and linguist, has also seen many pictures in the mirror—pictures of events in his life which were afterward realized to the letter.

By a student of occultism the following directions were given in a treatise on that subject, which dealt with the methods employed in making such mirrors: The materials used are one glass, 6½ inches by 8½ inches, free from flaws and concave in shape; a small amount of turpentine asphaltum, a pint of spirits of turpentine, a small hairbrush, a box in which to case the mirror, and a half a yard of new cloth.

The glass is placed in a clean, light and airy room, the materials washed perfectly clean, then the brush and the glass are wiped over with turpentine. Afterward the back of the glass is coated smoothly with a thin varnish of the asphaltum and left to dry, the operation being repeated for the two following days. At the end of that time the mirror is magnetized by placing the hands above it and slowly waving them to and fro, so that the animal magnetic force may be well absorbed by the asphaltum. The asphaltum is the best known material for absorption of the aura of the human body, and this is the reason for its use. The test should be made also in a clean, airy chamber when alone and when the mind is composed, and by perseverance the inquirer is sure to be rewarded—so say the books on magic.—Washington Post.

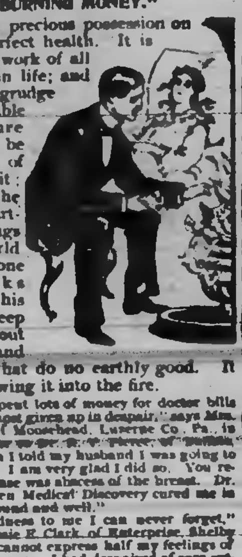
The Birds Save Us.

A French naturalist says that if the world were to become birdless man could not inhabit it after a few years' time. In spite of all the sprays and poisons that could be manufactured for the destruction of insects the [illegible] would simply eat up orchards and crops.

Fact Not Fiction.

"Talk about the seven sleepers," said the angry tragedian; "I'll bet there are 7,000 of them between Albany and [illegible]."

"BURNING MONEY."



The most precious possession on earth is perfect health. It is the ground-work of all prosperity in life; and few people grudge any reasonable expenditure which will be the means of restoring it; but one of the most disheartening things in the world is for any one who works hard for his money to keep paying it out for doctors and medicines that do no earthly good. It is like throwing it into the fire.

"We had spent lots of money for doctor bills and I had almost given up in despair," says Mrs. Ella Schall, of Moosehead, Luzerne Co., Pa., in a [illegible] letter to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. "Then I told my husband I was going to write to you. I am very glad I did so. You remember my case was abscess of the breast. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cured me in one month, sound and well."

"Your kindness to me I can never forget," writes Mrs. Josie E. Clark, of Enterprise, Shelby Co., Mo. "I cannot express half my feelings of gratefulness to you. I had despaired of ever getting well. I had been in bad health for twelve years. Had aches all through me, numb hands, cold feet, and everything I ate distressed me; my bowels were constipated. I was very nervous, depressed and despondent. When I first wrote to you I thought I could never be cured. I have taken six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and my health is now good. You have my honest recommendation to all sufferers. I think there is no medicine in the world as good as Dr. Pierce's."

It's an insult to your intelligence for a dealer to attempt to palm off upon you a substitute for this world-famed medicine. You know what you want. It's his business to meet that want. When he urges some substitute he's thinking of the larger profit he'll make — not of your welfare. Shun all such dishonest dealers.

Every sick person in this land should possess Dr. Pierce's grand 1000-page Common Sense Medical Adviser, which will be sent free for the bare cost of customs and mailing, 31 one-cent stamps.

An Unprofitable Bone.

Last summer a friend presented us with a tortoise. I do not know whether our dog had heard of turtle soup or whether he regarded the creature as a new kind of bone that walked about; at any rate, he determined to eat it.

Whenever the tortoise started out on a constitutional down the garden path Gyp arrested it and carried it into his kennel, where he gnawed at the impenetrable armor till his jaws ached.

The calm and philosophical manner in which the tortoise resumed its interrupted promenade irritated the dog exceedingly, but no failure discouraged him. Whenever we reminded him of the tortoise, he would go in search of it all round the garden, peering into every crevice, till eventually the creature was found, and then fresh but futile attempts were made to extract the meaty portions from the shell.—

Xmas Boxes.

The most suitable and seasonable Xmas Box is some thing warm, comfortable, neat and pretty from the Port Hope Knitting Works. Telephone 330, Ask for Trading Stamps.

More Nonsense.

Town Engineer Hay is in favor of compelling people to shovel the snow off the sidewalks in front of their premises instead of the snow plow method, which has been very satisfactory in the past. It is quite evident that the Engineer hasn't a big sidewalk frontage. If he had it might be different. The displacement of the plow will be a serious matter to many ratepayers.

Sham Rock

Is a name given by some to our granolithic pavements. Some shoes have sham soles, which when wet are taken off very easily by the sham rock, and thus the sham sole is lost. To avoid the latter buy your shoes from Kidd—the price is no more, but less, and trading stamps given as well.

Phrenology.

Gets Two Months.

Yesterday morning Michael Lavery was given two months by Police Magistrate Dumble for assaulting his wife and step son. It appears that Lavery dropped into the police station on Friday night and informed the Chief he had been roughly handled, and from his appearance there was every reason to believe that he had been unceremoniously treated. He wanted to lay an information against his step son charging him with assault. It leaked out, however, that the stepson was defending his mother who was being ill-used by the father, and to Michael's great surpriese he himself was placed in the cells with the above result.

A New and Novel Xmas Box.

Something that will last a life time—a chart of your child's or other relative or friend's life—a chart and thorough phrenological reading by Prof. A. H. Welch, F.A.I.P., for $2, or a verbal reading $1. Private parlors at the Oriental Hotel, consult him now. He leaves for Toronto this week.

The Meeting To Night.

The meeting called by the Board of Trade in the Council Chamber to-night, is likely to be well attended. Municipal matter should have the attention of the best heads in Peterborough. We cannot disguise the fact that the town is decreasing in population while the tax-bills are rolling higher and higher. The trouble is that our Council are afraid of using the knife to cut all diseased spots. Nothing short of a complete change in regard to the management of our streets will satisfy the people. This is the great avenue of waste. We hpoe the meeting to-night will be productive of much good.

New Readers

We have just received a neat little book of new readings in Scotch and English for social gatherings. The selections are from the works of Mr John Imrie, Toronto, and are up to date. For sale at Times Bookstore.

The coming winter, judging by the goose bone, will be cold at times. The sun will shine in pleasant days, but when it is stormy snow will be confidently looked for. Ice will certainly form before Christman, and the worst of the season will be over by March 31. Pin this up for reference.

Mud Lake Bridge.

Warden Hawthorne has received a communication from the Deputy Minister of the Department of Railways and Canals, stating that as the result of his recent visit of inspection to Mud Lake he is of the opinion that the new bridge should be constructed from what is known as the Kelly site. The various advantages accruing from using this site instead of either of the other two which were suggested are mentioned in the letter. This was the site chosen by the County Council and is situated about two hundred yards east of the present structure. The distance is so shortened between the banks to be connected that the new structure will be only 3,500 feet long, including approaches, as compared with 3,941 feet, which was the length of the old bridge.

SCHOOL TEACHER

Pulled Down Hill.

"I relied on coffee so much to keep me up, having been told that it was a 'mild stimulant,' that I hardly knew what to do when I found it was really pulling me down hill. My sleep was badly broken at night and I was all unstrung. Am a school teacher and was exceedingly nervous.

"When it became evident that I was in a very bad condition. I was induced to leave off coffee and try Postum Food Coffee. Mother made it first, but none of us could endure it, was so flat and tasteless. She proposed to throw the package away, but I said, 'Suspend judgment until we have made it strictly according to directions.' It seems that she had made the Postum like she always made coffee, taking it off the stove as soon as it began to boil. Mother was so prejudiced against it that she did not care to try it again, but I got sister to make the Postum next morning strictly according to directions, that is, allow it to boil full fifteen minutes after the boiling begins.

"We were all amazed at the difference. Sister said it was better coffee, to her taste, than the old, and father, who is an elderly gentleman and had used coffee all his life, appeared to relish the coffee as well as my little brother, who took to it from the first.

"For a while, mother clung to her old favorite, although she was sick more or less of the time. Finally, one morning, she drank a cup of Postum by mistake, believing it to be coffee. We joked her so much about it, because she did not discover the difference, that she finally admitted she had occasionally taken a sip of the Postum Coffee, and from that time she proposed to use it altogether. Her health has been very greatly improved, and we are all strong advocates of Postum. Please omit my name from publication." ————, Flager, Col. Name can be given by Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

THE PAVING CONTRACTS

testified that it was a bad concrete. It was palpably bad. If men were able to poke the concrete out with little or no labor it was evident that the work was inferior. Ald. Best and McWilliams had also testified that the work was inferior "These gentleman," said he, "had no animus against Mr. Sheehy and they were giving opinions formed on the spot where they examined the work." Mr. McWilliams argued that the hollow places showed inferior materials or bad workmanship, quoting Mr. Hay and Mr. McFadden. Yet the contract called for specially good work. Mr. McWilliams argued at some length on the evidence to be deduced from the from the samples of concrete produced pavement, stating that bad workmanship was no excuse. Mr. Sheehy must be held responsible. Mr. Greenwood had stated that he would not take such work from a contractor's hands. The evidence of Mr. George Rose was also very clear as to the faulty character of those crossings.

Mr. McWilliams then referred to the difference in cost in the two methods of work, basing his remarks on the statement made by Ald. McWilliams in the witness box and published in the Times last week. He pointed out that it was founded on the test made on Stewart-st, which was carefully made, and that this was the most satisfactory method of estimating the difference in cost between the two works. No other work was dnoe with the same care and accuracy and estimates founded on any other work could not be as correct. The work on the two sides of London-st, done according to the two different methods, will show a difference nearly as great as that arrived at by Mr. Hay. The work done by Mr. Bartlett on the north and south sides of London-st, shows a difference in the cost of materials of 11-6 cents per square foot in the two methods. Also there stands unexplained the use of a larger quantity of granite in Mr. Sheehy's second contract than in his first, the latter being the larger contract.

Mr. Dennistoun—The explanation is given. The granite was finer.

Mr. McWilliams stated that this would make the difference the other way. The contention is that the changes make a difference to the town of a certain amount.

The firm of Evans & Langford, while not to blame in some respects in which Mr. Sheehy is to blame, still did not carry out their contract, said Mr. McWilliams. They are still liable for ato having fulfilled it.

Mr. McWilliams also discussed the question of day work as compared with contract. He argued that the day work has not been as costly as contended owing to differences in conditions.

THE FIVE AND A HALF.

Mr. Sheehy started this year to carry out the contract by using two parts of granite with 1 of cement. Some sand was found to be desirable and had they stuck to this it might have been all right. Then more sand was found necessary. The explanation comes from Mr. Ranney. It is that only 5 1-2 bags of cement were used. If 9 had been used the extra sand would not have been required. Mr. Ranney states that the men told him that 5 1-2 bags of cement filled the box. The men deny that and it becomes a question between the oaths of Mr. Ranney and these men. The speaker thought the weight was all on Mr. Ranney's side. Mr. Sheehy knew how many bags filled the box and knew how much was being used afterwards and it requires a stretch of the imagination to believe that Mr. Sheehy did not know what Mr. Ranney was thinking and thinking wrongly. Mr. Sheehy knew that there was a saving in it for him. His explanation that he was using more cement that called for is flimsy. Cnotractors are bound to carry out their contracts no matter what the inspectors may permit them to do. There was no permission for the Engineer to do the work in the manner done until a month after the contract was started.

MR. SHEEHY'S CONDUCT.

There can be no allegation that Mr. Sheehy personally deceived Mr. Ranney. He cannot be connected personally but he must be responsible for his men, he did not rectify the mistake and he got the advantage.

Mr. McWilliams also referred to the matter of the guage which was cut. It looks to be a very questionable piece of business. Mr. Ranney states that he had continous trouble with the workmen. The evidence of the men, he argued, is unreliable as against that of Mr. Ranney. The speaker claimed that Mr. Sheehy signed the second contract having no intention of carrying it out according to specifications.

The investigation adjourned till 3 o'clock Friday, when Mr. McWilliams will resume his argument.

STUNG BY AN ARROW.

Before the civil war Lee was a lieutenant in the old Second Cavalry, afterward recognized as the Fifth. His company was one of the two which were engaged in a sharp fight with the Kiowa and Comanche Indians in the Cimmaron country in Texas in 1859. The Indians had taken refuge in a narrow canon which could be entered only from one end, and there had thrown up a fortification of logs from behind which they poured a hot fire into the troops. The character of the canon was such that the horses of the cavalry were useless anand they were left outside, the men advancing on foot. Only a few of the Indians had firearms, the rest using bows and arrows. Had the Indians been as well armed as they have been in the later wars, the loss of the whites would have been very large; as it was only four or five soldiers were killed, though the Indian loss amounted to nearly 50.

A charge was made upon the log fort, and Lee, who was a dashing officer and a wonderful favorite with his men, was the firt one to scale the breastwork. The arrows were whizzing all about him, and one struck him in the breast, inflicting a very ugly wound. As he fell, the confusion was so great about him that the arrow was pulled out of his flesh and thrown to the ground among other arrows, whole and broken, so that no one could tell afterward whether the head had remained in the wound or been drawn out with the stick. It was impossible, therefore, to say how seriously he had been hurt, and he was carried at once to the rear, where a litter was improvised of saplings and boughs. He was laid upon this, which was swung between two horses, and then he was carried back to the wagon train, a distance of over 150 miles through a rough country. Probing showed that the head of the arrow had fortunately been drawn out, and in due time good nursing put the lieutenant on his feet again.

DOUGHNUGTS NOT DOLLARS.

All kinds of confidence games are practiced in a large city, and the newspapers daily tell of "tricks" being sprung on rural visitors. But when the "bunk" is dealt out to a native it seldom gets into print. Here is one that really happened—

A young man walked into a tailor shop on West Madison street a few days ago and ordered a suit of clothes and an overcoat, making a deposit of $10 on the bill of $60, says a Chicago paper. The day the goods were promised for delivery the young man went to a bakery across the street from his tailor and ordered 100 doughnuts to be ready in about an hour and a half. He then went to the tailor shop, put on his new togs, pronounced the work satisfactory, and started for the door.

"Hold on, there; you've forgotten something," said Mr. Tailor, in a sort of I-call-you tone.

"Oh, sure; just give the old ones to the first hobo that comes along."

"I'll be in again in a few minutes."

"Can't stand for that. I'll have to have my money before you leave the house."

"Well, say, is Mr. So-and-So, the baker over here, good for it?"

"Yes, if he says so; he's all right."

They went over to the bakery.

"Got that hundred ready yet?" asked the young man.

"No, won't be ready for an hour."

"Will you give this man fifty for me?"

"Certainly."

"Thank you."

The young man walked away with the suit and an hour or so afterward the tailor was considerably astonished to receive a package of fifty hot doughnuts from across the street. Later, when he went over to the baker's for $50, explanations ensued that were not at all to his liking.

Hockey.

Mr. Lorne Campbell, secretary of the Lindsay Hockey Club, has received a lette from Winnipeg stating that a team of Manitoba hockey players intend to visit Ontario early in the season and would like to play in Lindsay. The expenses would be heavy, but the attendance would recoup the team—that is, if the projected improvements are made in the rink.

New County Constable.

Mr. J. J. Crowe, License Inspector for East Peterborough, was to-day appointed a county constable, by His Honor Judge Weller an dwas afterwards duly sworn in. It is understood that Mr. Crowe's appointment is the result of the advice of a number of county justices of the peace, who, in the interests of justice, were anxious to have him vested with the rights of a county constable. His appointment will be a popular one.

CANADA'S GREATEST SCHOOL OF SHORTHAND AND BUSINESS

PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS SHOULD NOTICE

This institute has prepared over seventy teachers for other Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States, more than twice as many as all other Business Colleges in Canada, combined, have so placed.

The proprietors of five of the leading business colleges in Western Ontario, who are to-day among our strongest opponents in the field of Shorthand and Business training, received THEIR training under the Principal of this institution. Besides these, there are five others holding leading positions as teachers in Business Colleges in Ontario.

Since Sept 1st, seven of our pupils have accepted positions as teachers in Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States; another is now negotiating for a similar opening in a Business College in a leading American city, and there are five unfilled calls of this kind on hand still.

DOES IT NOT PAY TO ATTEND THE BEST? You must decide.

GREAT SUSPENSE IN GREAT BRITAIN

No Further News Has Yet Been Received to Remove the Mystery Overhanging Gatacre's Report.

BOERS CAPTURE 672 BRITISH PRISONERS.

General Gatacre's Misfortune or Error Will Delay Invasion of the Orange Free State Perhaps Some Weeks—Seventh Division Likely to See Active Service.

(Special Despatches to The Times, 3 a.m.)

Pretoria, Dec. 11

Six hundred and seventy-two British were taken prisoners at Stormburg.

In the fighting at Modder River yesterday evening Gen. Cronje maintained his position and captured 50 British soldiers.

London, Dec. 12, 4.40 a.m

No further news has been received to remove the mystery overhanging General Gatacre's retreat from Stormburg. He has not yet forwarded the promised additional message and the censorship has prevented the correspondents from explaining the matter. While it appears to be generally admitted that General Gatacre is inclined to overwork his men, Lord Durham's remarks are considered as in very bad taste. Until Gen. Gatacre has given his explanation it is felt that considerable allowance must be made for the extreme difficulty of getting intelligence in a country whose inhabitants are in strong sympathy with the enemy.

Stormburg is described as a stronger position than Laing's Nek. The only road winds through lofty hills and flanking is impossible. Colesburg is also said to be an almost impregnable position, and as the troops are available to reinforce the columns acting in these districts, it becomes evident that Gen. Gatacre's misfortyne or error will delay the invasion of the Free State perhaps some weeks. It is exceedingly probable that he will be compelled to retire onQ ueenstown and to wait for reinforcements, which can hardly be sent him until Sir Charles Warren's division arrives at the Cape. The first detachment will sail on Saturday next. Even if General French is not compelled to retreat he will be obliged to pause in his advance.

It now seems certain that the seventh division, which is being mobilized at Aldershot will also be sent to South Africa.

No news has yet been received confirming the Boer report of the capture of 50 prisoners from Lord Methuen's column.

It is just two months since the Transvaal ultimatum was delivered. Nine engagements have been fought and the British have lost [illegible] killed, 2,027 wounded and 1,977 missing or prisoners.

London, Dec. 12.

The War Office has issued a notice that after Jan. 1st, a deduction will be made from the pay of soldiers serving in South Africa,— in the case of privates, four pence per day for wives and a penny for each child In the case of sergeants eight pence for wives and two pence for each child. These sums have thus far been paid by the Government. The order indicates a belief that the campaign will be a long one.

It is announced from Cape Town that the Boers have succeeded in repairing the Leeuwfontein bridge, between Stormberg and Burghersdorp, which the British destroyed on retiring.

Frere camp, Natal, Monday, Dec. 11. 7 p.m.

The British cavalry reconnoitred today abreast of Colenso and exchanged shots with parties of Boers who fell back across the river. The kopjes were observed to be thickly occupied by the enemy.

The railway bridge at Colenso has been completely destroyed. Two stone piers were blown up last night. The high way bidre is intact.

Fell 40 Feet.

A serious accident occurred yesterday, by which Mr. Carrol D. Dike, instrument inspector of the local Bell Telephone exchange, had his leg broken and received other injuries. He was up on a pole on Hunter street in front of the old Royal Oak hotel when he slipped, and losing his grip on the cross arm, fell to the ground below, a distance of about 40 feet. He had ascended the pole and was on the first cross arm when he slipped and fell and lit on the curb of the pavement. Those who witnessed the accident expected that the unfortunate young man would have been killed. Drs. Bradd and Scott were soon in attendance, but an examination of the injured man could not be made where he was, and he was removed to the Nicholls Hospital.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I noticed in your widely read journal a letter from Prof. A. H. DeSilberg, the well-known optician, in which he administers a severe and well merited rebuke to a concern in the spectacle line in town.

I have just a few words to add. The "Doctor" (?) referred to is not content with stabbing Prof. DeSilberg under the fifth rib, but most offensively refers to others in town who are in the optical business, and who are as well and probably very much better, qualified than he is to treat the eye. I happen to be one of the parties who carry spectacles in connection with my other business, but I never regarded it as a "side line," having studied the subject for years.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, I am, etc.,

MUNICIPAL REFORM

DISCUSSED AT THE BOARD OF TRADES' PUBLIC MEETING

Held in the Council Chamber Last Night—Mr. Dumble Condemns the Council's Policy, Which is Strongly Defended by the Mayor and Aldermen.

A public meeting under the auspices of the Board of Trade, was held in the council chambers last night, when there was present a very large and representative audience of business men and ratepayers.

The question was raised by Ald. McWilliams as to whether the meeting was a public one or the Board's regular meeting.

Mr. D. W. Dumble explained that while the event was certainly a regular meeting of the Board of Trade, the public had been cordially invited to be present and hear important municipal matters openly discussed.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed.

Market Improvements.

Mr. D. W. Dumble here introduced the questions for discussion. He was pleased to see the Board again in session as there were many impotrant questions which could be profitably discussed. He thought improvements might be made in the laws governing our market; he more particularyly referred to the wretched, bony, scraggy and fleshless specimens of poultry offered for sale, and thought the Town Council should compel the proper dressing of birds and enforce their sale by weight. He also favored an earlier market, being fostered, and thought that by allowing hucksters to purchase at 10 o'clock instead of 11, would induce people to market earlier, and thus prove of benefit to both sellers of produce and the merchants. The former need sufficient time in which to sell their wares and to do their shopping before the trains leave.

It's Time to Go Slow.

Continuing the speaker thought the town was going ahead too fast in the matter of permament improvements, for notwithstanding the widespread reports of good times, Peterborough could not in the face of lowness of rents and small interest on real estate, boast of such prosperity. He did not approve of the municipality expending $40,000 in granolithic sidewalks, sewers, grading of roads, etc., when the citizens are struggling hard to live. He could build five plank walks of 12 years' life each, at the cost of one granolithic sidewalk. This he though far more preferrable to the present system adopted by our aldermen. Again, he censured the council for not using more discretion than to buy up every machine they came across and to leave the same lying rotting in our corporation yard. If more efforts were made to bring industries into our town instead of loading the public down with mortgages, we might look for an era of prosperity.

An Earlier Market.

At this juncture Mr. A. W. Cressman moved, seconded by Mr. J. B. Oke,—That in view of the beneficial results experienced by many western towns with which he is acquainted in supporting an early closing of their markets, the town council be recommended to have the market bylaw so amended as to ensure a closing of our market at the early hour of ten o'clock.

Ald. Dennie in response did not think changing the hour would make any material difference to frequenters of the market. As to selling poultry by weight, the council's amendment on these lines in the matter of meat and potatoes met with well-known disastrous results. He would favor a free market himself and felt quite satisfied that our market fees deterred many farmers from coming to town.

Ex-Mayor Yelland favored both an early and a free market.

Mr. R. J. Winch supported Mr. Dumble's argument concerning the sale of poultry by weight and enforcing them being properly dressed. He, as a large buyer, had noticed that the majority of turkeys offered for sale on our market rotting with their crops filled. while he was not in favor of a free market, he would advocate its early closing, and opined that farmers pay very little for the excellent accommodation afforded them.

Mr. Dumble here moved, seconded by Mr. R. M. Roy,—That in the opinion of this Board it would be to the interest of both seller and buyer if all poultry offered for sale on our market were by by-law compelled to be offered for sale properly dressed.—Carried.

Expenditure Not Justified.

Mr. D. W. Dumble moved, seconded by Mr. J. B. Oke,—That the policy pursued by the Town Council during the present year in regard to expenditure on streets has not been justified by the financial condition of the town; that before going into further expenditure in altering the grade of roads and sidewalks, much consideration should be given to the matter and that it should be ascertained if a cheaper system of sidewalks could not with advantage be adopted than the present system of granolithic walks.

In support of his resolution Mr. Dumble claimed that we should first consider whether it is necessary to have granolithic walks and if so if it be not possible to get them constructed at a cheaper rate. He understood that servicable granolithic walks can be constructed at 10c per foot, as against the 16c paid by the town.

Mayor Davis strongly defended the Council's action in the matter. He remarked that when granolithic sidewalks had been determined upon, the majority of our plank walks were in a deplorable condition and needed renewing. The Council thereupon decided that it would be far more economical to construct the present system of walkways than to relay plank walks and keep the same in repair. Upon investigation the Council also ascertained that in the end it would be far cheaper to construct a 16c per foot granite path than the 10c one alluded to by Mr. Dumble. The latter had been tried in many towns with unfavorable results. In conclusion he pointed out that all the ratepayers had to pay for both last year's and this year's permanent improvements was $800 a year for interest and sinking fund on debentures for 20 years. He also added that these granolithic sidewalks were largely petitioned for by the ratepayers themselves."

Ald. Denne and Mr. R. M. Roy denied Mr. Dumble's figures and policy.

Ald. McWilliams could not understand the policy lately adopted by Mr. Dumble, Dumble, whom he had always found to be most extravagant in town affairs. He (Mr. Dumble), was the man who tried to force the town into an expenditure of $100,000 for a railway to Ottawa, $2,000 on surveys and $4,000 for a station which was not needed. Then Mr. Dumble brought a suit against the town for $3,000 for the breaking of a plank, which may account for his partiality to wooden sidewalks. Notwithstanding the town's expenditure on permanent improvements, our rate of taxation this year is no more than that for three or four years past—17 mills—and we are able to sell our debentures at 3 per cent at par, which is perhaps more than any other town in the province can boast of. Then the work on our pavements has not been followed according to the specifications, and Mr. Dumble is the man who came forward in defence of the contractors.

Mr. Dumble here objected to bringing up a matter now before the judge.

Concluding, the speaker strongly expressed himself in favor of day labor as against contract and in conclusion though Mr. Dumble wrong in condemning the council for adopting a policy which he himself had advocated in the past.

The resolution was then put to the vote, but the show of hands not being very prominent in its favor, Mr. Dumble withdrew his motion saying he would prefer its not being recorded unless very fully supported by the Board and citizens present.

The meeting then adjourned.

BYE-ELECTIONS TO-DAY.

Result of the Bye-Elections Will Appear in Wednesday's Times.

The fact that Peterborough has a representative in the Cabinet, makes the bye-elections which take place to-day of additional interest to the people of this constituency. The Times has the same facilities for securing the latest returns as the Toronto morning papers, so that our readers will be supplied with the news five hours ahead of those who depend on the Toronto papers.

In the two Elgins, South Ontario, East Middlesex, North Waterloo and West Huron close contests may be expected; while North Brant may be depended upon to support a government candidate. At the last session of the legislature the government's majority was eleven, so that upon the outcome of the seven bye-elections may be said to hang the fate of the Ross administration.

For the vacancy in South Ontario, the Hon. John Dryden, Liberal, and Charles Calder, Conservative, have been nominated; in East Elgin Charles A. Brewer, Conservative, and Daniel McIntyre, Liberal, have been nominated; in West Elgin, D. McNish, Liberal, and F. G. Macdiarmid, Conservative; and in South Brant, T. H. Preston, Liberal, and Robert Henry, Conservative.

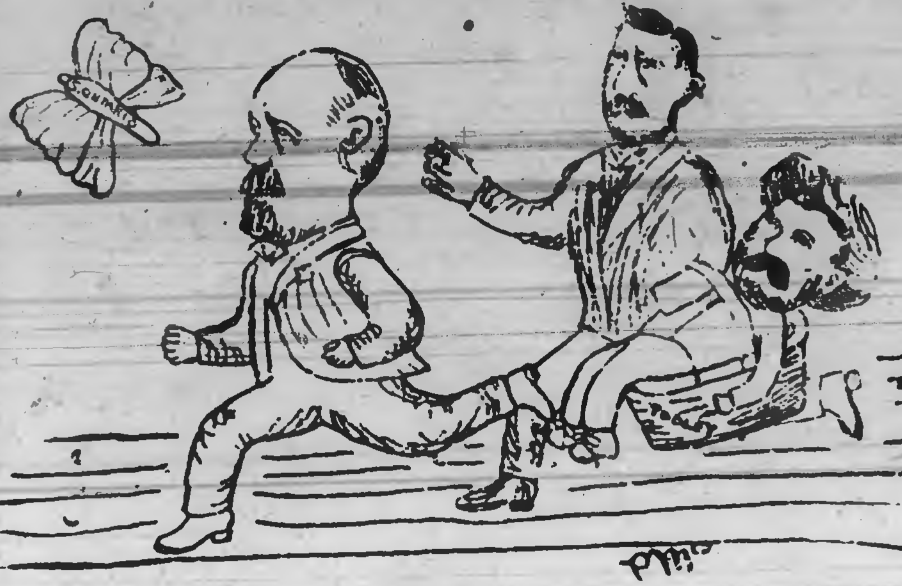
Hon Mr. Stratton, as well as his colleagues, have done considerable speaking in these constituencies.

There is still another vacancy in the House. By the death of Mr. Thomas Hodgins, M.P.P. for East Middlesex, another constituency is left unrepresented, making seven in all. Mr. Hodgins was a Conservative.

How They Do in Cobourg.

Considerable dissatisfaction is expressed at the manner in which the business of the town has been conducted for the past ten or fifteen years. The Commissioners of the Town Trust and Town Council are censured alike, and as no account has been rendered of the large expenditure of the peoples' money, some are desirous that a general reckoning should be given to the public at once. This week we learned that steps were to be taken at once for the appointment of a commission whose duty it will be to thoroughly sift the financial affairs of the town. Of course such a step will cost money, but we understand funds for the movement will be provided by private subscriptions. A petition is to be circulated for signatures, asking for a commission, and also for funds to carry on the work. We have no doubt that there will be any difficulty in procuring plenty of signatures, but we do not believe so many will be anxious to subscribe funds for the prosecution of the work.

SOUTH ONTARIO ELECTION TO-DAY.



HON. JOHN DRYDEN.—Boys, but it's a heavy load I've got in the basket.
HON. G. W.—Never mind, John, I'll catch the butterfly.

THE PAVING CONTRACTS

Argument of Counsel at the Investigation.

SPEECHES OF COUNSEL.

The Counsel for the Contractors Have to Follow, Which Will Take Several Days Yet.

When the investigation re-opened on Friday afternoon, Mr. McWilliams went on to say that according to his own testimony the Engineer was on the work at least twice a day and yet knew nothing of the proportions which were being used for over a month after the beginning. This was in itself a large measure of proof of negligence against the Engineer. Even though on the work if he neglected to watch the small details it was negligence. According to Mr. Hay's own statement the first contract was half done and the second one commenced before he knew of what was going on. When he did learn from Mr. Ranney that the latter thought he had been defrauded, he only mentioned the matter to Mr. Langford. The engineer was clearly guilty of negligence in not taking any further steps to prevent the work going on. If Mr. Hay said he was exercising his judgement in the matter, it was very bad judgement. His only excuse was that he spoke to Ald. Langford on the matter. Too much stress was being laid on the fact of Mr. Hay being sole arbitrator, by the Town Solicitor. Mr. Hay was the Town Engineer first and foremost and if the contractors undertook the work knowing that he was the arbiter, they would have to take the consequences. When the first contract was let Mr. Hay did not take the trouble to let the council know that the work was being done in a cheaper manner than contemplated. It was no excuse for Mr. Hay, as an expert Engineer, to state that he did not know the difference in cost would amount to so much. Some of the tenderers stated that they asked Mr. Hay if there was any changes in the specifications and had only been told of some minor details, which were not brought into question at the investigation. Mr. Hay's neglect to retain any amount from the contractors in order to make up the difference in cost caused by the change in the proportions was also enlarged upon by Mr. McWilliams. Opinions differed as to whether the Engineer was given a free hand or not. In his evidence Mr. Hay did not seem to think that he was given a free hand. He considered it his duty to consult the chairman of the Board of Works about certain matters. One excuse which Mr. Hay advanced with reason, was that he was acting all along with the consent and knowledge of the Board of Works. He might have reasonably considered that he had done all that was necessary when he informed Alderman Langford of the state of affairs. He consulted Alderman Langford about many things. He went to him about the change in cement, also when Mr. Ranney made his discoveries. When Evans & Lngford began their contract it was Alderman Langford that was on the ground to give advice. This was Mr. Hay's only excuse for not having brought the matter to the attention of the council. It rested with His Honour to decide whether this was a good excuse or not. In his own evidence Mr. Hay admitted that he should have informed the council of what was going on. Mr. Hay was a new man on the work and no one could blame him if he thought he was justified in acting on the advice of Alderman Langford. Alderman Langford spent considerable time on the works. He gave Mr. Rose instructions, too, about the mixing of proportions. In other ways he had taken an active part in the work. According to Inspector Bartlett it was Alderman Langford who decided what proportions would be used in the Evans & Langford contract at the time the Inspector objected to the strength of the concrete. Alderman Langford therefore, knew all about the work and he knew that the Engineer was not aware of what was going on. When the contract was awarded to Evans & Langford he knew what proportions were being used and said nothing about it, although he was the man to whom the council looked to report anything of the kind. After the contract was awarded and Inspector Bartlett objected to the proportions, Alderman Langford had sided with the contractors against the town and threatened a general inquiry if Evans & Langford were interfered with. Alderman Langford was the man most of all to blame and was the man who was guilty of fraud. Therefore as the result of the investigation it could fairly be found that there was strong evidence of malfeasance as regarding two or three persons. The firm of Evans & Langford had done work which was inferior and was virtually fraudulent. This however could be fought out later. They had the advantage over Mr. Sheehy, though, in that they used the proportions which they did with the tacit permission of the Engineer.

Mr. D. W. Dumble, on behalf of Contractors Evans & Langford argued that under the statute the Court was once established for the purpose of detecting malfeasance to a municipality. The whole scope then of the investigation was to ascertain if there had been any wrong doing which would bring financial injury to the community. The impression arose that there was financial injury, through Mr. Ranney's supposition that he had been cheated. If Mr. Ranney thought this he could have had the box measured again, but instead of this he wrote his letter. Mr. McWilliams acted on this letter, but though he deserved for acting on his conviction that there was something wrong, he should have examined into the state of affairs more carefully before plunging the town into an investigation stretching over so much time. Ald. McWilliams did not take into account the powers which were vested in the Engineer, who was the sole judge of quantities and qualities. Ald. McWilliams was honest and courageous in bringing on the investigation, but he was mistaken. It was a pleasure to find that Mr. McWilliams in his address stated that there was no moral fraud on the part of the contractors; this was the only kind of fraud that the Court could deal with. If there was legal fraud it would have to be ascertained in a civil court. Evans & Langford had stated that they tendered on the manner in which other contractors were carrying out the specifications under the supervision of the town officials. The question was whether this was a proper interpretation of the specifications. If the town by its own operations demonstrated the contract before the eyes of all surely no one could say that this would not be the true interpretation of the specifications. It was on this that his clients had tendered. The ingredients and quantities were shown when they started. The contract deliberately omits to mention the kind of cement to be used in the base. It is left to the Engineer. No one could charge collusion when he ordered Ensign cement to be used. It was recommended by the T. V. C. engineer to be above the grade required by the Government. No one could say that this was either ignorance or bad faith. Mr. Allan said it was a Portland cement, as good as Star, and only sold cheaper as it was a new brand. There could be no claim against the contractors then in this respect. In regard to the proportions Mr. Dumble argued that a well recognized form of concrete was formed of three or four parts of gravel to one of cement. For the top dressing a small portion of granite was used to make a wearing surface. No experts had been called to show that certain proportions were necessary for a pavement. Many walks were made without granite at all. There was no evidence of any wrong doing, or any attempt to perpetrate a deliberate fraud on the town, but on the contrary all agreed that the pavements were good. Mr. Dumble then went on to speak of the London street pavement, and asked why Mr. McWilliams had not brought the figures into Court concerning this work. The computation put in formerly by Mr. Dumble was then gone over again. He held that when the tests were made regarding the cost of the batches made according to the different proportions, the contractors should have been asked to present. The town should not complain of too much sand being used when last year one portion of the pavement had all been constructed of sand. It would be totally inconsistent to expect a contractor to construct a pavement without sand at 14.65 cents per foot, when the cost of laying such a pavement was proven to be 24 cents a foot. No court would put a construction on a contract which meant ruin to a contractor. If Mr. McWilliams abandons all charges of fraud, but says he wants legal rights, why does he not go to a legal court for these rights? Mr. Dumble did not see what His Honour could report regarding the cost of the pavements per foot. Would he report on the 134 foot, the 172 foot, or the 176 foot test, or the

ABOLISH THE SALARIES.

Toronto Star—Payment of salaries to municipal councils has been treid and found wanting. There was a time when it was believed that the payment of salaries to mayors and aldermen for their services would not only be a just payment for services rendered, but that the system would give us a better stamp of men and would be an act of justice to a large class which felt it had reason to complain that for lack of such payment it was practically debarred from direct representation on council boards. While the theroy sounded well, and seemed to be based on reason, as no one, either individually, or as c community, has a right to expect something for nothing, yet it must honestly be confessed by all observers, not too strictly wedded to theoretical nostrums, that in practise the payment of salaries either to mayor or aldermen has proved a disappointment and a failure.

The pittance allowed to aldermen cannot be considered as payment for services It would not pay any man, either a workman or a business man to take the salary into consideration as a recompense for the time he must give to the duties of the office of alderman. The salary, so called, has only served to draw the professional alderman and ward politician of not a very high type of character. The class of men whom it was said payment of salaries would secure have refused the terms.

As regards the salaries paid to the Mayor and controllers, the verdict must be the same as in the case of aldermen. The men whom it was thought the comparatively high salaries would induce to accept the office have also refused to accept the terms. The mayor's salary has simply been the glittering prize, eagerly sought by needy candidates. The competition for this prize has degenerated into an unseemly chase by men who need the salary far more than they do the office.

The condition of affairs is the opposite of that which obtains in municipal politics in England, where neither mayor or aldermen receive salaries. The positions are sought by men who stand high in the community, and are regarded as honorable men, fit to hold positions of honor and usefulness, without other reward than the approval of their fellow citizens.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The announcement that several Michigan lumbermen are already preparing to move their mills to Canada as a result of Judge Street's decision that Ontario's export log law is constitutional is decidedly satisfactory. The Provincial Government is entitled to all possible credit for its practical and apparently successful efforts to preserve to Ontarion the benefits of its valuable timber deposits.

Toronto Western Hospital.

The Times has been requested by the ladies to state that invitations have been issued for the opening of the new Toronto Western Hospital, on the evening of December 15th. The appearance of the building, as shown on the lithographed invitation, shows a very large and imposing institution, surrounded by trees and walks that suggest an ideal home for the invalid. The necessity of such an institution is well known to all who have given the matter attention, and the names of the Board of Governors is sufficient guarantee that the Toronto Western Hospital will be kept up to a high standard of efficiency.

UNIQUE GAMBLING DEVICES.

Clever Contrivances of Sharpers to Insure Winning.

The room was magnificently decorated, and hidden in the deeply-carved black oak paneling were two spy holes, from which a person on the other side of the wall could see every card of the person sitting opposite the host. When cards were being played a confederate of the host was always watching unseen from these holes, having his finger upon an electric button.

This button communicated with a larger button hidden under the carpet just in front of the host's chair, and by this means the confederate was able to communicate to his master what cards were in the hand of his tet-a-tet player.

Sitting down in his chair, the arch scoundrel put his foot on the invisible button under the table and received the news. One push of the button signified hearts, two clubs, three diamonds, and four spades. It was the confederate's duty to first wire what was strongest suit in the "hand" before him. Thus, one push of the button informed the arch-thief that his tete-a-tete's strongest suit was hearts, and so on. When it had been communicated how the suits stood in strength, it was the confederate's duty to wire what the cards were, starting with the highest in the highest suit, and going to the lowest in the lowest. So quickly could this scheme be worked that very often the host knew his tete-a-tete's cards before the latter had properly arranged his "hand."

After the strength of the suits had been communicated in this way, the host felt twelve rapid taps on the sole of his shoe, and he knew this meant the queen of hearts. A short pause, and then ten rapid taps told him the next highest card was the ten of hearts. And so on. It is said that, thanks to this ingenious scheme, which was never discovered during the inventor's life, many wealthy persons were brought to the verge of ruin, while their host entertained them in regal style.

A somewhat similar, but less successful, scheme was that in the practice of which a certain Continental dressmaker was detected. This woman, like many others of her calling, made it a custom to entertain her customers at gambling in the secresy of her private apartments, and she probably found it infintiely more lucrative than her professed trade, to which it attracted customers. Her plan was to stand her husband outside the room, so that a passage ran between the walls on three sides, and through an unseen opening all round the edge of the ceiling the man could see the cards of all players but his wife, who sat with her back against the single wall.

Walking in the passage the man examined the cards of the unsuspecting players, and opening a small tray in the wall exhibited similar cards drawn from a pack he carried. Owing to the light which was thrown down upon the table and into the faces of all players but the dressmaker. Her eyes, shaded from the glare of the lamp, were accustomed to the dim light in which the cards were exhibited, but to the other players glancing from the glare such dimness would have been as impenetrable as the darkness of night. In this way the man was able to show his wife exactly what cards were in the "hand" of the player behind which he stood, and when one hand had been disclosed in this manner he moved on to the next.

But it was too clumsy to be entirely successful; victims became suspicious of the dressmaker's extraordinlary runs of luck and her habits of constantly looking up at the walls; and one day a victim contrived, during her host's absence, to fix the gas shade to suit her own eyes, and during the game followed the schemer's eyes the moment she saw them rise. Then the feline had escaped from the wallet. The dressmaker vanished.

Many attempts have been made to invent a system of ornamenting the backs of cards in such a way that a person knowing the secret can read them. But the difficulties in the way are manifest, and gamblers who have attempted such frauds have generally been speedily detected.

It is a pretty well known fact, however, that a notorius Western "crook," who died in prison not long ago, was successful in this connection. He invented a pack of cards, and demonstrated how readily he could read them by the backs, while no one else could discover anything in the least suspicous about them. They are now in the hands of the police and have been examined by hundreds of persons, but no one has been able to read their secret. The "crook" is reported to have declared that the secret was worth $4,000 a year to him for five years, and that he sold two similar packs for $5,000 each.

How He Misunderstood.

There were loud cries from a man in the back of the hall, and the cornetist went at it again.

There were more cries from other parts of the hall, but, with that one still ringing in his ears, the cornetist kept it up.

"What are you trying to do?" cried the manager. "That's no encore."

"No encore!" exclaimed the cornetist when he had been induced to break off. "Didn't that man back there yell, 'Toot, man!' four or five times?"

"Not any," answered the manager. "He's a Scotchman, and what he said was, 'Hoot, mon!'"

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return as much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. DOUGHNUGTS NOT DOLLARS.

How a Chicago Tailor was Bunkoed Out of the Price of a Suit of Clothes.

All kinds of confidence games are practiced in a large city, and the newspapers daily tell of "tricks" being sprung on rural visitors. But when the "bunk" is dealt out to a native it seldom gets into print. Here is one that really happened—

A young man walked into a tailor shop on West Madison street a few days ago and ordered a suit of clothes and an overcoat, making a deposit of $10 on the bill of $60, says a Chicago paper. The day the goods were promised for delivery the young man went to a bakery across the street from his tailor and ordered 100 doughnuts to be ready in about an hour and a half. He then went to the tailor shop, put on his new togs, pronounced the work satisfactory, and started for the door.

"Hold on, there; you're forgotten something," said Mr. Tailor, in a sort of I-call-you tone.

"Oh, sure; just give the old ones to the first hobo that comes along."

"I'll be in again in a few minutes."

"Can't stand for that. I'll have to have my money before you leave the house."

"Well, say, is Mr. So-and-So, the baker over here, good for it?"

"Yes, if he says so; he's all right."

They went over to the bakery.

"Got that hundred ready yet?" asked the young man.

"No, won't be ready for an hour."

"Will you give this man fifty for me?"

"Certainly."

"Thank you."

The young man walked away with the suit and an hour or so afterward the tailor was considerably astonished to receive a package of fifty hot doughnuts from across the street. Later, when he went over to the baker's for $50, explanations ensued that were not at all to his liking.

Where the Pot of Gold is Buried.

How many women are fretting and struggling along on a very little money when a good sized yard or adjoining patch of ground is going to waste! Yet that very piece of ground may contain all sorts of possibilities—clothes, furniture, books, medicines, luxuries and even necessities otherwise impossible.

Clear, plow, fertilize and plant. This done, the great beginning is made, and perseverance and attention will assure the rest. Onions, tomatoes, cabbages, celery, a small poultry farm, a violet or rose farm—any one of these may add several hundred dollars to one's purse every year. Small fruits, hops, tuberoses and grapes are also very profitable. With some intelligence a blooming garden can always be made a paying one. Make it a principle to have no more waste in the garden than in the kitchen.

If there is only a very small place and just enough raised for one's own family, try, after the table is supplied, to prepare what vegetables and fruits are left over for sale for winter use. There is always a demand for good homemade canning and preserving. Do not let a valuable scrap of ground be idle.—Annette Halliday-Antona in Woman's Home Companion.

Woes of Millionaires.

An English millionaire has just been adjudged incapable of looking after his property. He imagines himself the Prince of Wales.

Some years ago a rich merchant took the idea that he was penniless. His sons, to stop his worrying, assured him they had rescued his business and was to continue it. They offered him a clerkship at a small salary in his own office. He took it and kept at work nearly 20 years. When he died, he left nearly $15,000,000.

Two English millionaires were noted for their parsimony. One picked up and smoked cigar ends. The other, after fine receptions in his house, would go around carefully collecting candle ends to be used again. Neither of these men was insane. Both were shrewd in business.

Another millionaire imagined for a considerable time that he was a squirrel, and would eat nothing but nuts.

Another was too parsimonious even to buy himself a warm overcoat. Some of his friends made him a present of one, and he promptly sold it at secondhand and pocketed the money.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Was Hanged Over Again.

G. W. Stevens, who traveled extensively in India, tells the following interesting story: A Pathan was being hanged, when the rope broke. The warder bade him go up on to the scaffold again, but he objected. "No," he said, "I was sentenced to be hanged, and hanged I've been."

"Not so, friend," argued the warder, "you were sentenced to be hanged until you were dead, and you're not dead."

It was a new view to the Pathan, and he turned to the superintendent. "Is that right, sahib?"

"Yes, that's right."

"Very well. I didn't understand," and he went composedly up the steps and was hanged again like a man.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

What He Really Owed.

"Doctor," said the grateful patient, seizing the physician's hand, "I shall never forget that to you I owe my life."

"You exaggerate," returned the doctor mildly. "You owe me only for 14 visits. That is the point which I hope you will not fail to remember."

All Roads Lead to the Dressmaker.

Mr. Hornbill—Do you know, darling, I could pick you out of a crowd of women just by your style!

Mrs. Hornbill—I don't wonder, and me with this same old dress for the last two seasons.

"Fifty cents for this beautiful little vase," called the auctioneer. "Going going for 50. Do I hear 55 for this beautiful little vase?" and no one thought anything about the auctioneer or the vase which went for 50 cents until another one was put up, an immense affair of cloisonne. "Now we will show you an exquisite piece, not to be duplicated in this country," he went on. "An exquisite cloisonne varse"—and there the Wellesley girl said excitedly to her companion:

"Now, that is what I call true Boston culture. Would you expect a man of that kind to make such a delicate distinction? He must have been educated at a woman's college. When he is selling a 50 cent article, he says vase in the ordinary way, with the long sound of the 'a,' but when he comes to a big piece of cloisonne it is varse, with the broad 'a' every time. That is according to rule. Over $10 in price you find a varse, but under that nothing but an ordinary, everyday vase."—New York Times.

Crocodile Tears.

The expression "crocodile tears" can be found in almost every European language, but it is doubtful if one in a thousand of those who use it have an idea of its origin. We are told in the Bestiary of Guillaume le Clerc that when the crocodile finds an unwary traveler it devours him, but afterward weeps over him all the rest of its life. This is very evidently the allusion in "Othello," "Each drop she falls would prove a crocodile" (1, 257).

There is another version of the fable, however, which is more often referred to in literature, and according to which the crocodile sheds tears in order to allure the traveler to destruction. Shakespeare alludes to this in the passage where he tells how

> the mournful crocodile
> With sorrow snares relenting passengers.
> —"2. Henry VI.," 1, [illegible]
> —"Poet's Lore."

COPPER MINING STOCKS

For several months shrewd investors have been putting their money into the shares of Copper Mines. This is true not only of men with large amounts of money at their disposal but also applies to those who have made a study of investments with a view to securing a large return for small investments. As high as THREE AND FOUR HUNDRED PER CENT. has to our knowledge already been realized on some of these investments. Americans were the first to make a specialty of Copper Stocks. They knew what they were doing, for the reason is not far to seek. Every Copper Mine in the world is at present taxed to its utmost limit to meet the growing demand for copper for electrical purposes. The reserve stores of copper are being depleted until it pays no longer to use copper in some eastern countries as a coin. Copper has gone up in price from 9c to 18 cents. The supply of Copper from the mines of the world to-day is only about 80 per cent. of the consumption. That is the reason why financiers have their engineers searching the four quarters of the globe for Copper Mines, and that is the reason the shares in promising copper companies are so eagerly picked up by investors.

If you have any money to invest we would ask you to consider the shares of the SUPERIOR GOLD & COPPER COMPANY, LIMITED. This Company owns and operates some valuable native copper properties. We are in a position to offer you a special opportunity in this stock which as an investment should give you a profit of at least 100 per cent in six months. Send for prospectus and particulars.

Occasionally we have an opportunity of giving our clients a special offer on some stocks, and we have this opportunity now. If you are interested write to us at once. These shares are sold in large or small blocks to suit buyers.

We deal in all legitimate mining shares on commission. If you want to buy or sell write us.

The Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto.

With another year's work added to the twenty-two years of its existence, the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, has sent out its report of the good that it has done. In 23 years the Hospital has nursed and treated 30,000 pain-stricken children, which is truly a great record. Last year over 5,000 children were treated in the indoor and outdoor departments. The fame of the Hospital has travelled far indeed, for the little patients are brought to its doors from all parts of the province. Some marvellous cures have been effected by its skilful physicians, while many a little crippled child has recovered the use of deformed limbs under the care of its surgeons. No expense is spared in any single case when there is the least hope of such expenditure proving beneficial.

The better to procure the appliances needed in curing the deformities of many little patients, the Hospital Trustees have this year added a very important department to the Hospital. A building adjoining the large Hospital on College street was purchased, and in it were placed the machinery and material needed for the making of all kinds of appliances needed in different cases of surgery. An expert workman has been secured from New York to superintend the making of these appliances to the exact measurements and designs submitted by the surgeons attending each case.

The results have been eminently satisfactory. Not only is it possible to get these appliances quickly and correctly made for each patient, but the expense has been greatly reduced, and endless savings will be effected.

Many of the little patients come from homes where every dollar is needed for every day needs, and where the parents could not possibly afford to supply the braces, supports and orthopaedic apparatus, let alone secure the attendance of the eminent surgeons who dedicate their services to the Hospital.

Picture the improvement that must follow to a crippled child piteously suffering from some sad spinal disease, lying perhaps in a dark corner on a hard bed, and attended lovingly but intermittently by a hard-working mother. Picture the improvement in that child's prospects of recovery when taken into the bright atmosphere of a hospital ward, where it will be carefully and tenderly nursed and where every care of modern surgical and medical science will be given it.

It would make one's heart ache to see the surroundings of discomfort where some of these little lives have been slowly ebbing away until word of the Hospital's mercies has brought a promise of health to the child and the pleasures of hope to the parents.

We take pleasure in telling our readers of this noble institution, for who knows but some of the little ones within this district may even now have need of its services! The trustees desire us to announce that the doors of the Hospital are thrown wide open to receive any sick or ailing child under 14 years of age who could be benefited by its skill. And its services are free to little children whose parents cannot afford the small fee charged. None are refused admission. For this Hospital was founded in 1875 by great-hearted men and women, who saw the need of the special care necessary for sick, destitute and friendless children, little ones who, through misfortune, disease and poverty could not help themselves, though to-day its fame has spread, and many of the Hospital patients come from stately homes as well as humble dwellings. What charity has so great a claim on the sympathies of men, women and children?

The Hospital is one of the largest institutions of its kind in the world. In it there is accommodation for 200 children. To-day there are more than 100 patients in the cots—babies, boys and girls.

In close affiliation with the Hospital is The Lakeside Home for Little Children, the convalescent branch, where all the patients who can be moved are taken to spend the warm summer months. The Lakeside Home was a gift of a Toronto gentleman to the Hospital. It is located on the south-west corner of Toronto Island, and the situation is a breezy and health-giving one.

This great charity is supported by the voluntary contributions of the people of Ontario. The ordinary expenditure last year was over $50,000. Yet, thanks to the generosity of the public, this expense was met, and $25,000 was paid off the mortgage, which had been retarding and harassing the work for years.

There is still left a mortgage of $25,000 and a bank overdraft of $5,000, or a total debt of $30,000. If the friends of the Hospital are just a little more liberal this year, that huge indebtedness will be lifted, and the Hospital for Sick Children will swing into the twentieth century free from debt.

The Trustees are making a special Christmas appeal for money to discharge this debt. They know they have the kindly sympathy of every one for a mother charity, which stands erect, with arms outstretched, ready to gather into its embrace the sick and ailing little creatures who are entitled to health, the first great need to a fair start on life's journey.

They will be pleased to send a report or any required particulars to any reader of this paper.

All they ask is a dollar from each kind heart—or more if you feel you can spare it.

A donation of $2,000 will endow a cot for all time.

And $1 is an appreciable gift. For many dollars will follow yours. "He who gives quickly gives twice."

Through the columns of the Toronto Evening Telegram each donation will be acknowledged, as well as in the Annual Report. J. Ross Robertson, Chairman of the Hospital Trust, Toronto, to whom donations may be sent, will also send written acknowledgment of any donations as soon as received.

STUNG BY AN ARROW.

Before the civil war Lee was a lieutenant in the old Second Cavalry, afterward recognized as the Fifth. His company was one of the two which were engaged in a sharp fight with the Kiowa and Comanche Indians in the Cimmaron country in Texas in 1859. The Indians had taken refuge in a narrow canon which could be entered only from one end, and there had thrown up a fortification of logs from behind which they poured a hot fire into the troops. The character of the canon was such that the horses of the cavalry were useless and they were left outside, the men advancing on foot. Only a few of the Indians had firearms, the rest using bows and arrows. Had the Indians been as well armed as they have been in the later wars, the loss of the whites would have been very large; as it was only four or five soldiers were killed, though the Indian loss amounted to nearly 50.

A charge was made upon the log fort, and Lee, who was a dashing officer and a wonderful favorite with his men, was the first one to scale the breastwork. The arrows were whizzing all about him, and one struck him in the breast, inflicting a very ugly wound. As he fell, the confusion was so great about him that the arrow was pulled out of his flesh and thrown to the ground among other arrows, whole and broken, so that no one could tell afterward whether the head had remained in the wound or been drawn out with the stick. It was impossible, therefore, to say how seriously he had been hurt, and he was carried at once to the rear, where a litter was improvised of saplings and boughs. He was laid upon this, which was swung between two horses, and thus he was carried back to the wagon train, a distance of over 150 miles through a rough country. Probing showed that the head of the arrow had fortunately been drawn out, and in due time good nursing put the lieutenant on his feet again.

Hockey.

Mr. Lorne Campbell, secretary of the Lindsay Hockey Club, has received a letter from Winnipeg stating that a team of Manitoba hockey players intend to visit Ontario early in the season and would like to play in Lindsay. The expences would be heavy, but the attendance would recoup the team—that is, if the projected improvements are made in the rink.

VIVID • HEALTH

Nothing as rare as charity, easily mystified or defined lest—the envy of all and the proudest jewel in the crown of this is vivid health. Every man has paid the forfeit of sickness in the pain of wealth. A loaded purse cannot atone for the deranged liver, the altering step, the rebellious stomach. Every pulse beat of impoverished blood carries weakness and disease. Gradually all nerve power leaves you and the fire of life is gone. An empty sack cannot stand upright, and so Death gathers in his cheques.

There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. "Annie Rooney" is undergoing a revival in Paris to the temporary eclipsing of Dreyfus.

David Belasco has completed an original play which will be produced early in the season with a specially selected company.

An elaborate revival of Shakespeare's tragedy of "Macbeth" will be the feature of Frederick Warde's repertory next season.

It is unofficially announced that Rudyard Kipling is to write the fairy play to be produced at the London Lyceum next season.

Some German statistician has discovered that stage dancing is conducive to longevity. Taglioni lived to be 80 and Fanny Elsler to be 74.

Rose Coghlan has been re-engaged for her original role of "Mlle. Fifi" for next season, the piece to open its tour in August in Chicago.

Emma Calve's much talked of monument represents her as Ophelia, and the sculptor has promised to exhibit it at the Paris exposition.

Minnie Seligman will appear in the vaudeville houses in a one act play called "Therese," which has been done in Europe by Sarah Bernhardt.

In a play called "Wine, Women and Song," recently produced at the Princess theater, London, two demimondaines, armed with butchers' knives, fight to the death in a beautiful setting profusely decorated with flowers.

George Bernard Shaw submitted his new play, "Cæsar and Cleopatra," to Richard Mansfield, but as Shaw had required a 56-year-old baldheaded Cæsar to make love to a 16-year-old Cleopatra the manuscript was returned.

BEE BUZZES.

Beeswax is dark because of the impurities mixed with it.

All excess of drone comb should be removed from the hive.

Bees start to work earlier if the hives face the south or east.

It is essential during hot weather that the hives be well ventilated.

Avoid blowing your breath among the bees while handling the comb.

Dirt and filth accumulating on the bottom boards make a propagating place for the moths.

Bees reared in the spring and summer are shorter lived than those reared later in the season.

The swarming season usually begins about 10 or 20 days after white clover comes into bloom.

Bees will enter a cool hive much more readily than one which had been baked in the hot sun all day.

Honey properly kept will improve with age. The older it is the better it will be, but it must be kept dry.

All bees should be examined now and the hives thoroughly cleaned. No trash of any kind should be left on the bottom boards.—St. Louis Republic.

Proud of Him.

When he was 50, he returned to his native town "just to see how the old place looked." He found it unchanged. The old store, where as a lad he had clerked it and sold calico and groceries to the old farmers, was just the same. He contrasted the sleepy old place with himself and felt a glow of satisfaction when he thought how much those 30 years had done for him. "They ought to be proud of me," he said to himself.

Presently he met one of the old inhabitants.

"Waal, I declare, is it really you, Hank?" said the old man incredulously. "We've heard you've been prospering first rate sence you went west. They've made you a railroad president or suthin of the sort, ain't they? THE BOXER'S FINISH.

ONE BOUT THAT SETTLED HIS PUGILISTIC AMBITION.

He Didn't Know the Man He Ran Up Against Until He Came Back to Consciousness, After Having Seen a Large Display of Stars.

"When I was much younger," said the portly government official, "I was a husky young fellow, chesty and sassy about my pugilistic ability. I got the boxing bee in my bonnet and practiced hard with the gloves every night. I had been sparring with fellows in my gymnasium for about six months and picking up what I thought was a whole lot of cleverness, when I moved to a boarding house on Pierrepont street, in Brooklyn. I had a room on the top floor of this boarding house. The top floor's rooms were all occupied by young fellows like myself—law and medical students, newspaper chaps and that sort. It was rather a scapegrace lot, and I got acquainted with most of them immediately. I had a lot of athletic gear along with me—clubs, dumbbells, weight pulling machines and stuff—and from the jump I gave these floor mates of mine to understand that I was some considerable pumpkins as an athlete. When I showed 'em my boxing gloves, I was particular to dwell upon the fact that boxing was my one particular graft, and I think I modestly threw the hint out that I'd never yet met a man of my weight that could put the gloves on with me in the amateur class. For a couple of nights running I let them look at me in the act of punching a bag I had suspended from the ceiling of my room, and they all agreed, I think, that I'd be rather an unsafe proposition to get added up with in a scrap.

"One of the occupants of that top floor was away when I struck the house, and he didn't return until I had been in the house for about a week. When he got back, the other fellows introduced me to him. I didn't catch his name at the time, but he didn't strike me as being a very cheerful chap, and I rather ignored him. Well, all got to talking on my favorite subject, sparring, after awhile, and I invited any of the fellows present to put on the gloves for a little 'go' with me.

"'I won't hurt you, you know,' said I. 'I'll just tap you lightly, and you can hit me as hard as you want. It's raining, and I don't want to go to the gym tonight, and I wish one of you ducks 'ud just slip 'em on with me.'

"I didn't quite understand what they all meant when they exchanged glances and pushed forward the man who had been away since my advent in the house and whom I had just met.

"'Go on and put 'em on with him,' they urged this man. 'He won't hurt you. You've had the gloves on once or twice, anyhow, while none of the rest of us knows anything about boxing. Go ahead and give him a little exercise.'

"'All right,' said this man rather reluctantly. He looked just like an ordinary man with his coat on, and I felt that he would be dead easy as a subject upon whom to practice and to show the other fellows what I knew about the fine points of the game. When he returned from his room, however, stripped to his trousers and his gauze undershirt, I couldn't help but look at the chap. For a man of ordinary size he had the hugest chest I had ever seen, and his arms and shoulders were simply knotted and twisted with muscles. He was as quiet spoken a duck as ever I saw, though, and he didn't look to be lively on his feet, so we went at it.

"Well, say that was a one man bout, and the other fellow was the one man. There was nothing to it but him. From the very minute that we squared off I could see by the way he handled his dukes that the boxing game was his'n and that I was like six lead nickels in comparison with him. He just fooled with me at first—rapped me here and there at will, adding insult to injury by quietly announcing where he was going to jolt me next—and I never got in a lick or a dab on him. I tried my dernedest when I saw I was totally outclassed to get in just one belt at him somewhere or other, but it was no go. He had a lightning guard for every essay I made to crack him one, and after about five minutes I was puffing like a tree toad and still taking whacks all over my hide, while he was as cool as a cucumber.

"'You're pretty good,' I gasped when we took a momentary rest. 'You've been at this game often, haven't you?'

"'I've had 'em on a few times,' he replied quietly. 'Let's have another short go.'

"Then we went at it again. He fiddled around for a minute, and then he caught me one with his left fist right under the chin. I went sailing up into the air—I saw enough stars to have gone sailing right up among 'em—and I was out when I came down—good and out, as clean a case of knocked out boxer as ever happened in a prize ring. It was fully ten minutes before I came to, and when I did the other fellows were all fanning me and rubbing my head with ammonia and wondering if I was a sure enough dead 'un. I was all right after I got my head under the cold water spigot, and then one of the fellows took me into the center of the gang and said to me:

"'Maybe you didn't quite catch the name of the man you boxed with when you were introduced to him, hey?'

"'No, I didn't,' said I. 'Who is he—John L. Sullivan?'

"'Not exactly. Mr. Ford, step up and shake hands again. This,' went on the young fellow doing the introducing addressing me, 'is Malcolm W. Ford, the champion all around athlete of America. He has held that title for three years, earning it each year in competition with the best men in the whole country in athletic games. He holds the record for the running broad jump, the standing high jump, the pole vault, hammer throwing, shot putting, and he's among the best in the world as a 100 yard sprinter. He's all right.'

"'Yes,' said I. 'I think he is—even if he is a party to this awful job on me,' and we shook hands. When the gang saw I was game enough to take my roasting good naturedly, they let up on me. But my pugilistic ambition wilted absolutely from that night."

POLITICAL QUIPS.

The presidential bees have gathered very little honey thus far in the campaign.—Los Angeles Express.

It is coming to pass in this country that it is almost libelous for a newspaper to call a man a politician. It is the imputation that he is guilty of things criminal.—Binghamton Herald.

If Princeton wants a professor of politics who is a professor of politics, she will not experiment with Grover Cleveland, but go straight to Dick Croker or Matt Quay.—

If all young women could have the right sort of motherly advice much of the unhappiness of the world would be avoided.

There are two troubles in the way. The girls hesitate to consult the mothers and the mothers really know only a little more than the girls. Counsel of the best sort is at the command of every woman and if she will promptly avail herself of it she will soon be relieved of her troubles. Thousands of women, every year, write to Dr. R. V. Pierce telling their symptoms and asking his advice, which is freely given without cost.

For over thirty years Dr. Pierce has been and is to-day chief consulting physician of the great Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. He is a specialist in the diseases of women and his "Favorite Prescription" has had the greatest sale of all medicines ever devised for the cure of the troubles peculiarly feminine.

Every letter addressed to Dr. Pierce is held sacredly confidential and has the most careful attention.

No testimonial letter is ever published until the written consent of its author has been given.

Mrs. Mary E. Lewis, of Tanner, Gilmer Co., W. Va., writes: "For fifteen years I suffered untold misery. I had given up all hope of ever getting well. I could not lie down to sleep, and everything I ate would almost cramp me to death. Was very nervous and could hardly walk across the room. I only weighed ninety pounds when I commenced taking these medicines. I now weigh one hundred and forty pounds and am having better health than ever before. I have taken the 'Favorite Prescription,' the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and the 'Pellets.' I take great pleasure in recommending your medicines to the sick for I know that if it had not been for them I would not have been living to-day. I am very thankful to God, who put the great power in your medicines that cured me."

An Unprofitable Bone.

Last summer a friend presented us with a tortoise. I do not know whether our dog had heard of turtle soup or whether he regarded the creature as a new kind of bone that walked about; at any rate, he determined to eat it.

Whenever the tortoise started out on a constitutional down the garden path Gyp arrested it and carried it into his kennel, where he gnawed at the impenetrable armor till his jaws ached.

The calm and philosophical manner in which the tortoise resumed its interrupted promenade irritated the dog exceedingly, but no failure discouraged him. Whenever we reminded him of the tortoise, he would go in search of it all round the garden, peering into every crevice, till eventually the creature was found, and then fresh but futile attempts were made to extract the meaty portions from the shell.—

Love, Courtship and Marriage.

Another crowded house greeted Prof. A. H. Welch to hear his lecture on love, courtship and marriage in the Y.M.C.A. hall last night. Though the ladies had to go through the rain they were well repaid. The professor touched on a great many points which were a great benefit to all present, and his discource caused much applause. He was strongly in favor of marriage, and advised all men who were making enough to support a wife to get married. "He that findeth a good wife findeth a good thing, and winneth favor in the sight of God." At the close of the lecture the professor had three young ladies and three young men on the platform to show the difference of temperments, which caused a great deal of amusement. To-morrow night he lectures on "Psyclogy, Hypnotism," etc.

Lost His Horse.

A local storekeeker, whose name we will not disclose, recently accepted an invitation to attend a wedding in Smith. The gentleman in question is reported to be somewhat partial to the "fair sex," so he donned his best broadcloth suit, waxed his mustache, pinned a button-hole bouquet on the lapel of his coat, hired a horse and started. It was a "Fair— afternoon, and the drive, although somewhat lonesome, was marred by no accident. Arriving at his destination (only a few miles out of town), our friend unhitched his horse, tied it up in the shed and repaired to the house, where he entered unto the sports of the evening. When home-going time arrived he was very much surprised to find that his horse was gone, nor did a thorough search of the stable and yards disclose its whereabouts. The unfortunate party was about to start on foot for town, when a lad drove up astride the horse, which had got loose and gone home. The manager of the livery stable knew what the trouble was, and sent the animal back to the unsophisticated horseman.

NEXT YEAR'S COUNCIL

Result of Yesterday's Vote for Mayor and Aldermen.

DARK HORSE SHOWS UP.

Ex-Mayor Kendry Takes the Head for Mayor.

Ald. McWilliams a Close Second—The Contest Becoming Exciting—A Lot of New Names for Council.

The leading candidates for the Mayoralty up to three o'clock yesterday were—

Ex-Mayor Kendry	220
Alderman McWilliams	210

The leading nominees for the Council are —

A. W. Cressman	170
J. B. Oke	170
W. Salisbury	160
M. Wilson	150

There are some surprises this morning. Four men are leading for seats at the Council board, and real good men they are too. The members of the present Council are not being supported, a circumstance that leads to the conclusion that the old Council as a whole is unpopular. We have again to call attention to the fact that we cannot publish votes for hotelkeepers, or other persons disqualified for being candidates. We have received over 70 ballots thus marked, and which cannot be recorded in these columns.

"A Ratepayer" writes—"Enclosed please find ten ballots for Mr. Kendry, who is an old municipal war horse. I would also like to see Mr. Salisbury elected to the Council and mark ballots in his name."

J. W. says—"I enclose a batch of ballots for Ald. McWilliams. Any ratepayer who can refrain from supporting Mr. McWilliams, in view of his great personal sacrifices of time and money in connection with the paving scandals, is not loyal to his town or to himself. I would like to see Mr. A. W. Cressman, who is one of our respected and most enterprising business men, enter the Council. We need new blood."

CIGARS BURNED IN A DAY.

Amount of Tobacco That Peterborough Smokers Consume.

It would astonish the users of cigars to learn how many of them are used in Peterborough in a day.

Taking all the hotels, barber shops, eating houses where cigars are sold we would have probably forty places. Some of the hotels average over one hundred cigars each day, while the smaller places of course do not sell so many. Placing the average at 50 per day for each place, there are 2,000 cigars sold daily in Peterborough. About one-third of these are sold for 10 cents each and the balance at 5 cents. This makes $123.10 per day for cigars or $861.70 per week, or $44,808.40 per year.

This may seem a big estimate, but it is, we believe, under the mark. Eighty per cent of the male population smokes, and about the same percentage smokes cigars.

About 30 cigars measure a pound, so that 66 pounds of cigars are consumed every day in Peterborough, or 462 pounds per week, or a couple of hundred pounds more than a ton annually.

But smokers do not confine themselves to cigars. If they did the result would be very different. Half the men who smoke —and this half constitutes 80 per cent of the men—smoke pipes. This broadens the enquiry out to such a limit that a daily routine will not express the actual amount of the weed turned into smoke every day. Pipe smokers for the most part buy packages of smoking tobacco in two ounce packages.

Two ounce packages of the ordinary tobacco will last a pipe smoker about three days or practically half a week. In this computation the Sunday consumption is not seriously considered. It is the question of the weed burned during the working week alone which is under discussion. With this understanding in addition to the cigar smoker coming to the office the average pipe smoker cleans up four ounces a week, or a quarter of a pound inhis pipe. That means he smokes a pound a month, or substantially that amount.

CANADA'S GREATEST SCHOOL OF SHORTHAND AND BUSINESS [illegible]

PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS SHOULD NOTICE

This Institute has prepared over seventy teachers for other Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States, more than twice as many as all other Business Colleges in Canada, combined, have so placed.

The proprietors of five of the leading business colleges in Western Ontario, who are to-day among our strongest opponents in the field of Shorthand and Business training, received THEIR training under the Principal of this institution. Besides these, there are five others holding leading positions as teachers in Business Colleges in Ontario.

Since Sept 1st seven of our pupils have accepted positions as teachers in Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States; another is now negotiating for a similar opening in a Business College in a leading American city, and there are five unfilled calls of this kind on hand still.

DOES IT NOT PAY TO ATTEND THE BEST? You must decide.

236 of our pupils secured good positions in seventeen months, and the good work of placing our students still continues.

cost of Mr. Fose's work per foot. The investigation had been undertaken on a mistaken idea. Moral fraud had been suspected. Every witness had been asked if he had been improperly approached. In the end Mr. McWilliams had acknowledged that there had been no moral fraud committed, and in Mr. Dumble's opinion he should then have gone further and magnanimously agreed with Mr. Edwards in saying that the result of the investigation showed that it had been entered upon on a misunderstanding, and that he was glad to say that the charges had been cleared up in a satisfactory manner.

The investigation was then adjourned until to-day.

ANOTHER BRILLIANT SORTIE FROM LADYSMITH.

Colonel Metcalfe and 500 Men Storm the Boers' Position, Drive Back the Enemy and Destroy Their Howitzer.

THE BRITISH LOSS IS 12 KILLED, 44 WOUNDED.

Gen. Gatacre's Explanation of the Stormberg Reverse—A Boer Despatch Says 489 Prisoners Were Taken—Report That Methuen and Buller Will Advance Together.

London, Dec. 13.

The War Office publishes the following despatch from General Buller: "Despatch from Gen. White, dated Dec. 111, says:—"Last night Col. Metcalfe and 500 of the Second Rifle Brigade sortied to capture a Boer howitzer on a hill.

The reached the crest without being discovered, drew off the Boers and then destroyed the howitzer with gun cotton.

When returning, Metcalf found his retirement barred by the Boers but he forced his way through, using the bayonet freely. The Boer losses were considerable. The British losses were the following:—Lieut. Ferguson and 11 men killed. Capt. Paley, Lieut. Davenport, Lieut. Bond and 41 men wounded. Six men captured who had remained behind in charge of the wounded.

Mafeking, Nov. 30, via Lorenzo Marques, Dec. 11.

Sorties by the British armored train and Boer Shelling of the town continues. The British have had few casualties. Last evening the Protectorate regiment managed to occupy an outpost where the British Lee-Metfords could reach the enemys big gun, and the result was that the effectiveness of the Boer fire was materially reduced.

London, Dec. 13, 4.45 a.m.

With the exception of Sunday's sortie at Ladysmith, which the morning papers are unanimous in regarding as a brilliant piece of work, there are no further advices from the seat of war. A war office despatch reports that Mafeking was safe up till Dec. 4th, but that the Boers had been shelling the town since November 27 with increased effect. Rations had been considerably reduced, meat by half a pound and bread by a quarter of a pound in view of a probable long seige. Water, however, was still plentiful.

The Boers fear the British bayonets. This appears in the full accounts now arriving of previous sorties. It seems that in Sir Archibald Hunter's sally from Ladysmith to capture the Boer guns, the British did not carry bayonets. While they were storming the hill the Boers, suddeny aroused from sleep, rushed to the edge and opened an indiscriminate fire upon them. But just before the British secured a footing on the top of the hill some one among them shouted, "Fix bayonets and give them the cold steel." At this the Boers turned and fled into the darkness.

General Gatacre's disaster at Stormberg has been blamed to a lack of knowledge of the country. According to the Daily Telegraph, when the war began there were no official maps available at Cape Town, and therefore it is probable that Gen. Gatacre is still without them.

The Times, while praising Colonel Metcalfe's brilliant work at Ladysmith, expresses the opinion that relief being now so near, such sorties are rather perilous, and it would be better for Gen. White to avoid them so far as possible.

The Morning Post again endeavors editorially to arouse the British people to recognition of the "serious" nature of the struggle and of the grave position in which matters now stand." It urges the Government to prepare immediately to send more troops to South Africa.

Lord Mayor Newton, the Aldermen of the city of London, and other prominent officials of the corporation, together with the military authorities, will attend the memorial service to be held in St. Paul's Cathedral fro the men who have fallen in the war."

THE SITUATION REVIEWED.

London, Dec. 12.—Good news comes to those who for so many weeks have been watching the gallant struggle of Colonel Baden-Powell and the small garrison at Mafeking against the Boers The relieving column from Rhodesia, which has been steadily making its way down the Cape-Buluwayo line from Palapye for the past two weeks has at last reached Gaberones, 96 miles north of Mafeking, after a march of nearly two hundred miles. The Boers, who had occupied the fort in large numbers in anticipation of the advance, were found to have disappeared, having probably been withdrawn, together with the other bodies of burghers who have gone to help in resisting the relief of Kimberley. It is probable that the Rhodesian column will have an easy task in relieving Mafeking, seeing that the Boers are necessarily in small numbers there, having been weakened by the exigencies of the fighting around Kimberley.

Another week should see Colonel Baden-Powell freed from his six weeks' siege and the railway line restored north of his position. The fact that Mafeking is being relieved from the north indicates that Methuen's force will not go farther north than Kimberley.

Further details of the British losses in the ill-fated attack upon Stormberg have been received, both from Briton and Boer sources. General Gatacre's despatch makes it appear that the error made by the guides was not intentional, but merely one of judgment. President Steyn's message shows that the losses in killed and wounded were much more severe than at first believed. The Boers have only 489 prisoners in their hands and as the number of men missing was 606 there are still 117 men unaccounted for. Among this number, of course, there will be a large proportion of killed and wounded, while a few may perhaps have escaped and rejoined their regiments. There appears to be a discrepancy in the numbers furnished by Gatacre and those furnished by Steyn.

TWO GUNS WERE DISABLED.

London, Dec. 12.—The War Office has received the following from General Forestier-Walker:—

"Cape Town, Monday, Dec. 11.—Gatacre reports as follows;—

"The idea to attack Stormberg seemed to promise certain success, but the distance was underestimated by myself and the local guides. A policeman took us around some miles, consequently we were marching from 9.30 p.m. till 4 a.m., and were landed in an impossible position. I do not consider the error intentional. The Boers commenced firing from the top of an unscalable hill and wounded a good many of our men while in the open plain. The Second Northumberlands tried to turn out the enemy but failed. The Second Irish Fusiliers seized a kopje near and held on, supported by the mounted infantry and Cape Police. The guns under Jeffrys could not have been better handled. But I regret to say that one gun was overturned in a deep nullah and another sank in quick sand. Neither could be extricated in time to be available."

"Seeing the situation, I sent a despatch rider to Molteno with the news, and collected and withdrew our force from ridge to ridge for about nine miles. The Boer guns were remarkably well served. They carried accurately 5,000 yards.

"I am holding Bushman's Hoek and Cyphergat. Am sending the Irish Rifles and Northumberlands to Sterkstroom to recuperate. The wounded proceeded to Queenstown. The missing Northumberlands numbered 306, not 206, as previously reported.

BRITISH PRISONERS ARE 489.

Pretoria, Sunday, Dec. 10.—President Steyn has sent the following details of the fight at Stormberg Junction;

"The British with six cannon attacked the Boers under Swanepoel and Olivier, and stormed the Boer's entrenched positions on the Kopjes. After a severe fight they were compelled to surrender. The prisoners are Major Sturges, six officers and two hundred and thirty non-commissioned officers and men of the Northumberlands, and two officers and about two hundred and fifty non-commissioned officers and men of the Irish Fusiliers. It is impossible to state the number of dead or wounded British. The Boers captured three cannon and two ammunition wagons."

FIRING AT MODDER RIVER.

Cape Town, Dec. 12.—It is reported that heavy fighting was heard all day yesterday in the direction of the Modder River.

HALF WAY TO MAFEKING.

London, Dec. 12.—The Rhodesian force advancing to the relief of Mafeking reached Gaberone's fort December 3 and found the Boers had evacuated the place. The Rhodesians are repairing the railway as they advance. The latest news from Mafeking shows that Colonel Baden-Powell has been forced to reduce the rations of the garrison and inhabitants. Water is plentiful, however.

FRENCH HOLDS HIS GROUND.

London, Dec. 12.—A message to-day from Naauwpoort, dated Monday, December 11, shows that General French had apparently no inclination to withdraw his advanced troops at Arundel, as had been feared might be the result of General Gatacre's defeat. General reported that his artillery on Dec. 11 forced an advanced post of the Boers south of Colesburg to evucate its position and seek refuge behind Vaalkop.

A DEFECTIVE DEPARTMENT.

London, Dec. 12.—There is great indignation in Great Britain at the ignorance the British Intelligence Department is displaying in estimating Boer strength in Cape Colony. Experts aver that 15,000 Boers will have to be driven out of the colnoy before the passage of the Orange River can be commenced.

TWO SIMULTANEOUS ATTACKS.

London, Dec. 12.—The almost complete absence of news from the theatre of war up to 2.30 o'clock this afternoon increased public curiosity, so deeply stirred by Saturday's disaster. Such scanty messages as dribbled through seemed to indicate that preparations were about completed fro simultaneous attacks at Tugela River and Modder River, the despatches showing that the British and Boers were in touch in both directions on Monday. There is no confirmation of the report of another day-long battle along the Modder River on Monday, but possibly there was a resumption of fighting, as reported by General Cronje yesterday evening, as the searching with lyddite shell fire of Sunday was probably a preliminary to an advance.

STRANGE NEWS INDEED.

London, Dec. 13.—A strange item of news reached here from Boer sources announcing that the Weschbank bridge was damaged. This was taken in some quarters as a possible confirmation of the suggestion that the British had made a wide sweep by way of Helpmakaar and were preparing to take the Boers north of Ladysmith in the rear.

Will Be a Holy Years.

New York, Dec. 12.—News of interest to Roman Catholics comes from Washington to the effect that the apostolic delegate there has received the text of the decree from the Pope designating the year 1900 as the holy year. The decree permits the celebration of midnight mass in all Catholic churches on the night of December 31. The decree also grants the privilege of communion at the midnight mass. This is also without precedent.

Another feature of the decree settles it that so far as the Catholic church is concerned the twentieth century will begin January 1, 1900. The language of the decree is too plain to admit of dispute.

A Young Woman Suicides.

New York, Dec. 12.—Emily Goodison, a daughter of a designer in silverware, and described as young, pretty and of artistic temperament, went into Prospect Park last night, lay down on the mound where the rose garden blooms in summer, and drand three ounces of carbolic acid. No reason is given for her suicide. In her pocket book was found a poem referring to death.

LA SOLEIL BLAMES TARTE

For Defeat of the Greenway Government—A Few Words of Caution.

Quebec, Dec. 12.—In offering a few explanations of the Greenway Government's defeat, Le Soleil, the Liberal organ of Quebec, administers a rebuke to J. Israel Tarte and Henri Bourassa, M. P., for their opposition to the Canadian contingent.

"The true cause of the defeat of the Liberal Ministry was national antipathy. The English have been suffering reverses in Africa for some time past, and their brethren in Canada are all the more angry against all whom they suspect of rejoicing at their affliction. Sir Wilfred Laurier is unjustly held responsible for the manifest hostility of the French press, for the Chauvinism of Bourassa, and of those papers which, without the least revelancy, but for the sole selfish purpose of seeming more patriotic or more enlightened than others, proclaim that the concessions made to England will not be repeated, that we have already gone too far, et cetera. And so it will be until a curb has been attached to restrain all the hotheads of our party who imagine that the Province of Quebec is the whole Dominion, and that we have not to reckon with the other provinces.

"What is the use of certain of our public men continually proclaiming themselves Frenchmen first and British subjects next? To think so might be laudable; to write it and proclaim it constitutes an idiotic, a criminal provocation.

"The effect of the supposedly patriotic tirades of certain of our friends is apparent. We must be guided accordingly. The example may be salutary with us. Our turn might cmoe, and then who knows whether our Ministers do not need a little check of this kind to inspire them with more consideration for their supporters."

CHICAGO AIDS THE BRITISH.

Widows and Orphans of War's Victims to be Assisted.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—Former subjects of the British empire are planning to hold a mass meeting in Central Music hall Jan. 6, for the purpose of raising funds for the relief of the widows and orphans of the forces of the British empire who fall in the war in the Transvaal. A committee representing most of the British societies of Chicago held a meeting last evening at the Great Northern hotel to consider the preliminary arrangements. General John Walker presided. Another meeting of this committee will be held next Monday evening to complete arrangements.

The committee will provide an entertainment at this meeting of vacal and instrumental music and several short addresses by prominent men, discussing the history of the present crisis in South Africa, will be delivered. Resolutions will be offered and when passed will be sent through the British consul in Chicago to the colonial secretary of the empire, Joseph Chamberlain.

Amony the societies that will send delegates to the meeting at the Great Northern hotel Monday evening will be St. Andrews' Caledonian society, Society of Scottish Clans, Sons of St. George, Daughters of St. George, Victoria Club, Britannia club, Sons of Mona (Manx), Orkney and Shetland society, Snos of Canada, Canadian-American society, St. George Benevolent society, Cymrodorian society (Welsh) and Sons of Ulster (Irish).

Seat for Greenway.

Winnipeg, Dec. 12.—The local Legislature has been further prorogued till January 25th.

Smith, Government, is elected in Springfield by about fifty majority. This leaves the result so far—Opposition 22, Government 16.

A Moose Jaw despatch says the Liberals of West Assiniboia held a convention in Moose Jaw today to bring out a candidate for the Commons. The machine endeavored to control the meeting. Three Associations, Regina, Grand-Coulee and Fairview, also four delegates from the country, would not submit and left the hall, and the convention broke up in disorder.

A New Judge.

Ottawa, Dec, 12.—Daniel Fraser MacWatt, barrister, of Barrie, has been appointed senior judge of the county of Lambton.

U. S. CONSUL WAS ANGRY.

He Differs With Lt-Gov. McInnes and Warm Words Were Exchanged

Vancouver, B. C., Dec. 12.—Such reports as have been telegraphed of the clash between Lieut.-Governor McInnes and the United States Consul at the Pioneer's banquet in Victoria are everywhere commented upon.

It seems that Lieutenant-Governor McInnes was mildly condemning the attitude of the United States in regard to the Alaska boundary question The boundary had, he said, been settled by Britain and Russia before Alaska became part of the States. The Anglo-Russian treaty of 1825 should be submitted to a few men who understood the English language, and let them decide. The Lieutenant-Governor thought the United States should be the last to complain, as on more than one occasion Great Britain had prevented European nations from intervening in United States' affairs, notably during the war of Confederation and the war with Spain. Thus, Mr. McInnes said, the United States owed its existence to Great Britain.

This brought Consul Smith to his feet, strongly agitated. He said that he could not forget the events of 35 years ago, when the United States was struggling for its very existence, and Great Britain was affording all assistance to the South, the deadly foe of the Union. This was proved by the Alabama claim of $15,000,000 which Great Britain paid.

The Lieutenant-Governor replied that seven millions of that claim remained unpaid yet. The affair has caused considerable excitement.

Las Palmas, Canary Islands, Dec. 12.—The British transport Denton Grange, with war munitions on board, en route to Cape Colony, is ashore outside the harbor and making water.

Winter in the Old Land.

London, Dec. 12.—A heavy snow storm is interfering with traffic on railroads and street car lines in various parts of the country. Skating has commenced, and hunting and racing have been suspended.

Federal Bye-Elections.

Ottawa, Dec. 12.—It is probable that the writs for the Federal bye-elections will be issued so that the polling can take place early in January. The lists for the vacancies have been received and are being printed.

She Fell Off the Train.

Arnprior, Ont., Dec. 12.—The body of a young woman killed, apparently by falling off a train, was found alongside the C.P.R. tracks near the railway bridge on the outskirts of Arnprior this morning. The body has been identified as that of Miss Lena Connery, the 15 year old daughter of the township clerk of Pakenham, who was likely a passenger on the C. P. R. train from Pakenham to Arnprior last evening, and stepped off the train in the dark while yet in motion.

Again the Headsman.

New York, Dec. 12.—At the annual meeting of the New York Society of Medical Jurisprudence last night, Attorney Roger M. Sherman, in an address, most strenuously opposed executions by electricity, declaring that the interval between shocks was an eternity of anguish to the victim. He asserted that the time would come when the dynamo would have to be supplanted by the axe.

Sympathy for Boers.

Washington, Dec. 12.—In the Senate to-day Senator Mason's (Illinois) resolution expressing sympathy with the Boers in their war with Great Britain was sent to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. Mason contended that the question involved in the controversy between Great Britain and the Transvaal prior to hostilities was simply one of supremacy in South Africa, "and I ask," said he, "in common justice, what right has Great Britain to be supreme in South Africa?"

"It is a fight to control South Africa, and the only way England could do it was to threaten, bulldoze, browbeat, and interfere with the Dutchman, until, out of sheer humiliation and desperation, he was driven to fight."

He also maintained that, though the British people had always been friends of the States, the British Government had also been strongly opposed to the Republic.

BOER MARKSMANSHIP.

The British casualties in South Africa have included an unusual proportion of officers, and a despatch after the fight at the Modder River said that officers must cease to wear distinctive unifroms. The Boers have been living up to the old reputation as sharpshoots which they won in the days when one of their chief occupations was hunting on the Transvaal plateau. Selous, Nicholson and other hunters have told us that African game animals are wilder, swifter and more alert than those of any other part of the world. The Boers were trained in the best of hunting schools and became expert Nimrods, even if few of the foreign sportsmen who have hunted with them have been willing to admit that very many are first-class shots.

But hunters in South Africa have said, for several years past, that the younger Boers were not maintaining the reputation of their fathers. The extermination of game in and near the Transvaal, they said caused most of the young men to abandon the chase, and the cost of modern ammunition deterred most of them from sufficient practice to keep up to the mark as rifle experts. Some of the Boer shooting records in the past few years distinctly indicated deterioration. It was found, for example, that each head of game killed by a party of hunters on the banks of the Limpopo in one week, with breechloading rifles, cost about thirty cartridges. Their record was also poor in the fight with Dr. Jameson's raiders. The Boers fired from behind rocks, while the enemy was on an exposed plain on which marks indicating distances had been placed. The burghers killed only twenty-three raiders and wounded less than that number, though they fired about six thousand cartridges.

Either the sportsmen have underestimated the average efficiency of the Boers of to-day or the latter were diligently practising with their guns for months before hostilities began. It was announced early this year that the burghers of the Orange Free State had been supplied by the Government with ammunition for rifle practice as the result of the meeting of Commandants at Bloemfontein. There is little doubt that the same thing was done in the Transvaal, though with less publicity. It is well known that the Transvaal Boers engaged in artillery practice under European direction for months before the first hostile shot was fired. The rifle record of the burghers thus far in the war certainly has not justified the poor opinion sportsmen have lately entertained of their marksmanship.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Of course Kimberley will be glad to feel relieved. These shooting pains are never pleasant.

A New York judge has refused a divorce to a woman whose application was based on the fact that her husband had failed in business and become poor, accompanying the refusal with a cutting rebuke. It is rather amusing to find the two republics in South Africa, with a combined white population of less than 300,000, issuing proclamations annexing sections of British colonies and changing the names of towns in Natal and Cape Colony in honor of Boer leaders. The sensation is a novel one for the British Empire, which is accustomed to take the lead in the annexation business.

THE FASHION PLATE.

Straight, full skirts continue to be used in making up sheer transparent summer textiles for slender waists.

The new corded taffeta silks in a great variety of summer colorings and effects are in favor for making up dressy shirt waists.

The black and white striped fabrics in silk or silk and wool effects, which impart length and slenderness to the figure, are uncommonly handsome and varied in design this year.

On many of the costumes of foulard, figured taffeta or surah, drap de chine, drap d'ete, summer costume cloth, etc., the waist is belled at the back and on the sides, but in front is in jacket style, with tabbed ends falling below the waist line.

One of the most graceful summer models for a rather full figure, to use in making up organdie muslin, dimity, batiste and similar goods, is the new seven gored model, with a pretty demitrain, to be made up separately over a foundation skirt of exactly the same shape.

Skirts with closings at the side instead of at the back are now the most favored. If so arranged, the round waist or basque bodice can be permanently fastened to the skirt at the back, thus avoiding the time and trouble necessarily given to a waist and skirt differently laced or hooked.

White veiling or barege may be as elaborately trimmed as a white organdie. It will have as cool an effect, be nearly as comfortable on a hot day as cotton, and during a sudden change in the temperature the light wool gown will give the needed protection.

CURTAIN RAISERS.

Kyrle Bellew denies the rumor that he is coming to the United States with Henry Irving.

Rose Coghlan, who plays in "Mlle. Fifi," has patented a sunshade for use at the seashore.

Digby Bell is to be seen in "Arizona." Next season he will be in one of Charles Frohman's companies.

Phoebe Davies has a belt made from Mauser shells found on dead Spaniards after the fight on San Juan hill.

Since Calve has her tombstone and Sarah Bernhardt her coffin, why do not certain would be players go and bury themselves!

At the Filipino theaters of Manila it is the custom to show appreciation by tossing coins on the stage in lieu of bouquets.

Venie Bennett, sister to the late Alice Atherton and widow of the comedian John A. Mackey, will appear in the vaudeville theaters.

As an instance of how the romantic drama has revived abroad, no less than six companies are touring England with "The King's Musketeer."

It is stated that Reginald De Koven has received about $75,000 from "Robin Hood." Barrie will probably take $100,000 or more from "The Little Minister."

Aubrey Boucicault, who plays the husband in "Mlle. Fifi," is said to have inherited some of his father's talent as a playwright and is now finishing two plays which may be produced next season.

RECENT INVENTIONS.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return as much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. George Bingham, whose exceeding genial personality is well known to the people of Toronto, is the proprietor of that well-appointed drug establishment, known as Bingham's Pharmacy, situated on Yonge street. Mr. Bingham, "George" as he is familiarly known to a large circle of personal friends, is naturally an authority on drugs and their preparation, and has a reputation of selling exclusively only pure and efficacious compounds. To a reporter who dropped in to ask about the condition of the drug trade, Mr. Bingham said: "I find that the old lines continue about as usual, but that the seller of the season is Hutch. The demand for Hutch has been, and is, simply enormous. Everybody is buying Hutch. I am able to recommend it as I know the ingredients, and I do simply recommend it from my positive knowledge that only the purest drugs are used in its compounding, and that its efficacy is beyond peradventure. A great many people ask me about Hutch, and when they take it, invariably report favourably as to its action. Only the other day a man dropped in here who stated that his partiality for a glass of beer and biscuits and cheese before retiring occasioned him a nasty taste in the mouth the next morning after indulging. I stated that Hutch should prove beneficial and he bought a ten-cent package. He came in a day or two afterward and thanked me. Said Hutch was the finest thing he had taken in years. We often have prominent politicians and eminent clergymen our customers and they all say that Hutch is really a remarkable cure." Mr. Bingham's time being taken up just then, the reporter left with the idea that Hutch pretty nearly constituted the drug trade, and that a really sterling preparation was meeting a deserved recognition.

Snow Plow vs. Shovel.

Editor Morning Times,

Sir,—As everybody appears to read the Times, I take advantage of its large local circulation to enter a protest against the proposal of the Town Engineer to compel people to shovel the snow from the sidewalks in front of their premises, instead of having it done by snow plow.

I read in the Times that the Engineer gave as a reason why the snow plow is to be discarded is on account of the damage which a horse is liable to do to the new pavement. No doubt Mr. Hay had in his mind the fact that our sidewalks are improperly made—that they are not hard enough, and that it is solely his fault that they are not. If the walks won't bear a horse, then the sooner the people know it the better. It is an insult to the intelligent ratepayers to be told that the walks are likely to suffer if the snow plow is to be used. Granolithic pavement, is properly made, should carry anything without injuring it.

If the Council propose to enforce the shovel method, they should do it by corporation labour. In any case it would be unfair to compel property owners to do their own shovelling, and then help to pay for the snow plowing in other localities. The Works Committee has been so generous this year that they would not mind employing 50 or 100 men all winter to shovel snow, so as to spare our precious sidewalks.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am &c.,

CIGARS BURNED IN A DAY.

Amount of Tobacco That Peterborough Smokers Consume.

It would astonish the users of cigars to learn how many of them are used in Peterborough in a day.

Taking all the hotels, barber shops, eating houses where cigars are sold we would have probably forty places. Some of the hotels average over one hundred cigars each day, while the smaller places of course do not sell so many. Placing the average at 50 per day for each place, there are 2,000 cigars sold daily in Peterborough. About one-third of these are sold for 10 cents each and the balance at 5 cents. This makes $122.10 per day for cigars or $861.70 per week, or $44,808.40 per year.

This may seem a big estimate, but it is, we believe, under the mark. Eighty per cent of the male population smokes, and about the same percentage smokes cigars.

About 30 cigars measure a pound, so that 66 pounds of cigars are consumed every day in Peterborough, or 462 pounds per week, or a couple of hundred pounds more than a ton annually.

But smokers do not confine themselves to cigars. If they did the result would be very different. Half the men who smoke—and this half constitutes 50 per cent of the men—smoke pipes. This broadens the enquiry out to such a limit that a daily routine will not express the actual amount of the weed turned into smoke every day. Pipe smokers for the most part buy packages of smoking tobacco in two ounce packages.

Two ounce packages of the ordinary tobacco will last a pipe smoker about three days or practically half a week. In this computation the Sunday consumption is not seriously considered. It is the question of the weed burned during the working week alone which is under discussion. With this understanding in addition to the cigar smoker coming to the office the average pipe smoker cleans up four ounces a week, or a quarter of a pound in his pipe. That means he smokes a pound a month, or substantially that amount.

VINEGAR, THEN LEAD.

"I think my most exciting official experience," said Captain J. B. Stone, formerly United States postal inspector, "was at the town of Carbonville, Colo., in 1879. It was a star route post, and there was much complaint about the nonreceipt of mail, so I went over to investigate.

"The postmaster was a man named Wilson, who kept a general store, and the postoffice consisted of a soap box on the end of his counter. When mail arrived, it was dumped in, and every fellow helped himself, an arrangement that worked well enough until a chap known as Black Hills Pete came to town. Pete disturbed the entire system. When he didn't get a letter himself, he would tear up several others on the principle that misery loves company, and, being a notorious desperado, nobody dared interfere. I got the facts, and as the mail came in that evening I took a seat in the corner and awaited developments, first ordering the box removed.

"A little after dark the miners from camp began to assemble, and presently in came Black Hills Pete. He was a big brute of a fellow, and I saw at once there was going to be trouble. 'Where's that letter box?' he demanded of Wilson. 'I've ordered him not to use it any more,' I said, getting up. 'Who the blank blank are you?' roared Peter. 'I'm the inspector,' I replied. 'Well, you get me that box quick,' he retorted, and, seeing him reach toward his pocket, I made a grab for my gun; but, as bad luck would have it, the confounded thing caught in the holster.

"In a twinkling he had me covered, but before he could turn loose a quavering voice called out: 'Pete! Oh, Pete!' The desperado glared around, and there stood Wilson holding a large tin squirt gun used for drawing liquors. The sight was so ludicrous that the bully burst into a guffaw, and as he did so Wilson let drive the piston and hurled about a quart of the strongest kind of vinegar squarely into his face. The stuff blinded him, and before he could recover himself the storekeeper had two bullets in his shoulder.

"That's the true story of the strangest fight that ever occurred in the west. Pete recovered, but before he could be arrested was spirited away by friends to New Mexico. His right name was Luther Coleman, and there is a warrant now standing against him for destroying United States mail matter. After the episode I have narrated there was no further trouble at the Carbonville postoffice."—New Orleans

A Curious Old Ad.

A Boston paper has unearthed this curious old advertisement from the Boston Post Boy and Advertiser for March 16, 1767: "The Bell-Cart will go through Boston, before the End of next March, to Collect Rags for the Paper Mills at Milton, when all People that will encourage the Paper Manufactory may dispose of them; the best Price will be given. They are taken in at Mr. Caleb Davis's Shop, at the Fortification; Mr. Andrew Gillespie's, near Dr. Clark's; Mr. Andrew Ramsdale's, near Phillips's Wharf; and Mr. John Boies's in Long Lane; Mr. Frothingham's in Charleston; Mr. Williams's in Marblehead; Mr. Ellson's in Salem; Mr. John Harris's in Newbury; Mr. Daniel Fowle's in Portsmouth; and at the Paper Mill in Milton

"Rags are as Beauties, which concealed lie;
But when in Paper, how it charms the Eye;
Pray save Rags, new Beauties to discover,
For Paper truly, every one's a Lover:
By th' Pen and Press such Knowledge is displayed,
As wouldn't exist if Paper was not made.
Wisdom of Things, mysterious, divine,
Illustriously doth on Paper shine."

But They Weren't Civilized.

Traveling in southern India, one day I was taken into the country to see tapioca roots gathered and ground for use. The adults working in the grove, men and women, had each a rag around the loins, but the boys and girls, with their black, glossy skins, were free of all incumbrance.

Our guide explained to these people that we were from a country so far away and so different from theirs that the waters were sometimes made solid by the extreme cold and we could walk upon them; that sometimes it was so intensely cold that the rain was frozen into particles and lay on the earth so deep that people could not walk through it, and that three and four layers of heavy clothes had to be worn.

This happy people, as our guide told us, wondered why we staid there, why we did not come and enjoy life in their favored clime.—Andrew Carnegie in North [illegible]

COPPER MINING STOCKS

For several months shrewd investors have been putting their money into the shares of Copper Mines. This is true not only of men with large amounts of money at their disposal but also applies to those who have made a study of investments with a view to securing a large return for small investments. As high as THREE AND FOUR HUNDRED PER CENT. has to our knowledge already been realized on some of these investments. Americans were the first to make a specialty of Copper Stocks. They knew what they were doing, for the reason is not far to seek. Every Copper Mine in the world is at present taxed to its utmost limit to meet the growing demand for copper for electrical purposes. The reserve stores of copper are being depleted until it pays no longer to use copper in some eastern countries as a coin. Copper has gone up in price from 9c to 18 cents. The supply of Copper from the mines of the world to-day is only about 80 per cent. of the consumption. That is the reason why financiers have their engineers searching the four quarters of the globe for Copper Mines, and that is the reason the shares in promising copper companies are so eagerly picked up by investors.

If you have any money to invest we would ask you to consider the shares of the SUPERIOR GOLD & COPPER COMPANY, LIMITED. This Company owns and operates some valuable native copper properties. We are in a position to offer you a special opportunity in this stock which as an investment should give you a profit of at least 100 per cent in six months. Send for prospectus and particulars.

Occasionally we have an opportunity of giving our clients a special offer on some stocks, and we have this opportunity now. If you are interested write to us at once. These shares are sold in large or small blocks to suit buyers.

We deal in all legitimate mining shares on commission. If you want to buy or sell write us.

THE PAVING CONTRACTS

Mr. R. M. Dennistoun's Argument on Monday.

MR. SHEEHY EXHONORATED

From Committing Any Moral Offense is His Theme.

The pavement investigation reopened Monday monday morning, Mr. Dennistoun being called upon to present argument. Mr. Dennistoun stated that if he desired at the outset to adopt the excellent argument adopted by Mr. Dumble in behalf of his clients. He argued that in every case the contractor must be directly connected with some malfeasance, breach of trust or misconduct before it could come within the purview of the court. None being charged, the case was not within the jurisdiction of th eCourt. He had intended to move fo rthe quashing oft hat part of the resolution relating to those matters in which the Engineer was named as arbitrator. In reading up th minut es of the Godson case, however, he saw that a very wide latitude would be given the County Judge in conducting such an investigation. As the resolution followed the statute closely, it would appear that His Honor must us the Judge where there was fraud, malfeasance or misconduct and were there was none he would be relieved from finding anything under the resolution. At the opening of the investigation he had demanded a list of the charges against Contractor Sheehy, and was present therefore to take up these charges, and nothing more. The first of the charges claimed that the contract had not been fulfilled. There had been no evidence that the work had not been completed to the satisfaction of the Engineer. The Engineer had not stated that any part of the work had been left undone. All admitted that the contract in the gross had been carried out. It had been argued that Sheehy or his men deceived Mr. Ranney, and induced him, either by actual fraud or concealment to use a less aquantity of cement than was called for. Mr. Ranney had presented a report in writing to the Council, and this report formed the foundation of the investigation. Mr. Ranney had managed to deceive himself in a most extraordinary way. It was not until Mr. Ranney was in the witness box that he discovered that his main charge was erroneous. He hadthought that the nine feet of sand was added to the mixture, instead of substituted for nine feet of granite. The mistake arose from using half batches at the start. To nine feet of granite and four and a half feet of sand he had added enough sand to make the mixture trowel properly. Nine feet of sand had been added and then another foot of cement was added as being necessary. This was how the change was first effected. The contract provided that were there was a difference of opinion as to what a clause meant, the Engineer should be the judge, and from him there was no appeal. If Mr. Hay says that the contract gives him power to vary the proportions as he saw fit, this settled the matter, All parties had appointed him as arbitrator. When Mr Hay was examined as to the changes made he stated that he thought the work done equally good. This was a certificate upon which the contractor relied as the Engineer was the judge by the contract. In a letter to the council Mr. Hay put himself on record in regard to Ensign cement. He said its use would not affect the rate per foot between the contractor and the corporation. The contractors relied upon this letter. In addition to this there was no evidence of any frauds. Another point was that though the contractor was charged without putting in enough granite and not enough cement. In reality there was more cement put in then was called for. Nine feet of granite called for four and a half feet of cement, whilst 5 1-2 feet had been put in. The contractors had not been charged with putting in too much and it was too late to argue on this point.

Alderman McWilliams inquired what account would be taken of this sand. It was in the pavement and nine feet of granite could not absorb nine feet of sand and five and a half feet of cement too.

Mr. Dennistoun argued that the granite would absorb the sand and the cement.

Alderman McWilliams—"There is no evidence on that point."

Mr. Dennistoun—"That is just it; we cannot argue about the point. No evidence bears on it."

Alderman McWilliams went on to inquire why Mr. Dumble and Mr. Dennistoun had used the result in the proportions on the north side of London street, as compared with the result of the Stewart-st. test, instead of comparing the results of the north and south sides of London-st.

Mr. Dennistoun stated that he would proceed to do so. Continuing, he stated that there was no charge to the effect that the proper quality of cement had not been used in the base. The Ensign cement had been proved to be as good as Star. Concerning the use of the sand, all of the contractors and engineers who had been put in the box had said that sand was always used in concrete. It was admitted to be better than granite. If too much sand was used, the matter lay between the Council and the Engineer. By reference to the evidence it would be seen that Sheehy put in more granite than Rose. Sheehy put in 1.24 per foot, and Rose 1.02. No one could tell which was the best. The only evidence given to the effect that by the change in the proportions a reduction in the price per foot had resulted, had been given by Alderman McWilliams in Mr. Hay's figures. Was it reasonable to ask a judge to decide as to a difference in cost in laying two pavements, when no account was taken of the labor involved. It was all very well to charge a contractor with scamping his work and not to suspect a foreman in charge of the work for the town, for doing the same thing. The contractor worked under an inspector. The foreman had a free hand, and Mr. Dennistoun had reasons for grave suspicions that material which was supposed to go into the pavement constructed by day work, never got there. As a matter of fact the Council had given out work to be done by the day, under a foreman, which if given to a contractor, would have been done cheaper. Engineer Hay had given evidence, after making his tests, that he was not prepared to say whether there had been a saving to the contractor or not. This was very conclusive and the council could not expect His Honor to find out what even the Engineer could not determine. No expert evidence had been called on this point. The charge of purloining the bags could certainly be no charge against Richard Sheehy unless he could be convicted as an accessory in the purloining, before or after the act. Mr. Ranney said that Lavery had told him 5 1-2 bags of cement filled the box. Lavery denied this, as did Carroll and Mr. Sheehy. The evidence was not such as would justify a jury in finding that bags had been purloined. Mr. Ranney had got the whole batches and the half batches mixed. Mr. Ranney had also said that he didn't think Mr. Sheehy took the bags. Mr. Dennistoun went on to point out that there were a number of errors in Mr. Ranney's figures in his report. He asked His Honor to test any of the computations. Mr. Ranney had stated that Mr. Sheehy had always reprimanded the men when Mr. Sheehy complained oft hem. Mr. Hay stated that he was satisfied with the work. He was the judge. Mr. Rose, although showing animus in his evidence, had stated that his pavement was well constructed, showing that he believed the proportions to be all right. This was indirect testimony in favour of Mr. Sheehy's work. Mr. Ranney spoke favourably of the result of the work. Mr. McFadden, in speaking of the work, referred to its solidity. He saw no scamping of the work as far as quantities were concerned. Every witness had agreed in saying that if the surface was broken up with a hammer the base would be shattered. be shattered. Parrington had said that all Sheehy's crossings but two were opened in this manner. How was it that Mr. Rose's crossings were opened with a drill? When Mr. Bogue had swept away the loose sand from a crossing who was it that replaced it? It looked as though someone had something against Mr. Sheehy. Mr. Bartlett stated that when he cut into Mr. Sheehy's work he found it good. All had agreed that the top surface of Mr. Sheehy's work was first class. Mr. Belcher stated that Mr. Sheehy's work on Simcoe street made a fine walk. On Water street Mr. Belcher had gone beneath the pavement where a trench had been dug. He stated that the concrete at this place was good. Ald. Dawson gave the work a good character. He said the concrete was very good. Mr. T. E. Wade had not liked the appearance of the crossings, but stated that this might be accounted for by the manner in which they are opened. He had also gone into the trench and stated that it had looked all right. There wasn't one man but said that they had always found Dick Sheehy a straightforward, honest, honourable fellow. This was the certificate of his peers, and was the best recommendation any man might hope to obtain. In concluding his argument Mr. Dennistoun asked that a conclusion be reached as soon as possible. No money payments had been made since last October. He did not urge, as other possibly would, that a decision be rendered before the first Monday in January, but thought it would be a good idea for Mr. Sheehy to run for Mayor against Alderman McWilliams, the ratepayers to choose between them.

His Honour stated that in the evidence submitted, he could not find that any theft had been committed.

Ald. McWilliams stated that the investigation had been ordered not only on Mr. Ranney's report, but on the result of the test made on Stewart street, which showed that the contractors were laying the pavement at a less cost than contemplated. He was only too pleased to know that Mr. Sheehy was freed from the charge of fraud.

The investigation then adjourned to 2.30 p.m.

A young man was fined $2 at police court yesterday for riding his bicycle on the sidewalk.

POLITICAL QUIPS.

The presidential bees have gathered very little honey thus far in the campaign.—Los Angeles Express.

It is coming to pass in this country that it is almost libelous for a newspaper to call a man a politician. It is the imputation that he is guilty of things criminal.—Binghamton Herald.

If Princeton wants a professor of politics to be a professor of politics, she will not experiment with Grover Cleveland, but go straight to Dick Croker or Matt Quay.—

Woes of Millionaires.

An English millionaire has just been adjudged incapable of looking after his property. He imagines himself the Prince of Wales.

Some years ago a rich merchant took the idea that he was penniless. His sons, to stop his worrying, assured him they had rescued his business and was to continue it. They offered him a clerkship at a small salary in his own office. He took it and kept at work nearly 20 years. When he died, he left nearly $15,000,000.

Two English millionaires were noted for their parsimony. One picked up and smoked cigar ends. The other, after fine receptions in his house, would go around carefully collecting candle ends to be used again. Neither of these men was insane. Both were shrewd in business.

Another millionaire imagined for a considerable time that he was a squirrel, and would eat nothing but nuts.

Another was too parsimonious even to buy himself a warm overcoat. Some of his friends made him a present of one, and he promptly sold it at secondhand and pocketed the money.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Was Hanged Over Again.

G. W. Stevens, who traveled extensively in India, tells the following interesting story: A Pathan was being hanged, when the rope broke. The warder bade him go up on to the scaffold again, but he objected. "No," he said, "I was sentenced to be hanged, and hanged I've been."

"Not so, friend," argued the warder; "you were sentenced to be hanged until you were dead, and you're not dead."

It was a new view to the Pathan, and he turned to the superintendent. "Is that right, sahib?"

"Yes, that's right."

"Very well. I didn't understand," and he went composedly up the steps and was hanged again like a man.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

What He Really Owed.

"Doctor," said the grateful patient, taking the physician's hand, "I shall never forget that to you I owe my life."

"You exaggerate," returned the doctor mildly. "You owe me only for 15 visits. That is the point which I hope you will not fail to remember."

All Roads Lead to the Dressmaker.

Mr. Hornbill—Do you know, darling, I could pick you out of a crowd of women just by your style!

Mrs. Hornbill—I don't wonder, and me with this same old dress for the last two years!

Where the Pot of Gold is Buried.

How many women are fretting and struggling along on a very little money when a good sized yard or adjoining patch of ground is going to waste! Yet that very piece of ground may contain all sorts of possibilities—clothes, furniture, books, medicines, luxuries and even necessities otherwise impossible.

Clear, plow, fertilize and plant. This done, the great beginning is made, and perseverance and attention will secure the rest. Onions, tomatoes, cabbages, celery, a small poultry farm, a violet or rose farm—any one of these may add several hundred dollars to one's purse every year. Small fruits, hops, tuberoses and grapes are also very profitable. With some intelligence a blooming garden can always be made a paying one. Make it a principle to have no more waste in the garden than in the kitchen.

If there is only a very small piece and just enough raised for one's own family, try, after the table is supplied, to prepare what vegetables and fruits are left over for sale for winter use. There is always a demand for good homemade canning and preserving. Do not let a valuable scrap of ground be idle.—Annette Halliday-Antona in Woman's Home Companion.

How He Misunderstood.

There were loud cries from a man in the back of the hall, and the cornetist went at it again.

There were more cries from other parts of the hall, but, with that one still ringing in his ears, the cornetist kept it up.

"What are you trying to do?" cried the manager. "That's no encore."

"No encore!" exclaimed the cornetist when he had been induced to break off. "Didn't that man back there yell 'Toot, mon!' four or five times?"

"Not any," answered the manager. "He's a Scotchman, and what he said was, 'Hoot, mon!'"

THE MAGICAL MIRROR

A CURIOUS GLASS OWNED BY A WASHINGTON MAN.

Several Well Known Persons Have Seen Portentous Pictures Reflected in Its Oval Surface. Although It Will Not Work For All.

While all of us have heard in early childhood of the tales of magical mirrors, in which impossible heroes saw impossible heroines in danger, from which said heroes proceeded to rescue the fair maidens, yet such things have been relegated by most of us to the region of the imagination. We regard such things as being outside of the real world of today and belonging to the region of myth and fable. Yet, in spite of our prosaic nineteenth century, it is nevertheless a fact that a Washington gentleman is the possessor of an article which might be classed as appropriately belonging to the time of Aladdin and the wonderful lamp.

This strange acquisition is a mirror which came from India, and in which one can see the events which the future will bring forth. That such is its power is attested by some of the best known gentlemen of the city, who, for obvious reasons, do not wish their names to be mentioned.

This mirror came into the possession first of a Washington lady who was traveling in India, and, being interested in the religion of the country, took a trip to the famous temple of Alora, which lies in a rocky side of the foothills of the Himalaya mountains. This temple is now but a ruin of jagged rocks, jutting out harshly into the soft greensward that rolls smoothly down into the valley below. Above tower the vast mountains with their glittering caps of snow looking down on the peaceful tropical scene where for ages the followers of Brahma have performed their sacred rites.

The ruins of the temple stand open to the weather, and its ancient glory, which shone in such splendor before the English came to India, is now diminished. But a small band of Brahman monks still kept the sacred secrets and ceremonies alive. Few Europeans ever penetrate this section of the mountains, but the Washington lady mounted and visited the monastery. While there she managed to secure possession of one of the mirrors made by the monks and reputed to possess wonderful properties.

The lady brought the mirror with her on her return to town, and at her death it came into the possession of Mr. Lowdermilk. From him it was bought by a gentleman who takes great interest in such matters, but who would not like the fact of the existence of the mirror in his house to be known, as it would attract thousands of seekers after the curious. After paying quite a large sum for the glass the mirror was brought home and put to the test.

The mirror is oval in shape, about a foot long and is surrounded by a wooden frame two inches in width and painted a dark green. The back of the glass is coated with asphaltum and then covered with dark linen, so that the whole has the appearance of a lustrous opal. The method of use is by sitting with the mirror in one's lap and holding the glass so that there is no reflection of other objects shining on the surface of the glass. If the test is a success, there will appear in about a quarter of an hour a thin, cloudy mist, which will slowly float over the surface, and then the images of future events will be mirrored in the seemingly fathomless depth of the dark glass.

The gentleman who owns the mirror has never been himself successful in seeing anything, but a friend of his, a prominent judge and a thirty-third degree Mason, had a remarkable experience. He placed the mirror in his lap, and, after half an hour, a mist floated over the surface; then he saw reflected in the glass a picture of a coffin, within which was the still, white face of a dead man. At first glance the features seemed those of the gazer, but on looking closely it was seen that they represented exactly the brother of the gentleman—a man then in perfect health. In a second the picture shifted, and another face—that of a friend—appeared within the sides of the coffin. The gentleman in two weeks afterward lost his brother, and in a short while his friend, whose face he had also seen, passed to another world.

A son of the owner was one evening looking into the mirror, when he saw within a picture of a house in flames. There were the servants leaping from the porches, then returning to drag out the furniture. The glare shone around on a yard which the gazer recognized as that of his own farmhouse down the Potomac. By the mail two days afterward he received from his housekeeper an account of a fire which had destroyed his home, and the description tallied exactly with the picture seen in the mirror.

Another man, a gentleman employed in the bureau of ethnology and well known as a scientist and linguist, has also seen many pictures in the mirror—pictures of events in his life which were afterward realized to the letter.

By a student of occultism the following directions were given in a treatise on that subject, which dealt with the methods employed in making such mirrors: The materials used are one glass, 6½ inches by 8½ inches, free from flaws and concave in shape; a small amount of turpentine asphaltum, a pint of spirits of turpentine, a small hairbrush, a box in which to case the mirror, and a half a yard of new cloth.

The glass is placed in a clean, light and airy room, the materials washed perfectly clean; then the brush and the glass are wiped over with turpentine. Afterward the back of the glass is coated smoothly with a thin varnish of the asphaltum and left to dry, the operation being repeated for the two following days. At the end of that time the mirror is magnetized by placing the hands above it and slowly waving them to and fro, so that the animal magnetic force may be well absorbed by the asphaltum. The asphaltum is the best known material for absorption of the aura of the human body, and this is the reason for its use. The test should be made also in a clean, airy chamber when alone and when the mind is composed, and by perseverance the inquirer is sure to be rewarded—so say the books on magic.—Washington Post.

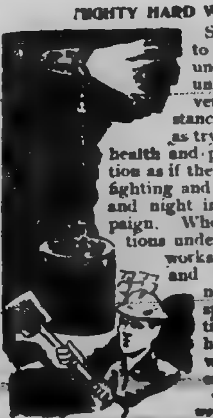
The Birds Save Us.

A French naturalist says that if the world were to become birdless man could not inhabit it after nine years' time. In spite of all the sprays and poisons that could be manufactured for the destruction of insects the bugs and slugs would simply eat up orchards and crops.

Fact Versus Fiction.

"Talk about the seven sleepers," muttered the angry tragedian; "I'll bet there are 7,000 of them between Albany and [illegible]

MIGHTY HARD WORK.



Some men have to do their work under all sorts of unusual and adverse circumstances that are just as trying upon their health and physical condition as if they were soldiers fighting and marching day and night in a hard campaign. When the conditions under which a man works are abnormal and unhealthy he needs to take special precautions to build himself up to withstand the extra strain.

"In 1894, I was working at night and I broke out in lumps all over and when these left the skin peeled off," says Mr. John A. Calloway, of 218 26th St., Columbus, Georgia, in a recent letter to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. "I had catarrh for four years and also liver and kidney trouble; when it would commence troubling me I would have a slight aching a little below the chest. I used many kinds of medicine but received no benefit. My eyes were sunken and my face was pale; I had pimples on my face and there was brown spots on my face. Now these are all gone. I took six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and two of Dr. Pierce's Pellets. They are the best medicines I ever used in my life, and I do believe that I am entirely well. I have a good appetite but before I commenced treatment I had no appetite at all. Now I am like a child—ready to eat at any time of day or night. Last year I weighed one hundred and thirty-four pounds and now I weigh one hundred and forty-five. Please accept my thanks. I am so glad I found the right kind of medicine."

"Golden Medical Discovery" is free from alcohol; it is pure medicine and nothing else. Unlike the so-called "tonics" and "extracts" which tend to create an appetite for stimulants, the "Discovery" creates only a healthy natural temperance appetite for good food which nourishes and strengthens. The medicine dealer who says he has something "just as good" knows that he falsifies. If he urges an inferior substitute it is to gain a few pennies greater profit. No matter how discouraged you may be, write to Dr. Pierce for advice which he will send you free and which if followed, is bound to do you good.

An Unprofitable Bone.

Last summer a friend presented us with a tortoise. I do not know whether our dog had heard of turtle soup or whether he regarded the creature as a new kind of bone that walked about; at any rate, he determined to eat it.

Whenever the tortoise started out on a constitutional down the garden path Gyp arrested it and carried it into his kennel, where he gnawed at the impenetrable armor till his jaws ached.

The calm and philosophical manner in which the tortoise resumed its interrupted promenade irritated the dog exceedingly, but no failure discouraged him. Whenever we reminded him of the tortoise, he would go in search of it all round the garden, peering into every crevice, till eventually the creature was found, and then fresh but futile attempts were made to extract the meaty portions from the shell.—

New Trial Wanted.

Toronto News—The old case which John A. Harper, of Peterborough, brought against the Toronto Type Foundry Company, was up in court this morning, when a new trial was asked for. Defendants had sold the plaintiffs a press on which they had a lien. They afterwards issued a writ of replevin, and Harper asked the court for damages. His action was dismissed, and $600 awarded to the Foundry Company, and appeal taken. Mr. A. P. Poussette, Q. C., is acting for Harper.

NEXT YEAR'S COUNCIL

Result of Tuesday's Vote for Mayor and Aldermen.

DARK HORSE SHOWS UP.

Ex-Mayor Kendry Takes the Head for Mayor.

Ald. McWilliams a Close Second—The Contest Becoming Exciting—A Lot of New Names for Council.

The leading candidates for the Mayoralty up to three o'clock yesterday were—

Ex-Mayor Kendry	220
Alderman McWilliams	210

The leading nominees for the Council are —

A. W. Cressman	170
J. B. Oke	170
W. Salisbury	160
M. Wilson	150

There are some surprises this morning. Four men are leading for seats at the Council board, and real good ment hey are too. The members of the present Council are not being supported, a circumstance that leads to the conclusion that the old Council as a whole is unpopular. We have again to call attention to the fact that we cannot publish votes for hotelkeepers, or other persons disqualified for being candidates. We have received over 70 ballots thus marked, and which cannot be recorded in these columns.

"A Ratepayer" writes—"Enclosed please find ten ballots for Mr. Kendry, who is an old municipal war horse. I would also like to see Mr. Salisbury elected to the Council and mark ballots in his name."

J. W. says—"I enclose a batch of ballots for Ald. McWilliams. Any ratepayer who can refrain from supporting Mr. McWilliams, in view of his great personal sacrifices of time and money in connection with the paving scandals, is not loyal to his town or to himself. I would like to see Mr. A. W. Cressman, who is one of our respected and most enterprising business men, enter the Council. We need new blood."

PRISONERS AID ASSOCIATION.

An Appeal to the Clergy Throughout the Province.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The Prisoners' Aid Association of Canada will be very thankful if you will kindly make room for the following, addressed to the clergy of the Province —

We are desirous that the clergy of the Province shall, as far as possible, observe some Sunday, either in December or early in January, as Prison Sunday—preferably Sunday, December 17th. On Prison Sunday we desire prayers for Judges and for all who have to do with the administration of justice, for police officials, for prisoners, prison officials, Prisoners' Aid Associations, and for the cause of prison reform.

The reforms we are pressing for at present are as follows —

1.—As the inmates of the Central Prison, Toronto, are largely boys or young men under 30 years of age, many of whom are quite illerate, we desire that the institution shall partake more of the character of a reformatory than of a penal institution, and especially that better facilities and more time be provided for educational work. The Central Prison is overcrowded and should be enlarged, preferably by constructing isolation cells for the isolation of the classes, namely — first, the incorrigible repeaters and utterly depraved, and secondly, the isolation of the comparatively innocent first offenders.

2.—We have been long agitating for a thorough reorganization of the Mercer Reformatory for Women. As this institution was designed as a reformatory, and not simply as an asylum, we desire to see reformatory methods adopted, and including an efficient system of classification, and especially so that women committed for vagrancy or petty offences, shall not be compelled to associate with fallen women.

We have also been striving for many years to induce the Government to remove the Girls' Refuge from the baneful influence of the Women's Reformatory and to establish it in a more appropriate locality. The influence of the former upon the latter, as now organized, must be bad and only bad continually.

3.—With regard to, or in connection with, the jails of the Province, we are desirous of the following reforms —(a) Better provision for keeping first offenders not only separate from old offenders, but also separate from each other (b) Seperate accomodation (preferably in a County House of Industry) for the destitute poor. There are at the present time a number of persons of this class in the County Jails, many of them honest, respectable people—who are obliged to spend their old age in association with the degraded and the criminal. (c) We desire "the powers that be" to see the inutility and bad economy of sending old offenders to jail on short sentences. It is not reformatory and it is not deterrent. In this connection we would refer to the crying need for provision being made for the treatment of pauper inebriates. The habitual drunkard—in the interests of sobriety, morality and public policy — should be provided with accomodation other than that of the common Jail. In many cases drunkenness is a disease and requires medical treatment as well as reformatory measures.

Very respectfully,
A. M. ROSEBRUGH, Secretary.

PERSONAL

Mr. R. C. Strickland, of Lakefield, was in town yesterday.

Mr. A. P. Poussette, Q. C., returned from Toronto yesterday.

Sorry she didn't quit coffee sooner before kidneys gecame affected

"Since leaving off coffee and using Postum Food Coffee, my kidney trouble has been so much better that I am sorry I did not commence sooner, before the kidneys were so badly affected as they are now.

"The Postum Food Coffee was recommended to me by Rev. Gray and wife of Coldwater, who said it had been of great benefit to them, doing away with bad feeling of the heart, indigestion, etc., the truth of which I have since proved by actual experience. Postum Food Coffee, in my opinion (and this opinion endorsed by many others), is far above the bitter-tasting berry coffee, but Postum must be properly prepared, and that is easy if one will simply follow directions. For my part, I shall never use any other kind of coffee so long as I can get Postum Food Coffee." Mrs. L. A. Ross, Protection, Kansas.

Notes.

Messrs. White and Grylls are now laying the ways preparatory to hauling out the Sunbeam for the winter. The Majestic was taken out some time ago at Young's Point and the Empress was laid up at her dock.

Unlike our southern suburb Peterborough, our town is very quite as regards municipal matters, and as yet no new candidates for office have come forward. Whether this peaceful state of affairs results from satisfaction with the present government, or from indifference is not known.

Another large audience greeted Prof. A. H. Welch, phrenologist, in the Y. M. C. A. Hall last night to hear his lecture on psychology, with reference to the soul faculties, the soul and where located. Reference was also made to hypnotism, dreams, ghosts, etc. The lecture was very interesting as well as amusing and instructive. At the close of the lecture he read while blind-folded the heads of two young ladies and a little boy very accurately. To-morrow afternoon he will give a lecture to ladies, and in the evening to gentlemen only.

Legal Committee.

The Legal Committee met yesterday afternoon and discussed several matters that had been referred to them. No decision was arrived at in regard to any of them.

A Sad End

'Twas at the Snowden House "Some people," said the traveller with the large Adam's apple, "seem just naturally to have the hardest kind of luck. Here's an account of a man who put his eye out with his own umbrella." "Say," observed the proprietor of the hotel, as he quietly and solemnly lit his corn cob, "that's so. Once on a time a friend of mine put his false teeth in his coat-tail pocket, forget they were there, sat down on them and bit himself so severely that he died in three days from hydrophobia. Now—" But the man with the large Adam's apple was gone.

This Afternoon

A lecture will be given this afternoon at 3.45 to ladies only in the Y.M.C.A. hall by Prof. A. H. Welch, F.A.I.P. Silver collection. This evening at 8.15 a lecture to men only on sexual secrets. A Heavy Gale.

Montreal, Dec. 12.—Ferdinand Lemieux, accountant of the banque Ville Marie, was arrested last night on a charge of stealing $178,000 from the funds of the bank. It transpired in the evidence in the case of President William Weir, found guilty of furnishing a false statement of the bank's affairs to the Government, that there was a sum of $174,000 unaccounted for in the bank's circulation, and Lemieux is charged with stealing this amount. Bail was refused last night.

Besides these, there are five others holding leading positions as teachers in Business Colleges in Ontario.

Since Sept 1st, seven of our pupils have accepted positions as teachers in Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States; another is now negotiating for a similar opening in a Business College in a leading American city, and there are five unfilled calls of this kind on hand still.

DOES IT NOT PAY TO ATTEND THE BEST! You must decide.

125 of our pupils secured good positions in seventeen months, and the good work of placing our students still continues.

Market Improvements.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The market business was up for discussion at the Board of Trade meeting on Monday night, and I was pleased to note that people are beginning to realize that it is time for a change. Our policy of squeezing in revenue out of the farmers who patronize the market, is not a wise one, and is already bringing disastrous results.

Look at out stores! Over 20 vacant stores in town is evidence of the fact that merchants are not making money. The attendance on our markets is not anything like what it was a few years ago.

REPORT OF RELIEF OF LADYSMITH BY BULLER IS NOT CONFIRMED.

War Office Has Nothing Official About the Rumor That Generals Buller and Clery had Captured 10,000 Boers.

GEN. METHUEN'S LOSSES REACH OVER 800.

Terrible Slaughter in the British Rank and File—Highlanders' Officers and Men Mowed Down Like Grain—Gen. French Reports a Skirmish With Boers.

Special Despatches to The Times, 3 a m.

Frere Camp, Dec. 13.

Firing can now be heard this morning in the direction of Colenso and an artillery duel is expected to-day.

Modder River, Dec. 13.

Ambulances started early yesterday morning under a flag of truce, to collect the wounded and bury the dead who fell at Magersfontein. Brig.-Gen. Wauchope, who led the Highlanders Brigade was found dead near the trenches shot in the chest and thigh. A few wounded were found near the trenches. Several wounded Boers were taken to the British hospital. The scene of the hill and the immediate neighborhood of the Boer trenches showed dead bodies all about. One wounded Boer informed a correspondent of the Associated Press that their loss was terrible. The whole Scandanavian contingent was destroyed. Judging from information gleaned from the Boer wounded and prisoners taken in different parts of the field, the Boer losses must exceed 700. The destruction wrought by the Naval guns was enormous

Word was passed along the Boer lines to prepare to retreat at nightfall. All confess that it was their greatest loss during the war.

The British troops have returned to Modder River, owing to the lack of water near the position held yesterday.

London, Dec. 15.

The War Office posted the following despatch from General Forrestier-Walker at Cape Town.—"General French wires, under date of Dec. 13, reporting a skirmish at four o'clock in the morning with 1800 Boers who were advancing southward toward Naawpoort. The skirmishing continued all the morning. The Boers fighting on a front of 14 miles. The enemy retired with a loss of 40 killed and wounded. Our casualties were one killed, seven wounded including one officer and two missing.

Modder River, Tuesday, Dec. 12

While the Guards were advancing on the plain which the Boers were shelling from the adjacent ridges they encountered and cut up a strong Boer picket posted on a hill for purpose of observation. All the members of the picket were either killed, wounded or taken prisoners.

London, Dec. 14

The Globe says—"The country is prepared for any sacrifice. In the famous words of General Sheridan, "Almost gone."

The St. James Gazette says—"When we have retrieved our defeats and have restored the supremacy of our flag we can criticize and investigate. To-day we must act." Continuing the St. James Gazette urges the Government to take the White Star steamships from the Oceanic down and send another corps to South Africa.

The Westminster Gazette, Liberal newspaper, which had actively opposed the war, says—"We are bound to carry the campaign to a successful issue," and adds, "The reckoning with the Government will come later."

London, Dec. 15

Lord Methuen's check following General Gatacre's repulse, says the Cape Town correspondent of the Daily News, "has had a most depressing effect upon the loyalists who are by no means a growing body. They are filled with dark forbodings. Dutch district faction is rapidly growing. A large section is restless and would need but little persuasion to join the Boers. There are disturbing reports from the eastern districts of the Cape Colony, where many secret meetings have been held. The imperial authorities are arming the loyal farmers in the Stutterhein and Bedford districts.

London, Dec. 15.

The correspondent of the Standard at Modder River, describing the fight at Magersfontein, says—"Six miles had to be covered before the Highland Brigade could touch the Boer stronghold. It is not clear yet, though, what mischance the force, which was led by guides came upon the Boer trenches so unexpectedly and so suddenly.

Beyond question the Boers were aware of the approach of the British and had prepared to receive them. According to one version two Highlanders through nervousness or clumsiness, discharged their rifles prematurely, but it is equally probable that the advance Boer scouts conveyed the intelligence.

Our men were totally unprepared. They had not even fixed bayonets. The disaster was all the more exasperating because of the consciousness that, had the brigade been extended, and with bayonets fixed, the trenches might have been successfully rushed with far less sacrifice of life."

London, Dec. 15, 4.45 a.m.

The War Office is still without news from Ladysmith other than already published. The general belief is that the large Boer forces Lord Methuen encountered at Magersfontein were partly drawn from Natal and that General Buller will strike a blow before these have time to return.

The newspapers are calling upon the Government to employ the Cunard steamers as well as the White Star Line steamers as transports seeing the urgent necessity of getting more men to the Cape as speedily as possible. Forty thousand men could still be sent from England without calling upon the militia for foreign service. The militia effective is 100,000 men, and from this body 20,000 carefully selected men could easily be spared for South Africa. Moreover, the colonies are greatly proffering assistance.

The great need, therefore, is speedy transportation. Sir Charles Warren, who arrived at Cape Town yesterday, will possibly join Lord Methuen and take command of the combined force.

The Daily Chronicle Modder River despatch, which is at variance with all the other reports, represents Lord Methuen's forces as retiring Tuesday on the camp at Modder River as the result of renewed artillery firing that day. The correspondent says—"Tuesday fore-noon the Boers brought heavy guns into action. The British artillery replied but failed to silence them. Lord Methuen therefore withdrew his force out of range and concentrated at Modder River."

Orders have been issued at Woolwich to prepare another seige train to go out with the seventh division.

London, Dec. 14.—3.30 p.m.—A special despatch from Pietermaritzburg, Natal, says General Buller and General Clery have entered Ladysmith and have captured ten thousand Boers.

London, Dec. 14.—A revised list of the total casualties to the British troops at Magersfontein places the number at 832.

London, Dec. 14.—The War Office has received a message that there were 650 casualties among the non-commissioned officers and men of the Highland Brigade at Magersfontein.

London, Dec. 14.—An official report gives the total number of killed, wounded and missing of all arms in the engagement of Sunday and Monday, north of Modder River, as 817.

Of the officers 15 were killed and 47 wounded, while five are missing and one is known to have been captured.

London, Dec. 14.—The War Office has received from Gen. Gatacre the following list of casualties furnished by a correspondent who was permitted to visit the Boer camp with the chaplains, and is believed to be reliable—

Second Royal Irish—10 killed, 32 wounded.

First East Lancashires—1 wounded.

Second Northumberlands—12 killed, 27 wounded.

All the above wounded men are prisoners.

London, Dec. 14.—The following list of officers killed or wounded in the Highland brigade has been received.

Killed—General Wauchope, Lieut.-Col. J. N. C. Goodie, Lieut.-Col. Goff, Major Robinson, Captain Elton, Captain J. R. Clark, Captain Cowan, Captain Lamberton, Captain Wingate, Lieut. Edmonds, Lieut. Cox, Lieut. Cowie.

Wounded—Colonel Kelham, Major Berkley, Major Duff, Captain Featherstonehaugh, Captain Noyes, Captain Wolf-Murray, Captain Richardson, Captain Campbell, Captain Gordon, Captain McNab, Lieut. Hon. W. C. Baillie, Lieut. Scott, Lieut. Waterhouse.

FLOWER OF THE ARMY.

New York, Dec. 14.—Attention is called to the fact that it is the flower of the English army that have suffered defeat in the South African campaign. These include the famous Guards, the Grenadiers, the Coldstreams and the Scots, and the greatest fighting regiments England has ever known, the Royal Highlanders, the mighty Black Watch, the Gordons, the Seaforth Highlanders, the Highland Light Infantry, the Argyll and the Southern Highlanders. Among them are great Irish fighting regiments which almost equal them.

"OUR DAY OF HUMILIATION."

London, Dec. 14.—The military critic of the Morning Post has this to say of Gen. Methuen's defeat at Magersfontein—"After dicussing as conqueror the terms of settlement and dividing as victor the spoils as well, we have had our day of humiliation."

REPORT NOT CREDITED.

London, Dec. 14.—The British War Office has heard nothing of the story of the relief of Ladysmith. The officials do not credit the report, as the relief of the place at such an early date is believed to be practically impossible.

CHURCHILL ESCAPES.

Lorenzo Marquez, Delagoa Bay, Dec. 14.—Winston Churchill, the newspaper correspondent and former officer of the Fourth Hussars, who was captured at the time of the armored train disaster near Estcourt in November, has escaped from Pretoria.

SUMMONED LORD ROBERTS.

New York, Dec. 14.—Lord Roberts, who at present is commander-in-chief of Her Majesty's forces in Ireland, has been hastily summoned to London, and no doubt exists that he is wanted for a conference on the Transvaal war. While the War Office told the extra session of Parliament that the Boer war would cost $50,000,000, well informed people now place the figures at $[illegible]. There are at present 80,000 British soldiers in South Africa, 10,000 are to be mobilized or are on the way, and it is thought that a seventh division of 10,000 more will soon be collected at Aldershott for the Cape.

REPORTED VICTORY.

London, Dec. 14.—Reports are current that General Clery succeeded in getting to the north of Ladysmith, and is entrenching his forces behind the Boer position. If this is true, it means that Clery succeeded in crossing the Tugela by flanking the Boers, while Buller kept them at Colenso by threating their front with his army at Frere.

CHEERING NEWS, IF TRUE.

London, Dec. 14.—By Associated Press.—On the stock exchange to-day at 2 o'clock Rand mines suddenly jumped up on the rumours that General Clery had entered Ladysmith, and that General Buller had captured three thousand Boers.

UNNERVING THE PEOPLE.

London, Dec. 14.—While the outwardly calm attitude of the press and people have during the present crisis commands admiration, there is an undercurrent of intense indignation against the War Office and the Government, which threatens to have a serious addition in the blunders of the generals and the further evidence of the breakdown of the transport and intelligence departments which are daily coming to light. It was freely predicted this morning, even in high military circles that the campaign would last until June. It was also expected that Gen. Methuen would have to retire south of the Orange River, as it was claimed he could not hold out long at the Modder River, where his food supplies and ammunition were not expected to last over a week. In fact, it was said that his line of communication had probably been already cut, and it was claimed that General Gatacre had been similarly weakened by his reverse and the revolt of the colonists, and he might have to choose between a siege and a retreat.

To Send More Men.

The afternoon newspapers, of all shades of politics, follow the morning newspapers courageously in demanding the immediate despatch of reinforcements. Thus the Radical Star says—"The stake the gambler, Chamberlain, has thrown on the table is not merely South Africa, but the Empire. It is too late to regret the game. We have no choice but to play it, even if it involves sending abroad the militia. Our armies in South Africa must be amply reinforced."

Sad Scenes at War Office.

The scenes at the War Office to-day when Gen. Methuen's casualties were posted were highly dramatic. There was a steady incursion of anxious enquirers from the moment the doors opened, and there was intense excitement, when an official appeared bearing the ominously long list of names. The women present crowded eagerly forward and begged for copies of the lists. The supply was not sufficient, so the official read out the lists. Intense feeling was evident on all the faces, and the pitiable anguish of the bereaved was extreme. It was a memorable scene. Some of the women were so overcome that they had to be assisted from the room.

TOUCHES THE QUEEN'S HEART.

New York, Dec. 14.—By Associated Press.—A London cable declares that the Royal household is intensely anxious over the mental suffering which Queen Victoria endures anent the repulses to the British arms in South Africa, and the loss of life in the regiments. Her Majesty is continually sending to the War Office for the minutest information concerning the state of affairs, and when she receives the information breaks down under the weight of her sorrows. It is asserted that frequently engaged in correspondence of other business the Queen suddenly bursts into tears and talks of the sufferings endured not only by the soldiers, but by their relatives at home, and even the Boers are said to be included in her sympathies.

BRAVE HIGHLANDERS.

Modder River, Cape Colony, Tuesday Dec. 12.—Details gathered here by a representative of the Associated Press among the wounded, British and Boers give some idea of the desperate nature of the fight at Magersfontein. The Highlanders did all that the most gallant troops in the world could do, but it was impossible to face the terrible fire of the Boers. The British artillery again saved the situation, and divided the honors of the day with the Scotchmen. The batteries worked for hours under a galling rifle fire.

Boers Gallant Also.

According to the Boer stories it was impossible for the burghers to escape fearful loss. One Boer prisoner said a single lyddite shell killed or wounded over 70 Boers, and that two other shells burst over two bodies of Boers ensconced behind the range, doing fearful damage. All agree that the Boers fought throughout with the utmost gallantry. Their sharpshooters seldom missed the mark.

Picking Off British.

A Seaforth Highlander says that while he was lying wounded on the field he saw a Boer, of typical German appearance, faultlessly dressed, with polished top boots, a shirt with silk ruffles and a cigar in his mouth, walking among the ant hills, picking off the British. This Boer was quite alone, and it was apparent from his frequent use of field glasses that he was singling out the officers.

Another wounded Boer says that a lyddite shell fired on Sunday fell in the middle of an open-air prayer-meeting held to offer supplications for the success of the Boer arms.

All the wounded are full of praise for the treatment they received from the medical department on the battle

SURGEONS REACH FRERE.

New York, Dec. 14.—A despatch from the British camp at Frere station, Natal, dated Dec. 12th, tells of the arrival there of Sir William MacCormac, and several hundred ambulance bearers. At the time the despatch was sent the Boers were still shelling Ladysmith, though a day or two before the news was that they had stopped using their big guns. Detachments of Boers are moving toward Springfield with the probable intention of preventing the British from crossing the Tugela river at this point.

Redskin Gets a Life.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—An Order-in-Council has been passed and approved by Lord Minto, commuting the death sentence, passed on Paul Sabourin, an Indian, for the shooting of his sister-in-law, to imprisonment for life. Sabourin, who is in Edmonton jail, where he was tried and convicted, was sentenced to be hanged on the 22nd inst. The prisoner had no motive for committing the deed and it was plain that he was not in his right mind when he did so. Trial judge recommended clemency, and a lengthy petition signed by Bishop Grandin and Bishop Lacombe, in favor of commutation, was forwarded to the Governor-General.

P. E. I. Tories Triumph.

Charlottetown, Dec. 14. — Liberal rule in Prince Edward Island will probably be interrupted, as a result of the two bye-elections held yesterday. In the fourth district of Kings, A. E. Prowse, son of Senator Browse, was elected, defeating Attorney-General McKinnon, while A. McLean, Q.C., was elected in the fourth district of Queen's by a majority of 50. The Government has now only 14 supporters in the House, while the Conservatives can count on a following of 15. It is expected that the Government will appeal to the country.

At the last general elections the Liberal Government, led by Fred Peters, won 17 out of the 30 seats. This gave him a majority of three in the House. The appointment of the Attorney-General to a judgeship created one of the vacancies to fill which elections were held yesterday. The defeat of the two Ministerialists leaves the Government in a minority of one and there seems no possibility of Mr. Farquharson, Mr. Peter's successor to the Premiership, holding on.

Winnipeg Bye-Election.

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 14.—The Winnipeg bye-election for the Commons is coming on immediately. Hon. Clifford Sifton decided yesterday to place a machine Liberal in the field. E. D. Martin, the independent Liberal, is in the field to stay. Hon. Joseph Martin is coming down from the coast.

Hon. Thomas Greenway goes to Dauphin to-day.

E. D. Martin's friends are now preparing for the Dominion bye-election. They are confident of victory. Even the hottest supporters of Greenway are now considering when Laurier will ask Sifton to step down and out, and save the party from destruction. All Grits seem to feel alike on this question.

Prominent Men Arrested.

Winnipeg, Dec. 14.—James E. Hooper, manger, and F. H. Turnock, editor of the Morning Telegram, and F. W. Russell and W. Allison were arrested here last night and released on bail, charged by Philippe Garnot, Riel's ex-secretary of war, with conspiracy and wrongful arrest.

The arrest of these prominent gentlemen, caused considerable excitement. Last week Garnot was tried and acquitted of a charge of having bogus ballots in his possession. The prevailing opinion here is that these arrests are more for moral effect, as a counterblast to the proceedings against J. Obed Smith, Liberal organizer.

His Appointment Confirmed.

Rome, Dec. 14.—At the consistory held to-day, the Pope formally announced the appointment of a number of bishops, including that of Mgr. Fargo McEvoy, to the Bishopric of London, Ont., which he has been occupying since August last.

The Pope also announced the appointment of Mgr. Falconi, the apostolic delegate to Canada, as Metropolitan of Lorino, and of Mgr. Frederic Eisaux to the united sees of Sault Ste. Marie and Marquette

[Before taking over the Bishopric in August last Mgr. McEvoy was Vicar-General in Hamilton. He is well-known in Toronto].

Rates Were Not Approved.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—W. A. D. Lees, a local barrister, brought suit against the Ottawa and New York Railway for refund of fares collected from him. These fares, Mr. Lees described in his statement of claim as "illegal and unauthorized," and as "unjust extortion."

Mr. Lees' claims that the charges were illegal were based on section 277 of the Railway act, which specifically states that no by-law of a company fixing tolls or rates shall be valid until after it is approved by the Governor-in-Council, and notice published for at least two weeks in the Canada Gazette. This regulation, it seems, was not complied with.

Judge Mosgrove took the case from the jury, with the consent of both parties to the action, and His Honor entered judgment against the company for $186.20, with a stay of judgment to allow an appeal to be entered.

Fatal Fire.

Yarmouth, N.S., Dec. 15.—A cottage on the Burill Johnson estate was burned this morning. Mrs. Thomas Carr, an occupant, was burned to death.

Victim of Yellow Jack.

Montreal, Dec. 15.—A cable from Havana, Cuba, this morning announces the death from yellow fever of Thomas Hay Browne. Deceased was in his 30th year, and was well known in Montreal, being a captain in the Royal Scots

Session in February.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—Speaker Bain was in town to-day. He expects Parliament to meet early in February.

Scorched Cheese.

On Wednesday evening, at Deseronto, employees of the Railway were working about some cars, using a lantern, when an engine engaged in shunting struck the car which the lantern was in, causing the light to be upset and setting fire to the car. The car was laden with cheese belonging to Magrath & Company, of Belleville. Before the fire was extinguished some 14 boxes of cheese were destroyed and a number of others damaged by water and smoke. The loss fortunately will not be great. No person was injured as the result of the accident.

On a Tour of Inspection.

Mr. M. C. Dickson, assistant general passenger agent of the Grand Trunk Railway, Toronto, accompanied by Mr. C. S. Proctor, travelling passenger agent, are making a tour of this district. While in town Mr. Dickson was shown the [illegible] of the place, by Mr. Wm. Bunton, the genial local city agent. Mr. Dickson says things never looked better for the railway than at present. Business is more than good, with prospect for a brisk winter's trade. During their stay in town, they favored the Times with a call. Mr. Bunton accompanying, so that they would have the proper weight, as it were.

FENELON FALLS MYSTERY.

Suspected Drowning of a Citizen Missing for a Week The Lock's Being Searched.

Lindsay Post—Andrew Varcoe, a Fenlon Falls carpenter, has been missing since a week ago to-day, and it is now believed by all that he perished in the river. On Monday evening, Dec. 4th, he visited Sandford's factory, where he was employed, and when he left stated that he was going home, but he never reached there. Next morning his wife and family went about the village in search of him, but no one had seen him after he left the factory.

During the next few days enquiries were set on foot at outside points, but without result. The first trace was found on Sunday, when a couple of citizens were walking along the neck of land projecting into the river above the factory, between the canal channel and the wide raceway leading to the dam. There they found a hat which was identified as the one worn by Varcoe on the night of his disappearance, and the discovery left no doubt as to the fate of the unfortunate man, who must have lost his way in the darkness and fallen into the river.

This morning Mr. F. K. Begbie, superintendent of the waterworks, sent Engineer Hammond to the Falls with the Company's diving suit and outfit, the loan of which had been requested by the friends of the missing man. A local diver has volunteered to search the bottom of the river, with what successes may be learned to-morrow.

A Warm Argument

A warm argument occurred a few days ago between a respected ex-member of the teachers' profession and a local Shylock, who is known to have strong anti-British sentiments. It was over the Boer war and it became so warm that the money lender from over the river made a remark derogatory to our Sovereign Lady the Queen, that would not look well in cold print. Immediately his opponent's ire was up. He was mad all the way through, and would not allow Her Majesty to be insulted. He jerked off his coat in a trice, and "went for" his opponent, but friends intervened and the prettiest fight on record was spoiled. It is said that the party of the second part (the "banker") tried to "take the law" of his opponent, but he was advised that it would hardly be safe to go to court under the circumstances and the matter dropped.

A Good Season.

Mr. P. P. Young, the owner of the steamer Majestic, was in town yesterday and gave the Times a call. The last was the best season he has ever had in connection with the boat business. The popular steamer will be overhauled this winter and put in first class shape for next season's business.

A Large Engine.

Kingston News: Mr. Fairman, an engineer of Havelock, with an assistant, is in the city. To-morrow he will take a newly-built locomotive from here to Havelock. The engine is a very large and powerful eight-wheel structure, for use in drawing heavy freight trains. It is one of the six recently ordered by the C.P.R. Company. No finer work was ever turned out of the local works.

The Wave Crest.

Mr. J. J Turner, jr., received a letter to-day from his father, who is at Oak Orchard, Lake Ontario. He states that the schooner Wave Crest is pounding on the bottom but she may be saved if the Donnelly salvage outfit which has left Kingston, for the wreck, arrives in time. This is by no means certain, however. The schooner is a very fine one, and it is hoped that she may not be a total loss.

Libby Glass Blowers.

Their entertainment proves refined, and instructive, they are drawing large crowds to their entertainment in the store opposite Adam Hall's Hardware. Their entertainment is refining, instructive and well worthy of all citizens' patronage. It is a novel sight to see them make glass artificials of every description without tools or patterns. Every visitor receives a present free. A marvellous glass dress can be seen on exhibition, which is finer than silk. To fully appreciate the entertainment it must be seen. An orchestra discourses music during the evening. The Blowers will be open every afternoon the balance of this week. Admission, 10 cents. Every present free.

Correction

In our report yesterday of the sittings of the County Court, we made a typographical blunder. In the case of Graham vs. Denyes, we stated that the case was withdrawn on payment of $50 by plaintiff. It should have read that the money was paid by defendant.

SEPARATE SCHOOLS FOR THE YUKON.

The latest papers from Dawson are loud in their protests against the system of education which is to be established there under the authority of Hon. Mr. Sifton, acting through the executive council. Apparently the executive council has drafted a special school ordinance, claiming that the provisions of the Northwest Territories public school act are inapplicable. According to the Dawson City News the authority from Ottawa was expected daily to put the new ordinance into operation. Crown Prosecutor Wade purchased the necessary books some months ago and they are now on their way, or have reached Dawson.

The council shall appoint an executive council of five, two of the Roman Catholic faith, two of the Protestant and one of one or the other faith, who will act as chairman and have the casting vote. The executive council shall be known as the council of public instruction. It will name three trustees of the several schools, the trustees to be of the same religious faith as the schools to which they are respectively designated. It is obligatory upon parents or guardians that they shall send the children under their care to school during 12 weeks of the year at least and for six of these weeks consecutively—this to apply to children and youths between the ages of 7 to 16 years. The school age is from 5 to 20.

It also provides that no religious instruction shall be given save during the half hour of the afternoon preceding dismissal. No child is required to remain during this half hour but may leave the school. Remaining, they are not compelled to take part in the exercises. The minority in any school may apply for the establishment of a Roman Catholic or Protestant school, as the case may be, and the council will thereupon establish the same, with proper minority in any school district may apbooks and teachers.

According to this the council of public instruction will appoint the school trustees instead of having them elected by the ratepayers as in other parts of Canada. The Dawson papers are loud in their protests against the ordinance claiming that the people want non-sectarian public schools. The census just completed shows that there are 187 children of school age in Dawson. In a school district where there are ten children representing the minority a separate Protestant or Roman Catholic School, as the case may be, will be established.

Julia Arthur to Retire.

New York, Dec. 13.—The World says that Jilia Arthur will be the next in the list of prominent actresses to retire from the stage. The statement was made last night on excellent authority that this would wind up Miss Arthur's theatrical career and that she would then enter Boston society.

Laying on of Hand.

New York, Dec. 13.—A despatch from Norwalk, Conn., says the Rev. T. De Wit Talmage Van Doren, of the First Baptist church, has elicited considerable interest by his reputed cures of the sick by what is termed "the laying on of hands." The Rev. Mr. Van Doren, who is a nephew of the Rev. T. De Wit Talmage, came to Norwalk several months ago from Albany, N. Y., and since then his followers assert he has accompli hed many asto i hing cures.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone.

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. Miser Leaves $500,000

New York, Dec. 13.—Christopher Columbus Beckman, a miser, who scraped and saved in every imaginable way, is dead at his home in Franklin Park, N. J., leaving an estate worth $500,000. Swindlers persuaded Beckman about six years ago that there was a scheme on foot to raise the price of fertilizers. He bought $5,000 worth of guano, and after the swindlers got away, found his barrels were filled with ashes.

It was not long after this that Beckman met some men who were "looking for a farm." The old three-card Monte game was worked on him and he lost $3,000. After that he would never speak to a stranger.

THE WAR SITUATION.

London, Dec. 13.—The strongest column of two army corps, a force composed of two regiments which bear proudly upon their ensigns the curt story of a score of great campaigns—the flower of the British army in fact—has, after two days' fighting and great losses, been rolled back from the spiteful kopjes of Magersfontein and Spyfontein, held by twelve thousand Boers under Cronje and his Continental advisers. The historic Guards brigade have assailed the Boers and have not found the task half so easy as the crumpling up of Napoleons old guard at Waterloo. Gen. Methuen has met work compared with which the ten-hour fight at Modder River was child's play. Despite a rest of two weeks, reinforcements raising his strength to fully 15,000 men, and the acquisition of the much-vaunted howitzers with their deadly lyddite, he has been unable to clear the path to Kimberley. The Boers have repeated the lesson of Plevna taught originally by the Ottomans to the Russians. After withstanding a furious bombardment, which was apparently sufficient to make their entrenchments untenable as hells upon earth, they have emerged with strength sufficient to defeat an assault by the finest infantry in the world. But the men of the first division are not routed. They are only held in check and occupy the positions from which their attack was made. They will stay there, too, seeing that they are rapidly entrenching themselves, showing that they will go in no direction but forward. Spyfontein has to be carried, and Methuen's column will carry it even if they are repulsed again and yet again; for this is an old British custom which has been in use from time immemorial.

The story of the engagement as told by Lord Methuen leaves much to be desired, and it is difficult to reconstruct from it the battlefield in its entirety, though by deduction much may be gathered. It seems that the Boer position extended north and south to the west of the Cape-Buluwayo line with the left flank pointing towards the Modder River. The entrenchments of the enemy must have been remarkably strong, for General Methuen considered it necessary to shell them for fifteen hours, or during the whole of Sunday last, in order to break ground for the infantry attack. Following the methods pursued in his three previous battles Methuen began his infantry advance at daybreak on Monday morning. The Highlanders evidently made an attack on the enemy's left flank with one portion of the Guards in support. The remainder of the Guards assaulted the right of the Boer position, aided by field artillery, while a force of mounted infantry and cavalry supported by howitzers attacked the left.

The flank attack of the Highland brigade failed, and this, of course, weakened the two frontal movements, which were also abortive. The British artillery settled down to shelling the kopjes, while the infantry regiments, it is to be assumed, tried again and again to do the work set for them, but without avail. Shortly after one o'clock in the afternoon it was necessary to reinforce the Highlanders, and the Gordons of Dargai fame went into action, without, however, turning the tide of battle. Until dark the British regiments, though repulsed, did not lose sight of the Boer positions, holding that ground in that dogged manner which is their invariable characteristic. The defeat was by no means a rout, but rather a failure to accomplish the object in view. For another fifteen hours they faced the Boer entrenchments, and when darkness descended they still held their ground. Under cover of night it is probable that they fell back. As Lord Methuen speaks of still holding his position and entrenching himself, it is likely that his force gained some ground they did not previously occupy, and are consequently nearer the enemy. He speaks of his losses as being great and, judging from the nature and duration of the battle, they will probably be greater than those of Modder River.

The news from Natal confirms the assertion made in this despatch some days ago that the advances on Kimberley and Ladysmith would be simultaneous. With the news of Methuen's check comes the story that Barton's brigade of fusiliers has moved three miles nearer the Boer position at Colenso, leaving Frere behind him, and meeting with no opposition. An attempt to force the passage of the Tugela or some movement connected therewith is evidently imminent. It would not be surprising to hear of a flank movement by another force to the east and that Barton's advance is merely a subsidiary one.

ANOTHER BIG DEAL

THE BRITANNIA CONSOLIDATED GOLD MINING COMPANY BUYS

Gold Hill, Black Jack and others—Active Work to be Resumed at Once—Another Producer Assured.

Rat Portage Miner.

To-day the properties so well and favorably known in this district as the Gold Hill, Black Jack and other adjoining mineral claims were formally transferred to the Britannia Consolidated Gold Mining Company of Ontario, Limited, with head office at Ottawa and business office in Montreal. Mr. Hannell Sawyer, of Montreal, put the deal through, and it is regarded here as one of the most important deals ever consummated in this district, not only on account of the persons interested in the transaction, but also on account of the importance of the property.

This property has been well known in the district as a rich proposition, and it has been a disappointment to everybody work was not concentrated upon the Black Joe shaft sufficiently to show what interested in Western Ontario mining that it could produce. Now there seems to be a revival of work that bids fair to eclipse anything heretofore attempted in the country, and it is likely that very large returns will be had from the 10-stamp mill now on the property. There is no mine in the country where better pannings can be made, more frequently than here.

Mr. D. C. T. Atkinson, M. E., late assistant engineer at the Dufferin mines, Nova Scotia, has been appointed engineer, and he will assume control on the 15th inst.

On the property are many well constructed buildings suitable for all the purposes of a mining camp. Steam hoists, pumps, 10-stamp mill, and in fact everything necessary to continue the business of mining.

Work is progressing in the Black Jack shaft and the mill will be started upon soon as Mr. tAkinson arrives.

Already the team has been started hauling ore from the shaft to the mill and we look forward with interest to the production of the next gold brick. The last brick showed the ore to average $15.25, and it is believed the next run will exceed this value.

Mr. Sawyer has been busy putting everything on a business basis and he has gone east better pleased than ever with the outlook. We might say in passing Mr. Sawyer showed his faith in the property when he sent Mr. John Hardman, S.B., to examine it. There is no higher mining authority in the country than Mr. Hardman, and his very favorable report is a good thing, not only for Mr. Sawyer and his associates, but for the whole Western Ontario gold fields.

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.
Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Tumult in Dublin.

Dublin, Dec. 13.—The Lord Mayor of Dublin, Daniel Tallon, presided at a meeting of the corporation yesterday, called to protest against the Transvaal war. The clerk declared that there was no quorum, but the Lord Mayor insisted on making a statement, in which he declared that the war was "wanton and unprovoked aggression, undertaken by Mr. Chamberlain and capitalists against a handful of farmers." He further declared that America was opposed to this iniquitous war."

In the meantime the members present shouted "No quorum!" and "Order!" and the tumult in the galleries drowned all the speeches. Finally the Lord Mayor left the chair, with the galleries cheering for President Kruger. No attempt was made to adopt the previously-prepared resolution against the war.

We desire in this way to protest against the wicked and vile abuse of our Queen, Government and people by nearly the whole of the French press, and this apparently consented to by the authorities."

CURTAIN RAISERS.

A new comedy called "Wheels Within Wheels" is expected to go the rounds.

Robert Drouet will play John Storm in "The Christian" with Miss Allen next season.

"Annie Rooney" is undergoing a revival in Paris to the temporary eclipsing of Dreyfus.

David Belasco has completed an original play which will be produced early in the season with a specially selected company.

An elaborate revival of Shakespeare's tragedy of "Macbeth" will be the feature of Frederick Warde's repertory next season.

It is unofficially announced that Rudyard Kipling is to write the fairy play to be produced at the London Lyceum next season.

Some German statistician has discovered that stage dancing is conducive to longevity. Taglioni lived to be 80 and Fanny Elssler to be 74.

Rose Coghlan has been re-engaged for her original role of "Mlle. Fifi" for next season, the piece to open its tour in August in Chicago.

Emma Calvé's much talked of monument represents her as Ophelia, and the sculptor has promised to exhibit it at the Paris exposition.

Minnie Seligman will appear in the vaudeville houses in a one act play called "Therese," which has been done in Europe by Sarah Bernhardt.

In a play called "Wine, Women and Song," recently produced at the Princess theater, London, two demimondaines, armed with butchers' knives, fight to the death in a beautiful setting profusely decorated with flowers.

George Bernard Shaw submitted his new play, "Caesar and Cleopatra," to Richard Mansfield, but as Shaw had required a 56-year-old baldheaded Caesar to make love to a 16-year-old Cleopatra the manuscript was returned.

BEE BUZZES.

Beeswax is dark because of the impurities mixed with it.

All excess of drone comb should be removed from the hive.

Bees start to work earlier if the hives face the south or east.

It is essential during hot weather that the hives be well ventilated.

Avoid blowing your breath among the bees while handling the comb

Dirt and filth accumulating on the bottom boards make a propagating place for the moths.

Bees reared in the spring and summer are shorter lived than those reared later in the season.

The swarming season usually begins about 10 or 20 days after white clover comes into bloom.

Bees will enter a cool hive much more readily than one which had been baked in the hot sun all day.

Honey properly kept will improve with age. The older it is the better it will be, but it must be kept dry.

All bees should be examined now and the hives thoroughly cleaned. No trash of any kind should be left on the bottom boards.—St. Louis Republic.

True Boston Culture.

"Fifty cents for this beautiful little vase," called the auctioneer. "Going, going for 50. Do I hear 55 for this beautiful little vase?" and no one thought anything about the auctioneer or the vase which went for 50 cents until another one was put up, an immense affair of cloisonne. "Now we will show you an exquisite piece, not to be duplicated in this country," he went on. "An exquisite cloisonne varse"—and there the Wellesley girl said excitedly to her companion:

"Now, that is what I call true Boston culture. Would you expect a man of that kind to make such a delicate distinction? He must have been educated at a woman's college. When he is selling a 50 cent article, he says vase in the ordinary way, with the long sound of the 'a,' but when he comes to a big piece of cloisonne it is varse, with the broad 'a' every time. That is according to rule. Over $10 in price you find a varse, but under that nothing but an ordinary, everyday vase."—New York Times.

Crocodile Tears.

The expression "crocodile tears" can be found in almost every European language, but it is doubtful if one in a thousand of those who use it have an idea of its origin. We are told in the Bestiary of Guillaume le Clerc that when the crocodile finds an unwary traveler it devours him, but afterward weeps over him all the rest of its life. This is very evidently the allusion in "Othello," "Each drop she falls would prove a crocodile" (1, 257).

There is another version of the fable, however, which is more often referred to in literature, and according to which the crocodile sheds tears in order to allure the traveler to destruction. Shakespeare alludes to this in the passage where he tells how

> With sorrow snares relenting passengers.
> —"2, Henry VI," 1, 3.

—"Poet's Lore."

COPPER MINING STOCKS

For several months shrewd investors have been putting their money into the shares of Copper Mines. This is true not only of men with large amounts of money at their disposal but also applies to those who have made a study of investments with a view to securing a large return for small investments. As high as THREE AND FOUR HUNDRED PER CENT. has to our knowledge already been realized on some of these investments. Americans were the first to make a specialty of Copper Stocks. They knew what they were doing, for the reason is not far to seek. Every Copper Mine in the world is at present taxed to its utmost limit to meet the growing demand for copper for electrical purposes. The reserve stores of copper are being depleted until it pays no longer to use copper in some eastern countries as a coin. Copper has gone up in price from 9c to 18 cents. The supply of Copper from the mines of the world to-day is only about 80 per cent. of the consumption. That is the reason why financiers have their engineers searching the four quarters of the globe for Copper Mines, and that is the reason the shares in promising copper companies are so eagerly picked up by investors.

If you have any money to invest we would ask you to consider the shares of the SUPERIOR GOLD & COPPER COMPANY, LIMITED. This Company owns and operates some valuable native copper properties. We are in a position to offer you a special opportunity in this stock which as an investment should give you a profit of at least 100 per cent in six months. Send for prospectus and particulars.

Occasionally we have an opportunity of giving our clients a special offer on some stocks, and we have this opportunity now. If you are interested write to us at once. These shares are sold in large or small blocks to suit buyers.

We deal in all legitimate mining shares on commission. If you want to buy or sell write us.

THE FASHION PLATE.

Straight, full skirts continue to be used in making up sheer transparent summer textiles for slender waists.

The new corded taffeta silks in a great variety of summer colorings and effects are in favor for making up dressy shirt waists.

The black and white striped fabrics in silk or silk and wool effects, which impart length and slenderness to the figure, are uncommonly handsome and varied in design this year.

The pretty Tudor sleeve, cut off at the top and finished above the deep upward point with a small gathered cap of fabric matching the yoke or guimpe, is a model used on costumes and toilets of every sort.

On many of the costumes of foulard, figured taffeta or surah, drap de chine, drap d'ete, summer costume cloth, etc., the waist is belled at the back and on the sides, but in front is in jacket style, with tabbed ends falling below the waist line.

One of the most graceful summer models for a rather full figure, to use in making up organdie muslin, dimity, batiste and similar goods, is the new seven gored model, with a pretty demitrain, to be made up separately over a foundation skirt of exactly the same shape.

Skirts with closings at the side instead of at the back are now the most favored. If so arranged, the round waist or basque bodice can be permanently fastened to the skirt at the back, thus avoiding the time and trouble necessarily given to a waist and skirt differently laced or hooked.

White veiling or barege may be as elaborately trimmed as a white organdie. It will have as cool an effect, be nearly as comfortable on a hot day as cotton, and during a sudden change in the temperature the light wool gown will give the needed protection.

CURTAIN RAISERS.

Kyrle Bellew denies the rumor that he is coming to the United States with Henry Irving.

Digby Bell is to be seen in "Arizona." Next season he will be in one of Charles Frohman's companies.

Phoebe Davies has a belt made from Mauser shells found on dead Spaniards after the fight on San Juan hill.

Since Calve has her tombstone and Sarah Bernhardt her coffin, why do not certain would be players go and bury themselves?

At the Filipino theaters of Manila it is the custom to show appreciation by tossing coins on the stage in lieu of bouquets.

Venie Bennett, sister to the late Alice Atherton and widow of the comedian John A. Mackay, will appear in the vaudeville theaters.

As an instance of how the romantic drama has revived abroad, no less than six companies are touring England with "The King's Musketeer."

It is stated that Reginald De Koven has received about $75,000 from "Robin Hood." Barrie will probably take $100,000 or more from "The Little Minister."

Aubrey Boucicault, who plays the husband in "Mlle. Fifi," is said to have inherited some of his father's talent as a playwright and is now finishing two plays which may be produced next season.

RECENT INVENTIONS.

A pneumatic axle bearing for vehicles has been patented to take the place of inflated tires on road wagons, being less liable to puncture, the weight being carried by pneumatic rings placed inside drums surrounding the axle.

A SIMPLE LITTLE MIX UP.

How It Helped One Man at the Expense of Another.

How a bunch of roses sold a couple of high priced railroad tickets is the basis of a queer little comedy of errors enacted the other day at a leading city hotel. Among the guests of the house was a wealthy Texas merchant who was en route with his wife for a visit to New England. The Texan has a local business representative here in the person of a hustling young man about town, who was especially anxious to make the stay of his principal as pleasant as possible. Accordingly he rushed to a florist's as soon as he saw the names on the register and ordered him to put up the handsomest bunch of roses he had in the shop and send them over to Mrs. Blank at such and such a hotel. In his hurry he forgot to leave his card for inclosure, and, supposing it was omitted intentionally, the florist proceeded to prepare a magnificent bouquet, which he dispatched forthwith by messenger.

It so happened at the moment the flowers arrived that a city passenger solicitor for one of the north bound roads had just handed over his card to be sent to the Texas gentleman's apartment, and quite naturally the pasteboard and the roses went up together. The visitors were both astonished and pleased. "This is certainly a princely way of soliciting business," exclaimed the merchant, examining the flowers. "Why, these things must have cost all of $10. Show the gentleman up."

The solicitor was shown up, received most cordially and given an immediate order for through transportation both ways. He departed, chuckling merrily, but a little dazed by the facility of his deal and puzzled to understand the many references to his "courtesy" and "thoughtfulness."

An hour or so later the local representative dropped around and was met by his employer in the lobby. The greeting was painfully matter of fact, and not a word was said about the flowers. The young man was greatly chagrined and began to believe he had made a bad break. Next day he accompanied the couple to the depot, and incidentally something was said about the route.

"We decided to go this way on account of the gentleman who called to sell us tickets," explained the lady. "He was so courteous and pleasant! Why, would you believe it," she continued, "he actually sent me an enormous bunch of beauty roses with his business card!"

Light dawned on the local representative, and he groaned. In his pocket was a florist's bill for $12.75.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A JUMPING TOOTHACHE.

How It Won Its Victim Credit For Bravery in Battle.

"It was a toothache," said the veteran, "that won me a reputation for daring at the battle of Bull Run. That was the only fight I was ever in where I didn't wish I could find a hole to crawl into. All this talk about coolness on the eve of battle is nonsense, invented by people who have never been there or old soldiers whose tongues get away with their memories. Our men and officers were as brave as any in the war and made good records, but they all had the ague and longed for sick leave just about the time the bullets began to fly. But I had the toothache for two days before that battle, and if there is an aggravation on earth that will make a man want to bat his best friend in the face that is it.

"On the night before the fight I did not sleep a wink. The old tooth got to jumping like a goat, and I couldn't have suffered more from an amputated leg. I was also furiously mad. I felt that I'd either got to bolt for the rear in search of relief or encourage some rebel to put a ball through my head.

"We'd been waiting in battle line for an hour, and the boys had grown white and were all choked up. I had been entirely occupied with the old tooth, and the first thing I knew the fight was on. We were holding them in check, but that didn't suffice me. As I got hold of my gun and pulled the handkerchief off my jaw I yelled out for the boys to follow, and we struck a whole brigade and whirled it around and sent it back half a mile. I felt that I could lick the whole of Lee's army for an hour or two! They told me that I yelled and dodged death a thousand times, but I remember nothing but the jumps of that tooth. When they stopped, or for what particular reason, I could never say, but after a couple of hours I came to myself, as it were, and was being complimented on all sides, and the jumps had ceased."

VINEGAR, THEN LEAD.

"I think my most exciting official experience," said Captain J. E. Stone, formerly United States postal inspector, "was at the town of Carbonville, Colo., in 1879. It was a star route post, and there was much complaint about the nonreceipt of mail, so I went over to investigate.

"The postmaster was a man named Wilson, who kept a general store, and the postoffice consisted of a soap box on the end of his counter. When mail arrived, it was dumped in, and every fellow helped himself, an arrangement that worked well enough until a chap known as Black Hills Pete came to town. Pete disturbed the entire system. When he didn't get a letter himself, he would tear up several others on the principle that misery loves company, and, being a notorious desperado, nobody dared interfere. I got the facts, and as the mail came in that evening I took a seat in the corner and awaited developments, first ordering the box removed.

"A little after dark the miners from camp began to assemble, and presently in came Black Hills Pete. He was a big brute of a fellow, and I saw at once there was going to be trouble. 'Where's that letter box?' he demanded of Wilson. 'I've ordered him not to use it any more,' I said, getting up. 'Who the blank blank are you?' roared Peter. 'I'm the inspector,' I replied. 'Well, you get me that box quick,' he retorted, and, seeing him reach toward his pocket, I made a grab for my gun; but, as bad luck would have it, the confounded thing caught in the holster.

"In a twinkling he had me covered, but before he could turn loose a quavering voice called out: 'Pete! Oh, Pete!' The desperado glared around, and there stood Wilson holding a large tin squirt gun used for drawing liquors. The sight was so ludicrous that the bully burst into a guffaw, and as he did so Wilson let drive the piston and hurled about a quart of the strongest kind of vinegar squarely into his face. The stuff blinded him, and before he could recover himself the storekeeper had two bullets in his shoulder.

"That's the true story of the strangest fight that ever occurred in the west. Pete recovered, but before he could be arrested was spirited away by friends to New Mexico. His right name was Luther Coleman, and there is a warrant now standing against him for destroying United States mail matter. After the episode I have narrated there was no further trouble at the Carbonville postoffice."—New Orleans

Where the Pot of Gold Is Buried.

How many women are fretting and struggling along on a very little money when a good sized yard or adjoining patch of ground is going to waste! Yet that very piece of ground may contain all sorts of possibilities—clothes, furniture, books, medicines, luxuries and even necessities otherwise impossible.

Clear, plow, fertilize and plant. This done, the great beginning is made, and perseverance and attention will secure the rest. Onions, tomatoes, cabbages, celery, a small poultry farm, a violet or rose farm—any one of these may add several hundred dollars to one's purse every year. Small fruits, hops, tuberoses and grapes are also very profitable. With some intelligence a blooming garden can always be made a paying one. Make it a principle to have no more waste in the garden than in the kitchen.

If there is only a very small place and just enough raised for one's own family, try, after the table is supplied, to prepare what vegetables and fruits are left over for sale for winter use. There is always a demand for good homemade canning and preserving. Do not let a valuable scrap of ground be idle.—Annetta Halliday-Antona in Woman's Home Companion.

How He Misunderstood.

There were loud cries from a man in the back of the hall, and the cornetist went at it again.

There were more cries from other parts of the hall, but, with that one still ringing in his ears, the cornetist kept it up.

"What are you trying to do?" cried the manager. "That's no encore."

"No encore!" exclaimed the cornetist when he had been induced to break off. "Didn't that man back there yell, 'Toot, mon!' four or five times?"

"Not any," answered the manager. "He's a Scotchman, and what he said was, 'Hoot, mon!'"

THEMAGICALMIRROR

A CURIOUS GLASS OWNED BY A WASHINGTON MAN.

Several Well Known Persons Have Seen Portentous Pictures Reflected In Its Oval Surface, Although It Will Not Work For All.

While all of us have heard in early childhood of the tales of magical mirrors, in which impossible heroes saw impossible heroines in danger, from which said heroes proceeded to rescue the fair maidens, yet such things have been relegated by most of us to the region of the imagination. We regard such things as being outside of the real world of today and belonging to the region of myth and fable. Yet, in spite of our prosaic nineteenth century, it is nevertheless a fact that a Washington gentleman is the possessor of an article which might be classed as appropriately belonging to the time of Aladdin and the wonderful lamp.

This strange acquisition is a mirror which came from India, and in which one can see the events which the future will bring forth. That such is its power is attested by some of the best known gentlemen of the city, who, for obvious reasons, do not wish their names to be mentioned.

This mirror came into the possession first of a Washington lady who was traveling in India, and, being interested in the religion of the country, took a trip to the famous temple of Alora, which lies in a rocky side of the foothills of the Himalaya mountains. This temple is now but a ruin of jagged rocks, jutting out harshly into the soft greensward that rolls smoothly down into the valley below. Above tower the vast mountains with their glittering caps of snow looking down on the peaceful tropical scene where for ages the followers of Brahma have performed their sacred rites.

The ruins of the temple stand open to the weather, and its ancient glory, which shone in such splendor before the English came to India, is now diminished. But a small band of Brahman monks still kept the sacred secrets and ceremonies alive. Few Europeans ever penetrate this section of the mountains, but the Washington lady mounted and visited the monastery. While there she managed to secure possession of one of the mirrors made by the monks and reputed to possess wonderful properties.

The lady brought the mirror with her on her return to town, and at her death it came into the possession of Mr. Lowdermilk. From him it was bought by a gentleman who takes great interest in such matters, but who would not like the fact of the existence of the mirror in his house to be known, as it would attract thousands of seekers after the curious. After paying quite a large sum for the glass the mirror was brought home and put to the test.

The mirror is oval in shape, about a foot long and is surrounded by a wooden frame two inches in width and painted a dark green. The back of the glass is coated with asphaltum and then covered with dark linen, so that the whole has the appearance of a lustrous opal. The method of use is by sitting with the mirror in one's lap and holding the glass so that there is no reflection of other objects shining on the surface of the glass. If the test is a success, there will appear in about a quarter of an hour a thin, cloudy mist, which will slowly float over the surface, and then the images of future events will be mirrored in the seemingly fathomless depth of the dark glass.

The gentleman who owns the mirror has never been himself successful in seeing anything, but a friend of his, a prominent judge and a thirty-third degree Mason, had a remarkable experience. He placed the mirror in his lap, and, after half an hour, a mist floated over the surface; then he saw reflected in the glass a picture of a coffin, within which was the still, white face of a dead man. At first glance the features seemed those of the gazer, but on looking closely it was seen that they represented exactly the brother of the gentleman—a man then in perfect health. In a second the picture shifted, and another face—that of a friend—appeared within the sides of the coffin. The gentleman in two weeks afterward lost his brother, and in a short while his friend, whose face he had also seen, passed to another world.

A son of the owner was one evening looking into the mirror, when he saw within a picture of a house in flames. There were the servants leaping from the porches, then returning to drag out the furniture. The glare shone around on a yard which the gazer recognized as that of his own farmhouse down the Potomac. By the mail two days afterward he received from his housekeeper an account of a fire which had destroyed his home, and the description tallied exactly with the picture seen in the mirror.

Another man, a gentleman employed in the bureau of ethnology and well known as a scientist and linguist, has also seen many pictures in the mirror—pictures of events in his life which were afterward realized to the letter.

By a student of occultism the following directions were given in a treatise on that subject, which dealt with the methods employed in making such mirrors: The materials need are one glass, 6½ inches by 8½ inches, free from flaws and concave in shape; a small amount of turpentine asphaltum, a pint of spirits of turpentine, a small hairbrush, a box in which to case the mirror, and a half a yard of new cloth.

The glass is placed in a clean, light and airy room, the materials washed perfectly clean; then the brush and the glass are wiped over with turpentine. Afterward the back of the glass is coated smoothly with a thin varnish of the asphaltum and left to dry, the operation being repeated for the two following days. At the end of that time the mirror is magnetized by placing the hands above it and slowly waving them to and fro, so that the animal magnetic force may be well absorbed by the asphaltum. The asphaltum is the best known material for absorption of the aura of the human body, and this is the reason for its use. The test should be made also in a clean, airy chamber when alone and when the mind is composed, and by perseverance the inquirer is sure to be rewarded—so say the books on magic.—Washington Post.

The Birds Save Us.

A French naturalist says that if the world were to become birdless man could not inhabit it after nine years' time. In spite of all the sprays and poisons that could be manufactured for the destruction of insects the bugs and slugs would simply eat up orchards and crops.

Fact Versus Fiction.

IT NEEDS STEAM.

If there's no steam in a fire-engine it won't do its work. Heavier metal or larger wheels won't help it. It needs steam. It's the same when a man's strength is gone, he wants new life—fresh vitality. It makes no difference how large his frame may be or how big the muscles on his arms and legs; if the inner power and force of life is lacking he can't do his work; he is practically a sick man. You can't make him well by feeding him with oily emulsions. There's no use in flabby fat. His proper weight will come after he gets well. The first thing he needs is strength, force, steam.

"About a year ago," says Mr. John Brooks, of Boylston, Mass., "I was taken with a bad cold which settled on my lungs. The doctors said I was in consumption and could not get well. I took emulsion of cod liver oil and it did me no good. After taking it four months I heard of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and wrote to him for advice. I have taken this medicine and it saved my life. I felt so sick when I wrote to him I thought I would not live the winter through.

"In the morning I would raise an awful lot and spit all the time, with pains in my chest all the time. My bowels would not move more than once or twice a week; my strength was nearly all gone; I could not do a whole day's work. Now my bowels are regular every day, and I feel no more pains in my chest. I feel a great deal stronger. I am working hard every day, driving a team in the woods, and I owe my thanks to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I know it saved my life. I cannot praise it enough. I am proud to tell my friends what cured me."

The way this great remedy acts in bronchial and lung diseases is more fully described in Dr. Pierce's great 1000-page Common Sense Medical Adviser, sent FREE for 31 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y. He is always ready to give free advice by mail.

An Unprofitable Bone.

Last summer a friend presented me with a tortoise. I do not know whether our dog had heard of turtle soup or whether he regarded the creature as a new kind of bone that walked about; at any rate, he determined to eat it.

Whenever the tortoise started out on a constitutional down the garden path Gyp arrested it and carried it into his kennel, where he gnawed at the impenetrable armor till his jaws ached.

The calm and philosophical manner in which the tortoise resumed its interrupted promenade irritated the dog exceedingly, but no failure discouraged him. Whenever we reminded him of the tortoise, he would go in search of it all round the garden, peering into every crevice, till eventually the creature was found, and then fresh but futile attempts were made to extract the meaty portions from the shell.—

Gone Forever.

Yesterday while conversing with Mr. Dickson, the genial assistant general passenger agent of the Grand Trunk Railway, the Times broached the subject of cheap Saturday market rates over the railways. Mr. Dickson said that the rates would never be restored. It was a thing of the past, and was not workable any longer. While cheap Saturday fares no doubt benefitted the towns affected by it, it did harm to other smaller places.

GREAT CIVIC CONTEST.

Ald. McWilliams Again the Top-Notcher.

MR. WM. CLUXTON SECOND

While Ex Mayor Kendry Drops to Third Place on the List.

Some New and Good Mentioned for Seats at the Council—Interest in the Contest is Growing

The leading candidates for the Mayoralty up to three o'clock yesterday were—

Alderman McWilliams	310
Wm. Cluxton	290

The leading nominees for the Council are—

H. C. Winch	305
W. Salisbury	290
Macfarlane Wilson	270

It is the old story—People are anxious to have a change of civic rulers. The paving contract muddle as well as the loose way in which our streets were looked after, is largely responsible for the state of feeling. We are safe in saying that there will be some new blood in next year's council. Ald. McWilliams again leads in the Mayoralty contest, the people feeling that he is their friend. His manly, straightforward course all through the year regardless of consequences stamps him as a good, safe man to put in the Mayor's chair. Mr. Wm. Cluxton, who is one of our esteemed citizens, is a close second. It is safe to say that hundreds of our best citizens would be delighted to see Mr. Cluxton run, but we fear this is hardly possible. Mr. Cluxton would honor and elevate the office were he to be chosen.

"Veritas" says—"I enclose two ballots in favor of Mr. Wm. Cluxton for Mayor. Mr. Cluxton is so well known and so highly respected that I know he will be elected by an overwhelming majority should he stand. I would also like to see such gentlemen as Messrs. Cressman, Salisbury, Dr. Neill, Oke and Wilson to the Council."

J. W. says—"I am delighted with your plan of exciting interest in municipal matters. It is not only interesting reading, but does much good in the way of suggesting new names. I would like to name Mr. R. C. Braun, one of our most successful and enterprising grocers, as a candidate. He would make a worthy representative from the south end. I hope friends of good local government will mark their ballots for him."

Optican writes—"Enclosed please find 20 votes for Dr. Neill for Mayor and 10 each for Kelsey Hall and S. H. J. Reid for Alderman. I believe in giving the rising generation a chance to get a rake off from the ratepayers once in a while anyway."

CANADA'S GREATEST SCHOOL OF SHORTHAND AND BUSINESS

PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS SHOULD NOTICE

This institute has prepared over seventy teachers for other Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States, more than twice as many as all other Business Colleges in Canada, combined, have so placed.

The proprietors of five of the leading business colleges in Western Ontario, who are to-day among our strongest opponents in the field of Shorthand and Business training, received THEIR training under the Principal of this institution. Besides these, there are five others holding leading positions as teachers in Business Colleges in Ontario.

Since Sept. 1st, seven of our pupils have accepted positions as teachers in Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States; another is now negotiating for a similar opening in a Business College in a leading American city, and there are five unfilled calls of this kind on hand still.

DOES IT NOT PAY TO ATTEND THE BEST? You must decide.

[illegible] of our pupils secured good positions in seventeen months, and the good work of placing our students still continues.

BRITISH TROOPS AGAIN ENTRAPPED AND BULLER FORCED TO LOSE HIS GUNS.

General Buller While Attempting to Cross the Tuegla River Found it Impossible to Effect His Object, and Ordered a Retirement to Avoid Greater Losses, Leaving Eleven Guns in the Enemy's Possession.

Buller to Lansdowne.—Cheiveley Camp, Dec. 15, 6.20 a.m.—I regret to report a serious reverse. I moved in full strength from our camp near Cheiveley at four this morning. There are two fordable places in the Tuegla river, and it was my intention to force a passage through one of them. They are about two miles apart, my intention was to force the one or the other with one brigade supported by a central brigade. Gen. Hart was to attack the left drift, Gen. Hildyard the right road, and Gen. Lytton was to take the centre and support either.

Early in the day I saw that Gen. Hart would not be able to force a passage, and I directed him to withdraw. He had, however, attacked with great gallantry, and his leading battalion, the Connaught Rangers, I fear suffered a great deal. Col. I. G. Brooke was seriously wounded.

I then ordered Gen. Hildyard to advance, which he did, with his leading regiment, the East Surrey, occupied Colenso station and the houses near the bridge.

At that moment I heard that the whole artillery I had sent to support the attack,—the 14th and 66th field batteries and six naval twelve pounders quick firers, under Col. Long, had advanced close to the river. In Long's desire to be within effective range, it proved to be full of the enemy, who suddenly opened a galling fire at close range, killing all their horses and the gunners were compelled to stand to their guns. Some of the wagon teams got shelter for the troops in a donga, and desperate efforts were made to bring out the field guns. The fire, however, was too severe and only two were saved by Capt. Schofield and some drivers, whose names I will furnish. Another most gallant attempt with three teams was made by an officer, whose name I will obtain. Of the 18 horses, 13 were killed, and as several drivers were wounded, I would not allow another attempt as it seemed that they would be a shell mark, sacrificing life to a gallant attempt to force the passage. Unsupported by artillery, I directed the troops to withdraw, which they did in good order.

Throughout the day a considerable force of the enemy was pressing on my right flank but were kept back by mounted men under Lord Dundonald and part of Gen. Barton's brigade. The day was intensely hot and most trying to the troops, whose conduct was excellent.

We have abandoned ten guns and lost by shell fire one. The losses in Gen. Hart's brigade are, I fear, heavy although the proportion of severly wounded is, I hope, not large.

The 14th and 66th field batteries also suffered severe losses.

We have retiredd to our camp at Cheiveley.

London, Dec. 16, 4.30 a.m.—The news of Gen. Buller's reverse was received so late this morning newspapers comment to-day is confined to perfunctory expressions of extreme regret and disappointment and of the necessity of calmness and redoubling efforts to relifieve the position. This latest check is regarded as the most serious event in Great Britain's milltery history since the Indian Mutiny. The Standard says—"General Buller's despatch is deplorable reading. It is the now familiar story of concealed Boers and of British troops marching up blindly almost to the very muzzles of the enemy's rifles. It cannot be doubted that the moral effect will be to aggregate the difficulties over the whole field of operations. The country has discovered with annoyance and surprise that subduing Boer farmers is about the hardest work we have come upon since the Indian Mutiny. Their commandants have shown themselves able to give our generals able but expensive lessons in mountain tactics."

The Times says—"Since the days of the Indian Mutiny the nation has not been confronted with so painful and anxious a situation. Plainly General Buller's advance is paralyzed for the moment as completely as Lord Methuen's and General Gatacre's."

London, Dec. 16.—The depression over the defeat of Great Britain's trusted and [illegible] commander is all the greater as, during the last 48 hours there have been reports of the relief of Ladysmith. Yesterday the War Office allowed it to be understood that the position of affairs in Natal was entirely satisfactory. The reaction is all the more pronounced on this account. The gloomy information came too late to reach the service clubs and only a few journalists were waiting at the War Office. It has hardly been realized until now, even after the experiences of the week, that General Buller could fail.

Virtually nothing had been allowed to leak through regarding his preparations, but the public waited patiently in the confident belief that he was taking such time and precaution as would ensure success.

No independent reports of the engagement have yet been allowed to come through, but General Buller's own despatch tells the sad tale in sufficient outline to show that the British have been entrapped again by the astute Boers.

It was not anticipated that General Buller would make a frontal attack, but no criticism of his movements are made since apparently he suffered a repulse rather than a defeat, and did not push the attack home, but broke it off in in the middle so as to save a useless sacrifice of life. It is expected that he will renew the attack shortly. Immediately on receiving the news the War Office decided to mobilize still another division and to replace the losses of artillery. The necessary reinforcements will be hurried off as soon as possible.

Fifteen transports are due to arrive at Cape Town between Dec. 17 and Jan. 8, with about 18,000 troops of all arms, but unless Gen. Buller is able to renew the attack, which is exceedingly doubtful, the British generals will be compelled for another fortnight or more to remain practically on the defensive.

Major Gen. Sir. Herbet Charles Chermside has been appointed to command the 14th brigade of the Seventh division.

London, Dec. 16.—The list of casualties among the non-commissioned officers and men in the fight at Magersfontein just issued shows 55 killed 253 wounded, 21 severely, and 76 missing. This, however, is apparently not a complete list.

BY-LAWS.

Ald. McWilliams introduced a by-law to authorize the execution of contract for snow ploughing for 1899-1900, which passed its several readings.

Ald. Langford submitted a by-law authorizing the Auburn Power Company to erect poles and wires for the transmission of electricity in the town of Peterborough which passed its several readings.

This by-law requires that the company shall be required to place notices of warning on all poles carrying over 500 volts and also that the town shall be fully protected against all claims for damages which may arise in the future through the erection of such poles and wires.

RAILWAY MORTGAGE.

Ald. Denne moved that the town Trust Commissioners be authorized to have handed over to them the mortgage on the Midland Railway Co., at present in the town hall.—Carried.

RAILWAY CROSSINGS

Ald. Hall gave notice of motion instructing the Town Solicitor to write the Grand Trunk Railway Co. that unless the company maintain gates at its own expence at its several crossings in the town, council will insist on their strictly complying with the law. Also that the C.P.R. Co given like warning and cautioned against running through the town at a higher rate of speed than authorized by law.

QUITE A STORM.

Ald. McWilliams moved, seconded by Ald. Sawers,—That all accounts for disbursements in connection with the granolithic sidewalks investigation be referred to a committee of the whole council before being paid.

This resolution touched upon Ald. Sawers' and raised quite a storm.

Ald. Hall objected to the resolution and thought it quite unnecessary. The mayor and council had authorized the Town Solicitor to pay any disbursements connected with the investigation, which he thought quite sufficient.

Ald. McWilliams did not for one moment think disbursements were to be paid ad libertum by the solicitor. He wanted things done in a business way and the accounts presented to council in detail.

Ald. Neil said that one would infer from Ald. McWilliams' resolution that there was something crooked in the disbursements, but he placed every confidence in Mr. Edwards and would move in amendment that the latter receive his disbursements in full—$88—at once.

Ald. McWilliams remarked that he did certainly object to some items connected with the investigation. There was Mr. Rose's fee for instance. He had asked Mr. Edwards particulerly to have Mr. Rose's evidence taken before the latter left for Burleigh, to save unnecessary expense, but despite this, the taking of his evidence was delayed until he had left town, when he had to be brought back at an additional expense for carriage hire, etc.

Mr. Edwards said that there had been some misunderstanding somewhere. He had certainly done his best to meet the convenience of witnesses and to economize in his disbursements connected therewith.

Ald. McWilliams took exception to Mr. Edwardds' statement. He could not conceive how the latter could misunderstand his implicit request to have Mr. Rose examined before he left for Burleigh. He, McWilliams, also objected to an account of $8 for Mr. Belcher; he would like to know what that was for.

Mr. Edwards—"For professional service, two days at $4 a day."

Ald. Best here objected to these legal disbursements being paid before council seeing the items in detail.

Ald. Sawers could not see the value of Belcher's evidence, from his observation the latter appeared to have been put in the witness box in favor of the contractors.

The account for disbursements was here produced and Ald. McWilliams drew attention to the fact that Ald. Neil, Langford and Hall were the only aldermen that were billed for their witness fees.

Ald. McWilliams strongly objected to men being paid three or four days fees for sitting in the court doing nothing. He thought the whole case could have been managed more economically. If a man had deliberately endeavored to run up a bill of costs, he could not have accomplished his ends better than the Town Solicitor had done

Ald. Sawers concurred with Ald. McWilliams' opinions.

Ald. Hall expressed his astonishment at the action taken by Ald. McWilliams, who he claimed is responsible for the whole trouble. He Mr. McWilliams had stated in Council that he could prove that certain aldermen had been approached and a lot of other misdemeanors, but upon investigation the whole thing had proved to be a fizzle, and it ill-becomes Ald. McWilliams to object to these disbursements being paid by the solicitor, after the former had run the town into such a a big bill of costs.

Ald. McWilliams here took exception to Mr. Lawless' account for five days' attendance at court, when his actual evidence only occupied a small portion of two separate days. And he must say at this juncture that he was quite proud of his stand in this matter. Inspector Ranney had reported misdoings, and he had acted upon that report like a man faithful to the town's interests. The solicitor had tried to block the investigation. He put a man in the box in order to injure the town's case. Mr. Hay testified that a test of granolithic work was was made on Stewart street, resulting in a discrepancy of 1-4 c between the class of work done and that called for by the specifications. Mr. Hay then called Mr. Hay again to elicit the information that the work on London street was only 1 16. Now, no official test was made of the London street walk, but Mr. Edwards by his second explanation of Mr. Hay led the public to infer that the latter walk had been tested also, which is not true. Then the solicitor had brought a man from Napanee to prove that the cement used was equal to that called for. He swore that the mixing of Ensign and Star cement gave perfect satisfaction. Now, any person can see that it is to the interest of a man connected with a manufactory of the cement in question to uphold his own wares. In conclusion, the the speaker remarked that if his solicitor had conducted a case for him as Mr. Edwards had done for the town, he would bring him before the benches.

Ald. Langford supported Mr. Edwards in bringing a manufacturer of cement to testify as to its qualities. He went for Ald. McWilliams and his son for trying to prove Aldermen guilty of wrongdoing. There had been no wickedness so far as he could see but that of oneman trying to put his foot on his (Langford's) neck. No fraud had been proven.

Ald. McWilliams—"If Mr. Langford had done his duty—and reported deviation from contracts he was acquainted with the town would have been saved this investigation."

Ald. Hall—"I move to a point of order —."

Ald. McWilliams—"I move an adjournment, then."

Council rose.

Ald. McWilliams—"Langford deliberately told an untruth to the judge."

Ald. Langford—"That subsidized organ of yours depicted you this morning in a cartoon with your foot on my neck——."

Ald. McWilliams—"You told the judge that I knew of the deviations from contracts, when I was only in town three days and was away three weeks, as everybody knows, during the Water street construction, and besides I left you in charge of some work to attend to for me. The first I knew of the matter was through Inspector Ranney's report."

During Ald. McWilliams' and Ald. Langford's parting shots the Councillors were steadily adjourning to the regions below.

Death of Mrs. Meade.

We very much regret being forced to chronicle the death of Mrs. Richard Meade, which sad event occurred at the family residence Ashburnham, yesterday. The deceased lady had been in poor health for some time, and, on Saturday last, took a turn for the worse, from which she never rallied. She was only 55 years of age. Mrs. Meade was a daughter of the late R. D. Rogers, esq., and a sister of Col. J. Z. Rogers. She leaves three grown up daughters, who have much sympathy in their great and irreparable loss. Funeral to-morrow at 2.30

Ashburnham Notes.

Work on the canal is still being prosecuted with vigor, notwithstanding the unfavorable weather.

Mr. C. B. McAllister, has been mentioned as a probable candidate for councilor. He would make a first-class representative.

Mr. David Conroy, it is said, will be asked to stand for the council. Mr. Conroy has large interests in the municipality, and would make a frugal officer.

There will, after all, be a fight over the Reeveship, Mr. Adams has made an excellent chief magistrate, but some are of the impression that he should make way for an equally good man in the person of Mr. William Johnston

THE LIME JUICE CLUB

A Long Way After The Lime Kiln Club

The unhung scoundrel who attempted the destruction of the Hall of Wisdom during the last three days of last week will hear of something greatly to his advantage by addressing the keeper of the museum.

This is the 34th attempt made in the last 10 years to destroy that imposing edifice, and from the fact that each and every one has been a failure it would seem that some guardian angel made it her special business to watch over the hall and its wealth of memories and relics. The unknown villan who made this last attempt bored out a panel of the alley door and proceeded to crawl through into the hall, from which a stairway leading to the station of the outer guard. He found one of the bear traps yawning to receive him. It was the trap known as "The Colossus of Roads," having a spread of four and a half feet, with a spring power estimated at four horse power. He must have scented danger just in time, as his dead body was not found in the trap. Both his boot heels, his hat and a piece of his right ear was left behind however, to show how close the call must have been. The janitor even discovered three eye winkers on one of the jaws, and that the villan escaped justice is one of those mysteries over which the detectives love to sit and marvel.

In going back through the hole he was in such a hurry that he stripped the buckles off his suspenders, and most of the buttons of his clothes, and that he was a white man and red headed at that is proved by the hairs left on the jagged edges.

"Gentlemen," said the President, when the meeting had been duly opened, "this is another proof of what I have often told you, that being bad don't pay. You can sit down with a piece of chalk and figure it right out to any man's complete satisfaction that it don't. The bad man may get ahead now and then, but the first thing he knows along comes a setback to take off all the profits. I don't want you to be too good — goody-good—because in that case your fellowmen would always be expecting to see you break out somewhere, but let baldness alone. It gives you the nightmare in the night and the shivers in the daytime. You are always expecting something no matter how hard you try to be happy, and that something never fails to come. When it does arrive you are either blowed sky high with a spring gun, killed dead with a policeman's club or smashed to meat in the jaws of a bear trap. The secretary will offer a reward of $50, half cash and half store pay, for the arrest, conviction and execution of the unknown assassin."

ON ELECTION DAY.

Jamfed Jones said he arose to a question of privilege. On the day of the civic election last January his wife sent him after a sack of flour. He went out and bought one and carried it home, and at the next meeting of the club he was hauled up on the charge of having sold his vote. He easily proved his innocence, but when the election would come around again, he wanted information. Would it be considered discreet in a man to walk the streets with a sack of flour on his shoulder or a ham in his clutch? If not he would arrange to do his marketing the day previous.

"Gentlemen," said the President, in reply, "we must avoid even the appearance of evil. Geo your flour and hams and jugs of molasses on the day before election, and on that day, if a man owes you $2 and wants to pay it take him away off into the country before you receive the money."

NEW BRANCH.

A letter was read from Lakefield requesting the President to reconsider his decision not to charter a branch in that village. The writer went on to say that the President's hind buttons will be safe should he consent to come in person and open the branch; besides, Bro. Spiritual Monroe and a number of the Royal Old Boys (the name of the proposed club) have agreed to give an immense chicken stew at the conclusion of the opening cermonies, the only stipulation being that the event shall take place when the moon is not on time, as dark nights are necessary to ensure a good supply of fat pullets. The Committee has also promised to supply mountain dew from Apsley to the extent of at least one Gallon.

TRAITS OF CHARACTER.

Cautious Miller, under the head of unfinished business, called the following resolution, which had been in the safe for several weeks—

"Resolved, that we are gradually losing our reverence for such traits of character as make men great in life and their memories respected after death."

"A few years ago," continued the speaker, as he gently caressed his left ear, "the news that a treasurer was a defaulter in the sum of $10,000 would have set a whole district agog. At the present date we pick up our papers and read of the treasurer being behind, the cashier skipping out with a big pile, and this trusted clerk robbing his employer, and we grin as we wonder if they will be caught. As a people we have lost our reverence for honesty. We expect contractors to do poor work and get full pay, as, for instance, the granolithic pavements. We expect councills and members of Parliament to make money by using their official influence. We expect to be swindled in buying dry goods, and to be imposed upon at the average hotel. Indeed, the big thief may be certain of admiration. If we send him to prison we turn about as soon as possible and petition for his pardon. I hold that the term strictly honest has no longer any meaning. Nobody looks for it, and if anybody discovers it he wonders why the person hasn't gone to the lunatic asylum or the poor house."

"And where is truth," asked Anvil McCann, in his deep sonorous voice. "If honesty has become a sarcasm the man who expects to find truth is considered light in the upper story. Our merchants lie and deceive. Our lawyers accept a false witness as quick as a true one. Our highest officials lie about each other. Our whole system of business consists in putting a dozen good apples on top of the barrel to hide the wind falls and worm holes below. We admire sharpness in a man, and we accept lying, stealing and hyprocisy as sharpness."

"And who has consistency?" demanded Stoping Dinwoodie, as he rose up with a sideways motion and upset the water pail over Bro. Crigas Mulcahey's new brogans. "Take the record of any public man in the country, from the president of this great club down to an alderman, and the stultifies himself six days in the week and dodges on the seventh. Where you find him one day you miss him the next. He is consistent only when it furthers his own aims and ends. He displays honesty, conscience and integrity only when the mutterings of the people predict an approaching storm that may result in his downfall."

Several other members spoke in much the same vein, and a vote was taken and the resolution adopted by a vote of 1706 to 43.

SUNK.

The Janitor reported that the southeast end of the Hall of Wisdom had sunk eight inches, but he had no recommendation to make. If the rest of the building didn't sink to the same level, members would soon get accustomed to sitting on a slant, and no expense would be entailed.

NO TRUTH IN IT.

Bro. Ed Brown wanted to know if there was any truth in the report which was current on the streets for the past few days, to the effect that the Lime Juice Club and Board of Trade were likely to amalgamate. He had been told that Bro. Calico Fair was working the scheme with a view to securing the presidency of the amalgamated institutions in order to force Laurier to take him into the Cabinet. He had also been informed that the Club had agreed to support Dr. Neil for Mayor and were running a ticket for the council consisting of Bros. Sam Reid, Kelsey Hall, A. J. McClellan, Darkness Ross and Billy Salisbury.

The president said that this Club had no axes to grind, and consequently had no motive to serve in controlling the Council or any of the provincial Legislatures. Many eminent men had used the club as a stepping stone to some position or other, and in this connection he instanced Bro. Stratton, who would never have risen above the plane of an ordinary individual, had he not had the moral support of this great club.

WHO OWNS IT.

Bro. Anvil McCann, of Douro, arose and intimated that he had something to confess. He felt contrite and broken up, and was willing to acknowledge his sin. About three months ago he found a five dollar bill on the floor of the Hall. He knew it had been lost by some member, and yet his selfishness and dishonour whispered to him to keep it. He did so, but now the owner of the bill had only to reveal his identity and his money would be restored and his forgiveness asked.

The president crooked his little finger for that "William," Darkness Ross leaned forward and held out his hands; Anvil Davis, Calico Might and 43 others took the floor in chorus, and tried to say that they would receive back their lost bill and grant free pardon. A rapid look over the hall and a count of noses showed 117 seventeen men who had lost five dollars, and was ready to forgive Anvil McCann. He was called forward by the president, who asked —

"Did any of us gentlemen drop a five dollar bill on the floor?"

"We did," called 117 voices together.

"I resign my claim," signed the president as he looked up and down and realized the situation.

"Was it a Canadian bill you lost?" asked Anvil.

One hundred and seventeen voices wildly answered "yes."

"This was a yankee greenback, that I found" softly continued Anvil, and amid an awful silence he returned to his seat.

NO GOOD.

Bro. Croft, Chairman of the Committee on Earthquakes, awoke from his seventh nap in time to report. He stated that the thermometer invented especially for the Club by Stepoff Kelly, had not been found up to his warrant. During the heated term in August it registered from eight to ten degrees below zero right along, and during the cold wave of the present month it marked 250 degrees above zero several days in succession. It had been greased with bear's oil, boiled in milk and baked in the oven, but there it was at that moment on the wall, registering 100 degrees above zero. He didn't suppose that a difference of twenty or twenty-five degrees in either heat or cold made any great difference to any member, but such a wide margin as had been recorded, was piling it on rather thick. He recommended that it be cast aside, and that Bro. Kelly be notified to remoe it within thirty days.

THE CLOSE.

The president them motioned to the janitor to turn out the lights, and said—

"Gentlemen, it is now the bour to disrupt to our homes. Pass out calmly and without malice aforethought, and the person who knocks my hat of its peg will be made to wish he had gone down by way of the alley window.

FAITHFUL WOMEN SETS LOVER FREE.

Mary Board's Enduring Devotion Releases Wm. Redfield From Insane Asylum.

The faithful devotion of Mary W. Board, of Methuen, N.J., will be rewarded to-day, when her sweetheart of childhood and early womanhood, William Redfield, will be released from the insane asylum at Ward's Island, New York.

He has been there for fourteen years, with the consent of his late father, and of his sisters, who are still alive. He has been denied opportunity to prove that he was a sane man. Property left him by his grand mother, and afterwards by his father, has been kept for him. One of the first things Redfield intends to do, he says, is to begin legal proceedings to recover his property. Then, after long years of waiting, he and Mary will be married and go to South Dakota to run a ranch and restore Redfield's broken health.

An interesting story of their life is told. William Redfield and Mary Board lived next door to each other in Metuchen. As children they were sweethearts. William grew to manhood became a member of the Sevventh Regiment in New York and lived a liberal life. It almost ruined him.

With a portion of a bequest left him by his grandmother he went to the Black Hills and invested in mining. He fell into evil ways in camp life and made a failure. He came back to New York, opened a hotel, lost more money and was finally placed in a sanitarium on Long Island. He broke away from there, went on a prolonged spree in New York city and landed in the alcoholic ward of Bellevue Hospital. From there he was sent to Ward's Island, where he has remained ever since.

Meanwhile Mary had become interested in mining speculation herself and had made a success of it. It was while getting up a company for the Klondike that the newspapers in New York gave space to her bold plans. Singularly enough, William saw one of the articles in the asylum and wrote to his old sweetheart. She promptly set to work to get him out and has worked at it for two years. The Medico-Legal Society of New York became interested in the case and assisted her. Redfield was twice brought into court under writs of habeas corpus and each time was sent back to prison. The third time a committee of alienists was appointed to examine him. They have reported that Redfield is now sane and they do not anticipate a return of his malady. He will be a free man to-day, by order of the court

Tumult in Dublin.

Dublin, Dec. 12.—The Lord Mayor of Dublin, Daniel Tallon, presided at a meeting of the corporation yesterday, called to protest against the Transvaal war. The clerk declared that there was no quorum, but the Lord Mayor insisted on making a statement, in which he declared that the war was "wanton and unprovoked aggression, undertaken by Mr. Chamberlain and capitalists against a handful of farmers." He further declared that America was opposed to this iniquitous war."

In the meantime the members present shouted "No quorum!" and "Order!" and the tumult in the galleries drowned all the speeches. Finally the Lord Mayor left the chair, with the galleries cheering for President Kruger. No attempt was made to adopt the previously-prepared resolution against the war.

BEE BUZZES.

Beeswax is dark because of the impurities mixed with it.

All excess of drone comb should be removed from the hive.

Bees start to work earlier if the hives face the south or east.

It is essential during hot weather that the hives be well ventilated.

Avoid blowing your breath among the bees while handling the comb.

Dirt and filth accumulating on the bottom boards make a propagating place for the moths.

Bees reared in the spring and summer are shorter lived than those reared later in the season.

The swarming season usually begins about 10 or 20 days after white clover comes into bloom.

Bees will enter a cool hive much more readily than one which had been baked in the hot sun all day.

Honey properly kept will improve with age. The older it is the better it will be, but it must be kept dry.

All bees should be examined now and the hives thoroughly cleaned. No trash of any kind should be left on the bottom boards.—St. Louis Republic.

Proud of Him.

When he was 50, he returned to his native town "just to see how the old place looked." He found it unchanged. The old store, where as a lad he had clerked it and sold calico and groceries to the old farmers, was just the same. He contrasted the sleepy old place with himself and felt a glow of satisfaction when he thought how much those 30 years had done for him. "They ought to be proud of me," he said to himself.

Presently he met one of the old inhabitants.

"Waal, I declare, is it really you, Hank?" said the old man incredulously. "We've heard you've been prospering fust rate since you went west. They've made you a railroad president or suthin of the sort, ain't they? I heerd so, but I couldn't believe it. It's really true, is it? Waal, all I've got to say is they must be purty hard up fer railroad presidents out there."

He took the next train for the west.—

THE POULTRY YARD.

Pea fowls are small bodied birds, and it will not pay to raise them for their flesh.

Do not hatch bantams too early. Small size is desirable. Hatching in August will give the best results.

Lack of shade in hot weather and too much exposure in the sun are often prolific causes of disease.

Clean earth is a first class disinfectant and purifier. As long as it is dry it can rarely be used to excess.

Until your experience and accommodations warrant confine yourself to one or two well known varieties.

THE BOXER'S FINISH.

ONE BOUT THAT SETTLED HIS PUGILISTIC AMBITION

He Didn't Know the Man He Ran Up Against Until He Came Back to Consciousness, After Having Seen a Large Display of Stars.

"When I was much younger," said the portly government official, "I was a husky young fellow, chesty and sassy about my pugilistic ability. I got the boxing bee in my bonnet and practiced hard with the gloves every night. I had been sparring with fellows in my gymnasium for about six months and picking up what I thought was a whole lot of cleverness, when I moved to a boarding house on Pierrepont street, in Brooklyn. I had a room on the top floor of this boarding house. The top floor's rooms were all occupied by young fellows like myself—law and medical students, newspaper chaps and that sort. It was rather a scapegrace lot, and I got acquainted with most of them immediately. I had a lot of athletic gear along with me—clubs, dumbbells, weight pulling machines and stuff—and from the jump I gave these floor mates of mine to understand that I was some considerable pumpkins as an athlete. When I showed 'em my boxing gloves, I was particular to dwell upon the fact that boxing was my one particular graft, and I think I modestly threw the hint out that I'd never yet met a man of my weight that could put the gloves on with me in the amateur class. For a couple of nights running I let them look at me in the act of punching a bag I had suspended from the ceiling of my room, and they all agreed, I think, that I'd be rather an unsafe proposition to get addled up with in a scrap.

"One of the occupants of that top floor was away when I struck the house, and he didn't return until I had been in the house for about a week. When he got back, the other fellows introduced me to him. I didn't catch his name at the time, but he didn't strike me as being a very cheerful chap, and I rather ignored him. Well, all got to talking on my favorite subject, sparring, after awhile, and I invited any of the fellows present to put on the gloves for a little 'go' with me.

"'I won't hurt you, you know,' said I. 'I'll just tap you lightly, and you can hit me as hard as you want. It's raining, and I don't want to go to the gym tonight, and I wish one of you ducks 'ud just slip 'em on with me.'

"I didn't quite understand what they all meant when they exchanged glances and pushed forward the man who had been away since my advent in the house and whom I had just met.

"'Go on and put 'em on with him,' they urged this man. 'He won't hurt you. You've had the gloves on once or twice, anyhow, while none of the rest of us knows anything about boxing. Go ahead and give him a little exercise.'

"'All right,' said this man rather reluctantly. He looked just like an ordinary man with his coat on, and I felt that he would be dead easy as a subject upon whom to practice and to show the other fellows what I knew about the fine points of the game. When he returned from his room, however, stripped to his trousers and his gauze undershirt, I couldn't help but look at the chap. For a man of ordinary size he had the hugest chest I had ever seen, and his arms and shoulders were simply knotted and twisted with muscles. He was as quiet spoken a duck as ever I saw, though, and he didn't look to be lively on his feet, so we went at it.

"Well, say that was a one man bout, and the other fellow was the one man. There was nothing to it but him. From the very minute that we squared off I could see by the way he handled his dukes that the boxing game was his'n and that I was like six lead nickels in comparison with him. He just fooled with me at first—rapped me here and there at will, adding insult to injury by quietly announcing where he was going to jolt me next—and I never got in a lick or a dab on him. I tried my dernedest when I saw I was totally outclassed to get in just one belt at him somewhere or other, but it was no go. He had a lightning guard for every essay I made to crack him one, and after about five minutes I was puffing like a tree toad and still taking whacks all over my hide, while he was as cool as a cucumber.

"'You're pretty good,' I gasped when we took a momentary rest. 'You've been at this game often, haven't you?'

"'I've had 'em on a few times,' he replied quietly. 'Let's have another short go.'

"Then we went at it again. He fiddled around for a minute, and then he caught me one with his left fist right under the chin. I went sailing up into the air—I saw enough stars to have gone sailing right up among 'em—and I was out when I came down—good and out, as clean a case of knocked out boxer as ever happened in a prize ring. It was fully ten minutes before I came to, and when I did the other fellows were all fanning me and rubbing my head with ammonia and wondering if I was a sure enough dead 'un. I was all right after I got my head under the cold water spigot, and then one of the fellows took me into the center of the gang and said to me:

"'Maybe you didn't quite catch the name of the man you boxed with when you were introduced to him, hey?'

"'No, I didn't,' said I. 'Who is he—John L. Sullivan?'

"'Not exactly. Mr. Ford, step up and shake hands again. This,' went on the young fellow doing the introducing addressing me, 'is Malcolm W. Ford, the champion all around athlete of America. He has held that title for three years, earning it each year in competition with the best men in the whole country in athletic games. He holds the record for the running broad jump, the standing high jump, the pole vault, hammer throwing, shot putting, and he's among the best in the world as a 100 yard sprinter. He's all right.'

"'Yes,' said I. 'I think he is—even if he is a party to this awful job on me,' and we shook hands. When the gang saw I was game enough to take my roasting good naturedly, they let up on me. But my pugilistic ambition wilted absolutely from that night."

THE DOCTOR'S MISTAKE.

The doctor made a mistake in the number and called at the wrong house. No woman calls a doctor after she is once acquainted with the remedial value of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in all diseases and drains common to the sex. Without humiliating questions or local examinations the cure is accomplished by the use of the "Favorite Prescription" supplemented by free medical advice if needed. This medicine is harmless in any condition of the system and can be taken without the slightest fear of bad consequences. It contains no whisky or alcohol. There is not an iota of anything narcotic in it. The relief it gives is permanent. In this it differs from many preparations which give temporary relief only by deadening the sense of feeling with narcotics, and the dangerous stimulants they contain create an appetite for strong drink. When a dealer offers a substitute for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, remember these facts.

When their diseases are deep-seated and of long standing, women will find it to their interest to write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., who has had wonderful success in curing diseases of women. He gives advice free, and invites all to write him. Prompt, careful and personal attention is paid to each letter, and the fullest advice is always given.

"After five months of great suffering I write this for the benefit of other sufferers from the same affliction," says Mrs. H. A. Alsbrook, of Austin, Lonoke Co., Ark. "I doctored with our family physician without any good results, so my husband urged me to try Dr. Pierce's medicines which I did, with wonderful results. I am completely cured. I took four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, four of his 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two vials of his 'Pleasant Pellets'."

An Unprofitable Bone.

Last summer a friend presented us with a tortoise. I do not know whether our dog had heard of turtle soup or whether he regarded the creature as a new kind of bone that walked about; at any rate, he determined to eat it.

Whenever the tortoise started out on a constitutional down the garden path Gyp arrested it and carried it into his kennel, where he gnawed at the impenetrable armor till his jaws ached.

The calm and philosophical manner in which the tortoise resumed its interrupted promenade irritated the dog exceedingly, but no failure discouraged him. Whenever we reminded him of the tortoise, he would go in search of it all round the garden, peering into every crevice, till eventually the creature was found, and then fresh but futile attempts were made to extract the meaty portions from the shell.—

MILLBROOK.

Batch of Breezy Notes From Peterborough's Southern Suburb.

The inspector for their respective insurance companies concerned in the disastrous fire on Thursday morning inspected the scene Friday, and settled the claims in a very satisfactory manner. They disposed of the grain to Mr. G. H. Waddel, Toronto, who has since been busily engaged in disposing of the same to the farmers, and also shipping a large quantity to Toronto, where a ready market awaits its arrival. Mr. Waddel made an excellent investment, as rumor states he made over $700 on the speculation. We would like to know where our speculators were, especially Mr. W. Lang, who has been known to see a nickel through the eye of a needle, but this time proved tobe like alien looking for another's nest to lay in.

Miss M. Winslow, Port Hope, returned home Saturday, after a short visit with her uncle, Mr. O. H. Winslow.

Mr and Mrs. J. C. Kells went up to Toronto, Monday, for a short visit.

Mrs. Wm. Carveth, left Monday to visit friends in Peterborough.

Mr. H. Duncan, of College of Pharmacy, Toronto, returned home Monday to spend his holidays. He was welcomed back by his many friends.

We would be greatly gratified as well as enlightened if Lily B. would make us acquainted with the select wares that Santa Claus intends leaving in A. I's stocking after she takes her trip to our northern suburb.

Mr. Thos. Bradley went up to Omemee, Tuesday, to visit friends.

Mr. Jas. Kerr returned home Tuesday, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. J. Kerr, after spending a pleasant visit with friends at Lansdowne.

Miss M. Berkley, of Belleville, left Tuesday to spend her holidays under the parental roof. Albert C. was so badly grived and hypotnized by the shock that he only took his eyes off the semaphore lamp in direction of Port Hope, when the chimes of the town bell announced the hour of seven. Wednesday morning.

We noticed Miss Ethel Fisher of Fraserville, in town Tuesday.

Dr. H. A. Turner went up to Peterborough on a business trip Tuesday.

We are very sorry to note the illness of Mrs. J. McManus, but hope for a speedy recovery.

UNITED SONS OF REST.

The noble order of the United Sons of Rest held one of the most successful meetings Tuesday evening in their magnificent hall, ever chronicled since it was organized in the year 537 B.A. After the echo of the aeolian voice of John Hutchinson had died away, announcing that the meeting was about to open for the transaction of general business, he having been substituted at a previous meeting in place of Jas. Handley, as timekeeper, who had given such poor satisfaction during the past, as his time piece must have either been guided by the gulf stream or set by a cablegram from the chromenter of Aguinaldo in the Phillipines, who had taken the same during an eclipse. He would make known the meeting nights in future by three of his noted brief speeches from the dome of the renowned hall. When all were comfortably seated and the hall was filled with the enormous weight of ten million over the capacity with society's prominent members, among whom we noticed Messrs. R. R. Ruddy, T. B. Collins, John Beatty, W. T. Wood, J. C. Kells, A Raper, Geo. Needler, H. Johnston, H. Hunter, H. A. Turner, J. A. Vance and numerous others.

His Honour arose, and after lighting the fuse attached to a Lyddite shell, and singing the opening ode, declared the meeting open for the transaction of business concerning the welfare of the society, and ordered that the outside guard, John Bullied, fill his office, at once, and also that Bro. Gentleman A. Irwin accompany him and see that the Minister of War was prepared for any emergency. He then order the Secretary, Think-twice-before-you-speak Geo. Leach, to read the minutes of the last meeting, and any communications or reports from sick members, which he cleverly did, amid the applause of the enthusiastic members.

The first communication read was from Bro. H. Carruthers, re. lighting the hall with electricity, which he claimed would add greatly in showing the fine effect of the German bevel plate mirror and Parisian oil paintings, and that he would supply 16 arc lamps for half the usual fee and furnish 100 per cent. better light than they had at present.

When His Honour asked what was to be done with the communication, Economical A. Armstrong jumped to the floor in great haste and stated he saw no necessity to light the hall with electricity, as he was of the opinion that if new blinds were bought of Bro. W. Gillott, and Janitor Quickstep Sloan authorized to put the blinds up every morning and down every night, there would be enough sunlight come in during the day for a brilliant light at night.

Frugal Wm. Hunter seconded Economical Armstrong's motion, but made the amendment that Bro. Geo. Carveth furnish the paper required for blinds, and that H. Hewson and A. Craig be appointed a committee to look after the same.

R. Mitchell then moved that if the members would vote him a small sum of a pint a foot he would strike gas before the next meeting night.

Bro. J. A. Vance then moved that the communications be left on the table till the next meeting night, which was seconded by A. Raper.

The other communications being from subordinate bodies were also voted to be left on the table for further consideration.

The next order of business was "Good and Welfare."

KEENE.

Never since the Lime Juice Club was organized in Keene was the Hall of Wisdom so crowded as on Saturday night last. Not only were all the members present, but also a number of visitors, amongst whom were Doctor Carson and his troop of performers from the state of Kentucky. The Keene correspondent was present and will now give you as truthful and concise a statement of the business transacted as possible.

At precisely 7 o'clock the Honourable President sounded the gavel and appeared to be very nervous and excited. On being questioned by an anxious brother if he felt unwell, he replied that he felt very well physically, but rather rattled mentally. It was noticed that the Kentucky man, as he removed his storepipe hat, concealed a baton and revolver inside of it. "Now brethren, it is altogether contrary to my disposition to act discourteous to any person, especially to a stranger, but really under the present circumstances I must confess that I would feel relieved if some courageous brother would put that Kentucky man out of our hall."

Wolf Howson called out—"I have a bone to pick with that gent, and if he disturbs the harmony of this meeting in any way whatsoever I will attend to his case."

Minney Whale now asked Root Laing to render the opening ode on his mouth organ. Root commenced to play, and before he finished the doe every mother's son in the hall was up in the halldancing with the exception of Prussian Kane, who unfortunately had a very sore foot. After the brethren got tired dancing, Minney Whale declared the meeting open for business.

Doctor Carson then arose and in a very smooth way tried to convince the brethren that they required a bottle of Teutonia to cleanse and purify their blood.

Wolf Howson called out—"We Keenites don't require your medicine, as we are noted for being the possessors of pure blood."

"Hear! Hear!" was shouted by Hosier Roach and Fighting Archy. Wolf then told the Kentucky man to pack up his kit of medicine and make himself scarce or it would be worse for him. The medicine's man temperature rose to 110, and he declared that no person in the hall was able to put him out, he at the same time reached for his stove pipe hat. Wolf took in the situation at a glance and in less time than you can think landed the Kentucky man and his medicine out side of the hall wrong side up without care. Great applause then prevailed throughout the hall.

Shut Taylor then rose and said that he just would like to know how young McIntyre knew how many beans were in the bottle.

Poney Moore called out, "Shut, you are too fresh and curious for anything, so just take your seat!"

He sat down at once but gave Poney a look which means something.

Bruin Speirs and Buttermilk Humphries then got wrangling over a dog fight which took place in Lang fifty years ago. The President became annoyed and for revenge threw his walking stick at them, missing them but striking Flat Roach on the ear. Flat made a charge at Minney Whale but in his hurry fell over Positive Legget and knocked two teeth out. Fighting Archy appeared on the scene and order was immediately restored. The Honourable President then asked Lauchey Quinn and Cautious Miller to sing the closing ode. They rendered the ode in first class style. The meeting was then declared closed until next time.

Rates Were Not Approved.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—W. A. D. Lees, a local barrister, brought suit against the Ottawa and New York Railway for refund of fares collected from him. These fares, Mr. Lees described in his statement of claim as "illegal and unauthorized," and as "unjust extortion."

Mr. Lees claims that the charges were illegal were based on section 277 of the Railway act, which specifically states that no by-law of a company fixing tolls or rates shall be valid until after it is approved by the Governor-in-Council, and notice published for at least two weeks in the Canada Gazette. This regulation, it seems, was not complied with.

Judge Musgrove took the case from the jury, with the consent of both parties to the action, and His Honor entered judgment against the company for $198.20, with a stay of judgment to allow an appeal to be entered.

Redskin Gets a Life.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—An Order-in-Council has been passed and approved by Lord Minto, commuting the death sentence, passed on Paul Sabourin, an Indian, for the shooting of his sister-in-law, to imprisonment for life. Sabourin, who is in Edmonton jail, where he was tried and convicted, was sentenced to be hanged on the 22nd inst. The prisoner had no motive for committing the deed and it was plain that he was not in his right mind when he did so. Trial judge recommended clemency, and a lengthy petition signed by Bishop Grandin and Bishop Lacombe, in favor of commutation, was forwarded to the Governor-General.

FENELON FALLS MYSTERY.

Suspected Drowning of a Citizen Missing for a Week The Lock's Being Searched.

Lindsay Post—Andrew Varcoe, a Fenelon Falls carpenter, has been missing since a week ago to-day, and it is now believed by all that he perished in the river. On Monday evening, Dec. 4th, he visited Sandford's factory, where he was employed, and when he left stated that he was going home, but he never reached there. Next morning his wife and family went about the village in search of him, but no one had seen him after he left the factory.

During the next few days enquiries were set on foot at outside points, but without result. The first trace was found on Sunday, when a couple of citizens were walking along the neck of land projecting into the river above the factory, between the canal channel and the wide raceway leading to the dam. There they found a hat which was identified as the one worn by Varcoe on the night of his disappearance, and the discovery left no doubt as to the fate of the unfortunate man, who must have lost his way in the darkness and fallen into the river.

This morning Mr. F. K. Begbie, superintendent of the waterworks, sent Engineer Hammond to the Falls with the Company's diving suit and outfit, the loan of which had been requested by the friends of the missing man. A local diver has volunteered to search the bottom of the river, with what success may be learned to-morrow.

FLIGHT FROM TRANSVAAL

Britisher Relates How He and Fellow Countrymen Were Persecuted and Insulted When Fleeing From Boer Republic at Outbreak of War.

A Londoner writing from Pietermaritzburg to his mother under date of August 6th, gives the following interesting account of his escape from the Transvaal just before the war, and tells of the hardships endured by Englishmen, who accompanied him. The letter has kindly been furnished to the Times.

Pietermaritzburg, Oct. 6—Dear mother. Thank God we are both here alive and well in spite of those Boers; the brutes—the perfect devils. There was a time when I hoped for peace, now I pray that nothing will prevent war. And British ministers still parley with them—still send them diplomatic despatches instead of canan and will not learn that they are dealing with people but one degree removed from savages. If we do not thrash them this time, England may as well clear out of South Africa for Englishmen will blush to acknowledge their nationality, they still taunt us with being afraid to fight them . . . . . That evening I made arrangements for joining Beckett's ambulance and we were given provincial permits. On Saturday I heard that in spite of previous promises the government was going to refuse permits to Englishmen, or only to grant them on impossible conditions. Then the commandant of Pretoria wired a friend of mine that permit or no permit it would be best for Englishmen to clear out.

Such is the good faith of the Boers and such is the damnable stupidity of Little Englanders, born of ignorance of South Africa that they will parley with them. In addition to this and repeated writing and wiring to Bloemfontein up to 12.30 when the office closed, the staff here received no assurance from the Free State government as to their position in case of war; thereupon eight or ten handed in their resignation and cleared out of the country. This was wired to Bloemfontein by the clearing office. About 2 o'clock however, a circular arrived stating among other things that we should not be required to take up arms against our country, etc., but, seeing that this was dated from the Free State government office at Bloemfontein, what use was it to us at Pretoria in Transvaal territory, unless endorsed by the state secretary of the Transvaal.

Would Not Be Caught.

Well, up to late that evening it had not been done, and as martial law was expected to be proclaimed in the morning. I could see they meant to catch us like rats in a trap, and I could not trustthe dogs. I also received further information late on Saturday night convincing me it was not safe to stay. Abuot 6 o'clock on Saturday, the clearing office received a telegram from the Free State government that it was astonished at some of the staff leaving withour proper notice after the assurances given in the circular, also that names and descriptions of those who had left, also the borders to which they were traveling, were to be wired. That was enough for me. So at daybreak on Sunday I was up and packed my portmanteau, put one or two sandwitches in my volunteer haversack, and nearly a bottle of whisky with a little water in my waterbottle, shaved off my moustache to disguise myself and cleared, leaving no word as to where I had gone.

We left Pretoria and I managed to get a seat on a form in a sort of horse box, in company with a pal of mine. At Elandsfontein we had to change, and when the train came in it consisted of about twenty open coal trucks. After a great deal of fighting we managed to squeeze into one. Our freight then consisted of nearly 2,000 souls of which about 300 were white people, including women and children.

Briefly, I spent two days and two nights in an open coal truck. The first afternoon we had a hail storm, the first night a thunderstorm till nearly daybreak. The second day was burning hot and that night we had a railway accident, smashing up four trucks which we ran into. We had four hours delay at Heidelberg, nine hours at Platrand and seven at Paarde Kop. After my sandwiches were exhausted, for Sunday breakfast, I lived on dry bread and rainwater for two days and tw onights.

The Boers closed every store and refreshment room along the line to us, and refused to allwo anything to be sold to us.

Death and Insanity.

At some stations they made the Kaffirs fill up the taps of the water cisterns with earth and mud so that we could not quench our thirst, after being cooped in the sun for hours. My clothes were soaked through and dried on me twice. The first night I laid down on the floor of the truck which was thick with coal dust, dirt and rainwater and slept for an hour or so from sheer exhaustion. One little child died on the way from starvation and exposure. The Boers would not allow so much as a tin of milk to be sold to the mother who buried her child at a roadside station. One man went insane and many a man, woman and child got their death warrants in those two days. All this time commando trains were passing us filled with burghers, armed to the teeth, and all in first class carriages. At every siding they insulted us us all they knew, the cowards, and if anyone said anything you would see two or three take down their rifles and slip in a cartridge. I myself heard one commandant say in Dutch, "let all the dammed devils starve." All this, too, after government assurances that "British subjects would be given every facility to leave the country peaceably," or if they stayed "ample protection would be afforded."

Are these the sort of people for English men and women to live amongst as an inferior race with no chance to redress their wrongs of themselves but to serve loyally under ?

Is this a free republic ? When, when, in God's name, will England rouse herself to the fact that she is not treating with a civilized race or a responsible government who know what an honorable promise is ? When will English ministers listen to the advice of those who live out here and refuse to take notice of the ravings of some newspaper men from their very safe seat in a Fleet street office, or the lies of politicians who propagate pro-Boer sympathies to suit their own unscrupulous ends ?

But to go back. After leaving Elandsfontein we reached Heidelberg about 1 p.m., where we put in a siding to allow Boer commando trains to pass. We went to the station hotel, at which they were only allowed to sell us spirits, no food; then for the first time in my life I be came a thief. I stole a loaf of bread from a private room I passed through on my way from the bar. About 8 o'clock we started again and at dusk a thunderstorm came on lasting early till dawn. At 8 o'clock on Monday we arrived at Platrand. It was then baking hot, no food to be obtained from the station hotel, only rain-water from the tanks. Here we were put in a siding to allow a commando to pass; then in about three-quarters of an up train appeared. In the meantime, our fellows themselves pumped the engine tank full and steam was up, when another commando train appeared. Our engine was taken and we were put on a siding again.

This went on all day; we could easily have gone on much earlier but our belief was that they did not want us to pass through Zandspruit in daylight and so see the Boer camp.

About 4 o'clock things were looking serious, as many of the Boers told us in passing that martial law has been proclaimed that morning, and our's was the last train that had left. We had good reason to believe that they never intended us to leave, but to hold our women and children as hostages, take all the men's money and commander them, and all this time we were only 42 miles from the border. The lines had been in government hands since Saturday, and the station master could not do what he liked. At our urgent request he wired up the line to know if we might go on and he received a reply in three-quarters of an hour. When the reply came we were allowed to start and we were just off when yet another commando train came up behind, but it was only a short one, and it was arranged to couple it with ours and go on with both engines. But being a single line we had to wait for the up train, this soon appeared, but it takes 22 minutes to reach the station after you first see it in the distance.

It was a most exciting time, would the uptrain pass us before another commando train appeared—if it did not we should be put aside again and the commando train go in front of us. We waited and watched and at last no down train having arrived we were off. I must say the stationmaster here, a Hollander, did all he could for us and from one of the commando trains they sent us out a few loaves of bread for the women and children. This is the only bright spot in the whole business.

A Collision.

Just after we were running into Paarde Kop station, a heavy train with two engines, when all of a sudden we heard a fearful bang, most of us were thrown down and then a sudden stop. I knew it must be a collision. We had run into an empty train and completely smashed up the last four trucks, our engines were both disabled, but no injury done to anyone. The Kaffirs were put to work to clear the line; two more engines were wired for, and we started again about 1 a.m. We passed the main Boer camp at Zandspruit when it was yet dark, so we did not see much. I dozed for a couple of hours or so.

Just after daybreak we reached the border station Volksrust, where I made myself scarce you may imagine, but none molested me. When at length we started to cross the border it was an extraordinary sight not easily to be forgotten. Hundreds of men, women and children standing up in open trucks looking and watching for the border posts, all of a sudden they appeared and three men unfurled Union Jacks, where they had kept carefully concealed then went up such a cheer,—we were over the border.

At Charlestown, a comfortable Natal railway train was awaiting for us and we said good-bye to our coal trucks. But there was no food to be had, for the town was deserted and looted. At Newcastle, which we reached soon after, we were treated splendidly. A splendid breakfast was ready, consisting of everything you could want, all ready served and laid out in the refreshment room. The station master said the train would not start till every one had fed and fed well too. The women and children went in first and as they finished we were let in, by turns. Everybody was helping to feed us to the utmost, every spot was laid out with food, the station master's office was used for serving tea and coffee. The lavatory was all ready with towels, etc., for us to have a good wash and the fire-buckets even were filled and soap and towels ready also. But our faces were all very sore and burnt so we went carefully about our washing. Every praise and thanks are due to the station officials at Newcastle, especially when you take into consideration that they did not know we were coming until they got a wire from Charlestown.

We wanted to wire from some of the Transvaal stations, but the devils would not let us; however, they did not do us out of our breakfast. From here we had a comfortable journey down, our chief enjoyment being shaking hands with all the British troops we passed on the way. Maritzburg we reached at midnight on Tuesday thus taking three days and two nights to do 400 miles.

COPPER MINING STOCKS

For several months shrewd investors have been putting their money into the shares of Copper Mines. This is true not only of men with large amounts of money at their disposal but also applies to those who have made a study of investments with a view to securing a large return for small investments. As high as THREE AND FOUR HUNDRED PER CENT. has to our knowledge already been realized on some of these investments. Americans were the first to make a specialty of Copper Stocks. They knew what they were doing, for the reason is not far to seek. Every Copper Mine in the world is at present taxed to its utmost limit to meet the growing demand for copper for electrical purposes. The reserve stores of copper are being depleted until it pays no longer to use copper in some eastern countries as a coin. Copper has gone up in price from 9c to 18 cents. The supply of Copper from the mines of the world to-day is only about 80 per cent. of the consumption. That is the reason why financiers have their engineers searching the four quarters of the globe for Copper Mines, and that is the reason the shares in promising copper companies are so eagerly picked up by investors.

If you have any money to invest we would ask you to consider the shares of the SUPERIOR GOLD & COPPER COMPANY, LIMITED. This Company owns and operates some valuable native copper properties. We are in a position to offer you a special opportunity in this stock which as an investment should give you a profit of at least 100 per cent in six months. Send for prospectus and particulars.

Occasionally we have an opportunity of giving our clients a special offer on some stocks, and we have this opportunity now. If you are interested write to us at once. These shares are sold in large or small blocks to suit buyers.

We deal in all legitimate mining shares on commission. If you want to buy or sell write us.

HOW THE PARTIES STAND.

At the last division on August 12 the government will have a majority of six, with one Liberal absent, the late Mr. Craig, of East Wellington, whose seat was subsequently taken by Hon. J. M. Gibson, making the majority seven. Browder, Macdiarmid and Caldwell voted on that division, but Monteith (Con.) has succeeded Moscrip (Lib.) so that the election on Tuesday makes no change. There are three by-elections to be held yet, North Waterloo, West Huron (Liberal), and East Middlesex (Conservative). If the Conservatives should carry these three elections, as West Huron and North Waterloo are close constituencies, the government majority will be reduced to five. Should the Liberals win, they will have ten of a majority by which to carry on the affairs of the country during the remainder of the Parliamentary term.

MR. LATCHFORD'S SUCCESS.

The success of Mr. Preston in South Brant over his very popular opponent may be in a measure ascribed to Hon. Mr. Latchford, who has been in the constituency during the campaign, working among the Roman Catholics of whom there are a large number, and whose votes the Conservatives confidently expected to secure. But it seems that Mr. Latchford has been more successful than Mr. Foy, and has demonstrated the fact that Mr. Ross has secured a pretty strong man in his Minister of Public Works.

They Want the Trent Valley Canal

The citizens of Port Hope are just waking up to the fact that the completion of the Trent Valley Canal is an assured thing, and that they will receive no direct benefit from it. They think that the canal should enter Lake Ontario at Port Hope instead of at Trenton.

It is said that this route is 44 miles shorter than the Trenton route, and a very much cheaper one. A writer in the Guide, in speaking on this subject says—"We have an excellent harbor capable of accomodating the largest vessels and any number of them—whereas Trenton harbor is said to have only ten feet of water and a rock bottom, and therefore cannot offer the same advantages. I understand that our Board of Trade has drawn the attention of the Minister of Canals to the superior advantages of the Port Hope route, and Mr. Blair expressed surprise at the facts laid before him, and promised to lay them before his colleagues."

This may all be true, but we fear our Port Hope friends are too late in bringing in their case. Trenton is nearer the seaboard than Port Hope, and this route practically does away with lake risks, as it is only a few hours sail to the St. Lawrence river. This has a very important bearing on the case.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. Boundaries of the 20th Century.

To the Editor of the Times,—Sir—Please correct your error in deciding that the 20th century will not begin until the first day of January, 1901. The 20th century begins January 1, 1900. As per illustration, 1 to 99th year, inclusive, is the first century—or what?

E. D. R.

Our friend's calculations remind us of the taking old problem of putting eleven men into ten beds: it is based upon the same juggle. He says that "1 and 99 inclusive was the first century—or what? The answer is that it was not the first century, but the first 99 years. Seeing the figures before him, he added the 1 to the 99, making 100; but the 1 was included in the 99.

We are now in the 99th year of the 19th century. One more, that is the 100th year, which will figure in the almanacs as the year 1900, must be completed before the 19th century is over and the 20th century begins.

Neither Bull Nor Bears.

"What's the matter old man?"
"Been speculating in stocks?"
"Were you a bull or a bear?"
"Nope! Just plain ass."

Market Fees

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—About twenty years ago the farmers of Ontario asked for free markets. Many township and county councils sent petitions to the Ontarion Legislature.

In 1882 the Legislature passed an act which limited the powers of town and cities in taxing farm produce.

Grains, seeds, wool, lumber, lath, shingles, cordwood, dressed hogs, cheese, hay, straw and other fodder were exempted from market fee taxes.

Butter, eggs and poultry can only be taxe where a convenient and fit sheltered place for their sale is provided.

In 1890 the Central Farmers' Institute recommended that beef and mutton by the quarter, vegetables, roots and fruits be added to butter, eggs and poultry.

Until now no attention has been paid to this request.

An equitable rent for shelter provided has not been objected to. Fees for services rendered, as in weighing or measuring, are quite proper. When, however, farmers are forced to pay for expensive city buildings on the plea that they in common with city people at times use a certain portion of them, I think the plea is very weak. When they are called upon to pay for buildings for the privilege of receiving the winds that blow around their corners, the joke is rather grim.

When, as is often the case, farmers pay their fees year after year, without the satisfaction of seeing any market building at all, the case is harder yet.

Cities and towns have collected thousands of dollars from farmers and have used those thousands to lighten their local taxes.

When ruralists want municipal improvements, ruralists pay for them. That is the honest way. If the Ontario Legislature is determined to tax truck farmers on the city markets, it should at least require the cities to expend the resultant funds upon those markets in such a way as to benefit those farmers. In doing so they would at the same time equally benefit their own citizens who use the market. Let us remember that townsmen establish, own and control markets in their own interest. They are cute enough to make others pay for them.

When farmers have paid for a market building, they do not own a shingle or brick in it.

Occasionally cities and towns have erected expensive public buildings with public halls and public offices, and they are willing to have the farmers pay for them. They, through market fees, have forced farmers to do this in the past.

It is time for a change.

As a rule public streets with their sidewalks, public squares and parks are free to all comers. Why are farmers concerned in market places and made to pay a fee? In private business spaces for customers are provided.

Cannot towns and cities provide free standing room for those who bring food supplies and who in turn purchase their own supplies in the town?

Many towns and cities have, voluntarily abolished market fees, much to the advantage of all except the market clerks, and it would pay Peterborough to do the same.

If market fees are the proper thing why all those exemptions? If the man with a few turnips is taxed, why do they exempt the man with a fifty dollar load of dressed hogs?

Dressed hogs have too much influence. Shall all farm produce be taxed, or shall all farm produce be made free?

Shall we have discrimination or shall we have freedom?

A SMITH FARMER.

Knew What He Wanted.

Canvasser—I have here a work——

Master of the House—I can't read.

Canvasser—But your children——

Canvasser—Well, you want something to throw at the cat.

He took the book.

Wedding Stationery.

We have just received direct from New York a large stock of Crane's wedding stationery. Invitations printed to order in the latest styles. Also, wedding cake boxes of latest designs. The Times job rooms make a specialty of printing at home cards—the very best and nobbiest patterns.

Properly Diagnosed.

Stranger—Doctor, I ache all over.

Doctor—Malarial probably.

Stranger—And my head is all stuffed up, and I have a tearing cough.

Doctor—A little cold along with it, I see. Take—

Stranger—And I just feel as if this blankety-blank world was a rip roaring old fraud, and I'd like to throw that miserable old grinning moon at the sun and stuff all the stars down somebody's throat.

Doctor—By jove! You've got the grip.

Woes of Millionaires.

An English millionaire has just been adjudged incapable of looking after his property. He imagines himself the Prince of Wales.

Some years ago a rich merchant took the idea that he was penniless. His sons, to stop his worrying, assured him they had rescued his business and was to continue it. They offered him a clerkship at a small salary in his own office. He took it and kept at work nearly 20 years. When he died, he left nearly $15,000,000.

Two English millionaires were noted for their parsimony. One picked up and smoked cigar ends. The other, after fine receptions in his house, would go around carefully collecting candle ends to be used again. Neither of these men was insane. Both were shrewd in business.

Another millionaire imagined for a considerable time that he was a squirrel, and would eat nothing but nuts.

Another was too parsimonious even to buy himself a warm overcoat. Some of his friends made him a present of one, and he promptly sold it at secondhand and pocketed the money.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Was Hanged Over Again.

G. W. Stevens, who traveled extensively in India, tells the following interesting story: A Pathan was being hanged, when the rope broke. The warder bade him go up on to the scaffold again, but he objected. "No," he said, "I was sentenced to be hanged, and hanged I've been."

"Not so, friend," argued the warder; "you were sentenced to be hanged until you were dead, and you're not dead."

It was a new view to the Pathan, and he turned to the superintendent. "Is that right, sahib?"

"Yes, that's right."

"Very well. I didn't understand," and he went composedly up the steps and was hanged again like a man.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

What He Really Owed.

"Doctor," said the grateful patient, seizing the physician's hand, "I shall never forget that to you I owe my life."

"You exaggerate," returned the doctor mildly. "You owe me only for 15 visits. That is the point which I hope you will not fail to remember."

All Roads Lead to the Dressmaker.

Mr. Hornbill—Do you know, darling, I could pick you out of a crowd of women just by your style!

Mrs. Hornbill—I don't wonder, and me with this same old dress for the last two seasons!

A Curious Old Ad.

A Boston paper has unearthed this curious old advertisement from the Boston Post Boy and Advertiser for March 16, 1767: "The Bell-Cart will go through Boston, before the End of next March, to Collect Rags for the Paper Mills at Milton, when all People that will encourage the Paper Manufactory may dispose of them; the best Price will be given. They are taken in at Mr. Caleb Davis's Shop, at the Fortification; Mr. Andrew Gillespie's, near Dr. Clark's; Mr. Andrace Randale's, near Phillips's Wharf; and Mr. John Boies's in Long Lane; Mr. Frothingham's in Charleston; Mr. Williams's in Marblehead; Mr. Ellson's in Salem; Mr. John Harris's in Newbury; Mr. Daniel Fowle's in Portsmouth; and at the Paper Mill in Milton.

"Rags are as Beauties, which concealed lie;
But when in Paper, how it charms the Eye;
Pray save Rags, new Beauties to discover,
For Paper truly, every one's a Lover;
By th' Pen and Press such Knowledge is displayed,
As wouldn't exist if Paper was not made.
Wisdom of Things, mysterious, divine,
Illustriously doth on Paper shine."

But They Weren't Civilized.

Traveling in southern India, one day I was taken into the country to see tapioca roots gathered and ground for use. The adults working in the grove, men and women, had each a rag around the loins, but the boys and girls, with their black, glossy skins, were free of all incumbrance.

Our guide explained to these people that we were from a country so far away and so different from theirs that the waters were sometimes made solid by the extreme cold and we could walk upon them; that sometimes it was so intensely cold that the rain was frozen into particles and lay on the earth so deep that people could not walk through it, and that three and four layers of heavy clothes had to be worn.

This happy people, as our guide told us, wondered why we staid there, why we did not come and enjoy life in their favored clime.—Andrew Carnegie in North American Review.

New York has established a state college of forestry. One of its labors will be to replant the tracts denuded of pine and other valuable conifers. It set out a large area this spring and is rearing 3,000,000 seedling pines for future use.—St. Louis Republic.

Briggs—Appearances, you know, are often deceptive

Griggs—Yes. A person can never tell just how much it is going to cost to keep them up.

After many remedies had been tried and failed, she began using the South American Nervine. HONEST WORDS

From California

ABOUT

Grape-Nuts

"It seems to me I would have starved but for Grape-Nuts. I have had stomach trouble for along time, and the last few moths been obliged to diet so carefully that I could use none of the starchy food, like bread, potatoes, beans, etc., but Grape-Nuts and Postum Cereal Coffee have helped me out.

"Our family buy Grape-Nuts a dozen boxes at a time. One never tires of them. I have never seen a food that equalled Grape-Nuts." Mrs. J. H. Cooper, Santa Ana, Calif. (Wife of the Pastor of the Congregational Church.) (People never tire of Grape-Nuts, if they don't eat too much at a time. Stick to a limit of three heaping teaspoons and you will look forward to a meal as a lover does to a tryst with his sweetheart.)

To Ask for Tenders.

A meeting of the Joint Committe was held this morning, there being present Warden Hawthorne, and Messrs. Anderson and Fitzgerald representing the County Council, and Aldermen Hall, Weir, Langford, and McWilliams from the town.

It was decided to invite tenders immediately for the construction of the new Mud Lake Bridge. Tenderers will be asked to give the total amount for which they will construct the entire bridge and also to give the separate amounts for which they will undertake to do the filling, constructing the floating portion, the piers and the swing.

The Glass Blowers.

The Glass Blowers are winners and their entertainment is a marvel in every way. As this week draws to a close the crowds attending the Libby Glass Blowers entertainments are increasing, and all are delighted with the marvellous exhibition of skill, and science displayed. The performance is certainly a marvel in every sense, and is instructive as well as highly entertaining. The admission has been placedd at 10 cents, so as to place the entertainment within the reach of all. The Glass Blowers will continue to give away presents to those attending the entertainment, will be open every afternoon and evening this week

A WARM RECEPTION.

He Arrived Home Too Soon and Did Not Make a Good Impression.

This resident of Alfred street came home at the end of one week instead of three, as he intended when he started on his business trip. He had his valise in his hand and rang the doorbell with a vim.

"Pity you couldn't bring a gong with you," snapped the sour faced maid who answered the call. "What's the sense of makin such a racket? We don't want anything today." And she slammed the door in a way that showed she didn't mind noise if she made it.

"Open that door!" shouted the angry owner.

"Go on, now. We don't buy nothin of peddlers, we don't. I has my orders. Quit kickin that door, or I'll telephone for the police. Don't you think you kin skeer me. Git a chase on yourself."

"Let me in at once. I'm the proprietor of this place, the husband of your mistress."

"That's a likely story, sich a lookin ole frump as you are. Make yourself scarce now fur a baldheaded ole fraud."

He was ten times madder, because he is 15 years older than his pretty wife, and jumped up and down on the veranda while he shouted, waved his valise and vowed all kinds of vengeance.

Before he was placid enough to see straight the virago was upon him with a flatiron, and there was nothing for him but ignominious flight. He was just well under way when his wife appeared from down town and called a halt. Of course he sailed into her for having such a girl, gave the maid five minutes' notice, went through the house like a storm and could only smile the sickliest smile when he saw the new servant scudding through the back gate.

FULTON'S STEAM WARSHIP.

The Recommendation to the Government Signed by Noted Men.

It is interesting in the light of the achievements of our navy in recent years, especially those of the splendid fighting machines propelled at the rate of 20 miles an hour, to read the following report made during the war of 1812 on a proposition made by Robert Fulton to build a steam vessel for the protection of our harbors and seaboard cities:

New London, Jan. 2, 1814.

We, the undersigned, have this day examined the model and plans of a vessel of war, submitted by Robert Fulton, to carry 24 guns, 24 and 32 pounders, and use redhot shot, to be propelled by steam at the speed of four to five miles per hour, without the aid of wind or tide. The properties of which vessel are: That, without masts or sails, she can move with sufficient speed; that her machinery being guarded she cannot be crippled; that her sides are so thick as to be impenetrable to every kind of shot, and in a calm or light breeze she can take choice of position or distance from an enemy. Considering the speed which the application of steam has already given heavy floating bodies, we have full confidence that, should such a vessel move only four miles per hour, she could, under favorable circumstances, which may always be gained over enemies' vessels in our ports, harbors, bays and sounds, be rendered more formidable to any enemy than any kind of engine hitherto invented. And in such case she would be equal to the destruction of one or more seventy-fours or of compelling her or them to depart from our waters. We, therefore, give our decided opinion that it is among the best interests of the United States to carry this plan into immediate execution.

Where the Pot of Gold is Buried.

How many women are fretting and struggling along on a very little money when a good sized yard or adjoining patch of ground is going to waste! Yet that very piece of ground may contain all sorts of possibilities—clothes, furniture, books, medicines, luxuries and even necessities otherwise impossible.

Clear, plow, fertilize and plant. This done, the great beginning is made, and perseverance and attention will secure the rest. Onions, tomatoes, cabbages, celery, a small poultry farm, a violet or rose farm—any one of these may add several hundred dollars to one's purse every year. Small fruits, hops, tuberoses and grapes are also very profitable. With some intelligence a blooming garden can always be made a paying one. Make it a principle to have no more waste in the garden than in the kitchen.

If there is only a very small place and just enough raised for one's own family, try, after the table is supplied, to prepare what vegetables and fruits are left over for sale for winter use. There is always a demand for good homemade canning and preserving. Do not let a valuable scrap of ground be idle.—Annette Halliday-Antona in Woman's Home Companion.

Bob. Ind.—Capt. Lane closed navigation this year, a record breaker. He left Fenelon on Monday afternoon with three scows of forest product and a Government scow, and by dint of hard work all Monday night in breaking his way through ice reached Lindsay Tuesday morning, the 5th. It was a plucky fight against the elements. The thermometer was in the neighborhood of zero, ice was forming all round him, and he had to go through. The captain and his crew worked like Trojans. The Captain's long experience and skill came fully into play, and after a hard and exhausting struggle he brought his craft and four consorts safely to port, closing a remarkably open season.

This institute has prepared over seventy teachers for other Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States, more than twice as many as all other Business Colleges in Canada, combined, have so placed.

The proprietors of five of the leading business colleges in Western Ontario who are to-day among our strongest opponents in the field of Shorthand and Business training, received THEIR training under the Principal of this institution. Besides these, there are five others holding leading positions as teachers in Business Colleges in Ontario.

Since Sept. 1st, seven of our pupils have accepted positions as teachers in Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States; another is now negotiating for a similar opening in a Business College in a leading American city, and there are five unfilled calls of this kind on hand still.

DOES IT NOT PAY TO ATTEND THE BEST! You must decide.

236 of our pupils secured good positions in seventeen months, and the good work of placing our students still continues.

Toronto Telegram—Peterborough is quite elated over their representative. Lionel "Camel" King, being elected vice-president of the O. H. A. When he went down there the other day he was received by a large delegation of hockeyists at the station and extended congratulations. Lionel made an efficient officer on the executive, and will fill the vice-president's chair equally as well. He returned from his home this morning to attend the executive to-night. * * * Lionel King, who has been down in Peterborough for a couple of days, came into the city to attend the O. H. A. executive meeting to-night. He is enthused with the prospects of his pet senior team this winter. He declares the natives are backing the team better than ever. Already matches have been arranged with the Aberdeens, of Ottawa, and the touring Manitoba seven.

Horse Shot.

At an early hour yesterday morning a serious accident happened to one of Mr. Snowden's horses. The chestnut belonging to the team driving the bus was being unharnessed after returning from the 4.45 train. The animal, instead of going into the stable, ran away and returned to the C. P. R. station. On the approach of the driver it turned and ran up the spur line, getting caught in the trestle work and having one of its legs broken. The animal had to be shot.

Beresford Joins the Navy.

New York Dec. 16.—What is taken as further evidence that unfriendly powers will try to embarrass England during her Transvaal troubles are two pieces of news cabled to the Journal and Advertiser. One is the fact that Lord Charles Beresford has resigned his Parliamentary seat to take command of the recently much strengthened Mediterranean fleet.. The other is a despatch from Aden that intriguers at the court of Abyssinia are beginning to stir up trouble for England. It is asserted that Lord Beresford's haste to join the fleet was caused by the receipt of this Abyssinian news.

Rear Admiral Lord Charles Beresford confirmed to-day the Associated Press announcement of his appointment of second in command of the British Mediterranean fleet. He has informed his constituents that this necessitates his resignation of his seat in the House of Commons, where he has represented York City in the Conservative interest.

Wave Crest Breaks Up.

Toronto, Dec. 16.—The schooner Wave Crest, which went ashore at Oak Orchard a week ago Thursday night, commenced to break up yesterday, and is a total loss. Part of her gear was all that could be saved The wrecking steamer Donnelly, which was to have released her lay in Presque Isle until Wednesday night, and then crossed the lake to Charlotte. A heavy sea rolled in from the north-east yesterday, and the stranded vessel broke up. Had she received assistance even the day before she could have been floated. Her owner, Mr. J. J. Turner, of Peterborough, arrived in the city this morning. The cargo, 350 tons of coal, was owned by the Toronto Electric Light company. None of it was saved.

The Wave Crest was built in 1867 at Brockville, and was valued at $3,000. She was a handsome little vessel, and was formerly owned by Messrs. Sylvester Bros of this port.

THE BRITISH LION IS NOW FULLY AWAKENED.

Lord Roberts is to Supercede Gen. Buller in Command of the British Forces

LORD KITCHENER APPOINTED ON THE STAFF IN AFRICA.

Buller Sends An Appaling List of Casualties as a Result of Recent Engagement. The Entire Reserve Force Ordered Out. Yeomanry Cavalry Volunteer.

London, Dec. 16.

Gen. Buller reports to the War Office that his losses in yesterday's engagement were:

Killed, 82. Wounded, 667, missing, 348, a total of 1097.

Pretoria, Dec. 14

Gen. Snyman reports from Mafeking under date of Dec. 13, that the British attacked the Boer fort. The Boer casualties were; one man killed, and one wounded. The despatch also says that Commandant Shoemann had a brush with the British on Dec. 12 at Geidenhuis Farm, which the British were bombarding on Wednesday.

The condition of Gen. Joubert, who is ill at Volksrust, is improving. The Transvaal Government is employing natives to work in mines, paying them one pound a month and feeding them.

London, Dec. 16.

The War Office, late to-night, issued the following list of Gen. Buller's casualties:—Killed, Field Artillery—Capt. A. H. Goldie and Lieut. C. B. Schrieber. Dublin Fusiliers, —Capt. A. H.. Bacon and Lieut. R. C. B. Henry. Inniskillen Fusiliers—Major J. F. W, Charley and Capt. Frank C. Loftus. Medical Corps—Capt. M. L. Hughes. Thorneycroft's Mounted Infantry — Lieut. C. H. Jenkins.

London, Dec. 17

Baron Roberts of Kandahar and Waterford, commander of the forces in Ireland has been appointed to the chief command in South Africa with Gen. Lord Kitchener of Khartoum fame as chief of staff.

London, Dec. 17

The War Office to-day issued the following announcement: "Acting upon the advice of the military authorities, Her Majesty's Government has approved the following measure;

"All the remaining portions of the Army Reserve including sections "D" are called out. The seventh division, which is being mobilized will proceed to South Africa without delay.

"Nine battalions of militia, in addition to the two battalions which have already volunteered for service at Malta and one for service outside of the United Kingdom, and an equivalent number of militia battalions will be embodied for service at home.

"A strong force of volunteers selected from the Yeomanry Regiments will be formed for service in South Africa,

"Arrangements are being made and will shortly be announced for the employment in South Africa of a strong contingent of carefully selected volunteers. The patriotic offers which are being received from the Colonies will, as far as possible, be accepted, preference being given to offers of mounted contingents.

Cape Town, Dec. 14.

Secret meetings of Boer sympathisers are continually held at various parts of Cape Colony and the attitude of the Dutch farmers is turbulent.

London, Dec. 17

Lieut. H. S. Roberts, son of Baron Roberts of Kandahar and Waterford, who was wounded in the engagement at Tugela River, is dead.

London, Dec. 17

Shortly before midnight the following notice was posted at the War Office:—"As the campaign in Natal in the opinion of Her Majesty's Govt. is likely to require the presence and undivided attention of Gen. Sir Redvers Buller, it has been decided to send Baron Roberts of Kandahar and Waterford as commander-in-chief in South Africa with Lord Kitchener as chief of staff.

London, Dec. 18.

The War Office has received the following despatch dated, Dec. 17, from Gen. Forestier-Walker at Cape Town. "Methuen reports that Lieut. Shandos-Pole was taken prisoner last Thursday when going to meet a flag of truce.

He was waving his handkerchief in response and was unarmed.

Gatacre has removed his troops and stores to Sterkstroom from Putter's Kraal.

French has established headquarters at Arundel.

London, Dec. 18.

The Times, commenting on the situation, says; "Neither the Crimean nor the Indian Mutiny gave rise to greater dangers to the Empire than that with which we are now menaced nor at either of those critical periods was Great Britain so isolated politically or regarded with such distrust and suspicion as are now almost everywhere apparent. Unless the calmness which impresses the foreign observer proceeds only from apathy or a want of sufficient imagination to realize the great danger to the whole fabric of our Empire, the great efforts now urgently required will surely be made before it is too late to retrieve the situation. We are fighting not merely for supremacy in South Africa but for our position as a great power. We know we have miscalculated the strength of our foe and we are resolved to make that miscalculation good.

London, Dec. 18, 4.45 a.m.

"Black Week," as last week is universally called, now has evidently aroused the Government and the War Office to a full sense of their responsibility and of the magnitude of the task before them and the papers unanimously applaud this awakening. Rumor has it that the question of expense has really been at the bottom of the half-hearted measures hitherto adopted, and it is now unlikely that Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the members of the Cabinet will resign. The tragic circumstances of the appointment of Lord Roberts almost simultaneously with the announcement of the death of his promising son excites the deepest public sympathy.

Lieut. Roberts was an only son, and had been his father's aide-de-camp. He served in Wazerston and in the Chitral and Nile Expeditions. Such was his display of gallantry on Friday in an attempt to rescue the guns that he was recommended for the Victoria Cross.

The Liberal Organs foreshadow a serious reckoning for the Government when the time comes. The Daily Chronicle hints that Gen. Sir Wm. Butler, who was recalled from the Cape command because of his Boer sympathies, long ago advised the Government that the prosecution of Mr. Chamberlain's policy would make heavy reinforcements for the Cape imperative. The Daily News says—"The Government's decision is either a counsel of panic or the confusion of utter miscalculation."

Lieut.-General Sir Charles Warren, commanding the fifth division of the first army corps has arrived at Cape Town. It is understood that he will proceed to Port Elizabeth.

No further news has been received regarding the battle at the Tuegla River. The latest accounts regarding the battle at Magersfontein show thatt he retirement of the British troops was executed with the greatest coolness and order under the heavy Boer artillery fire on Tuesday.

Mafeking was still safe on Dec. 6, and Colonel Baden-Powell, the British commander there, was still actively pushing out his defences. At that time the Boers had offered to exchange Lady Sarah Wilson, who was captured while acting as a correspondent for the London Daily Mail, for Gen. Gen. Ben Viljoen, who was captured at Elandslaagte. The other beleaguered garrisons and positions are still holding out.

It is said that if the Victoria Cross were to be granted for every act of conspicuous gallantry on the part of the British troops, it would be necessary to distribute the decoration by the hundreds.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 17

The Novee Vrenza, which does not conceal its pleasure at General Buller's defeat, says—"The whole campaign must now be re-commenced, but under altogether different conditions of opinion in England."

The Svet says—"The Almighty is manifestly giving His blessing on the Boer arms. God is punishing an arrogant and rapacious people, who have persecuted and oppressed other races in order to enrich themselves."

TO EXPEL BRITISH SUBJECTS.

London, Dec. 16.—A Cape Town, Dec. 15, despatch says that the British consul at Delagoa Bay has telegraphed Milner that the Transvaal Government intends shortly to expel all British subjects from the South African Republic. He asked for funds to enable him to provide for needy exiles. The Governor has granted $5,000 from the Mansion House fund for this purpose.

Natives in Tembuland are restless, and unless there is a speedy British success the authorities fear the position will become critical. The colonial Boers on the borders are also excited by the Boers' successes.

M. ARTIAL LAW IN CAPE COLONY.

New York, Dec. 16.—Lord Salisbury is said to have received a request from Sir Alfred Millner, British High Commissioner in South Africa and Governor of Cape Colony, that martial law be declared in Cape Colony, cables a London correspondent to the World. Lord Salisbury does not wish to grant this request except as he believes it would be such a confession of weakness that unfriendly powers might make it an excuse for intervention. In urging the request Sir Alfred reports that Dutch disaffection has now reached a point where ordinary law is useless to stem it.

JOUBERT'S FORCE IS BIG.

London, Dec. 16.—There was a great rush at the War Office this morning. The information as to losses is eagerly awaited, but so far nothing is forthcoming. The military experts now estimate that Gen. Joubert must have nearly 100,000 men under arms, including Cape Dutch and foreigners who are going to the Transvaal by every steamer arriving at Delagoa Bay.

FIGHTING AT MODDER RIVER.

Modder River, Dec. 15.—During a demonstration in force this morning the British guns shelled the Boers for a couple of hours. The Boers did not reply until the British were retiring. The Boers are furthering entrenching and strengthening their old defences with the evident intention of fiercely disputing control of the railroad.

SECOND CORPS FROM CANADA.

Sir Wilfrid Sees the Governor General and the Cabinet Meets.

Ottawa, Dec. 16.—There was quite a stir in the city to-day when it was bulletined that the Imperial Government had accepted the offer of the Australian Government for a second contingent.

Major Hurdman, Captain Arnoldi and Lieut. Morrison waited on General Hutton and renewed the offer to send to the Transvaal the Ottawa Field Battery. The General said that he would lay the matter before the Government.

Sir Wilfrid was sent for by the Governor-General this forenoon, and it is understood that the subject discussed was a second contingent. Canada's offer for a second contingent is now in the hands of the Imperial authorities, and all that is necessary is a notification of its acceptance and it will be at once forwarded.

The Cabinet Council was called for 2.30, when the matter will be fully discussed.

Quebec. Dec. 17.—The orders received yesterday from Ottawa, at the Militia Stores Department in Quebec, to prepare 1,000 carbines such as are served out to cavalry and artillery were expected, and from information received from official sources they are already executed.

A thousand of the Lee-Endfield rifles for the infantry, carbines for artillery, and cavalry, 3 Maxim guns, and also all the equipments necessary are already in order at the armories, and at the disposal of the department of militia.

It is understood that A. and B. Batteries, Royal Canadian Artillery, will be called upon this time to make part of the second Canadian Contingent.

Every soldier of the permanent force of artillery seems to be disposed to enlist, and it is stated here by men who are supposed to know something in the matter, that the names of seventeen hundred men have already been sent to Ottawa for the second contingent.

Aguinaldo Again Slips Away.

Manila, Dec. 16.—Major Peyton C. March, of the Thirty-third Infantry, has abandoned his pursuit of Aguinaldo near Bagnen, where food is scarce and travel almost impossible.

Aguinaldo was three days ahead with three women and three soldiers.

Gen. Concepcion, a prisoner, is cheerful and insists that the insurgent organization will be maintained even in the districts where the Americans are operating, also claiming that the Filipino leaders can use their troops whenever they desire.

For the Navy.

London, Dec. 16.—Arthur Loring, secretary of the Imperial Federation Defence Committee, in a letter to the Times referring to the speech of the president of the Ottawa Bank at the annual meeting of the shareholders, says that when the president of the largest financial institution of the capital of Canada goes out of the way to state that Canada not only ought to, but is able to, contribute to the maintenance of the Royal Navy, we may be sure that action of this kind is not far distant.

The portion of the speech referred to begins with the very great prosperity of the bank and ends with the direct proposition of an annual contribution to the cost of supporting the British navy.

When Chamberlain Goes to Dublin.

New York, Dec. 16.—A New ork World cable says that because Trinity College, Dublin, is to confer the degree of L.L.D. on Mr. Chamberlain on Monday, the Irish Transvaal Committee has issued a proclamation calling an indignation meeting of the citizens of Dublin on Sunday to dissociate themselves from the act of Trinity College by which it proposes to do honor to Mr. Chamberlain, "the author of the robber war being conducted to day by England.

Another Nationalist body, the Irish Socialist Republican Party, has issued placards for a monster demonstration outside Trinity College, on Monday, "to celebrate Gatacre's defeat at Stormberg." This demonstration is timed for the hour when Mr. Chamberlain will be receiving his degree inside the University.

CONSUMPTION AND ALCOHOL.

M. Jacquet stated at a recent meeting of the Paris Hospital Medical Society that he had made inquiries into the personal histories of a number of patients suffering from phthisis, and had ascertained sixteen out of seventeen had been hard drinkers for a number of years previous to their first attack of tuberculosis. He considers that much of the consumption, prevalent among the working classes, is due to the abuse of alcohol, but he regrets that trustworthy statistics on the subject are not available, since it would be equally possibly to trace a connection between diseases of the kidneys and the stomach and the excessive use of alcohol.

WHY MEN DO NOT GO TO CHURCH.

Many people have undertaken to explain the cause of a decline in church going which seems to be indicated by irrefutable facts. The same subject was first discussed at length by a correspondent of one of the Toronto papers. He lays the blame on the clergy because they "preach from the old texts in the old form." Incidentally, too, he refers to the distractions of the Sunday newspaper and of bicycling and other Sunday sports.

Really these afford no explanation of the decline. When people are earnestly desirous of spiritual instruction and of worshipping of God they are not critical of the preachers unless they betray indifference to their deep religious desires or conduct their services in a purely perfunctory manner. Moreover, the coldness of his audience reacts on the preacher. As with actors on the stage and orators of the platform, responsive warmth in the audience is necessary to fire eloquence in the preacher. Pervasive and passionate religious emotion in the congregation will inspire sympathetic feeling in the pulpit. To such people the preacher does not read dry and emotionless essays. He catches their tone and feels with them.

Doubtless, there are more distractions from church going than formerly. Social activities are more numerous and attractive. New sports appeal to the people. The Sunday newspaper gives them food for thought, and the instruction of the pulpit is no longer of the singular importance to them, outside of its more religious edification, it once was. Perhaps the social instinct once gratified only by church-going, finds other outlets. But, after all, the explanation of the decline in church-going, if it exists, is not to be found in any of these. They would all be swept aside like chaff if a wave of religious enthusiasm passed over the people like that of the great awakening in 1857, for instance. The explanation of the correspondent who said that people do not go to church simply because they do not want to go is more philosophical. And who do they not want to go? Is it not because they are losing faith in the truth or necessity of the doctrines preached by the churches?

How, too, is it with the churches? Are not many of the clergy themselves engaged in destroying the force of the doctrines they can preach? Are not doubters appealing to doubt, though under a semblance of consistency as professional champions of religious faith? In the churches where the old strength and ardor of faith remain is there such a decline in church going as our correspondents describe? We do not hear of it in the Roman Catholic churches, for instance, and Mr. Moody, preaching the old Bible and the old way of salvation, does not complain of slim audiences, so far as we know. People still crowd political meeting appealing to their partisan spirit. The theatres of New York were never before so many and so numerously attended as now.

If, then, people do not go to church to the same extent as of old, is it not because they have lost interest in it? But how can their interest be maintained by ministers and theologians who tell them that the Bible, in which they have believed as pointed out unerringly the way of salvation by Divine revelation, is, after all, only a human book, "human literature," faulty, questionable and full of evidences of the limitations of weak and erring human nature? Is it not idle for ministers to attempt to fill their churches unless they believe earnestly and absolutely that they have a message to deliver which men must hear and heed for their souls' salvation?

A WHOLESALE MURDERESS.

A St. Louis Midwife Accused of a Murder of Murders.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 16.—If the charges on file at the four courts are true then never before in the history of crime have the police of St. Louis or any other city had to deal with a case more horrible in nature than that of Mrs. Henrietta Bamberger, the midwife of 919 Chouteau avenue. She has just been indicted by the grand jury for murder in the first degree. Three indictments for manslaughter have also been found against her, and a case in which she is charged with the death of Miss Wilhelmine Spoeri is to come up in Judge Spencer court next Wednesday morning. Owing to the seriousness of the new charges it is probable that the old charge of minor character will be dismissed. The finding of the Grand jury is the results of months of work by the police department and attorneys who have been retained to prosecute the case.

Wholesale Slaughter Charged.

The charges against Mrs. Bamberger involve the disposition of bodies of women and infants who died in her house. She is also charged with the death of a number of her patients as the result of malpractice. Lizzie Reiger of 1829 South Tenth street, who testified before the grand jury, told of most brutal crimes which she says were committed in Mrs. Bamberger's house while she was employed there as a domestic.

Miss Reiger was engaged to be married to Mrs. Bamberger's son, Otto Kinsle, but it is alleged that he wronged her, and in a spirit of revenge the girl told all she knew of what had occurred in Mrs. Bamberger's house while she was there.

The bodies of young women who came to Mrs. Bamberger for treatment and who died on the operating table as the result of malpractice, were buried in the cellar under the house, the girl claims, or carted away in wagons and thrown into rivers. In several cases burial certificates were issued by a bogus physician living in South Broadway, who, it is alleged, was paid large sums of money by Mrs. Bamberger. Infants were drowned in buckets of water, it is alleged, and their bodies afterwards buried or burned.

Hundreds of Dead Infants.

According to the Reiger girl's story the Bamberger institution was a human slaughter-house, where girls who came to be treated died either there or gave up their lives later as a result. She says that not less than 300 bodies of infants were burned by Mrs. Bamberger while she was employed in the house.

Mary Haar and Katie Becklingter, both of 1829 South Tenth street, who were also employed in the Bamberger house, have told a complete story of alleged crimes which occurred there during their stay. Ida New, whose home was in Maine, Ill., they state, died in the Bamberger house on March 3, 1894. She was first brought to the house by a man whose first name was Joe, but whose last name is not known. The physician in South Broadway, they claim, issued a burial certificate in this case and received $50 from Mrs. Bamberger for doing so. A reputable physician was called in previous to this, they say, but he refused to issue a certificate of death. Dr. Hank, who had an office in Missouri avenue, was also applied to by Mrs. Bamberger for a death certificate, it is asserted, but when he had examined the corpse he told the midwife that he did not want to have anything to do with her cases and that she should never summon him again.

The Reiger girl says that Dr. Hank requested Mrs. Bamberger not to tell anybody that she had called on him for a death certificate, as he did not want his name mentioned in connection with the case. The body of the unknown girl which was found floating in the Meramec river near Luxembourg in March, 1894, is alleged to have been thrown into the river by Mrs. Bamberger. The girl is said to have been Louisa Miller, a dressmaker, who died on Mrs. Bamberger's operating table. The facts surrounding the girl's death and the disposition of her body, as told by the witnesses, is most tragic. Miss Miller died in great agony, they declare. The girl begged for a physician, it is charged, but was denied one. After she died an expressman was summoned, the body packed in a trunk and taken to a Merramec bridge near the Lemay Ferry road. Mrs. Bamberger and another woman, it is said, accompanied the expressman, and when the bridge was reached the trunk, with its gruesome contents, was hurled into the stream. Other cases of a similar nature are cited.

Mrs. Bamberger declares that she is being persecuted. She says that Lizzie Reiger loved her son, Otto Kinzle, and blames her because he did not return the affection. She declares that she is innocent of the charges and will prove it. She is 55 years old.

BRITISH ARMY NICKNAMES.

Every Regiment Has One and Some Are of Extremely Curious Derivation.

Every regiment in the British Army has its nickname, and some of them are of extremely curious derivation.

The Seventeenth Lancers, for example, are known as "Death or Glory Boys." They have another designation, not so familiar, "Bingham's Dandies," from a remark made by William IV concerning the perfect fit of their uniforms.

Who are the "Picadilly Butchers?" The First Life Guards are hardly recognizable under that appellation which has stuck to them since the early part of the century, when they were engaged in quelling a riot. The "Oxford Blues" are not so difficult to guess at; the Horse Guards received this name partly because of the color of their uniform and partly from the fact that their first commander was the Earl of Oxford.

The Eleventh Hussars are known as the "Cherry Pickers," or "Cherubims." The regiment owes its nickname to the color of the men's trousers. "Hamilton's Runaways" is not a title to be proud of, but, like all bad names, it sticks; the present Fourteenth Hussars, the successors of the Light Dragoon Regiment, which earned it, certainly do not deserve it.

The Royal Scots, the oldest infantry corps in the army, are known as "Pontius Pilate's Bodyguard." The origin of this nickname is said to be the following: In 1637, when in the French service, a dispute arose between the corps and the Picardy Regiment as to which was the older. The latter asserted that they had been on duty the night after the Crucifixion.

The Norfolk Regiment is called the "Holy Boys," because, as the story goes, they sold their Bibles in the Peninsula to purchase drink. The men of the Yorkshire Regiment are known as "Snappers" because in the American war they continued to snap their muskets after they had used all their ammunition.

The "Haver-Cake Lads" are the men of the First Battalion of the West Riding Regiment; it was customary in by-gone times for the sergeants to beat up recruits with a haver, a kind of oat cake on their swords. The Second Battalion are the "Pigs," from the peculiarly shaped elephant on the colors.

The First Battalion of the South Staffordshire Regiment is known as the "Pump and Tortoise," because the men were so fond of cold water and so slow in drill when at Malta. The One Hundred and First Foot, the First Battalion Royal Munster Fusiliers, earned the name of the "Dirty Shirts" through fighting in their shirt sleeves at Delhi.

A Town Law Suit.

By Our Own Legal Poet.

A little too much granite, a little too much sand,
So says Mr. Ranney, who happened to be on hand.
"Never mind," says Bro. Langford,
"But I will," says Mac.
"If you give us too much trash, you'll have to take it back.
And so they went to law the sidewalks
to dispute,
Says contractor Langford "Please I didn't do it,"
Now the judge into the matter right thoroughly has looked,
And twenty dollars every day for wages has been booked.
The lawyers they made tenners, the contractor made his five,
And on the whole, the entire lot, thoroughly did thrive.

"What's the matter old man?"
"Been speculating in stocks?"
"Were you a bull or a bear?"
"Nope! Just plain ass."

FAITHFUL WOMEN SETS LOVER FREE.

Mary Board's Untiring Devotion Releases Wm. Redfield From Insane Asylum.

The faithful devotion of Mary W. Board, of Methuen, N.J., will be rewarded to-day, when her sweetheart of childhood and early womanhood, William Redfield, will be released from the insane asylum at Ward's Island, New York.

He has been there for fourteen years, with the consent of his late father, and of his sisters, who are still alive. He has been denied opportunity to prove that he was a sane man. Property left him by his grand mother, and afterwards by his father, has been kept for him. One of the first things Redfield intends to do, he says, is to begin legal proceedings to recover his property. Then, after long years of waiting, he and Mary will be married and go to South Dakota to run a ranch and restore Redfield's broken health.

An interesting story of their life is told. William Redfield and Mary Board lived next door to each other in Methuen. As children they were sweethearts. William grew to manhood became a member of the Seventh Regiment in New York and lived a liberal life. It almost ruined him.

With a portion of a bequest left him by his grandmother he went to the Black Hills and invested in mining. He fell into evil ways in camp life and made a failure. He came back to New York, opened a hotel, lost more money and was finally placed in a sanitarium on Long Island. He broke away from there, went on a prolonged spree in New York city and landed in the alcoholic ward of Bellevue Hospital. From there he was sent to Ward's Island, where he has remained ever since.

Meanwhile Mary had become interested in mining speculation herself and had made a success of it. It was while getting up a company for the Klondike that the newspapers in New York gave space to her bold plans. Singularly enough, William saw one of the articles in the asylum and wrote to his old sweetheart. She promptly set to work to get him out and has worked at it for two years. The Medico-Legal Society of New York became interested in the case and assisted her. Redfield was twice brought into court under writs of habeas corpus and each time was sent back to prison. The third time a committee of alienists was appointed to examine him. They have reported that Redfield is now sane and they do not anticipate a return of his malady. He will be a free man to-day, by order of the court

Bob. Ind.—Capt. Lane closed navigation this year, a record breaker. He left Fenelon on Monday afternoon with three scows of forest product and a Government scow, and by dint of hard work all Monday night in breaking his way through ice reached Lindsay Tuesday morning, the 5th. It was a plucky fight against the elements. The thermometer was in the neighborhood of zero, ice was forming all round him, and he had to go through. The captain and his crew worked like Trojans. The Captain's long experience and skill came fully into play and after a hard and exhausting struggle he brought his craft and four consorts safely to port, closing a remarkably open season.

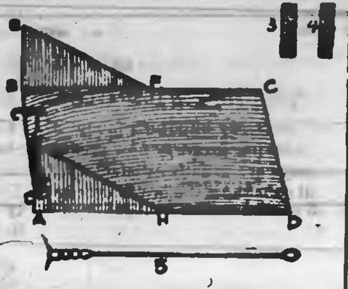
Wagon Gate Useful in Husking Time. Crate For Roots, Apples, Etc.

A sketch of a very convenient tail board or end gate, which can be attached to any wagon bed and which saves much time and labor in unloading corn or coal, is sent to the Ohio Farmer by a correspondent, who says:

"The size of wagon beds varies so much that it is useless to give dimensions, but make the part A B C D long enough to extend at least six inches above the sideboards of the wagon and also wide enough so that the wings B E F and A G H will be on the outside of the bed when the end gate is up. Have two hooks made as at 1 and 2 and bolt to the end gate with the hook turned down. Then have made out of old wagon tire two plates, 3 and 4, each about six inches long, with slots about two inches long and large enough to admit hooks 1 and 2. Bolt these plates to the under side of the wagon bed, with the slots extending out far enough from the bed to admit the hooks. This makes your hinge for the end gate so that it can be removed from the bed instantly.

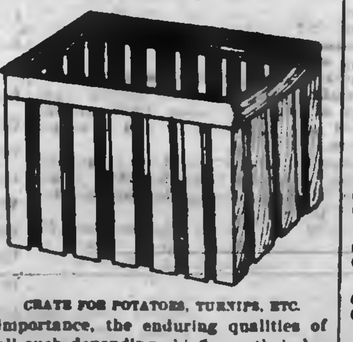


TAILBOARD OR END GATE.

"Now attach two rods or chains, as at Fig. 5, at C D and let them pass through rings fastened at the top end of the bed. This holds the end gate up, so that one may stand on it and begin to unload. Have two rings, one on each side of the bed, fastened the length of the chains or rods from the end of the bed to hold the end gate up while the load is being hauled.

Particular attention is called in the journal already mentioned to the crate shown in the second cut by a writer who describes it thus: As can be seen, all the slats composing it are upright, obviating thereby the use of corner supports, for, as put together, the slats lap at the corners and, being well nailed, afford great firmness to the whole affair. This is of decided convenience in that the crate can thus be made of dry goods boxes and the like, simply with saw and hammer, some nails and some leather straps for handles, one on each side.

The shape of this crate, remember, should be rectangular, for then if one wishes to load a number of them into a wagon box it can be done with perfect ease. Indeed, if put to use in this manner, the crate is indispensable for harvesting apples, potatoes, turnips, carrots, beets, and so on. By making up enough of them, which can be done on rainy days, to fill a wagon box load after load of vegetables and fruit can be taken from the field with a single handling, which not only saves much time, but lessens the danger of bruises, and in case of fruits, like apples and pears, this is an item of the gravest importance, the enduring qualities of all such depending chiefly on their being kept whole and nice.



CRATE FOR POTATOES, TURNIPS, ETC.

Provided there is only one man to handle them, crates holding half a bushel each are plenty large enough, but where two pairs of hands are present to take them in charge it is better to have them as large again at least. Kept properly housed, such crates will last one a lifetime.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sung it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. True Boston Culture.

"Fifty cents for this beautiful little vase," called the auctioneer. "Going, going for 50. Do I hear 55 for this beautiful little vase?" and no one thought anything about the auctioneer or the vase which went for 50 cents until another one was put up, an immense affair of cloisonne. "Now we will show you an exquisite piece, not to be duplicated in this country," he went on. "An exquisite cloisonne varse"—and there the Wellesley girl said excitedly to her companion:

"Now, that is what I call true Boston culture. Would you expect a man of that kind to make such a delicate distinction? He must have been educated at a woman's college. When he is selling a 50 cent article, he says vase in the ordinary way, with the long sound of the 'a,' but when he comes to a big piece of cloisonne it is varse, with the broad 'a' every time. That is according to rule. Over $10 in price you find a varse, but under that nothing but an ordinary, everyday vase."—New York Times.

Crocodile Tears.

The expression "crocodile tears" can be found in almost every European language, but it is doubtful if one in a thousand of those who use it have an idea of its origin. We are told in the Bestiary of Guillaume le Clerc that when the crocodile finds an unwary traveler it devours him, but afterward weeps over him all the rest of its life. This is very evidently the allusion in "Othello," "Each drop she falls would prove a crocodile" (1, 257).

There is another version of the fable, however, which is more often referred to in literature, and according to which the crocodile sheds tears in order to allure the traveler to destruction. Shakespeare alludes to this in the passage where he tells how

With sorrow snares relenting passengers.
—"2. Henry VI." 1, 223.

A WARM RECEPTION.

He Arrived Home Too Soon and Did Not Make a Good Impression.

This resident of Alfred street came home at the end of one week instead of three, as he intended when he started on his business trip. He had his valise in his hand and rang the doorbell with a vim.

"Pity you couldn't bring a gong with you," snapped the sour faced maid who answered the call. "What's the sense of makin such a racket? We don't want anything today." And she slammed the door in a way that showed she didn't mind noise if she made it.

"Open that door!" shouted the angry owner.

"Go on, now. We don't buy nothin of peddlers, we don't. I has my orders. Quit kickin that door, or I'll telephone for the police. Don't you think you kin skeer me. Git a chase on yourself."

"Let me in at once. I'm the proprietor of this place, the husband of your mistress."

"That's a likely story, sich a lookin ole frump as you are. Make yourself scarce now fur a baldheaded ole fraud."

He was ten times madder, because he is 15 years older than his pretty wife, and jumped up and down on the veranda while he shouted, waved his valise and vowed all kinds of vengeance.

Before he was placid enough to see straight the virago was upon him with a flatiron, and there was nothing for him but ignominious flight. He was just well under way when his wife appeared from down town and called a halt. Of course he sailed into her for having such a girl, gave the maid five minutes' notice, went through the house like a storm and could only smile the sickliest smile when he saw the new servant scudding through the back gate.

FULTON'S STEAM WARSHIP.

The Recommendation to the Government Signed by Noted Men.

It is interesting in the light of the achievements of our navy in recent years, especially those of the splendid fighting machines propelled at the rate of 20 miles an hour, to read the following report made during the war of 1812 on a proposition made by Robert Fulton to build a steam vessel for the protection of our harbors and seaboard cities:

New London, Jan. 3, 1814.

We, the undersigned, have this day examined the model and plans of a vessel of war, submitted by Robert Fulton, to carry 24 guns, 24 and 32 pounders, and use redhot shot, to be propelled by steam at the speed of four to five miles per hour, without the aid of wind or tide. The properties of which vessel are: That, without masts or sails, she can move with sufficient speed; that her machinery being guarded she cannot be crippled; that her sides are so thick as to be impenetrable to every kind of shot, and in a calm or light breeze she can take choice of position or distance from an enemy. Considering the speed which the application of steam has already given heavy floating bodies, we have full confidence that, should such a vessel move only four miles per hour, she could, under favorable circumstances, which may always be gained over enemies' vessels in our ports, harbors, bays and sounds, be rendered more formidable to any enemy than any kind of engine hitherto invented. And in such case she would be equal to the destruction of one or more seventy-fours or of compelling her or them to depart from our waters. We, therefore, give our decided opinion that it is among the best interests of the United States to carry this plan into immediate execution.

Woes of Millionaires.

An English millionaire has just been adjudged incapable of looking after his property. He imagines himself the Prince of Wales.

Some years ago a rich merchant took the idea that he was penniless. His sons, to stop his worrying, assured him they had rescued his business and was to continue it. They offered him a clerkship at a small salary in his own office. He took it and kept at work nearly 20 years. When he died, he left nearly $15,000,000.

Two English millionaires were noted for their parsimony. One picked up and smoked cigar ends. The other, after fine receptions in his house, would go around carefully collecting candle ends to be used again. Neither of these men was insane. Both were shrewd in business.

Another millionaire imagined for a considerable time that he was a squirrel, and would eat nothing but nuts.

Another was too parsimonious even to buy himself a warm overcoat. Some of his friends made him a present of one, and he promptly sold it at secondhand and pocketed the money.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Was Hanged Over Again.

G. W. Stevens, who traveled extensively in India, tells the following interesting story: A Pathan was being hanged, when the rope broke. The warder bade him go up on to the scaffold again, but he objected. "No," he said, "I was sentenced to be hanged, and hanged I've been."

"Not so, friend," argued the warder; "you were sentenced to be hanged until you were dead, and you're not dead."

It was a new view to the Pathan, and he turned to the superintendent. "Is that right, sahib?"

"Yes, that's right."

"Very well. I didn't understand," and he went composedly up the steps and was hanged again like a man.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

New York has established a state college of forestry. One of its labors will be to replant the tracts denuded of pine and other valuable conifers. It set out a large area this spring and is rearing 3,000,000 seedling pines for future use.—St. Louis

COPPER MINING STOCKS

For several months shrewd investors have been putting their money into the shares of Copper Mines. This is true not only of men with large amounts of money at their disposal but also applies to those who have made a study of investments with a view to securing a large return for small investments. As high as THREE AND FOUR HUNDRED PER CENT. has to our knowledge already been realized on some of these investments. Americans were the first to make a specialty of Copper Stocks. They knew what they were doing, for the reason is not far to seek. Every Copper Mine in the world is at present taxed to its utmost limit to meet the growing demand for copper for electrical purposes. The reserve stores of copper are being depleted until it pays no longer to use copper in some eastern countries as a coin. Copper has gone up in price from 9c to 18 cents. The supply of Copper from the mines of the world to-day is only about 80 per cent. of the consumption. That is the reason why financiers have their engineers searching the four quarters of the globe for Copper Mines, and that is the reason the shares in promising copper companies are so eagerly picked up by investors.

If you have any money to invest we would ask you to consider the shares of the SUPERIOR GOLD & COPPER COMPANY, LIMITED. This Company owns and operates some valuable native copper properties. We are in a position to offer you a special opportunity in this stock which as an investment should give you a profit of at least 100 per cent in six months. Send for prospectus and particulars.

Occasionally we have an opportunity of giving our clients a special offer on some stocks, and we have this opportunity now. If you are interested write to us at once. These shares are sold in large or small blocks to suit buyers.

We deal in all legitimate mining shares on commission. If you want to buy or sell write us.

SELL MATURED STOCK.

There's No Profit in Keeping Cattle or Hogs After They Have Been Fattened Fairly Well.

There is no profit in keeping any kind of stock when they have been fattened for the market; the retention of cattle or hogs that have reached a point where every ear of corn serves only to maintain their present condition is unwise and unprofitable. When they are fat sell them; you cannot afford to continue feeding them in anticipation of higher prices, regardless of the cheapness of the feed. If a hog is fat and ready for market at 200 pounds sell him, as no appreciable gain can be made after this period has been reached, on the other hand there is some danger of the animal going back, or losing fat; so it is best to place the stock on the market after the finishing touches have been put on, and yield not to the temptation, which is a strong one, to hold on for better prices, which may and may not be received.

If cattle and hogs have been judiciously fed and are of good breeding they will nearly always bring a remunerative price and pay handsomely for the labor and expense involved in their preparation for the market.

Another thing—the local buyers who visit you every week or two to get stuff to send to Chicago, St. Louis or Kansas City and who of course make considerable profit thereby, should be sent to "the other fellow," as any farmer can ship his own stock, cattle, hogs and sheep, just as cheaply as the local buyer can, and thus secure the profit which the latter usually receives. He may not have a load, but the buyer may be confronted with the same difficulty; then the thing to do is to see a neighbor or two who may have stock to ship and thus make out the car load. It pays to save money wherever possible; this is one of the places where it is possible. The reason many farmers do not act in this regard as advised is that the little trouble of getting a car, loading the stock and caring for it during shipment frightens them and they are content to sell to the local buyer at less money than undergo the trouble and receive higher prices.—Farmers' Voice.

MANITOBA WHEAT.

It Is Five and a Half Millions Less Than Calculated in August—Seventeen Bushels an Acre.

Winnipeg, Dec. 13.—(Special.)—The Provincial Government crop bulletin was issued to-day, and gives a summary of the yields of various crops in the province:

Wheat—Area in crop 1,629,995 acres, yield per acre 17.13 bushels; total yield, 27,922,230 bushels.

Dairy products—Butter, dairy, 1,354,240 lbs., value $196,552.25; creamery, 1,002,800 lbs., $195,026.05; cheese, factory, 848,557 lbs., value $86,930.16.

Mistaken Estimate in August.

In the August Bulletin the estimated wheat yield was 33,504,768 bushels. This was considered at the time a conservative estimate, as a greater yield than 20.56 bushels per acre, as reported, was generally expected. The actual yield, however, has been less. The Government estimate has not been realized. The principal causes of shrinkage were a period of drought in August, when the wheat was filling, and the ravages of the Hessian fly. The most promising fields, especially on summer fallow, from which 30 to 35 bushels per acre were expected, only yielded 20 to 25 bushels per acre. The shrinkage from the work of the Hessian fly is estimated at from 5 per cent. to 20 per cent. of the crop. The damage was most serious in the Red River Valley. The sample of the wheat is good, grading 1 hard, 2 hard, or 1 northern, although a few cars in some districts are frosted. The absence of weed seeds in the grain is specially noted.

HE LOST HIS BEST GIRL.

And All Because He Couldn't Master the Trolley Car Walk.

"Going in and out of a moving street car gracefully ought to be part of a modern education in deportment," said a man about town. "It is one of the most difficult feats in the world and something at which 999 out of 1,000 are almost certain to make themselves ridiculous. I am peculiarly interested in the matter because it has resulted in a falling out with my best girl.

"About a week ago I got on board a St. Charles avenue car this side of Lee monument and saw her sitting next to the door, in front. Of course I started in that direction, smiling and raising my hat as I did so, and just then the car took the curve around the base of the monument. I made three or four idiotic lurches, grabbed the empty air and dived head first into a fat old gentleman who was reading a newspaper. I must have knocked the breath out of the poor old chap, for he gasped like a fish, but I was on my feet in a minute and would have made the rest of the trip to the end all right if the confounded curve hadn't been what is called a 'reverse'—that is to say, it crooks first one way and then the other like a letter S.

"I started on my second beat exactly in time to catch the upper crook, and I promptly repeated my original performance with variations. I wound up the act by falling over the knees of a stern looking matron in spectacles, and she remarked in a tone audible to all hands that she couldn't understand why drunken men were permitted to ride with respectable people. The young lady was scarlet with mortification, and to avoid compromising her I sat down on the other side.

"In a moment or two my hated rival sauntered in as gracefully as a dancing master and immediately monopolized her society. The fellow was broke once in the north and did a couple of months as a conductor, so he is on to the curve, and since the episode I have described he has frozen me completely out. As I said before, the trolley car walk ought to be part of every gentleman's education. It's as necessary as dancing."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

THE DESIRE TO JUMP.

An Unexpected Sensation Experienced by Many Persons.

Many persons who visit Niagara falls find they have a great desire to leap from various points on the several bridges or from one of the numerous points of observation. For this reason, after once having experienced the fascinating sensation that coaxes them on to death in the deep and rapid running waters, they never go near any of the seductive points without being in company with some one who will guard them from harm as a result of what perhaps might be termed by some their weakness.

Many people who have visited Niagara have confessed that the waters of the beautiful river had a weird fascination for them while standing in places where death would be easy by simply letting go one's hold and slipping into the river, and people saved from suicide there have admitted that they knew no reason why they should end their lives, but the scene was so delightful that it coaxed them to seek the peace of death there.

In other places than at Niagara the public comes in touch with folks who, when on an elevation, have a proneness to jump off, and for this reason they keep away from all such danger points. An interesting explanation of this desire is that given some years ago by Professor Lowe of the army balloon corps. He had frequently invited a newspaper correspondent to make an ascension with him, but each time the invitation was declined.

Later he told the professor of the temptation he had to jump from high places and that he feared making an ascent. For this he was laughed at, the professor stating that the reason people had such desires was that they were full of electricity; that the magnetic current in the earth was the attraction, and that what he was standing on carried the current. He also said that when up in a balloon the continuity was cut off. Finally the man made an ascension and found that the desire to jump was not present. It is a curious statement.—Philadelphia Record.

Big Things in Providence.

Providence has the largest silverware factory in the world, the largest screw factory, the largest manufactory for small tools and the largest file works. Perhaps it is especially unique in producing more jewelry than any other city in the United States and nearly as much as all the rest of the country combined. There is no city which possesses so many separate and distinct shops for the manufacture of a single commodity as Providence does for the manufacture of jewelry. There are at least 250 separate factories devoted to the making of gold, silver, rolled plated, electroplated and brass jewelry and novelties. In addition the auxiliary industries for furnishing supplies of special labor to the jewelry factories number more than 75. Many of the jewelry shops are small, employing only ten or a dozen hands, while some employ as high as 300 and in one case 1,400.—Nashville American.

Breaking Mainsprings.

The statement is made by many jewelers that it is their experience that they have many more mainsprings of watches to repair after a warm, humid day than at any other time. Others believe the breaking to be due to electric disturbances, stating that after an electrical storm they find that many of their customers bring their watches to them for repair. The sudden cooling and consequent contraction of the tightly wound watch spring, or main spring, caused by the removal of the watch from the body on a cool night following a warm day, is believed by some to account, in a measure, for the accidents in question. So far, however, no entirely satisfactory explanation of the difficulty has been suggested even by the most expert workmen in this line.

What He Really Owed.

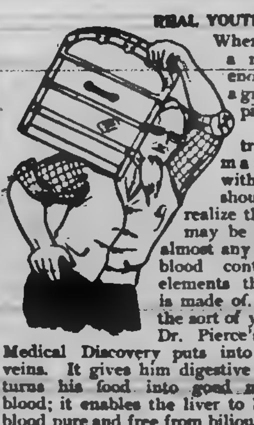
"Doctor," said the grateful patient, seizing the physician's hand, "I shall never forget that to you I owe my life."

"You exaggerate," returned the doctor mildly. "You owe me only for 15 visits. That is the point which I hope you will not fail to remember."

All Roads Lead to the Dressmaker.

Mr. Hornbill—Do you know, darling, I could pick you out of a crowd of women just by your style!

Mrs. Hornbill—I don't wonder, and me with this same old dress for the last two seasons!



REAL YOUTH.

When you see a man old enough to be a grandfather pick up a heavy trunk and march off with it on his shoulder you realize that a man may be young at almost any age if his blood contains the elements that youth is made of. That is the sort of youth that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery puts into a man's veins. It gives him digestive power; it turns his food into good nourishing blood; it enables the liver to keep that blood pure and free from bilious poisons. It fills him with muscular strength and vitality. It makes him in the truest sense young again, and keeps him so.

"I am pretty well now, for a man of sixty-three years," says Mr. John Larson of Ashby, Grant Co., Minn. "I had been very badly troubled for many years with dyspepsia, also nasal catarrh, and got so bad and weak that I could not work.

"I could hardly eat anything without vomiting; had a pain in the stomach and a burning sensation coming into the throat. I took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets,' and can truly say these medicines have helped me wonderfully. I commenced taking them in the fall and used them all winter. I took fifteen bottles of the 'Discovery' and six of the 'Pellets' according to directions, and must say that both are good honest medicines.

"I improved right along from the very beginning. I just stopped taking medicine in the latter part of May and then felt as well as ever in my life. I can eat all kinds of food and it doesn't cause me any pain in my stomach now as it always did before I took Dr. Pierce's medicines. I can cheerfully say to the public that they need not hesitate in taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for dyspepsia; it will eradicate and cure the disease if anything will."

If you are in poor health write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. It will cost you nothing whatever for his advice although he is at the very head of his profession in the treatment of obstinate chronic diseases.

An Unprofitable Bone.

Last summer a friend presented us with a tortoise. I do not know whether our dog had heard of turtle soup or whether he regarded the creature as a new kind of bone that walked about; at any rate, he determined to eat it.

Whenever the tortoise started out on a constitutional down the garden path Gyp arrested it and carried it into his kennel, where he gnawed at the impenetrable armor till his jaws ached.

The calm and philosophical manner in which the tortoise resumed its interrupted promenade irritated the dog exceedingly, but no failure discouraged him. Whenever we reminded him of the tortoise, he would go in search of it all round the garden, peering into every crevice, till eventually the creature was found, and then fresh but futile attempts were made to extract the meaty portions from the shell.—

Service With Buller.

The late Richard Meade, of Ashburnham, was senior lieutenant in the company of the regiment of which Gen. Sir Redvers Buller was junior Lieutenant.

Sham Rock

Is a name given by some to our granolithic pavements. Some shoes have sham soles, which when wet are taken off very easily by the sham rock, and thus the sham sole is lost. To avoid the latter buy your shoes from Kidd—the price is no more, but less, and trading stamps given as well.

A Big Daily Scoop.

The war service as is supplied to the Times gives us a daily scoop over all our contemporaries, local and foreign. On Saturday the Times contained exactly the same war news as the Toronto morning papers contained, giving full particulars of Gen. Buller's reverse. The citizens should back the paper that has the courage and ability to cut in on the territory so long occupied by the Toronto papers.

New Readers

We have just received a neat little book of new readings in Scotch and English for social gatherings. The selections are from the works of Mr John Imrie, Toronto, and are up to date. For sale at Times Bookstore.

Intensely Loyal.

When the news of the reverse to Gen. Buller was bulletined in front of the Times building on Friday night, it was easy to see how the heart of the average citizen stands. "Is'nt it awful," said one young man; "its time Canada offered 10,000 men," said another, and so on. Hundreds called personally and rang up the office during the night, and all were horrified at the news, and many spoke as if it were Canada's duty to offer substantial aid at once. If the Government shows any half-heartedness in the matter, it will certainly cost them dear, for the temper of the Canadian people is thoroughly aroused. Canada should furnish 5,000 men as quickly as they could be got together.

A Unique Club.

On Saturday the Times, received, through Mr. Wm. O'Brien, clerk, payment for a club of subscribers to The Morning Times, consisting of the Reeve, Clerk, Treasurer and each member of the council of Douro. Hundreds of people are now reading the Times that never read it before. The paper's circulation is rapidly increasing in all the outlying districts adjacent to Peterborough that is served by a daily mail. Everybody reads the Times.

ASHBURNHAM COUNCIL.

Statutory Meeting Held Friday Evening—Yearly Financial Statement.

The statutory meeting of the Ashburnham Council took place on Friday night, but on account of the crowded state of our columns was left over. Those present were Reeve Adams, in the chair, and Councillors Rutherford, Pollock, Sheridan and Craig. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. J. Togis again appeared before the Council complaining that Constable Fitzgerald had neglected to do his duty by not collecting damages on some cows he had pounded. Mr. Togis claims that Mr. Buyers' cows got into his property and did damage to the extent of $2.50. Mr. Fitzgerald and Mr. Buyers claim there was no damage done. After thoroughly discussing the question in detail the Council concluded that the by-law had not been carried out in full by either party, and on motion Treasurer Peck was authorized to pay Togis $2.50 in settlement of the matter.

Grants.

Mr. Jos. Crowe addressed the Council on behalf of the 57th Battalion Band, asking for a grant to help to buy instruments, and to build up the institution in general. On motion of Councillor Rutherford, seconded by Councillor Sheridan, a grant of $25 was made to the band.

Laid at Rest.

The remains of the late Mrs. Meade were interred yesterday in the Little Lake cemetery, being followed by a very large number of citizens. The impressive burial service of the Church of England was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Symonds, of St. Luke's church, of which the deceased lady was a consistent member.

Information Wanted.

In the report sent to the Council by the Town Trust Commission of the expense of the arbitration, full particulars are not given, and the ratepayers should know who received the $215, also particulars of Mr. Edwards' disbursements. Why was such care taken to give Mr. Aldridge and Mr. McRae's names and not the names of other witnesses, and fees paid. Also why was not the names of arbitrators and amount received by each not given. The return gave information not asked for by the council. As usual some person has to be screened. A full statement should be given of all money received by any commission either from the council or the Town Trust Commission so the ratepayers will know the Commissioners who are not there for the good of their health.

A Handsome Shop.

Mr. W. G. Howden, has leased the fine new store in the Crystal Block, 410 George street, next door to Miss Rudkins' where he has removed his meat business. The store is a large one, very handsomely decorated and furnished and excellently fitted up. The sale room is large, commodious and very pleasing in appearance. The cutting room in the rear is also large and convenient. The cellar is large and airy. A handsome office gives tone to the premises. Mr. Howden has on hand a large and select stock of fresh and cured meats of all kinds and the public could not do better than pay him a visit. He is well-known to the trade and the public generally and Mr. Howden, in soliciting a share of the public patronage, has every confidence in his ability to fill their wants perfectly. Give him a call.

COFFEE THE CAUSE

Of Heart Trouble.

"Three cases of heart trouble that have been relieved by stopping coffee and taking Postum Food Coffee, have come under my notice. First, my own case. I suffered greatly from palpitation and irregularity of the heart. My physician ordered me to leave off coffee, and when I took up Postum Food Coffee in its place, the heart trouble was soon entirely cured, and I find the Postum to be just as the doctor said, 'not only harmless, but very beneficial.'

"A gentleman friend had much the same trouble with his heart. I suggested that he try Postum. After the first cup at breakfast, he said, 'I don't want any more of it.' Inquiry proved that it had not been properly boiled, so I prepared a cup for him, strictly according to directions, and he pronounced it 'delicious' and 'better than coffee.' Mrs. ——, of Paducah, suffered much the same way, and has had the same experience in recovering from heart trouble by the discontinuance of coffee and taking up the use of Postum. For private reasons I request that you withhold my name from publication."—Princeton, Ky.

Since Sept 1st, seven of our pupils have accepted positions as teachers in Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States; another is now negotiating for a similar opening in a Business College in a leading American city, and there are five unfilled calls of this kind on hand still.

DOES IT NOT PAY TO ATTEND THE BEST? You must decide.

238 of our pupils secured good positions in seventeen months, and the good work of placing our students still continues.

HAS BULLER CROSSED THE TUGELA RIVER?

A London Despatch Says That He Crossed Tugela River After Severe Fighting.

METHUEN'S COMMUNICATIONS ARE CUT OFF.

Special Despatches to The Times, 3 p.m.

London, Dec. 19

The Daily Mail hears from a hitherto reliable correspondent that Gen. Buller, after a stiff fight crossed the Tugela River. The correspondent also states that Gen. Methuen communications are also cut.

London, Dec. 18

The War Office to-nigh posted a revised list of the casualties in the battle of Magersfontein, giving 51 additional killed.

London, Dec. 18

Rear Admiral Lord Charles Beresford is quoted in an interview to-day as saying:—"The issue of the war will depend more upon artillery than anything else especially at the siege of Pretoria and other places where the biggest battles are expected. Therefore I urge that all the naval guns which can be spared from the reserves and other ships be mounted on artillery limbers for field service immediately. This move is necessary as there are no quick-firing twelve pounders of 1250 weight in the army. The Government should immediately commission every ship in a division of the Navy as a needful protection against any nation seeking to take advantage of Great Britain's condition. No friendly nation could object. It would only be running water through hose pipes so as to prepare for fire. I am greatly pleased to see General Roberts and Kitchener go to aid of General Buller."

London, Dec. 18

A correspondent of the Daily Mail telegraphing from Frere camp, Natal, Dec. 15 and describing the Tuegla battle says:—

"The Boers in great force occupied a strongly entrenched position, commanding the river, and reaching back 800 yards from its further side Gen. Hart's brigade on the left, first attempted a crossing with a murderous Nordenfeldt and rifle fire. The Royal Dublin Fusiliers, the Royal Inniskillen Fusiliers, the Kings Own Scotch Borderers and the Connaught Rangers crossed with suberb and unflinching gallantry; but the position on the other side was found utterly untenable.

The British suffered heavily from a perfect hail of artillery and shrapnel, while their own artillery was very badly mauled. They were therefore obliged to re-cross the river.

On the right Gen. Hildyard's brigade displayed equal heroism succeeded in entering the village of Colenso but the sixth battery encountered a murderous fire and was compelled to retire leaving guns and ammunition and wagons on the veldt. The brigade was also obliged to fall back.

Meanwhile Gen. Barton's brigade also failed to take possession of Hlangwane Hill as was intended; and the entire force retired on Chevieley. Gen. Clery was in command.

Sterkstroom, Cape Colony, Dec. 14

Gen. Gatacre has issued a proclamation forbidding all persons living on farms to move about the district or to visit Sterkstroom except on Saturday and then only with passes, under pain of summary arrest. It is understood that the proclamation is directed partly for the prevention of the conveyance of news regarding British movements.

London, Dec. 19

A despatch to the Daily Mail from Frere camp, says that the bodies of two of the guides who misled Gen. Gatacre of Stormberg were found on the battle field. The men had been shot.

London, Dec. 18

A despatch to the Daily Mail from Naauwpoort, Cape Colony, dated Dec. 16, says:—"The Boers brought a big gun to bear on the British near Vaar Kop. The British pieces were too small to reach the enemy and after an intermittent artillery duel Gen. French withdrew under shell fire, but without losses, to Arundel.

London, Dec. 19, 4.30 a.m.

The War Office has been in communication with Gen. Sir William Lockhart, commander-in-chief in India, with a view of ascertaining what troops can be spared from his forces, and it is understood that as a result of the inquiries a force will almost immediately leave Bombay for Durban, including four regiments of seasoned troops with an ammunition column and a brigade of artillery, including horse and field batteries. It is hoped that this force will reinforce General Buller within a month.

The Duke of Connaught visited the War Office yesterday. Since the appointment of Lord Roberts as commander-in-chief in South Africa, the question of rank no longer bars the Duke from going to the front, and as he has a strong desire to go, it is believed that only the Queen's reluctance stands in the way. It is not unlikely that this will be overcome.

Lord Chesham, commanding officer of the Royal Buckingham Yeomanry, has been authorized to organize a force of 3,000 Yeomanry, who will proceed to the Cape. The Yeomanry forces sent out will be drafted so as to work together with the mounted infantry and mounted militia from Canada and Australia.

It is understood that the volunteers selected will not form a separate corps, but will join their linked battalions of the regular force in South Africa.

Throughout the country volunteers are responding with the utmost alactrity to the official notice.

Lord Lonsdale says he believes the Government will only accept from 20 to 50 men from each yeomanry regiment. It is asserted that many officers of the volunteer regiments are offering to go as troopers if not accepted as officers.

The Times says editorially—"Lord Roberts will have absolutely a free hand and may be expected to resume the original plan of campaign abandoned by Gen. Buller under the necessity of relieving Ladysmith.

According to a despatch from Cape Town Gen. Sir Charles Warren and his staff have started for De Aar. This seems to indicate that the fifth division will be sent to reinforce Lord Methuen, a decision which will meet general approval, as the opinion is almost everywhere held that it would be useless to waste any more time by frittering away men between the various columns.

The Morning Post in rather alarmist article, remarks upon the difficulty of deciding such a crucial matter, and says—Besides three generals in the field, all of whom need to be reinforced, there is rebellion in Cape Colony to be considered. This makes four pressing calls on the fifth division. The trouble is, who is to decide and on what principle?"

The Morning Post, reviewing the various positions of the beleaguered garrisons, asserts that the relief of Ladysmith is the most important emergency, and that a victory in Natal would change the whole face of affairs. It also points out the urgent need of having the navy in readiness to move at any moment to protect the line of communication with South Africa, suggesting that, "a quarrel with some foreign power might come any day without British intention to have one."

A SECOND CONTINGENT ACCEPTED.

Ottawa, Dec. 18.—Lord Minto has received a cable from Mr. Chamberlain, accepting Canada's offer of a second contingent.

The force will be fitted out without delay, and will consist of mounted infantry and good shots, with probably a battery of artillery.

No mention is made of a definite number, but the force will probably be as before, one thousand strong. The Cabinet is now considering detailed arrangements.

CABLE INTERRUPTED.

New York, Dec. 18.—The Commercil Cable Company to-day issued a notice which contained the following—"We are advised that the cable between Mozambique has caused interruption of the Delagoa Bay cable; houses have been blown down and ships in the harbor have been wrecked. The test station was unroofed, but the instruments were saved."

BOERS WERE PREPARED.

New York, Dec. 18.—Paris despatches tell of the arrival there of M. De Long, manager of the dynamite factory at Modderfontein, Transvaal, who says the British Government has no idea of the vast extent of the preparations the Boers made for the war that they knew would come. He characterizes the forts at Pretoria and Johannesburg and Edelber as being as strong as any in the world, and says that the Boers have plenty of artillery. He says also that there are in the Boer army 8,000 well trained German volunteers, who so far have been held in reserve."

Dead Bodies Are Needed.

New York Dec. 18.—During a discussion on the subject of cremation by the Brooklyn Philosophical Society yesterday, Mr. P. S. Seneby gave his fellow-members' nerves a shock by declaring our bodies were needed for fertilization. Mr. Seneby said he had prepared some figures to show that nature required all that matter coming from the earth should be returned to earth. He quoted figures to show that if cremation, instead of interment, had been general in the United States 1,575,000 tons of matter that belongs to the land would have been distributed in the air. He contended that at the rate matter was being dumped into the sea it only required cremation by law to make it a question of centuries only before the water would cover the land.

Recount in West Elgin.

St. Thomas, Dec. 18.—A recount of the ballots cast in the West Elgin bye-election on Dec. 12th will commence on Wednesday at 2 p. m., at the court house, before His Honor Judge Ermatinger. The recount of course is being made at the request of Mr. Macnish.

Seats Towards Greenway.

Winnipeg, Dec. 18.—Thomas Greenway has captured one, if not both, of the constituences in which elections were held last week. In Dauphin Mr. Burrows, the Liberal candidate, has a majority of 450, with three polls to hear from, and in Gimli Mr. Baldwinson, Conservative, is only 11 ahead, with two polls yet to be reported.

France and China on Verge of War.

Tacoma, Wash., Dec. 18. — Hong Kong mail advices state another Franco-Chinese war is imminent over the delimitation of French "leased" territory at Kiang Chou Bay on the Tonkin border. Marshall Su, China's most famous general, and the victor of the battle of Liang Shan in the last Franco-Chinese war, was sent to Kiang Chou Bay with 30,000 well drill troops. He bore special orders from the Empress dowager to uphold the Chinese cause, and fight if necessary without further orders from Pekin. A skirmish between Chinese and French troops followed his refusal to longer temporize over boundary negotiations. Half a dozen Frenchmen were wounded and sixty Chinese. Marshal Su is preparing for a big fight.

In Touch With Aguinaldo.

New York, Dec. 18.—A Manila despatch to the Herald, dated Sunday, says among the numerous valuable records of the insurgent government which have been captured by the Americans, are letters found among the rebel archives which declare that Auginaldo has had the active moral support of prominent anti-expansionists in the United States, General Otis will forward these important papers to the War Department in Washington.

Heavy Fog in New York.

New York, Dec. 18.—A heavy, vicious fog hung over Greater New York this morning and acted as a deterrent to all kinds of transit. Ships outside had to remain there and traffic on the rivers and bay, aside from the ferry boats, which brought people to business from one to two hours late, was practically at a close.

Incited to Murder.

Ottawa, Dec. 18.—Hon. David Mills has received from the sheriff of Brandon additional information regarding the case of Hilda Blake, the murderess, who is sentenced to be hanged on Dec. 27. As already stated in this correspondent, the convict has alleged since her condemnation that a certain man who wronged her promised to marry her if she murdered her mistress, Mrs. Lane. This story was disbelieved, but it was stated by the convict that she had documentary evidence in the form of letters from the man in question to the effect indicated. Hon. David Mills has ascertained by telegraph that these letters do in reality exist, and has telegraphed to the sheriff of Brandon to send them to Ottawa immediately. They should arrive by Tuesday, and upon the opinion formed on them by the Minister of Justice will depend very largely whether Hilda Blake's sentence will or will not be carried out.

Suicide's Body Found.

London, Ont. Dec. 18.—The body of Edward Dyer was discovered in the Thames at the rear of the Victoria Hospital yesterday afternoon by some boys playing on the river bank. Dyer was a laborer, about 65 years of age, and had been a patient at the hospital for a week. On Tuesday evening last he was missed, and a diligent search revealed no trace of his whereabouts. Bronchial troubles was the cause of his going to the hospital. The day before he left the hospital he told Dr. McCallum, by whom he was employed some months ago as a coachman, that he would never get better, and he seemed very despondent. Occasionally during his stay at the hospital Dyer left to visit friends in the city and the officials paid little attention to his coming and going. No inquest will be held.

Safe Blowers at Work.

Hamilton, Dec. 18.—The office of the warehouse of the Rosemary Company Macnab street south, was broken into some time Saturday night or yesterday morning, the safe blown open, and $150 or $200 in money, besides drafts cheques, etc., were stolen. The discovery was made by Charles Laury when he went into the office yesterday morning. The burglars tried to get into the office through the back door but it was securely bolted, and they pried open the front door. They blew open the safe with powder, and helped themselves to the contents. The door was badly smashed, and was some distance from the safe. It is thought the job was done by experienced safe blowers.

THOSE TURBULENT FENIANS.

Mr. Joseph Chamberlain's Visit to Ireland Almost Provokes a Riot.

Dublin, Dec. 18.—Extraordinary precautions were taken by the police to guard Hon. Joseph Chamberlain when he landed on Saturday night. The announcement that he was to receive a degree from the Dublin University almost produced a riot, and as personal harm to the Colonial Secretary was feared the public was not permitted to see him. Dense bodies of police and soldiers yesterday guarded the avenues and approaches to Beresford place, where a pro-Boer meeting was held. Great cheering greeted every allusion to British reverses in South Africa. The cavalry was obliged to keep back the crowd and a riot seemed imminent.

Maud Gonne, the so-called "Irish Joan of Arc," and Mr. James Connolly, the Irish Republican, drove in a waggonette to the place appointed for the meeting, which was attended by a large crowd. Mr. Connolly tried to speak, but was prevented by the police. The waggonettet hen made a tour of the streets, the crowd rapidly increasing, cheering for the Boers, singing "God Save Ireland," and "We'll Hang Joe Chamberlain on a Sour Apple Apple Tree." They used disgusting expressions against the Queen, the Empire and the army. While passing Dublin Castle the occupants of the waggonette waved the Transvaal flag defiantly whereupon the police stopped the vehicle and seized the flag.

The wagonette, attended by a large body of police, who often cleared the streets, then drove to the rooms of the Irish Transvaal Committee, where Messrs. Michael Davitt, William Redmond and J. O'Bridn were waiting. A meeting of about sixty persons was held. Messrs. Davitt, Redmond and O'Brien speaking in violent condemnation of the war and of Mr. Chamberlain, and declaring that the latter's visit to Ireland at such a moment was proof of his callous nature. The speakers urged that, should an opportunity occur, Dublinites ought to show their destation of the Colonial Secretary in unmistakable fashion.

Mr. Davitt said—

"All Irishmen rejoice in the triumphs of the Boers. No power in Europe would now fear Great Britain except perhaps the Prince of Monaco.

Mr. Redmond said—

"Mr. Chamberlain deserves not doctors, but executioners."

Finally a resolution, proposed by Mr. Davitt, was carried, denouncing the war and calling upon the powers, particularly the United States, to take steps to secure the independence of the Boer Republic. While Maud Gonne was speaking somebody shouted a reference to theP hoenix Park murders. The chairman and Mr. Davitt warmly protested, however, that no violence should be shown. The meeting closed amid tremendous cheers, evoked by a rumor that Ladysmith had fallen. Maud Gonne and Mr. Connolly drove off with the intention of holding open air meetings, but the police arrested Mr. Connolly.

The authorities have taken measures to prevent disorders while the degree is being conferred upon Mr. Chamberlain. It is feared, however, that the Trinity boys will provoke a demonstration.

HUNDREDS WANT TO FIGHT THE BOERS.

War Office Besieged With Enthusiastic Volunteers for Service in South Africa.

BOERS DO SERIOUS DAMAGE TO A RAILWAY.

Blow Up Portion of the Road Two Miles North of Modder River—England Cheered by the Appointments of Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener.

London, Dec. 18.—A despatch to the Central News from Modder River says the Boers blew up the railway two miles north of the British position on Saturday afternoon.

London, Dec. 18.—There is immense enthusiasm here among the volunteers ready to go to Africa. Thousands are offering their services. Half of the Honourable Artillery Company has offered to go.

MORE CHEERY TONE.

London, Dec. 18.—"Bobs," as Lord Roberts of Kandahar is familiarly known, is a name to conjure with in Great Britain, and that Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener are considered the right men to relieve the disastrous situation in South Africa is amply evidenced by th emore cheery tone of all the war discussion this morning. In spite of the attempts of the authorities to gloss ov erthe supercession of General Buller the fact remains that new appointments cannot be regarded as otherwise than the penalty for his failure. A semi-official communication says:—"The disposition to regard the change as a reflection on General Buller is entirely erroneous. As the forces engaged in South Africa increase officers of higher rank are naturally appointed to the supreme command."

To Save the Empire.

The communication then instances the successive steps from General Symons to General White and Buller, and now to General Roberts. In spite of plausibility of the argument, every one recognizes that it is not the whole truth. The friends of General Buller see in the headlong plunge of the Cabinet as a suspicious panic, and they picture hasty conclaves and the Ministers with blanched faces telegraphing to Roberts and Kitchener to come and save the Empire. While these are overdrawn there is no denying that the prodigious exertion which the Government considers necessary to crush the two little Republics shows that even sedate Lord Salisbury sees the extreme gravity of the present aspect of affairs. Probably the Ministers remembered the peril which the public seem to have forgotten of a possible rising of the Kaffirs. Indeed, unpleasant rumors are already current in this direction. Such a contingency would be infinitely more serious than a rebellion of the Dutch.

KITCHENER LEAVING OMDURMAN

Cairo, Dec. 18.—General Lord Kitchener, who has been appointed chief of the staff of General Lord Roberts of Kandahar, the new commander-in-chief of the British forces in South Africa, will leave Omdurman, Tuesday and, will arrive here Friday. He will start for Cape Town as soon as possible.

NO TRUTH IN REPORTS.

London, Dec. 18.—The Associated Press has been officially informed that the Queen is in excellent health also that there is no indication of the surrender of Kimberley.

A report of the death of Queen Victoria, and a rumor that Kimberley had surrendered were circulated on the London Stock Exchange to-day.

IGNORANT CRITICISM.

New York, Dec. 18.—George Wyndham, England's Under Secretary for War, is credited as being the man who has stirred up the British Cabinet to action, in the face of the crisis in the Transvaal's affairs, says the Tribune's London correspondent, and adds that Lord Lansdowne and Sir Michael Hicks-Beach have now ceased to thwart the plans of the more energetic Ministers.

Military men lay stress upon Gen. Buller's order for retirement of the army to the camp when the battalions were eager to continue the fight for the recovery of the guns, as convincing proof of the prudence of his leadership. They also resent the idea that the batteries were deliberately entrapped in broad daylight, or that General Buller was responsible in any degree for this accident. They assert that generals in the field are exposed at home to ignorant criticism and charged with neglecting precautions for protecting their men when they adopt approved scientific methods of saving life.

Foreign military attaches in London consider the criticism to which the British army is now exposed from the continental press as ignorant.

SHELLED BOER TRENCHES.

Modder River, Dec. 15.—The Ninth Brigade under Col. Pole-Carew, the Grenadier Guards, and a squadron of the 12th, made a reconnaissance this morning, supported by the 75th Battery howitzers on the centre and right and four naval 12-pounders on the left. A 4.7 naval gun on the right opened fire at 5.20. While the brigade deployed across the plain the howitzers shelled the Boer trenches and searched the ridges, the naval guns doing the same.

The Boers unmasked two guns, one of which was dismantled by the naval guns, and the second of which it was impossible to touch. No one was killed although a shell fell in the middle of four of the Northumberland Regiment, causing all to fall, but when the smoke cleared away it was seen that the men were marching as though nothing had happened.

All the troops returned to camp. There were no casualties.

Gen. Methuen directed the operations from horseback. His wound is almost well. He intends to conduct operations from here to the northward. The camp is fortified and forms an excellent base.

DO NOT BLAME BULLER.

London, Dec. 18.—Military men do not hold Gen. Buller responsible for the loss of the guns, nor do they consider "entrapped" an accurate word for describing the accident which befell the artillery. They lay stress upon Col Long's neglect of ordinary caution in carrying guns along the river without previous reconnaissance or scouting. Veterans assert that this would not have been done in a sham battle at Aldershot, and that every practical manual on artillery tactics lays down as an elementary principle that scouts and cavalry must go over the ground first in order to find out whether it is safe for guns to follow. Col. Long is described as carrying his batteries in a slap-dash manner along the river where the enemy was known to be in force, and suspected of being concealed. Yet he was one of the most experienced officers of the Royal Artillery.

BURYING BRITISH DEAD.

Modder River, Dec. 15—delayed in transmission.—Mutual arrangements were made by the British and Boer commanders by which the British dead were to be buried on Wednesday and Thursday. The Boers stipulated, however, that only a clergyman of the Reformed Church should officiate and that the British should not come within 600 yards of their lines.

Mr. Robertson, the Presbyterian chaplain of one of the Highland regiments, was selected to conduct the burial services. He took 20 engineers with him and started for the scene of the battle of Magersfontein. They were blindfolded when they reached the Boer outposts.

TO RECONSTRUCT THE CABINET.

New York, Dec. 18.—The situation is regarded so grave in England that a reconstruction of the British Cabinet is being discussed in political circles, according to the London correspondent of the World. The retirement of Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, is not only demanded, but in some quarters, the sacrifice of Goschen, Chaplin and Cross, considered old and useless, is urged. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Chancellor of the Exchequer, is criticized for failing to supply sufficient funds for the war in the beginning.

It is asserted that should the war continue much longer without a decisive British success the formation of a national coalition Ministry is certain, with Lord Roseberry as Foreign Minister and probably Mr. Asquith as Colonial Secretary, Lord Roseberry retaining the Premiership but giving a proportion of the portfolios to the Liberal Imperialists. The reasons given by those demanding a change in the Ministry are based on the fear of continental interference.

FAILURE NOT FINAL.

London, Dec. 18.—The Morning Post today prints the following from its military expert—

"Buller's battle cannot be followed except in a vague general way. His despatch does not pretend to be more than a statement of results. Buller's purpose at present is to relieve Ladysmith and join hands with General White. To do that he must cross the Tugela. His failure on Friday was complete, but not final. An advance will probably be delayed until a fresh arrival of artillery."

IN THE HANDS OF GOD.

New York, Dec. 18.—Relating an interview with the Boer senior commandant after the battle of Stormburg, the Journal and Advertiser's correspondent with General Gatacre's column quotes the commandant as saying concerning the Boer victory—"How can we doubt that it is the hand of God. Taken completely by surprise and no idea the British were coming to attack us, our first intimation of their approach was the arrival of their men within easy range of our best position. Yes, it was surely God's work."

WORLD AGAINST BRITAIN.

Chicago, Dec. 18.—If Great Britain is ultimately successful in South Africa, the powers of the world will unite to resist successfully her advance. Coalition will be favored against British domination and when this war of the nations comes which side will the United States take? We must take one side or the other. Yet, I say, we never have got into a scrape that we did not get out of. And, as a prophetic American, I tell you we never shall." The foregoing statement was made by Dr. E. Benjamin Andrews, former president of Brown University, and now superintendent of the Chicago public schools, in his address on the "War in South Africa," at the Bethel African Methodist Episcopal church last evening.

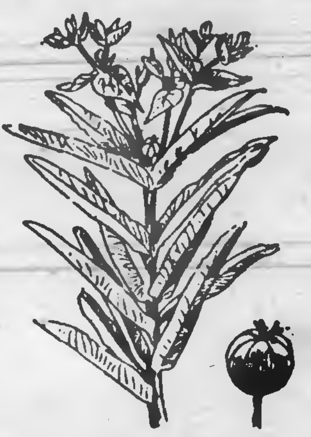
THE CAPER SPURGE.

Its Story as Told in Bulletin No. 86 of the United States Department of Agriculture.

This plant is called also garden spurge, myrtle spurge, mole plant, mole weed, mole tree, gopher plant, wild caper, caper bush, wolf's milk, and springwort.

Description and Where Found—This is a smooth, herbaceous, milky-juiced perennial, two to three feet high, with a stiff erect stem and opposite four-ranked leaves, the lower of which are thick and oblong, the upper, thin, broad and heart-shaped. The flowers are greenish yellow and rather small. The three-seeded fruit is conspicuous. It is a common garden plant, sparingly introduced into wet ground in California and Texas, and in the Atlantic States from New Jersey and West Virginia and North Carolina.



CAPER SPURGE.

(A, Upper Half of Plant, One-Third Natural Size; B, Seed Capsule, Natural Size.)

Poisonous Properties.—The fresh milky juice is exceedingly acrid and the fruit is highly purgative and poisonous. When used as a household remedy it often provokes serious trouble. Women and children are not infrequently poisoned by handling the plant and getting the juice on the face. Cattle are quite resistant to its influence, but they are sometimes overcome. Goats will eat the plants extensively if nothing better presents itself, and it is said that their milk then possesses all of the venomous properties of the plant. When applied to the skin the juice causes redness, itching, pimples, and sometimes gangrene, the effect often lasting more than a week. The seed taken internally in overdose will inflame the mouth and stomach, and cause intense diarrhoea and vomiting. If the dose is sufficient there will be nervous disorders, unconsciousness, general collapse and death.

AN EFFECTIVE SKUNK TRAP.

Plan Whereby Any Handy Boy Can Make One Handily

Skunks are a nuisance about a farmhouse or barnyard, and where they get into the habit of raiding the chicken yards, must be gotten rid of at any cost. Often they are allowed to make and occupy nests in the vicinity of the barn or house and remain undisturbed on account of the disagreeable consequences an interference would bring about. The average man would rather beard the lion in his den than risk an encounter with a skunk. A pair of these animals made their abode beneath the floor of a neighbor's summer kitchen and as the floor was not tight, got into the habit of coming into the room above. The farmer captured them by use of the trap shown in the illustration.

A small-sized dry goods box, not so large but it can be easily carried, is fixed with a trap door, which is attached to a lever connected with a trigger in such a manner that when sprung the door will drop. The box can be carried with its captive to a safe distance, where the odor will not be disturbing, and the prisoner shot or dispatched by a trusty dog.

The illustration shows the trap ready set. The trap door, a, is attached to a lever, b, which rests on a fulcrum at c. The other end of the lever is fastened to the trigger, d. The trigger passes through the Liberals Want Recounts.

THE HOME DOCTOR.

Cocoanut oil thickens and darkens the eyebrows.

A raw egg swallowed will detach a fish bone in the throat.

A good cure for corns is to rub them night and morning with a piece of ordinary sandpaper. If this method is persevered in, great relief is at once obtained, and the corns will gradually disappear.

"A good stout toothbrush, plenty of water and some antiseptic dentifrice applied morning and night," says one who has given much thought in the interests of antiseptic purity, "will afford a greater safeguard against many diseases than most people are aware."

THE NEW SPAIN.

About the worst that can be said of Spain now is that it is the Washington Baseball club of nations.—Chicago News.

Nothing seems to be said about what Spain is going to do at the Paris exposition. It might at least make a display of mananas.—Council Bluffs Nonpareil.

Now that we are friends with Spain once more, she may give us the contract of building her new navy. She has reason to know that we build a fairly good article of warship.—St. Louis Republic.

BLISTERED BY DOCTORS.

For Heart Disease Without Help—Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart Relieves in Fifteen Minutes.

Mrs. O. Ward, of Magog, Que., was a great sufferer for years from heart disease. Physicians blistered her and gave her other treatments without relief. She read in the papers of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart. She procured a bottle of it. Fifteen minutes after the first dose she had relief. Before taking this remedy she had constant spells of suffocation and fluttering, and severe pains about the heart, and was so weak that the act of sweeping the floor caused her to faint. She continued using the remedy until she had taken six bottles, and to-day she is as well as ever she was. Sold by Ormond & Walsh and H. S. McDonald.

MANITOBA WHEAT.

It Is Five and a Half Millions Less Than Calculated in August—Seventeen Bushels an Acre.

Winnipeg, Dec. 12.—(Special.)—The Provincial Government crop bulletin was issued to-day, and gives a summary of the yields of various crops in the province: Wheat—Area in crop 1,629,995 acres, yield per acre 17.13 bushels; total yield, 27,922,230 bushels.

Dairy products—Butter, dairy, 1,354,240 lbs., value $186,552.25; creamery, 1,002,809 lbs., $189,626.68; cheese, factory, 848,587 lbs., value $86,950.16.

Mistaken Estimate in August.

In the August Bulletin the estimated wheat yield was 33,504,766 bushels. This was considered at the time a conservative estimate, as a greater yield than 20.56 bushels per acre, as reported, was generally expected. The actual yield, however, has been less. The Government estimate has not been realized. The principal causes of shrinkage were a period of drought in August, when the wheat was filling, and the ravages of the Hessian fly. The most promising fields, especially on summer-fallow, from which 30 to 35 bushels per acre were expected, only yielded 20 to 25 bushels per acre. The shrinkage from the work of the Hessian fly is estimated at from 5 per cent. to 30 per cent. of the crop. The damage was most serious in the Red River Valley. The sample of the wheat is good, grading 1 hard, 2 hard, or 1 northern, although a few cars in some districts are frosted. The absence of weed seeds in the grain is specially noted.

What He Really Owed.

"Doctor," said the grateful patient, seizing the physician's hand, "I shall never forget that to you I owe my life."

"You exaggerate," returned the doctor mildly. "You owe me only for 15 visits. That is the point which I hope you will not fail to remember."

SELL MATURED STOCK.

There's No Profit in Keeping Cattle or Hogs After They Have Been Fattened Fairly Well.

There is no profit in keeping any kind of stock when they have been fattened for the market; the retention of cattle or hogs that have reached a point where every ear of corn serves only to maintain their present condition is unwise and unprofitable. When they are fat sell them; you cannot afford to continue feeding them in anticipation of higher prices, regardless of the cheapness of the feed. If a hog is fat and ready for market at 200 pounds sell him, as no appreciable gain can be made after this period has been reached, on the other hand there is some danger of the animal going back, or losing fat; so it is best to place the stock on the market after the finishing touches have been put on, and yield not to the temptation, which is a strong one, to hold on for better prices, which may and may not be received.

If cattle and hogs have been judiciously fed and are of good breeding they will nearly always bring a remunerative price and pay handsomely for the labor and expense involved in their preparation for the market.

Another thing—the local buyers who visit you every week or two to get stuff to send to Chicago, St. Louis or Kansas City and who of course make considerable profit thereby, should be sent to "the other fellow," as any farmer can ship his own stock, cattle, hogs and sheep, just as cheaply as the local buyer can, and thus secure the profit which the latter usually receives. He may not have a load, but the buyer may be confronted with the same difficulty; then the thing to do is to see a neighbor or two who may have stock to ship and thus make out the car load. It pays to save money wherever possible; this is one of the places where it is possible. The reason many farmers do not act in this regard as advised is that the little trouble of getting a car, loading the stock and caring for it during shipment frightens them and they are content to sell to the local buyer at less money than undergo the trouble and receive higher prices.—Farmers' Voice.

Woes of Millionaires.

An English millionaire has just been adjudged incapable of looking after his property. He imagines himself the Prince of Wales.

Some years ago a rich merchant took the idea that he was penniless. His sons, to stop his worrying, assured him they had rescued his business and was to continue it. They offered him a clerkship at a small salary in his own office. He took it and kept at work nearly 20 years. When he died, he left nearly $15,000,000.

Two English millionaires were noted for their parsimony. One picked up and smoked cigar ends. The other, after fine receptions in his house, would go around carefully collecting candle ends to be used again. Neither of these men was insane. Both were shrewd in business.

Another millionaire imagined for a considerable time that he was a squirrel, and would eat nothing but nuts.

Another was too parsimonious even to buy himself a warm overcoat. Some of his friends made him a present of one, and he promptly sold it at secondhand and pocketed the money.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Was Hanged Over Again.

G. W. Stevens, who traveled extensively in India, tells the following interesting story: A Pathan was being hanged, when the rope broke. The warder bade him go up on to the scaffold again, but he objected. "No," he said, "I was sentenced to be hanged, and hanged I've been."

"Not so, friend," argued the warder; "you were sentenced to be hanged until you were dead, and you're not dead."

It was a new view to the Pathan, and he turned to the superintendent. "Is that right, sahib?"

"Yes, that's right."

"Very well. I didn't understand," and he went composedly up the steps and was hanged again like a man.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

New York has established a state college of forestry. One of its labors will be to replant the tracts denuded of pine and other valuable conifers. It set out a large area this spring and is rearing 3,000,000 seedling pines for future use.—St. Louis

SECOND CORPS FROM CANADA.

Sir Wilfrid Sees the Governor General and the Cabinet Meets.

Ottawa, Dec. 18.—There was quite a stir in the city to-day when it was bulletined that the Imperial Government had accepted the offer of the Australian Government for a second contingent.

Major Hurdman, Captain Arnoldi and Lieut. Morrison waited on General Hutton and renewed the offer to send to the Transvaal the Ottawa Field Battery. The General said that he would lay the matter before the Government.

Sir Wilfrid was sent for by the Governor-General this forenoon, and it is understood that the subject discussed was a second contingent. Canada's offer for a second contingent is now in the hands of the Imperial authorities and all that is necessary is a notification of its acceptance and it will be at once forwarded.

The Cabinet Council was called for 2.30, when the matter will be fully discussed.

Quebec, Dec. 17.—The orders received yesterday from Ottawa, at the Militia Stores Department in Quebec, to prepare 1,000 carbines such as are served out to cavalry and artillery were expected, and from information received from official sources they are already executed.

A thousand of the Lee-Enfield rifles for the infantry, carbines for artillery, and cavalry, 3 Maxim guns, and also all the equipments necessary are already in order at the armories, and at the disposal of the department of militia.

It is understood that A. and B. Batteries, Royal Canadian Artillery, will be called upon this time to make part of the second Canadian Contingent.

Every soldier of the permanent force of artillery seems to be disposed to enlist, and it is stated here by men who are supposed to know something in the matter, that the names of seventeen hundred men have already been sent to Ottawa for the second contingent.

A SIMPLE LITTLE MIX UP.

How It Helped One Man at the Expense of Another.

How a bunch of roses sold a couple of high priced railroad tickets is the basis of a queer little comedy of errors enacted the other day at a leading city hotel. Among the guests of the house was a wealthy Texas merchant who was en route with his wife for a visit to New England. The Texan has a local business representative here in the person of a hustling young man about town, who was especially anxious to make the stay of his principal as pleasant as possible. Accordingly he rushed to a florist's as soon as he saw the names on the register and ordered him to put up the [illegible] bud in the shop and send them over to Mrs. Blank at such and such a hotel. In his hurry he forgot to leave his card for inclosure, and, supposing it was omitted intentionally, the florist proceeded to prepare a magnificent bouquet, which he dispatched forthwith by messenger.

It so happened at the moment the flowers arrived that a city passenger solicitor for one of the north bound roads had just handed over his card to be sent to the Texas gentleman's apartment, and quite naturally the pasteboard and the roses went up together. The visitors were both astonished and pleased. "This is certainly a princely way of soliciting business," exclaimed the merchant, examining the flowers. "Why, these things must have cost all of $10. Show the gentleman up."

The solicitor was shown up, received most cordially and given an immediate order for through transportation both ways. He departed, chuckling merrily, but a little dazed by the facility of his deal and puzzled to understand the many references to his "courtesy" and "thoughtfulness."

An hour or so later the local representative dropped around and was met by his employer in the lobby. The greeting was painfully matter of fact, and not a word was said about the flowers. The young man was greatly chagrined and began to believe he had made a bad break. Next day he accompanied the couple to the depot, and incidentally something was said about the route.

"We decided to go this way on account of the gentleman who called to sell us tickets," explained the lady. "He was so courteous and pleasant! Why, would you believe it," she continued, "he actually sent me an enormous bunch of beauty roses with his business card!"

Light dawned on the local representative, and he groaned. In his pocket was a florist's bill for $12.75.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A JUMPING TOOTHACHE.

How It Won Its Victim Credit For Bravery In Battle.

"It was a toothache," said the veteran, "that won me a reputation for daring at the battle of Bull Run. That was the only fight I was ever in where I didn't wish I could find a hole to crawl into. All this talk about coolness on the eve of battle is nonsense, invented by people who have never been there or old soldiers whose tongues get away with their memories. Our men and officers were as brave as any in the war and made good records, but they all had the ague and longed for sick leave just about the time the bullets began to fly. But I had the toothache for two days before that battle, and if there is an aggravation on earth that will make a man want to hit his best friend in the face that is it.

"On the night before the fight I did not sleep a wink. The old tooth got to jumping like a goat, and I couldn't have suffered more from an amputated leg. I was also furiously mad. I felt that I'd either got to bolt for the rear in search of relief or encourage some rebel to put a ball through my head.

"We'd been waiting in battle line for an hour, and the boys had grown white and were all choked up. I had been entirely occupied with the old tooth, and the first thing I knew the fight was on. We were holding them in check, but that didn't suffice me. As I got hold of my gun and pulled the handkerchief off my jaw I yelled out for the boys to follow, and we struck a whole brigade and whirled it around and sent it back half a mile. I felt that I could lick the whole of Lee's army for an hour or two! They told me that I yelled and dodged death a thousand times, but I remember nothing but the jumps of that tooth. When they stopped, or for what particular reason, I could never say, but after a couple of hours I came to myself, as it were, and was being complimented on all sides, and the jumps had ceased."

True Boston Culture.

"Fifty cents for this beautiful little vase," called the auctioneer. "Going, going for 50. Do I hear 55 for this beautiful little vase?" and no one thought anything about the auctioneer or the vase which went for 50 cents until another one was put up, an immense affair of cloisonne. "Now we will show you an exquisite piece, not to be duplicated in this country," he went on. "An exquisite cloisonne varse"—and there the Wellesley girl said excitedly to her companion:

"Now, that is what I call true Boston culture. Would you expect a man of that kind to make such a delicate distinction? He must have been educated at a woman's college. When he is selling a 50 cent article, he says vase in the ordinary way, with the long sound of the 'a,' but when he comes to a big piece of cloisonne it is varse, with the broad 'a' every time. That is according to rule. Over $10 in price you find a varse, but under that nothing but an ordinary, everyday vase."—New York Times.

Crocodile Tears.

The expression "crocodile tears" can be found in almost every European language, but it is doubtful if one in a thousand of those who use it have an idea of its origin. We are told in the Bestiary of Guillaume le Clerc that when the crocodile finds an unwary traveler it devours him, but afterward weeps over him all the rest of its life. This is very evidently the allusion in "Othello," "Each drop she falls would prove a crocodile" (1, 257).

There is another version of the fable, however, which is more often referred to in literature, and according to which the crocodile sheds tears in order to allure the traveler to destruction. Shakespeare alludes to this in the passage where he tells how

> With sorrow snares relenting passengers.
> —"2 Henry VI." 1. 226.

COPPER MINING STOCKS

For several months shrewd investors have been putting their money into the shares of Copper Mines. This is true not only of men with large amounts of money at their disposal but also applies to those who have made a study of investments with a view to securing a large return for small investments. As high as THREE AND FOUR HUNDRED PER CENT. has to our knowledge already been realized on some of these investments. Americans were the first to make a specialty of Copper Stocks. They knew what they were doing, for the reason is not far to seek. Every Copper Mine in the world is at present taxed to its utmost limit to meet the growing demand for copper for electrical purposes. The reserve stores of copper are being depleted until it pays no longer to use copper in some eastern countries as a coin. Copper has gone up in price from 9c to 18 cents. The supply of Copper from the mines of the world to-day is only about 80 per cent. of the consumption. That is the reason why financiers have their engineers searching the four quarters of the globe for Copper Mines, and that is the reason the shares in promising copper companies are so eagerly picked up by investors.

If you have any money to invest we would ask you to consider the shares of the SUPERIOR GOLD & COPPER COMPANY, LIMITED. This Company owns and operates some valuable native copper properties. We are in a position to offer you a special opportunity in this stock which as an investment should give you a profit of at least 100 per cent in six months. Send for prospectus and particulars.

Occasionally we have an opportunity of giving our clients a special offer on some stocks, and we have this opportunity now. If you are interested write to us at once. These shares are sold in large or small blocks to suit buyers.

We deal in all legitimate mining shares on commission. If you want to buy or sell write us.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. THE BOXER'S FINISH.

ONE BOUT THAT SETTLED HIS PUGILISTIC AMBITION.

He Didn't Know the Man He Ran Up Against Until He Came Back to Consciousness, After Having Seen a Large Display of Stars.

"When I was much younger," said the portly government official, "I was a husky young fellow, chesty and easy about my pugilistic ability. I got the boxing bee in my bonnet and practiced hard with the gloves every night. I had been sparring with fellows in my gymnasium for about six months and picking up what I thought was a whole lot of cleverness, when I moved to a boarding house on Pierrepont street, in Brooklyn. I had a room on the top floor of this boarding house. The top floor's rooms were all occupied by young fellows like myself—law and medical students, newspaper chaps and that sort. It was rather a scapegrace lot, and I got acquainted with most of them immediately. I had a lot of athletic gear along with me—clubs, dumbbells, weight pulling machines and stuff—and from the jump I gave these floor mates of mine to understand that I was some considerable pumpkins as an athlete. When I showed 'em my boxing gloves, I was particular to dwell upon the fact that boxing was my one particular graft, and I think I modestly threw the hint out that I'd never yet met a man of my weight that could put the gloves on with me in the amateur class. For a couple of nights running I let them look at me in the act of punching a bag I had suspended from the ceiling of my room, and they all agreed, I think, that I'd be rather an unsafe proposition to get addled up with in a scrap.

"One of the occupants of that top floor was away when I struck the house, and he didn't return until I had been in the house for about a week. When he got back, the other fellows introduced me to him. I didn't catch his name at the time, but he didn't strike me as being a very cheerful chap, and I rather ignored him. Well, all got to talking on my favorite subject, sparring, after awhile, and I invited any of the fellows present to put on the gloves for a little 'go' with me.

"'I won't hurt you, you know,' said I. 'I'll just tap you lightly, and you can hit me as hard as you want. It's raining, and I don't want to go to the gym tonight, and I wish one of you ducks 'ud just slip 'em on with me.'

"I didn't quite understand what they all meant when they exchanged glances and pushed forward the man who had been away since my advent in the house and whom I had just met.

"'Go on and put 'em on with him,' they urged this man. 'He won't hurt you. You've had the gloves on once or twice, anyhow, while none of the rest of us knows anything about boxing. Go ahead and give him a little exercise.'

"'All right,' said this man rather reluctantly. He looked just like an ordinary man with his coat on, and I felt that he would be dead easy as a subject upon whom to practice and to show the other fellows what I knew about the fine points of the game. When he returned from his room, however, stripped to his trousers and his gauze undershirt, I couldn't help but look at the chap. For a man of ordinary size he had the hugest chest I had ever seen, and his arms and shoulders were simply knotted and twisted with muscles. He was as quiet spoken a duck as ever I saw, though, and he didn't look to be lively on his feet, so we went at it.

"Well, say that was a one man bout, and the other fellow was the one man. There was nothing to it but him. From the very minute that we squared off I could see by the way he handled his dukes that the boxing game was his'n and that I was like six lead nickels in comparison with him. He just fooled with me at first—rapped me here and there at will, adding insult to injury by quietly announcing where he was going to jolt me next—and I never got in a lick or a dab on him. I tried my dernedest when I saw I was totally outclassed to get in just one belt at him somewhere or other, but it was no go. He had a lightning guard for every essay I made to crack him one, and after about five minutes I was puffing like a tree toad and still taking whacks all over my hide, while he was as cool as a cucumber.

"'You're pretty good,' I gasped when we took a momentary rest. 'You've been at this game often, haven't you?'

"'I've had 'em on a few times,' he replied quietly. 'Let's have another short go.'

"Then we went at it again. He fiddled around for a minute, and then he caught me one with his left fist right under the chin. I went sailing up into the air—I saw enough stars to have gone sailing right up among 'em—and I was out when I came down—good and out, as clean a case of knocked out boxer as ever happened in a prize ring. It was fully ten minutes before I came to, and when I did the other fellows were all fanning me and rubbing my head with ammonia and wondering if I was a sure enough dead 'un. I was all right after I got my head under the cold water spigot, and then one of the fellows took me into the center of the gang and said to me:

"'Maybe you didn't quite catch the name of the man you boxed with when you were introduced to him, hey?'

"'No, I didn't,' said I. 'Who is he—John L. Sullivan?'

"'Not exactly. Mr. Ford, step up and shake hands again. This,' went on the young fellow doing the introducing, addressing me, 'is Malcolm W. Ford, the champion all around athlete of America. He has held that title for three years, earning it each year in competition with the best men in the whole country in athletic games. He holds the record for the running broad jump, the standing high jump, the pole vault, hammer throwing, shot putting, and he's among the best in the world as a 100 yard sprinter. He's all right.'

"'Yes,' said I. 'I think he is—even if he is a party to this awful job on me,' and we shook hands. When the gang saw I was game enough to take my roasting good naturedly, they let up on me. But my pugilistic ambition wilted absolutely from that night."

POLITICAL QUIPS.

The presidential bees have gathered very little honey thus far in the campaign.—Los Angeles Express.

It is coming to pass in this country that it is almost libelous for a newspaper to call a man a politician. It is the imputation that he is guilty of things criminal.—Binghamton Herald.

Some people are so miserly one can't even have a joke at their expense.

A married man says the jaws of death are not to be compared with the "jaws" of life.

They Keep Moving.

The religion of a Bedouin tribe seems to be to "move onward." Having once begun the nomadic life, it becomes almost necessary for them to keep it up. In the first place, they don't want to settle down, and they wouldn't have any place to stop if they wanted to. Sometimes it becomes expedient that they make great haste in these long journeys. Wandering around over the plains are other tribes whose only occupation is "moving on." There is frequently enmity between two of these Arabian families, and should one pursue the other it behooves the pursued to hasten onward with all the speed their animals are capable of. Or it may be that the springs of water are so widely separated that hard travel is necessary to make the distance from one to the other in a day.

When either of these contingencies arises, they cook and eat while on the march. They don't eat much. Two or three dinners such as American boys and girls are used to every day and something extra for Sundays and company are supposed not to agree with Bedouin children's stomachs. When on the road, bread is their chief food. This is baked while riding. One woman will mix the coarse flour which is carried in a sack on the back of her camel, another will roll and shape the dough, which is brought to her in small quantities, and a third will make a fire in an earthen vessel and attend to the baking. Women or boys on foot run along from one cook to the other and carry the material, and when the feast is ready they distribute it among the various members of the tribe.

For the Navy.

London, Dec. 16.—Arthur Loring, secretary of the Imperial Federation Defence Committee, in a letter to the Times referring to the speech of the president of the Ottawa Bank at the annual meeting of the shareholders, says that when the president of the largest financial institution of the capital of Canada goes out of the way to state that Canada not only ought to, but is able to, contribute to the maintenance of the Royal Navy, we may be sure that action of this kind is not far distant.

The portion of the speech referred to begins with the very great prosperity of the bank and ends with the direct proposition of an annual contribution to the cost of supporting the British navy.

A WARM RECEPTION.

He Arrived Home Too Soon and Did Not Make a Good Impression.

This resident of Alfred street came home at the end of one week instead of three, as he intended when he started on his business trip. He had his valise in his hand and rang the doorbell with a vim.

"Pity you couldn't bring a gong with you," snapped the sour faced maid who answered the call. "What's the sense of makin such a racket? We don't want anything today." And she slammed the door in a way that showed she didn't mind noise if she made it.

"Open that door!" shouted the angry owner.

"Go on, now. We don't buy nothin of peddlers, we don't. I has my orders. Quit kickin that door, or I'll telephone for the police. Don't you think you kin skeer me. Git a chase on yourself."

"Let me in at once. I'm the proprietor of this place, the husband of your mistress."

"That's a likely story, sich a lookin ole frump as you are. Make yourself scarce now fur a baldheaded ole fraud."

He was ten times madder, because he is 15 years older than his pretty wife, and jumped up and down on the veranda while he shouted, waved his valise and vowed all kinds of vengeance.

Before he was placid enough to see straight the virago was upon him with a flatiron, and there was nothing for him but ignominious flight. He was just well under way when his wife appeared from down town and called a halt. Of course he sailed into her for having such a girl, gave the maid five minutes' notice, went through the house like a storm and could only smile the sickliest smile when he saw the new servant scudding through the back gate.

FULTON'S STEAM WARSHIP.

The Recommendation to the Government Signed by Noted Men.

It is interesting in the light of the achievements of our navy in recent years, especially those of the splendid fighting machines propelled at the rate of 20 miles an hour, to read the following report made during the war of 1812 on a proposition made by Robert Fulton to build a steam vessel for the protection of our harbors and seaboard cities:

NEW LONDON, Jan. 3, 1814.

We, the undersigned, have this day examined the model and plans of a vessel of war, submitted by Robert Fulton, to carry 24 guns, 24 and 32 pounders, and use redhot shot, to be propelled by steam at the speed of four to five miles per hour, without the aid of wind or tide. The properties of which vessel are: That, without masts or sails, she can move with sufficient speed; that her machinery being guarded she cannot be crippled; that her sides are so thick as to be impenetrable to every kind of shot, and in a calm or light breeze she can take choice of position or distance from an enemy. Considering the speed which the application of steam has already given heavy floating bodies, we have full confidence that, should such a vessel move only four miles per hour, she could, under favorable circumstances, which may always be gained over enemies' vessels in our ports, harbors, bays and sounds, be rendered more formidable to any enemy than any kind of engine hitherto invented. And in such [illegible] she would be equal to the destruction of one or more seventy-fours or of compelling her or them to depart from our waters. We, therefore, give our decided opinion that it is among the best interests of the United States to carry this plan into immediate execution.

STEPHEN DECATUR,
J. JONES,
I. BIDDLE.

On this report is the concurrence of S. Evans, O. H. Perry, L. Warrington and J. Lewis.

Proud of Him.

When he was 50, he returned to his native town "just to see how the old place looked." He found it unchanged. The old store, where as a lad he had clerked it and sold calico and groceries to the old farmers, was just the same. He contrasted the sleepy old place with himself and felt a glow of satisfaction when we thought how much those 30 years had done for him. "They ought to be proud of me," he said to himself.

Presently he met one of the old inhabitants.

"Waal, I declare, is it really you, Hank?" said the old man incredulously. "We've heard you've been prospering fust rate since you went west. They've made you a railroad president or suthin of the sort, ain't they? I heerd so, but I couldn't believe it. It's really true, is it? Waal, all I've got to say is they must be purty hard up for railroad presidents out there."

He took the next train for the west.—

HE LOST HIS BEST GIRL.

And All Because He Couldn't Master the Trolley Car Walk.

"Going in and out of a moving street car gracefully ought to be part of a modern education in deportment," said a man about town. "It is one of the most difficult feats in the world and something at which 999 out of 1,000 are almost certain to make themselves ridiculous. I am peculiarly interested in the matter because it has resulted in a falling out with my best girl.

"About a week ago I got on board a St. Charles avenue car this side of Lee monument and saw her sitting next to the door, in front. Of course I started in that direction, smiling and raising my hat as I did so, and just then the car took the curve around the base of the monument. I made three or four idiotic lunges, grabbed the empty air and dived head first into a fat old gentleman who was reading a newspaper. I must have knocked the breath out of the poor old chap, for he gasped like a fish, but I was on my feet in a minute and would have made the rest of the trip to the end all right if the confounded curve hadn't been what is called a 'reverse'—that is to say, it crooks first one way and then the other like a letter S.

"I started on my second heat exactly in time to catch the upper crook, and I promptly repeated my original performance with variations. I wound up the act by falling over the knees of a stern looking matron in spectacles, and she remarked in a tone audible to all hands that she couldn't understand why drunken men were permitted to ride with respectable people. The young lady was scarlet with mortification, and to avoid compromising her I sat down on the other side.

"In a moment or two my hated rival sauntered in as gracefully as a dancing master and immediately monopolized her society. The fellow was broke once in the north and did a couple of months as a conductor, so he is on to the curve, and since the episode I have described he has frozen me completely out. As I said before, the trolley car walk ought to be part of every gentleman's education. It's as necessary as dancing."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

THE DESIRE TO JUMP.

An Unexpected Sensation Experienced by Many Persons.

Many persons who visit Niagara falls find they have a great desire to leap from various points on the several bridges or from one of the numerous points of observation. For this reason, after once having experienced the fascinating sensation that coaxes them on to death in the deep and rapid running waters, they never go near any of the seductive points without being in company with some one who will guard them from harm as a result of what perhaps might be termed by some their weakness.

Many people who have visited Niagara have confessed that the waters of the beautiful river had a weird fascination for them while standing in places where death would be easy by simply letting go one's hold and slipping into the river, and people saved from suicide there have admitted that they knew no reason why they should end their lives, but the scene was so delightful that it coaxed them to seek the peace of death there.

In other places than at Niagara the public comes in touch with folks who, when on an elevation, have a proneness to jump off, and for this reason they keep away from all such danger points. An interesting explanation of this desire is that given some years ago by Professor Lowe of the army balloon corps. He had frequently invited a newspaper correspondent to make an ascension with him, but each time the invitation was declined.

Later he told the professor of the temptation he had to jump from high places and that he feared making an ascent. For this he was laughed at, the professor stating that the reason people had such desires was that they were full of electricity; that the magnetic current in the earth was the attraction, and that what he was standing on carried the current. He also said that when up in a balloon the continuity was cut off. Finally the man made an ascension and found that the desire to jump was not present. It is a curious statement.—Philadelphia Record.

Big Things In Providence.

Providence has the largest silverware factory in the world, the largest screw factory, the largest manufactory for small tools and the largest file works. Perhaps it is especially unique in producing more jewelry than any other city in the United States and nearly as much as all the rest of the country combined. There is no city which possesses so many separate and distinct shops for the manufacture of a single commodity as Providence does for the manufacture of jewelry. There are at least 250 separate factories devoted to the making of gold, silver, rolled plated, electroplated and brass jewelry and novelties. In addition the auxiliary industries for furnishing supplies of special labor to the jewelry factories number more than 75. Many of the jewelry shops are small, employing only ten or a dozen hands, while some employ as high as 300 and in one case 1,400.—Nashville American.

Breaking Mainsprings.

The statement is made by many jewelers that it is their experience that they have many more mainsprings of watches to repair after a warm, humid day than at any other time. Others believe the breaking to be due to electric disturbances, stating that after an electrical storm they find that many of their customers bring their watches to them for repair. The sudden cooling and consequent contraction of the tightly wound watch spring, or main spring, caused by the removal of the watch from the body on a cool night following a warm day, is believed by some to account, in a measure, for the accidents in question. So far, however, no entirely satisfactory explanation of the difficulty has been suggested even by the most expert workmen in this line.

THE POULTRY YARD.

Fat fowls are small boiled birds, and it will not pay to raise them for their flesh.

Do not hatch bantams too early. Small size is desirable. Hatching in August will give the best results.

Lack of shade in hot weather and too much exposure in the sun are often prolific causes of disease.

Clean earth is a first class disinfectant and purifier. As long as it is dry it can rarely be used to excess.

Until your experience and accommodations warrant confine yourself to one or two well known varieties.

"Go! You Are Free!" If you were in prison and a good spirit suddenly opened the door and said "Go: You are free!" you wouldn't stop to ask whether the key that opened the door was the regulation pattern or not. If it opened the door, that is enough. Thousands of women who are sick and suffering might speedily be made strong and well again if it was not for an unreasonable prejudice against any but so-called "regulation" methods.

"Three years ago I was almost gone with womb trouble," says Mrs. Jennie J. Jackson, of Fergusson's Wharf, Isle of Wight Co., Va., in a letter to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. "I tried many different medicines and got no better until I tried Dr. Pierce's medicines. The first bottle gave me ease. I have taken six bottles and I feel as well as ever in my life.

"My doctor did not have any faith in 'patent medicines' but he says 'something has done you good.' I know if I had not taken Dr. Pierce's medicine I could not have lived long as I was nothing but a skeleton. I was so thin in flesh that it hurt me to lie down. Now I am well, and can work hard all day and do as much walking as I ever did, and sleep well all night. I can never be thankful enough for the good, Dr. Pierce's medicines did me."

Dr. Pierce is a regular graduated and educated physician. He has had a more practical life-long experience with all forms of women's diseases than any other doctor in this country. His "Favorite Prescription" for female complaints is the most marvelously effective remedy for this purpose in the world.

Suffering women need not hesitate to write to him. All letters are held sacredly confidential and free advice will be sent by mail in plain sealed envelope.

Constipation is a little illness that if neglected builds a big one. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation.

An Unprofitable Gone.

Last summer a friend presented us with a tortoise. I do not know whether our dog had heard of turtle soup or whether he regarded the creature as a new kind of bone that walked about; at any rate, he determined to eat it.

Whenever the tortoise started out on a constitutional down the garden path Gyp arrested it and carried it into his kennel, where he gnawed at the impenetrable armor till his jaws ached.

The calm and philosophical manner in which the tortoise resumed its interrupted promenade irritated the dog exceedingly, but no failure discouraged him. Whenever we reminded him of the tortoise, he would go in search of it all round the garden, peering into every crevice, till eventually the creature was found, and then fresh but futile attempts were made to extract the meaty portions from the shell.—

Met With an Accident.

Mr. H. Mowry, engaged in the Peter Hamilton works, met with an accident yesterday. His left hand came in contact with a plainer he was operating, and the little finger was severed from the hand and the other fingers badly lacerated. A Recommendation.

Traveller, to the versatile and popular proprietor of the Snowden House, "What's that you are taking my friend?" Mr. Snowden: "It's snuff—catarrh snuff." The traveller: "Is it good? I'm troubled somewhat that way myself." Mr. S. "Well, I've had catarrh for forty years, and I never took nothing for it but this." The traveller goes to bed without another word.

A Vicious Personal Attack.

We were rather surprised to read the Review's editorial in yesterday's paper dealing with ald. McWilliams' candidature for the Mayoralty. Our venerable contemporary does not often fly into a temper. The present excitement appears to be occasioned by the fact that Ald. McWilliams is likely to gain the Mayor's chair unopposed. As everyone knows, Mr. McWilliams is a Liberal in politics, and a fact which settles him in the opinion of our contemporary. As regards Mr. McWilliams being a servant of the Government, this does not debar him from exercising his rights as a citizen. The Review which now so bitterly refers to Mr. McWilliams in this connection, evidently forgets that it supported Mr. Cahill, another Government official, for the Mayoralty only a few years ago. It then saw no harm in a citizen holding an office under the Government and filling the position of Mayor at the same time. But Mr. Cahill was a Conservative and Mr. McWilliams is a Liberal. Mr. McWilliams, like all men, has his faults. But one thing he is not guilty of. He is not afraid to do his whole duty, regardless of consequences. In his fearless attitude in defence of the people he ran foul of the Town Solicitor, and it is in defence of the solicitor that the Review is worked up and attempts to make a case against him. The Times will venture the assertion that if it is known that Mr. McWilliams is to be opposed in his campaign for the Mayoralty on account of his hostility to the methods of the Town Solicitor, then his election is doubly assured, no matter who his opponent may be.

Glass Blowers Are Winners.

Their entertainment proves refined and instructive. On account of not being able to handle the people last week, they will stay another week, and promise to give away much finer presents than they did last week. As their glass did not come until late on Saturday night they were unable to make up big presents. It is a moral and instructive exhibition for ladies and children, as well as gentlemen. Prof. Mitchell and his orchestra will furnish the music the balance of the week. Send your children in the afternoon and avoid the rush at night. After school is out is the best time for children. Admission, 10 cents; your presents free of charge.

The Times in Line.

The Times heartily commends the idea of giving an entertainment in aid of the Red Cross Fund for the soldiers in South Africa to be given in Peterborough. Local talent will cheerfully lend their assistance to such a cause and an entertainment in aid of such a fund will be largely patronized. One suggestion was that the entertainment given by the Kings Daughters in the opera house the other evening should be repeated. This is an easy way of providing an unusually good programme, if the ladies and gentlemen taking part are willing. The Times will do all it can to promote the entertainment, or any similar one having the same object in view.

A Labor of Love.

Yesterday a paragraph appeared in the Times which might be taken as a reflection on the honesty of the members of the Town Trust Commission. Such is not the intention. The gentlemen who compose that body are above reproach, and no shadow of suspicion has ever fallen on them. In their capacity as guardians of the corporation's money they have always proved faithful to their trust, as far as we know. Mr. Moore, the chairman, desires the Times to state that the members of the Board receive no remuneration for their services whatever, and labor without reward or the hope of reward.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

Ald. McWilliams Drops to Third Place in the Contest.

J. H. McClellan Makes a Startling Jump in the Council Contest—Ald. Denne and Mr. Cressman well up.

The leading candidates for the Mayoralty up to three o'clock yesterday were—

R. M. Dennistoun	905
Ex-Mayor James Kendry	860

The leading nominees for the Council are—

J. H. McClellan	760
A. W. Cressman	750
Alderman Denne	720
H. C. Winch	710

The voting for the last two or three days has resulted in a complete change in the position of leaders. On the last count Ald. McWilliams was leading, with Mr. Wm. Cluxton a close second. To-day we find Mr. R. M. Dennistoun has climbed to the top of the position. Mr. Dennistoun is very popular in town, and it is not surprising that many ratepayers would like to see him in the Mayor's chair. Mr. Kendry comes next, and is a close second. Ald. McWilliams drops into third place. In the Council, there seems to be a disposition to bring out new men.

Ratepayer writes—"I enclose three ballots, marked for Dr. Neill as Mayor and Messrs. Sam Reid and Kelsey Hall as aldermen. These three can beat any full house in the land."

"Sam" says—"I want to see Ald. Langford run so that the people may have an opportunity of shewing their appreciation of his business methods in connection with town contracts. I therefore mark 2 ballots for him."

An "Old Subscriber" writes—I want to know who it is that says our town is going to the dogs? Haven't we got the largest and finest stores of any town in Canada? Are not our taxes as large as those of other places where municipal politics and private business is compared? I therefore, in accordance with the above, mark my ballots for Ald. Langford and Neill."

It is a Falsehood.

At the Council meeting the other night Ald. Langford stated that the Times was Ald McWilliams' subsidised organ. The word "subsidy" means "to give money" and when the worthy Alderman made that statement he uttered a deliberate untruth. So far as the Times is concerned it viewed with favor Ald. McWilliams' efforts to expose and punish wrong-doing, and took no pains to conceal its feelings in regard to it. In fact we considered that we would not have done our duty, were we to have remained silent under the circumstances. Later on when the judge sends in his report, we may have something further to say regarding this matter.

GEN. BULLER'S FORCE IS ON THE ADVANCE

A Fierce Artillery Duel Which Results in Boers Demolishing Many British Guns.

TEN THOUSAND MOUNTED INFANTRY WANTED.

British Government Decides to Mobilize a Mounted Infantry Force, Recruited From Yeomandry, Volunteers and Civilians, for South Africa.

Chieveley Station, Natal, Dec. 15.—The relief column continued its advance from Chieveley to-day, intending to assail the Boer position, which were known to be very strong to the westward and northwestward and north of Colenso. During the two preceding days the Boers had allowed themselves to be bombarded without condescending to reply with a single shot. They further gave half an hour's opening this morning without an exchange, when suddenly they belched out a stream of fire from all their entrenchments besides opening a fearful cannonade with all their quick firing guns, field and seige guns, which were posted from end to end of their positions. When their presence and actual positions had been determined the British naval brigade commenced shelling all the ridges north of the town with marvellous accuracy. At this time the artillery attached to Gen. Hart's division was busy among the entrenchments and the hills on the British left, under cover of which the Irish infantry brigade marched out in extended order to cross the River and attack.

Undoubtedly aiming at this battery, the Boers sent several shells near the ambulance train, which was forced to change its position.

While this was transpiring the field artillery on the right were busy shelling the ridges of the Boers left flank, their excellent practice attracting the attention of the Boers, who retaliated with a scathing fire almost demolishing all the guns and stampeding the gun-carriage horses.

London, Dec. 20—4.20 a.m.

The Government has at last consented to mobilize a force which General Buller is credited with having demanded all along as essential of success in South Africa, namely, 10,000 mounted infantry. This morning the War Office issued an order to the effect that the Government had decided to raise for South Africa a mounted infantry force to be called, "Imperial Yeomanry," and to be recruited from Yeomanry, Volunteers and civilians possessing the necessary qualifications. Enlistment will be for one year or during the continuance of the war. The men must be between 20 and 35 years of age, and of equal physique to the ordinary cavalry soldier. Officers and men are to provide their own horses and to wear neutral tint cloth shooting jackets, not necessarily uniform, felt hats, breeches and gaiters. All must be good riders and marksmen.

The same order invites every volunteer regiment that is linked with a regular battalion serving at the front to supply a full company which will take the place of the mounted infantry of the regiment.

This arrangement is expected to result in a considerable force. The enrolled strength of Yeomanry forces which originated in the troublesome times of the French Revolution, is 10,443. Their services have never been called for in war.

The Lord Mayor of London, Mr. Alfred Newton, is raising and equipping a force of one thousand volunteers from the city corps. The large city firms are contributing the necessary assistance. Colonel Sir Charles Howard Vincent, Commandant of the Westminster Volunteers, has also offered to raise a regiment of a thousand picked marksmen.

The enthusiasm of volunteer enlistments continues and promises to give the Government ample material.

Mr. Rudyard Kipling addressed a meeting at Rottingdean last evening, called for the purpose of forming a volunteer company.

WAR OFFICE IS SILENT.

London, Dec. 19.—The War Office declines either to confirm or contradict the report telegraphed by a correspondent of the Daily Mail that General Buller has crossed the Tugela river, and that General Methuen's communications have been cut.

CLOSING IN ON METHUEN.

London, Dec. 19.—There is still no information of Buller having crossed the Tugela. There is also no confirmation of the statement that Gen. Methuen's line of communication has been cut though there was known to be a probability of such an event occurring at any moment. The latest news from General Methuen, dated Sunday, indicates that the situation appeared to be a complete impasse. The Boers were gathering reinforcements and extending their fortifications on both his flanks, but it was believed that they would be unable to attack the British position. On the other hand it was regarded as impossible for the British to turn the Boer flank, which was resting on the river to the east and rapidly approaching the river to the west. The Boer lines of entrenchments are continuous and capable of rapid connection at many points.

AUSTRIA MAY MEDIATE.

New York, Dec. 19.—A Herald despatch from Berlin says that the Berliner Tageblatt is informed that the Austrian Government is inclined to offer its mediation in the conflict in South Africa. It is considered that the diplomatists of Europe, who only a few months ago signed the protocol of the peace conference cannot admit that the present useless loss of life which can only in the end be in favor of the black population, should continue. The Berliner Tageblatt, however considers the mediation would be premature. Germany at least has for the moment no intention of taking part in any step of the sort.

MONKS OF THE SABRE.

Paris, Dec. 19.—An article of M. de Pressense in the Temps is one continuous eulogium of English generals. Gen. Gatacre, the writer qualifies as a soldier of martial strength and swordsmanship. Commenting upon his conduct at the battle of Atbara and the march through the desert which followed it, the article says:

"Like other Generals, Gatacre belongs to the school of Kitchener — nearly all unmarried men. Silent, hardened, and energetic, these officers may be called the Monks of the Sabre in their fanaticism and force of purpose."

FOREIGNERS ARE EXCLUDED.

London, Dec. 19.—The War Office authorities have resolved not to allow foreigners permission to remain in the waiting lobbies at the War Office where the public have access to the posted war news. A Frenchman recently applied for permission to wait in the press lobby with the representatives of English journals in order to get the news for his paper in France, but he was politely informed that he could not be allowed to do so. A representative of one of the Berlin papers made a similar application last week, with a like result. This was no reflection on the individual asking, nor upon the journals in question, but it is felt that as England is now at war it is desirable to make a general rule against giving foreigners access to the War Office.

CANADIAN LOYALTY RECOGNIZED.

London, Dec. 19.—The most ample recognition is given in the press to the great outburst of loyalty in Canada, and the remarks of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the premier, and the Cabinet, as representative of both the English and French sections, are especially welcomed.

MORE MEN FROM INDIA.

London, Dec. 19.—4.30 a.m.—The War Office has been in communication with General Sir William Lockhart, commander in chief in India, with a view of ascertaining what troops can be spared from his forces, and it is understood that, as a result of these inquiries, a force will almost immediately leave Bombaby for Durban, including four regiments of seasoned troops, with an ammunition column and a brigade of artillery, including horse and field batteries. It is hoped that this force will reinforce General Buller within a month.

Lord Chesham, commanding officer of the Royal Buckinghamshire Yeomanry, has been authorized to organize a force of 2,000 yeomanry, who will proceed to the Cape. The yeomanry forces sent out will be drafted so as to work together with the mounted infantry and mounted militia from Canada and Australia. It is understood that the volunteers selected will not form a separate corps, but will join their linked battalions to the regular forces in South Africa.

Throughout the country volunteers are responding with the utmost alactrity to the official notice, and it is said that 200,000 men would be available to-morrow. Lord Lonsdale says he believes the Government will only accept from 30 to 60 men from each yeomanry regiment. It is asserted that many officers of the volunteer regiments are offering to go as troopers if not accepted as officers.

Enquiries among the Liverpool shipowners show that transportation for 10,000 men with horses and equipment can be ready before the men are prepared to start. The Government has chartered the Peninsular and Oriental Navigation Company's steamer Assaye, and the Goorkha of the Union line.

BOMBARDMENT OF LADYSMITH.

London, Dec. 19.—The Daily Chronicle's Ladysmith correspondent heliographed to Estcourt on Dec. 13 as follows—

"The bombardment continues, six-inch gun and thirty smaller ones are now firing on the town. The Boers are entrenching themselves and concentrating north and south."

VAALKOP EVACUATED.

London, Dec. 19.—According to the Daily Mail's Naauwpoort correspondent, who telegraphs under date of December 16, the British have been obliged to evacuate Vaalkop, their guns being outranged by the Boers' big gun. The evacuation was effected under a shell fire, which, however, did no damage. Vaal kop is the position won by General French during the defeat of the Boers near Arundel about a week ago.

METHUEN'S LOSSES 1,013

London, Dec. 19.—General Methuen's losses at Magersfontein are even greater than heretofore reported. On Saturday his total casualties were given as 963. Last night the War Office posted a revised list of the casualties in this battle, giving 51 additional killed, bringing the total up to 1014 killed, wounded and missing.

Injured by the Fall of a Hoist.

Toronto, Dec. 19.—Edward Murphy, of the firm of Murphy & Powers, patent cork manufacturers, at 105 Adelaide street west, was seriously injured at the factory this morning by the fall of the hoist. Mr. Powers was just about to follow his partner on the hoist when it gave away and he thus escaped the fall.

Murphy was partially paralyzed and sustained internal injuries. He was taken to the Emergency Hospital. He is about 35 years old and lives at 125 Rose avenue.

Lives Lost in a Fire.

New York, Dec. 19.—Seven lives were lost in two big tenement houses which were destroyed by fire in this city early today.

Five charred bodies were found on the upper floors of a burned tenement at 102nd street and Third avenue, known as the Mentor, and five women and a little girl, all badly burned, were carried alive from the blazing house to nearby hospitals. There was thought to be slight chance of any of the six surviving. Several other persons only escaped from the flames and dense smoke with cuts and bruises.

A few hours earlier a deadly fire attacked the five-story tenement No. 496 10th avenue near 38th street, burning to death a mother and her child. The charred remains of both were found after the fire was put out. The Harlem fire is supposed to have started in the cellar. The air shaft in the building and stairs aided the fire in gaining such rapid headway that there was no successful fighting of the flames, which had gained tremendous headway when the firemen arrived. The firemen did gallant work in rescuing the occupants of the boarding tenement, and but for their vigilance the loss of life would have been much larger.

New Sugar Trust

Dover, Del., Dec. 19.—The Colonial Sugar Refining Co., the alleged rival of the American Sugar Refining Company, was incorporated here to-day, with a capital of $100,000, with the privilege of increasing it to $100,000,000. The company is chartered to engage in the production of sugar in Cuba, Porto Rico and Hawaii. The refining is to be done by special process on the plantations.

How Did Koch Die?

London, Dec. 19.—W. T. Stead, in a letter to the Daily News tells this story of Philip Koch, a nephew of the Boer General Koch, in regard to the latter's experience at Elandslaagte: "The first of the wounded I happened on was Gen. Koch. He lay in a small tent entirely naked. He told me that an English soldier had come to him and robbed him of all the money that was in his trouser's pockets, of his watch and his clothes, excepting one coat. He also informed me that this person said he belonged to the Indian troops. The General was covered by a thin blanket lay on a small wet mattress. Although Gen. Koch was severely wounded, and Major Allthorn had promised that he should be allowed to return to Pretoria, where he would be well nursed. Gen. White refused to allow him to leave Ladysmith, as the detention of a general officer of his rank and distinction as a prisoner of war is of considerable value to the State. Gen. White represented that Gen. Koch died ten days after his wounds, on October 31st. His nephew says he died not so much from the wounds he received, as owing to the treatment he suffered in the first instance."

Tributes to Our Loyalty.

London, Dec. 19.—The most ample recognition is given in the press to the great outburst of loyalty in Canada and the remarks of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Premier, and the cabinet, as representative of both the English and French-Canadian sections, are especially welcomed.

NAVAL MEN CANNOT GO TO SOUTH AFRICA.

The First Lord of the Admiralty Says They Are Needed to Man the Ships.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—Mr. George J. Goschen, First Lord of the Admiralty, when distributing prizes to volunteers and riflemen in London last night said.

"The possession of 250,000 volunteers will be regarded by the country, I am sure, as a great element of security. The colonies also are prepared to do their share, and Canada and Australia are to the fore, welcoming the opportunity to go to the front." Enthusiastic cheering.

After praising the great services of the Naval Brigades assisting the troops in South Africa, and testifying to the constant anxiety of naval men to be in the thick of the fighting, Mr. Goschen said: "It is impossible to grant their desires, although these soldiers and sailors would be glad to go to South Africa in thousands, because when 120,000 regulars have left our shores the responsibility for the efficiency of our navy will be immensely increased. I believe the preparedness of the navy has contributed essentially to assist Britons to remain calm and confident despite the black outlook.

Mr. Goschen concluded with an eloquent tribute to the unanimity of the country and the colonists in supporting the country in a grave crisis.

MAJOR-GENERAL LAWSON WAS SHOT.

While Standing in Front of His Troops When a Bullet Pierced His Breast.

MANILA, Dec. 19.—Major-General Henry W. Lawton has been shot and killed at San Mateo.

He was standing in front of his troops when he was shot in the breast and died immediately.

General Lawton started from Manila last night, with cavalry under Captain Lockett and battalions of the 29th and 27th Infantry under Lieut.-Col. Sargent, for the purpose of capturing San Mateo, where Geronomo was said to have 300 insurgents.

It was learned at the War Department that instructions had been received last night from the President to prepare General Lawton's commission as a Brigadier-General in the regular army to fill one of the existing vacancies and the Adjutant-General's clerks were at work on the commission when the information of General Lawton was received.

CANADA WILL SEND OUT HER FIELD ARTILLERY

The Force Will be Divided Equally Between Field Artillery and Mounted Infantry.

CONTINGENT TO BE ONE THOUSAND STRONG.

The Dominion Cabinet Meets To Hear the Minister of Militia's Plans—Contractors Rushing Work on Uniforms for the Second Contingent.

Ottawa, Dec. 19.—Hon. Dr. Borden was seen by your correspondent this forenoon, and on being asked if he would be able to give out the composition of the contingent, replied that he would not say anything on the subject until he made his report to the Cabinet.

It is likely that a meeting of Council will be held this afternoon and immediately afterwards the program will be made public. However, the Militia Department is not idle, and everything is being rushed so that no time will be lost in outfitting and equipping the contingent.

Three Batteries.

Although no officiel information is to be had, it is said to be settled that the contingent will comprise one thousand officers and men; There will be three batteries, not two, as first suggested. It takes 168 to a battery, so this would mean about 500 or half of the contingent. There are two permanent batteries, and the third would be made up from the field batteries all over Canada.

The Mounted Infantry.

The other 500 will be mounted infantry, which will come from the permanent cavalry, who will go as mounted infantry and recruits from the militia and ex-mounted policemen, etc.

The contractors have their orders for clothing, and everything will be ready in time.

"A" BATTERY'S STRENGTH.

Kingston, Dec. 19.—"A" Battary likely to be selected for South African service, is 35 under strength. It has 193 in the force. It has 53 horses, but to be put on a war footing 78 will be required. It will be an easy matter to recruit up to the full strength.

Four of the officers are on special service, three in South Africa, Major Hudon is in command.

The Batterymen are proud of the chance of going to the front.

THOUSANDS OF ROUGH RIDERS

Edmonton, N.W.T., Dec. 19.—There is a strong feeling here in favor of a Northwest contingent for Africa, made up of mounted plainsmen and mountaineers. A first-class corps could be mustered. Col. Steele, who is a man of wide experience, is spoken of as the proper leader. He has had years of experience on the plains and in the Yukon, and has but to call for men and he would get thousands of rough riders, not only in Canada, but from the neighboring States of Montana and Washington, who as riders, riflemen, packers and frontiersmen could not be surpassed.

THE POSITION OF THE CABINET.

Ottawa, Dec. 19.—Canada will send a second contingent of not less than a thousand men to the aid of the Imperial forces in South CAfrica. This was decided at a Cabinet meeting yesterday, and Dr. Borden, Minister of Militia, issued immedate instructions to go on with the preparations. He has had most of the details ready for a month and more. From advices which he received from England, the Minister of Militia early came to the conclusion that if a second contingent of Canadians should be found necessary the Dominion's most valuable contribution would be in the form of cavalry or of mounted infantry and artillery.

Mounted Police to Go.

To a correspondent yesterday he said that the Mounted Police would be given a chance to go to the front. Three hundred of this force could be spared, Dr. Borden thinks, and it is not likely that that number will be exceeded. General Hutton completely agrees with Dr. Borden that the Mounted Police will do most valuable service in South Africa.

A Corps of Cowboys.

Before forty-eight hours are past Dr. Borden will have put another project into effect. Steps will be taken towards recruiting 300 prairie cowboys, men who can ride and shoot as well as any cavalry man in the world and who are used to getting along on rations of the scantiest. Many of these denziens of the prairies are cowboys only in name. Hundreds of them have served in the mounted police and have gone into ranching, either on their own account or working for someone else. They will jump at the chance of active service, and, which will be an exceedingly valuable point, will be able to furnish their own horses animals trained and hardened to the same privations that have been and will be successfully withstood by their masters.

The Recruiting.

The recruiting in the Northwest will be carried on at several points, probably at Regina, Calgary, Pincher Creek, Edmonton and Prince Albert. The mounted police who desire to enlist will be given their discharge on application, and the cowboys or ranchers will be enlisted at the same time. Regret is felt that so many of the mounted police are in the Yukon, but their presence at the gold fields is necessary, and, moreover, they could not be brought to the Northwest in time to join the contingent. The Royal Canadian Dragoons who remain at Winnipeg and Toronto will also be allowed to enlist, and should form most useful members of the contingent. They also are mounted on well-trained horses and are so well drilled as to make it possible for every man of them to instruct on shipboard the recruits from the Northwest.

Will Send Two Batteries.

Regarding the artillery branch, it is probable that A and B Batteries will be called on to go. In the time of peace these two batteries number 230 men, but their war strength is 300. Thus 70 men will have to be recruited. These will be selected from the various field batteries in the Dominion. Four additional officers will also be required, who will come from the same source. Major Robert Miles, of the 9th Field Battery, is likely to be one of this quartette, and Major Hurdman, of the Ottawa Battery, will probably be another. In all there have been 51 volunteers from the Toronto Field Battery, 70 from the Guelph Brigade and 60 from the Hamilton Battery. The other artillery organizations in Canada have done equally well, but the figures are not obtained at this writing. In the Militia Department there are offers of service from 1,000 officers and men of the Canadian militia.

Boers Fear the Lance.

As the Boers are said to have a healthy horror of the lance as a cavalry weapon, it has been decided that half at least of Canada's cavalry will be given this arm. The Royal Canadian Dragoons are already equipped with lances, as are the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards of Ottawa, and the 8th New Brunswick Hussars. Lieut.-Col. Domville, lately in command of the latter corps, to-day renewed his offer to join the contingent.

A Post With the Cavalry.

Dr. Borden stated last night that the list of officers had not been drafted. It is believed that Col. T. D. B. Evans, of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, who is now on his way back from the Yukon, will be given a post with the cavalry, and Supt. Lawrence Herchmer, of the Mounted Police, is also mentioned as a likely appointee. He was in the Riel Rebellion, and has seen to it that the men of the force have been kept up to the standard so far as scouting work and shooting are concerned. In South Africa he would undoubtedly be a very valuable man. The Militia Department estimate that the contingent can sail from Halifax or St. John within three weeks. Navigation at Quebec will be closed by that time. The contingent will have to go to the point of embarkation by the Intercolonial Railway, as the United States Government would object to our troops passing through Maine by the C. P. R.

The Manitoba Elections.

Winnipeg, Dec. 18.—The latest returns for the constituency of Gimli give Baldwinson, Conservative, 22 of a majority. The standing of the new House now is 22 Conservatives, 17 Liberals, and one Independent Conservative. It is not expected that the Greenway Government will "move out" until early in January. There is a rumor that startling disclosures in connection with the Rhineland election will be made public in a few days. V. Winkler, the member elect, seems to be in a state of somnambulism

They'd Bounced Britain's Friend.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—Public advocacy of Great Britain's side in the South African war by Dr. Andrews, superintendent of Public Schools in Chicago, was the cause of resolutions being introduced in the City Council last night, calling for his resignation, or his immediate suspension and removal from his position by the Board of Education.

The head of the Public Schools was subjected to a heated denunciation by Ald. Cullerton, the mover of the resolution. The resolutions were referred to the Committee on Schools.

Fraudulent Debtor in Jail.

Berlin, Ont., Dec. 19.—Hermann Winter, who was found guilty by a jury in the county Court here on the charge of defrauding his creditors was sentenced by Jude Chisholm today to a term of 11 months and 29 days in the Central Prison. He was also fined $500, and in lieu of its non-payment Winter will spend an additional year behind prison bars. Winter was in business here for about three months, during which a deficit of about $5,000 was accumulated. His explanation was that he had lost the money in gambling.

$4,200,000 for Them.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—E. P. and C. S. Karoly, two electricians, of Chicago, the sons of Dr. S. Karoly, have inherited an estate in Hungary valued at $4,200,000. Dr. Karoly was a relative of Count Alois Karoly, Ambassador to the Court of St. James, and ran away from Europe with Berinka Frank, an actress.

A Presentation.

Dr. A. Rose, L.D.S., was presented on Monday night, by the members of Otonabee Lodge, I.O.O.F., with an address of a very complimentary nature; expressing the esteem in which he is held by his brothers here and the sorrow which they feel over his departure for Toronto, where he will henceforth reside. The Times joins heartily in wishing Dr. Rose all sorts of good luck in his new home.

PETERBOROUGH, DECEMBER 14, 1899

MUNICIPAL LIFELESSNESS.

The lifelessness so noticeable in municipal matters in Peterborough appears to be by no means a local evil. The Times' exchanges from pretty well all over the province having the same complaint to make.

This is surely not as it should be. It is as natural for the man of intelligence to be ambitious as it is for a hen to lay eggs, and the most available and accessible outlet for these very creditable ambitions, is surely the municipal arena. The logical way for a man to come to the front is by stages. He cannot hope to straddle the ladder top without first climbing up the rungs. From private life to the city council, thence to the Mayor's chair and thence to the wider fields of provincial and Dominion politics is the natural routine for the man to follow who desires to serve his country and gratify the ambitions that dame nature has implanted in his breast. It is the best way, too, by all odds, for all concerned, for if a man is not a success as an alderman, his followers will hesitate before they send him higher, whereas on the other hand the man who proves his usefulness in the comparatively humble sphere of municipal politics will naturally get the call, all things being equal, when a vacancy comes up higher.

But if the citizens of Peterborough are ambitious they must be afflicted with the undesirable kind that tends to make people shirk the lower rungs in a vain hope of reaching the top by the balloon, or some other equally aerial route, for the silence that hangs over the municipal arena locally is almost thick enough to cut with a paper knife.

It is the fashion to rail at aldermen for their incompetence, wastefulness and extravagance, and the average alderman probably deserves all the censure that he gets, but it is surely hopeless to look for any great improvement in the administration of civic affairs while citizens, whose services would be worth having and who ought to have enough ambition to give those services, persist in sitting in their easy chairs at home and leaving to men of little or no ability a monopoly of municipal honors.

A BAD GAME.

A great deal is being made by anti-British papers of the reports that the British Lancers in following the Boers after the fight at Elandslaagte killed men who were calling for mercy.

The style of the men who were "calling for mercy" is illustrated by another story of the same fight, told by a British officer, who was shot down in the infantry charge which routed the Boers before the cavalry got at them. This officer, whose letter is published in the London Outlook of Dec. 2, writes—

"You can't imagine what brutes the Boers are. They are absolute savages Some of them were using elephant rifles with explosive bullets, some were using expanding bullets like our Dum Dum, which we gave up as we considered them (the Boers) a civilized nation. If ever I have a chance at them again I shall kill every one I can, even if he turns down his rifle, for that's what they did on Saturday when they saw the cold steel at their sheeks, and as soon as our fellows passed they picked up their rifles and fired at them from behind."

On the other hand, the British forces have as a rule given the kindliest treatment to Boer wounded and prisoners, and the Boer forces done the same to the British. On both sides there have been other doings, but you can not put a hundred thousand fighting men out against each other without some percentage being either ignorant or brutal. And war is a bad game at best.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The people of Canada cannot realize too soon that an imperial crisis is approaching. The flower of Britain's army has been defeated in three successive engagements with an apparently greatly inferior foe. Already a continental statesman has had the temerity to hint that if the British army has been over-estimated, its navy may not be so formitable after all. If that idea gain ground there is trouble ahead.

Smuggling the Plague.

New York, Dec. 18.—An anonymous letter has been received by Dr. Doty, health officer of this port, warning him that there are among the steerage passengers of a steamship due to arrive here to-morrow persons from districts of Trieste where the bubonic plague is prevalent who were smuggled on board the steamship after they had been examined and rejected by the inspecting physicians from the U.S. Marine hospital service. The letter is from Naples.

HUTCH AT OSGOODE HALL.

Alfred R. Symons, librarian at the Law School, Toronto, is one of those who praise Hutch's curative powers. Mr. Symons says that owing to the sedentary nature of his work he suffered for years with sour stomach, dyspepsia, and constipation. He endeavoured by every means to obtain relief, and did not spare expense. Prominent physicians were consulted, but at best only temporary relief was obtained. The same old misery came back stronger than ever. Mr. Symons was induced to try Hutch, and procured his first package at Harbottle's Drug Store, King street west. "I was a very much surprised man," said Mr. Symons, "at the sudden relief I obtained. I have been taking Hutch three weeks now, and I have not suffered any stomach distress whatever in that time. I am no longer costive. I am delighted with Hutch. It is a wonderful treatment."

THE Canada Business College!

CHATHAM, ONT.

CANADA'S GREATEST SCHOOL OF SHORTHAND AND BUSINESS

PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS SHOULD NOTICE

This institute has prepared over seventy teachers for other Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States, more than twice as many as all other Business Colleges in Canada, combined, have so placed.

The proprietors of five of the leading business colleges in Western Ontario, who are to-day among our strongest opponents in the field of Shorthand and Business training, received THEIR training under the Principal of this institution. Besides these, there are five others holding leading positions as teachers in Business Colleges in Ontario.

Since Sept 1st, seven of our pupils have accepted positions as teachers in Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States; another is now negotiating for a similar opening in a Business College in a leading American city, and there are five unfilled calls of this kind on hand still.

DOES IT NOT PAY TO ATTEND THE BEST? You must decide.

236 of our pupils secured good positions in seventeen months, and the good work of placing our students still continues.

Suicide's Body Found.

London, Ont. Dec. 18.—The body of Edward Dyer was discovered in the Thames at the rear of the Victoria Hospital yesterday afternoon by some boys playing on the river bank. Dyer was a laborer, about 65 years of age, and had been a patient at the hospital for a week. On Tuesday evening last he was missed, and a diligent search revealed no trace of his whereabouts. Bronchial troubles was the cause of his going to the hospital. The day before he left the hospital he told Dr. McCallum, by whom he was employed some months ago as a coachman, that he would never get better, and he seemed very despondent. Occasionally during his stay at the hospital Dyer left to visit friends in the city and the officials paid little attention to his coming and going. No inquest will be held.

Dead Bodies Are Needed.

New York Dec. 18.—During a discussion on the subject of cremation by the Brooklyn Philosophical Society yesterday, Mr. P. S. Senaby gave his fellow-members' nerves a shock by declaring our bodies were needed for fertilization. Mr. Senaby said he had prepared some figures to show that nature required all that matter coming from the earth should be returned to earth. He quoted figures to show that if cremation, instead of interment, had been general in the United States 1,875,000 tons of matter that belongs to the land would have been distributed in the air. He contended that at the rate matter was being dumped into the sea it only required cremation by law to make it a question of centuries only before the water would cover the land.

Recount in West Elgin.

St. Thomas, Dec. 18.—A recount of the ballots cast in the West Elgin bye-election on Dec. 12th will commence on Wednesday at 2 p. m., at the court house, before His Honor Judge Ermatinger. The recount of course is being made at the request of Mr. Macnish.

WANTED FIRE BELL CLOTHES.

He Just Made Up His Mind to Kill That Town of St. Joe.

"Ah'm come back home for some clothes, an Ah want 'em wahm," said a tall young negro to a Walnut street haberdasher one day last spring. "Ah'm jes' agoin to kill that town of St. Joe. Show me the heatedest clothes yo' got in the house."

He was not cool as to raiment to start with. His overcoat was cream colored, overlaid with pearl buttons the size of those small butter plates still in use in restaurants. His trousers were green and ended in yellow shoes with brown shot silk tops. His hat was light blue, mottled in brown; his gloves were red and his cane heavily silvered.

"Can't no St. Joe nigger tell me Ah come from Raytown," he muttered. "Ah goes up to St. Joe to work, and the coons there laugh at me and tell me Ah ain't from Kansas City, because mah clothes is so inconspicuous, and Ah just save up mah money, and Ah'm agoin back to kill the town. Now what I want is some underclothes and socks and shirts and things that are the wahmest you've got."

"How will these do?" asked the haberdasher, exposing some scarlet hosiery, banded with wide white stripes.

"That's it. That's the kind of clothes Ah want. They ain't nothin in St. Joe like that. Lemme look at them underwear."

He inspected some red underwear with white stripes, some of baby blue with pink stripes and others of green with blue, black and red stripes. He bought neckscarfs of every shade of red, blue and green and of the most bewildering patterns. His purchases included zebra collars and pale pink shirts, diamond scarfpins at 25 cents each, but with $25 of shine, and a brown waistcoat with scarlet moons emblazoned on it.

"Ah've got 'em dead," he exclaimed when he had finished. "They've ceased to live. When Ah get back to that town of St. Joe they'll ask me if I come from Raytown, will they? Ah'm agoin to take back to that little ole burg such wahm clothes that they'll meet me with the fish department. That town's dead now, and Ah've killed it."

How Wealth Is Carried.

"It is rather amusing," remarked the head of the biggest bureau de change in London to the writer, "to notice the various methods in which men of different nationalities carry their worldly wealth. The Englishman carries his all loose in his right hand trousers pocket—gold, silver and copper all mixed up together. He pulls a handful of the mixture out of his pocket in a large, opulent way and selects the coins he has need of. The American carries his wad of bills in a peculiar long, narrow pocketbook, in which the greenbacks lie flat; the Frenchman makes use of a leather purse with no distinguishing characteristics, while the German uses one gayly embroidered in silks by the fair hands of some Lottchen or Mina.

"The half civilized capitalist from some torrid South American city carries his dollars in a belt with cunningly devised pockets to baffle the gentlemen with the light fingers. Some of these belts are very expensive. The Italian of the poorer classes ties up his little fortune in a gayly colored handkerchief secured with many knots, which he secretes in some mysterious manner about his clothes. A similar course has charms for the Spaniard, while the lower class Russian exhibits a preference for his boots or the lining of his clothes as a hiding place for his savings."—London Answers.

They Keep One Eye Shut.

A recent traveler in Mexico, who visited the mines there during his journey, says that he was much astonished at seeing the men who carry the ore come out of the mine, each with one eye shut.

The foreman, seeing his surprise, explained the matter. He said the candles belonging to the taraterος (who drill and blast) do not give sufficient light in the drifts, where it is consequently quite dark, but where, nevertheless, the tarateros see well enough not to run their heads against the rocks, but, on emerging into daylight, they would be blinded did they not take precautionary measures.

For this reason, as they approach the mouth of the shaft, at the point where they catch the first glimpse of light they drop the eyelid of one eye and keep this down while they are discharging their ore and until they have redescended the shaft.

When they are again in the dark, they open the eye kept hitherto in reserve and at once see everything distinctly, while the other eye, previously open and somewhat blinded by the daylight, perceives nothing.

To Crisp Lettuce Leaves.

Do you know how to crisp lettuce leaves? A most simple process, but one rarely adopted judging by the wilted stuff we generally see served. A gentleman of the old school was my teacher, and while yet a mere maid I was promoted to the proud dignity of crisping the lettuce.

First carefully separate the leaves from the stalk, discarding discolored and imperfect ones and leaving untouched the tiny hearts; lay them all in cool, clear water for awhile, all morning if you choose; pick them over a couple of times before serving; wash one by one and lay in a wire basket if you have one; if not, a clean, soft towel will answer; gather the ends and sides loosely in your hand and lightly shake the lettuce; then put the leaves in a colander, which you set in the refrigerator, but not on the ice. Leave until needed, when you will find the lettuce deliciously cool and crisp enough to crack. Never cut the leaves. If very large, divide with the fingers into smaller pieces.—What to Eat.

France and China on Verge of War.

Tacoma, Wash., Dec. 18. — Hong Kong mail advices state another Franco-Chinese war is imminent over the delimitation of French "leased" territory at Kiang Chou Bay on the Tonkin border. Marshall Su, China's most famous general, and the victor of the battle of Liang Shan in the last Franco-Chinese war, was sent to Kiang Chou Bay with 30,000 well drill troops. He bore special orders from the Empress dowager to uphold the Chinese cause, and fight if necessary without further orders from Pekin. A skirmish between Chinese and French troops followed his refusal to longer temporize over boundary negotiations. Half a dozen Frenchmen were wounded and sixty Chinese. Marshal Su is preparing for a big fight.

COPPER MINING STOCKS

For several months shrewd investors have been putting their money into the shares of Copper Mines. This is true not only of men with large amounts of money at their disposal but also applies to those who have made a study of investments with a view to securing a large return for small investments. As high as THREE AND FOUR HUNDRED PER CENT. has to our knowledge already been realized on some of these investments. Americans were the first to make a specialty of Copper Stocks. They knew what they were doing, for the reason is not far to seek. Every Copper Mine in the world is at present taxed to its utmost limit to meet the growing demand for copper for electrical purposes. The reserve stores of copper are being depleted until it pays no longer to use copper in some eastern countries as a coin. Copper has gone up in price from 9c to 18 cents. The supply of Copper from the mines of the world to-day is only about 80 per cent. of the consumption. That is the reason why financiers have their engineers searching the four quarters of the globe for Copper Mines, and that is the reason the shares in promising copper companies are so eagerly picked up by investors.

If you have any money to invest we would ask you to consider the shares of the SUPERIOR GOLD & COPPER COMPANY, LIMITED. This Company owns and operates some valuable native copper properties. We are in a position to offer you a special opportunity in this stock which as an investment should give you a profit of at least 100 per cent in six months. Send for prospectus and particulars.

Occasionally we have an opportunity of giving our clients a special offer on some stocks, and we have this opportunity now. If you are interested write to us at once. These shares are sold in large or small blocks to suit buyers.

We deal in all legitimate mining shares on commission. If you want to buy or sell write us.

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

TURBULENT FENIANS.

Dublin, Dec. 18.—Extraordinary precautions were taken by the police to guard Hon. Joseph Chamberlain when he landed on Saturday night. The announcement that he was to receive a degree from the Dublin University almost produced a riot, and as personal harm to the Colonial Secretary was feared the public was not permitted to see him. Dense bodies of police and soldiers yesterday guarded the avenues and approaches to Beresford place, where a pro-Boer meeting was held. Great cheering greeted every allusion to British reverses in South Africa. The cavalry was obliged to keep back the crowd and a riot seemed imminent.

Maud Gonne, the so-called "Irish Joan of Arc," and Mr. James Connolly, the Irish Republican, drove in a waggonette to the place appointed for the meeting, which was attended by a large crowd. Mr. Connolly tried to speak, but was prevented by the police. The waggonette then made a tour of the streets, the crowd rapidly increasing, cheering for the Boers, singing "God Save Ireland," and "We'll Hang Joe Chamberlain on a Sour Apple Apple Tree." They used disgusting expressions against the Queen, the Empire and the army. While passing Dublin Castle the occupants of the waggonette waved the Transvaal flag defiantly whereupon the police stopped the vehicle and seized the flag.

The wagonette, attended by a large body of police, who often cleared the streets, then drove to the rooms of the Irish Transvaal Committee, where Messrs. Michael Davitt, William Redmond and J. O'Brien were waiting. A meeting of about sixty persons was held. Messrs. Davitt, Redmond and O'Brien speaking in violent condemnation of the war and of Mr. Chamberlain, and declaring that the latter's visit to Ireland at such a moment was proof of his callous nature. The speakers urged that, should an opportunity occur, Dublinites ought to show their destation of the Colonial Secretary in unmistakable fashion.

Mr. Davitt said—

"All Irishmen rejoice in the triumphs of the Boers. No power in Europe would now fear Great Britain except perhaps the Prince of Monaco.

Mr. Redmond said—

"Mr. Chamberlain deserves not doctors, but executioners."

Finally a resolution, proposed by Mr. Davitt, was carried, denouncing the war and calling upon the powers, particularly the United States, to take steps to secure the independence of the Boer Republic. While Maud Gonne was speaking somebody shouted a reference to the Phoenix Park murders. The chairman and Mr. Davitt warmly protested, however, that no violence should be shown. The meeting closed amid tremendous cheers, evoked by a rumor that Ladysmith had fallen. Maud Gonne and Mr. Connolly drove off with the intention of holding open air meetings, but the police arrested Mr. Connolly.

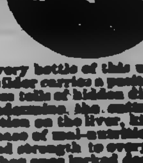
The authorities have taken measures to prevent disorders while the degree is being conferred upon Mr. Chamberlain. It is feared, however, that the Trinity boys will provoke a demonstration.

Safe Blowers at Work.

Hamilton, Dec. 18.—The office of the warehouse of the Rosemary Company Macnab street south, was broken into some time Saturday night or yesterday morning, the safe blown open, and $150 or $200 in money, besides drafts cheques, etc., were stolen. The discovery was made by Charles Laury when he went into the office yesterday morning. The burglars tried to get into the office through the back door but it was securely bolted, and they pried open the front door. They blew open the safe with powder, and helped themselves to the contents. The door was badly smashed, and was some distance from the safe. It is thought the job was done by experienced safe blowers.

VIVID • HEALTH

Nothing so rare as charity, easily impaired or deflected test—the envy of all and the grandest jewel in the crown of life is vivid health. Many a man has paid the forfeit of sickness for the gain of wealth. A loaded purse cannot atone for the deranged liver, the aching step, the rebellious stomach. Every pulse beat of impoverished blood carries weakness and disease. Gradually all nerve power leaves you and the fuel of life is gone. An empty sack cannot stand upright, and so Death gathers in his cheques.



Stimulants and Purgatives cannot cure you, but The GREAT INDIAN BLOOD MEDICINE must and will.

Every bottle of this universal blood maker and flesh builder carries a positive GUARANTEE. Evidence that none tells of hidden disease. A deranged stomach will undermine the entire system. CO-BO, in its direct action on the liver, kidneys and stomach, cures every phase of mal-nutrition, makes blood and carries fuel and strength to every tissue, and gives back health when once lacked death. CURTAIN RAISERS.

A new comedy called "Wheels Within Wheels" is expected to go the rounds.

Robert Drouet will play John Storm in "The Christian" with Miss Allen next season.

"Annie Rooney" is undergoing a revival in Paris to the temporary eclipsing of Dreyfus.

David Belasco has completed an original play which will be produced early in the season with a specially selected company.

An elaborate revival of Shakespeare's tragedy of "Macbeth" will be the feature of Frederick Warde's repertory next season.

It is unofficially announced that Rudyard Kipling is to write the fairy play to be produced at the London Lyceum next season.

Some German statistician has discovered that stage dancing is conducive to longevity. Taglioni lived to be 80 and Fanny Elssler to be 74.

Rose Coghlan has been re-engaged for her original role of "Mlle. Fifi" for next season, the piece to open its tour in August in Chicago.

Emma Calve's much talked of monument represents her as Ophelia, and the sculptor has promised to exhibit it at the Paris exposition.

Minnie Seligman will appear in the vaudeville houses in a one act play called "Therese," which has been done in Europe by Sarah Bernhardt.

In a play called "Wine, Women and Song," recently produced at the Princess theater, London, two demimondanes, armed with butchers' knives, fight to the death in a beautiful setting profusely decorated with flowers.

George Bernard Shaw submitted his new play, "Cæsar and Cleopatra," to Richard Mansfield, but as Shaw had required a 56-year-old baldheaded Cæsar to make love to a 16-year-old Cleopatra the manuscript was returned.

BEE BUZZES.

Beeswax is dark because of the impurities mixed with it.

All excess of drone comb should be removed from the hive.

Bees start to work earlier if the hives face the south or east.

It is essential during hot weather that the hives be well ventilated.

Avoid blowing your breath among the bees while handling the comb.

Dirt and filth accumulating on the bottom boards make a propagating place for the moths.

Bees reared in the spring and summer are shorter lived than those reared later in the season.

The swarming season usually begins about 10 or 20 days after white clover comes into bloom.

Bees will enter a cool hive much more readily than one which had been baked in the hot sun all day.

Honey properly kept will improve with age. The older it is the better it will be, but it must be kept dry.

All bees should be examined now and the hives thoroughly cleaned. No trash of any kind should be left on the bottom boards.—St. Louis Republic.

Proud of Him.

When he was 50, he returned to his native town "just to see how the old place looked." He found it unchanged. The old store, where as a lad he had clerked it and sold calico and groceries to the old farmers, was just the same. He contrasted the sleepy old place with himself and felt a glow of satisfaction when we thought how much those 30 years had done for him. "They ought to be proud of me," he said to himself.

Presently he met one of the old inhabitants.

"Waal, I declare, is it reelly you, Hank?" said the old man incredulously. "We've heerd you've been prospering fust rate sence you went west. They've made you a railroad president or suthin of the sort, ain't they? I heerd so, but I couldn't believe it. It's reelly true, is it? Waal, all I've got to say is they must be purty hard up for railroad presidents out there."

He took the next train for the west.—

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sung it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. In Touch With Aguinaldo.

New York, Dec. 18.—A Manila despatch to the Herald, dated Sunday, says among the numerous valuable records of the insurgent government which has been captured by the Americans, are letters found among the rebel archives which declare that Auginaldo has had the active moral support of prominent anti-expansionists in the United States, General Otis will forward these important papers to the War Department in Washington.

Heavy Fog in New York.

New York, Dec. 18.—A heavy, vicious fog hung over Greater New York this morning and acted as a deterrent to all kinds of transit. Ships outside had to remain there and traffic on the rivers and bay, aside from the ferry boats, which brought people to business from one to two hours late, was practically at a close.

Winnipeg, Dec. 18.—Thomas Greenway has captured one, if not both, of the constituencies in which elections were held last week. In Dauphin Mr. Burrows, the Liberal candidate, has a majority of 450, with three polls to hear from, and in Gimli Mr. Baldwinson, Conservative, is only 11 ahead, with two polls yet to be reported.

Incited to Murder.

Ottawa, Dec. 18.—Hon. David Mills has received from the sheriff of Brandon additional information regarding the case of Hilda Blake, the murderess, who is sentenced to be hanged on Dec. 27. As already stated in this correspondent, the convict has alleged since her condemnation that a certain man who wronged her promised to marry her if she murdered her mistress, Mrs. Lane. This story was disbelieved, but it was stated by the convict that she had documentary evidence in the form of letters from the man in question to the effect indicated. Hon. David Mills has ascertained by telegraph that these letters do in reality exist, and has telegraphed to the sheriff of Brandon to send them to Ottawa immediatey. They should arrive by Tuesday, and upon the opinion formed on them by the Minister of Justice will depend very largely whether Hilda Blake's sentence will or will not be carried out.

VINEGAR, THEN LEAD.

"I think my most exciting official experience," said Captain J. E. Stone, formerly United States postal inspector, "was at the town of Carbonville, Colo., in 1879. It was a star route post, and there was much complaint about the nonreceipt of mail, so I went over to investigate.

"The postmaster was a man named Wilson, who kept a general store, and the postoffice consisted of a soap box on the end of his counter. When mail arrived, it was dumped in, and every fellow helped himself, an arrangement that worked well enough until a chap known as Black Hills Pete came to town. Pete disturbed the entire system. When he didn't get a letter himself, he would tear up several others on the principle that misery loves company, and, being a notorious desperado, nobody dared interfere. I got the facts, and as the mail came in that evening I took a seat in the corner and awaited developments, first ordering the box removed.

"A little after dark the miners from camp began to assemble, and presently in came Black Hills Pete. He was a big brute of a fellow, and I saw at once there was going to be trouble. 'Where's that letter box?' he demanded of Wilson. 'I've ordered him not to use it any more,' I said, getting up. 'Who the blank blank are you?' roared Peter. 'I'm the inspector,' I replied. 'Well, you get me that box quick,' he retorted, and, seeing him reach toward his pocket, I made a grab for my gun; but, as bad luck would have it, the confounded thing caught in the holster.

"In a twinkling he had me covered, but before he could turn loose a quavering voice called out: 'Pete! Oh, Pete!' The desperado glared around, and there stood Wilson holding a large tin squirt gun used for drawing liquors. The sight was so ludicrous that the bully burst into a guffaw, and as he did so Wilson let drive the piston and hurled about a quart of the strongest kind of vinegar squarely into his face. The stuff blinded him, and before he could recover himself the storekeeper had two bullets in his shoulder.

"That's the true story of the strangest fight that ever occurred in the west. Pete recovered, but before he could be arrested was spirited away by friends to New Mexico. His right name was Luther Coleman, and there is a warrant now standing against him for destroying United States mail matter. After the episode I have narrated there was no further trouble at the Carbonville postoffice."—New Orleans

Woes of Millionaires.

An English millionaire has just been adjudged incapable of looking after his property. He imagines himself the Prince of Wales.

Some years ago a rich merchant took the idea that he was penniless. His sons, to stop his worrying, assured him they had rescued his business and was to continue it. They offered him a clerkship at a small salary in his own office. He took it and kept at work nearly 20 years. When he died, he left nearly $15,000,000.

Two English millionaires were noted for their parsimony. One picked up and smoked cigar ends. The other, after fine receptions in his house, would go around carefully collecting candle ends to be used again. Neither of these men was insane. Both were shrewd in business.

Another millionaire imagined for a considerable time that he was a squirrel, and would eat nothing but nuts.

Another was too parsimonious even to buy himself a warm overcoat. Some of his friends made him a present of one, and he promptly sold it at secondhand and pocketed the money.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Was Hanged Over Again.

G. W. Stevens, who traveled extensively in India, tells the following interesting story: A Pathan was being hanged, when the rope broke. The warder bade him go up on to the scaffold again, but he objected. "No," he said, "I was sentenced to be hanged, and hanged I've been."

"Not so, friend," argued the warder; "you were sentenced to be hanged until you were dead, and you're not dead."

It was a new view to the Pathan, and he turned to the superintendent. "Is that right, sahib?"

"Yes, that's right."

"Very well. I didn't understand," and he went composedly up the steps and was hanged again like a man.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Cultivate the young orchard thoroughly early in the season.

In selecting trees, take those with smooth, healthy looking bark.

Ground bone is good for small fruit plants, grapevines and bearing apple orchards.

The deeper the culture the larger the reserve of moisture for the roots in time of drought. To secure quick growth prepare the soil deeply.

THE BOXER'S FINISH.

ONE BOUT THAT SETTLED HIS PUGILISTIC AMBITION.

He Didn't Know the Man He Ran Up Against Until He Came Back to Consciousness, After Having Seen a Large Display of Stars.

"When I was much younger," said the portly government official, "I was a husky young fellow, chesty and sassy about my pugilistic ability. I got the boxing bee in my bonnet and practiced hard with the gloves every night. I had been sparring with fellows in my gymnasium for about six months and picking up what I thought was a whole lot of cleverness, when I moved to a boarding house on Pierrepont street, in Brooklyn. I had a room on the top floor of this boarding house. The top floor's rooms were all occupied by young fellows like myself—law and medical students, newspaper chaps and that sort. It was rather a scapegrace lot, and I got acquainted with most of them immediately. I had a lot of athletic gear along with me—clubs, dumbbells, weight pulling machines and stuff—and from the jump I gave these floor mates of mine to understand that I was some considerable pumpkins as an athlete. When I showed 'em my boxing gloves, I was particular to dwell upon the fact that boxing was my one particular graft, and I think I modestly threw the hint out that I'd never yet met a man of my weight that could put the gloves on with me in the amateur class. For a couple of nights running I let them look at me in the act of punching a bag I had suspended from the ceiling of my room, and they all agreed, I think, that I'd be rather an unsafe proposition to get saddled up with in a scrap.

"One of the occupants of that top floor was away when I struck the house, and he didn't return until I had been in the house for about a week. When he got back, the other fellows introduced me to him. I didn't catch his name at the time, but he didn't strike me as being a very cheerful chap, and I rather ignored him. Well, all got to talking on my favorite subject, sparring, after awhile, and I invited any of the fellows present to put on the gloves for a little 'go' with me.

"'I won't hurt you, you know,' said I. 'I'll just tap you lightly, and you can hit me as hard as you want. It's raining, and I don't want to go to the gym tonight, and I wish one of you ducks 'ud just slip 'em on with me.'

"I didn't quite understand what they all meant when they exchanged glances and pushed forward the man who had been away since my advent in the house and whom I had just met.

"'Go on and put 'em on with him,' they urged this man. 'He won't hurt you. You've had the gloves on once or twice, anyhow, while none of the rest of us knows anything about boxing. Go ahead and give him a little exercise.'

"'All right,' said this man rather reluctantly. He looked just like an ordinary man with his coat on, and I felt that he would be dead easy as a subject upon whom to practice and to show the other fellows what I knew about the fine points of the game. When he returned from his room, however, stripped to his trousers and his gauze undershirt, I couldn't help but look at the chap. For a man of ordinary size he had the hugest chest I had ever seen, and his arms and shoulders were simply knotted and twisted with muscles. He was as quiet spoken a duck as ever I saw, though, and he didn't look to be lively on his feet, so we went at it.

"Well, say that was a one man bout, and the other fellow was the one man. There was nothing to it but him. From the very minute that we squared off I could see by the way he handled his dukes that the boxing game was his'n and that I was like six lead nickels in comparison with him. He just fooled with me at first—rapped me here and there at will, adding insult to injury by quietly announcing where he was going to jolt me next—and I never got in a lick or a dab on him. I tried my dernedest when I saw I was totally outclassed to get in just one belt at him somewhere or other, but it was no go. He had a lightning guard for every essay I made to crack him one, and after about five minutes I was puffing like a tree toad and still taking whacks all over my hide, while he was as cool as a cucumber.

"'You're pretty good,' I gasped when we took a momentary rest. 'You've been at this game often, haven't you?'

"'I've had 'em on a few times,' he replied quietly. 'Let's have another short go.'

"Then we went at it again. He fiddled around for a minute, and then he caught me one with his left fist right under the chin. I went sailing up into the air—I saw enough stars to have gone sailing right up among 'em—and I was out when I came down—good and out, as clean a case of knocked out boxer as ever happened in a prize ring. It was fully ten minutes before I came to, and when I did the other fellows were all fanning me and rubbing my head with ammonia and wondering if I was a sure enough dead 'un. I was all right after I got my head under the cold water spigot, and then one of the fellows took me into the center of the gang and said to me:

"'Maybe you didn't quite catch the name of the man you boxed with when you were introduced to him, hey?'

"'No, I didn't,' said I. 'Who is he—John L. Sullivan?'

"'Not exactly. Mr. Ford, step up and shake hands again. This,' went on the young fellow doing the introducing addressing me, 'is Malcolm W. Ford, the champion all around athlete of America. He has held that title for three years, earning it each year in competition with the best men in the whole country in athletic games. He holds the record for the running broad jump, the standing high jump, the pole vault, hammer throwing, shot putting, and he's among the best in the world as a 100 yard sprinter. He's all right.'

"'Yes,' said I. 'I think he is—even if he is a party to this awful job on me,' and we shook hands. When the gang saw I was game enough to take my roasting good naturedly, they let up on me. But my pugilistic ambition wilted absolutely from that night."

POLITICAL QUIPS.

The presidential bees have gathered very little honey thus far in the campaign.—Los Angeles Express.

It is coming to pass in this country that it is almost libelous for a newspaper to call a man a politician. It is the imputation that he is guilty of things criminal.—Binghamton Herald.

If Princeton wants a professor of politics who is a professor of politics, she will not experiment with Grover Cleveland, but go straight to Dick Croker or Matt Quay.—

THE LIGHT THAT SAVES.

One dark night during the siege of Santiago Harbor a Spanish Torpedo boat darted out under cover of darkness to launch its deadly missile against an American war vessel. If she had been struck she would have gone to the bottom. What saved her? Was it her big 13-inch guns? No, it was her search-light: the dazzling white beam of light that shot straight out like a sword-thrust through the darkness, revealed the approaching danger.

What is it that saves thousands of men from death every day in the year when the deadly foe of disease is creeping unsuspected upon them? It is the white light of science; the educated understanding that reveals the source of danger and indicates the exact point of attack.

While the ordinary doctor gropes around, with the feeble tallow-candle light of stereotyped, conventional, routine treatment, a physician like Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., instantly illuminates the subject with the clear day-light ray of practical knowledge; the irresistible search-light of advanced and life-sustaining science.

"I was afflicted for four years," says John F. Zingsheim, Esq., of No. 9 Lark St., Amsterdam, N. Y., in an earnest letter to Dr. Pierce. "My suffering was extreme and the trouble gradually increased notwithstanding the fact that I tried many different kinds of treatment. After becoming physically incapacitated and unable to work at all, and after much hesitation, I wrote you. I am very happy to state that your advice has done me great good. You advised Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and also his 'Pleasant Pellets.' I must here state that they have cured me. I wish to thank you most heartily for what you did for me. All suffering has vanished and I have gained about twenty-five pounds in weight. I used only one bottle of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and one vial of the 'Pellets.'"

Do not hesitate to write to Dr. Pierce. He will send confidential advice absolutely free. Send 31 one-cent stamps to cover cost of customs and mailing only, for paper-covered copy of the Common Sense Medical Adviser. Cloth-binding 50 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

An Unprofitable Bone.

Last summer a friend presented us with a tortoise. I do not know whether our dog had heard of turtle soup or whether he regarded the creature as a new kind of bone that walked about; at any rate, he determined to eat it.

Whenever the tortoise started out on a constitutional down the garden path Gyp arrested it and carried it into his kennel, where he gnawed at the impenetrable armor till his jaws ached.

The calm and philosophical manner in which the tortoise resumed its interrupted promenade irritated the dog exceedingly, but no failure discouraged him. Whenever we reminded him of the tortoise, he would go in search of it all round the garden, peering into every crevice, till eventually the creature was found, and then fresh but futile attempts were made to extract the meaty portions from the shell.—

INSPECTOR RANNEY SPEAKS.

He Indicates Ald McWilliam's Position in Regard to Pavements.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—In Mr. Langford's address before His Honor Judge Weller in the pavement investigation he stated that I had told Ald. McWilliams that the Sheehy contract was not being carried out according to the specifications, and endeavored to convey that impression by leaving out the word "latterly" in my answer "Yes, latterly" to a question asked by Mr. Dennistoun. In justice to Mr. McWilliams I must state that I never told him until about the date of my report to Mr. Hay, read at the Council 18th September, that the contract was not being carried out according to the specifications. This was stated distinctly in my evidence in chief and also in answer to a question from R. F. McWilliams after Mr. Dennistoun's cross-examination. You will see by referring to the report in your issue of November 1st. On the 7th of August, the very day I discovered the deception, I told Alderman Langford, and he told me to shut my mouth about it, and as he was chairman of the Board of Works, I obeyed his instructions. I had not intended to refer to the matter, thinking he had not intentionally misquoted my evidence, but I understand that he made the same statement in the Council last night, which shows that he is deliberately endeavoring to leave a wrong impression.

Thanking you for your kind fvaor, I am, dear sir,

Your obedient servant,
G. W. RANNEY.

The Fair Opened.

The annual fancy fair in aid of St. Joseph's Hospital opened yesterday in the Opera House. The beautiful array of fancy articles, and the enthusiasm displayed by the ladies in charge, is indicative of success.

Yesterday was a busy day with those who had the arranging of the tables, etc. The dining room is at the east of the hall, and is divided off into four tables.

A prize was given last night to the person who received a certain numbered ticket at the door. It was a handsome and valuable tea set. This evening the prize will be a chrystal set.

HAS GENERAL BULLER GOT BACK THE GUNS?

His Artillery Said to Have Kept the Boers From Carrying Away the Abandoned Guns.

BOERS WILL MAKE A BIG STAND AT STORMBERG

They Are Massing a Great Force at the Abandoned British Position, One Commando of Two Thousand Consists Chiefly of Rebel Dutch.

London, Dec. 21.

The correspondent for the Standard says: "The Boer Governments have recently intimated to their agents in Europe their readiness to be moderate in regard to peace conditions. The chief anxiety of the burghers is as to the question of receiving supplies via Lourenzo Marques.

London, Dec. 21.

Mr. Balfour, in his official capacity has written to the Earl of Haddington dwelling upon the importance of the movement to raise Yeomanry and volunteer forces for South Africa. He suggests and offers to assist a public fund to augment the necessarily limited allowance made to the men by the Government for equipment.

London, Dec. 21.

The Daily News has the following despatch from Cape Town dated Dec. 16th. "The Boers intend to make a big stand at Stormberg and are massing a great force at the abandoned British positions. One commando of 2,000 consists chiefly of rebel Dutch."

London, Dec. 21—4.40 a.m.

The gravity of the military situation is again becoming accentuated in the public mind owing to the complete absence of news. Nothing has been heard from Lord Methuen since Sunday and it is feared that his communications have been cut.

A correspondent of the Daily News telegraphing from Modder River last Saturday, says—"The Boer position, already formidable, on Dec. 1, has since been greatly strengthened, extending for an area of 12 miles. It is entrenched according to the most modern methods throughout its entire length; wire fences have been place before all the trenches at every point; guns have been got into position and there is every evidence that the Boers are well supplied with ammunition. Only a powerful attacking force can hope to make a successful assault.

The Times, in an article from the pen of military expert, laments the dispersion of the British forces, quotes the maxim of Napoleon in favor of concentration and regrets that Lord Methuen did not retire to Orange River a week ago.

The latest despatches received seem to show that the British forces are standing on the defensive at all points. General Buller in ordering the troops now arriving at Cape Town to proceed to Durban to reinforce the Natal column. Absence of news from him has led to the surmise that he is trying to join Gen. White by a flank movement.

The appeals for Yeomanry and Volunteers are being responded to with the greatest enthusiasm in all parts of the country. Lord Wolseley proposes that companys being raised by the Lord Mayor of London be called "The City of London Volunteers." The Government expects the total of Yeomanry and Volunteers to reach 8,000. Baron Chesham will command, with Lord Lonsdale as Adjutant General.

The Australian colonies are responding eagerly to the Imperial Government's appeals for the second contingent.

It is reported that the Queen will abandon her proposed visit to Italy in consequence of the war. One of the results of the coal famine in the Sheffield district, indirectly arising out of the war, is that several important steel firms are not able to get coal even from their own colliers, a few miles distant. They will sue the railway companies for non-delivery of coal. One of the great armor plate works has shut down partially.

WERE THE GUNS CAPTURED?

London, Dec. 20.—It still seems doubtful whether the guns that Gen. Buller abandoned at Colenso are in the possession of the Boers. According to a despatch to the Associated Press from Durban, sent off on the evening of the battle and which has just been received here, the guns remained where they were left by the British troops and were covered by the heavy guns of General Hildyard's Brigade, occupying an entrenched position. The despatch adds that the Boers have thus far not attempted to cross the river and carry off the guns. Advices to the Associated Press from Pretoria, under the same date, say that an official Boer despatch reports that two guns, 13 wagons and a quantity of ammunition were captured, besides 203 prisoners.

BULLER LOST 145 MEN KILLED.

London, Dec. 20.—Revised lists of the British casualties at the battle of Colenso show that 137 non-commissioned officers and men were killed. As eight officers were killed, the total deaths in Buller's force were 145.

WERE THE GUNS RECOVERED?

London, Dec. 20.—A special despatch from Durban, Natal, dated Saturday, December 16, says it is rumored Gen. Buller called for volunteers to recover the abandoned guns, and that a party issued from the camp after midnight and brought in the guns, which were uninjured.

MAFEKING SAFE ON DEC. SIX.

London, Dec. 20.—The latest news from Mafeking, dated December 6, has just been received. It says a desultory bombardment was continuing and that the sharp-shooters were engaged in a smart duel mornings and evenings.

The despatch also describes a novel method of sending a message, adopted by some Boers December 3. A five-pounder shell fired into the town that day did not explode. It was opened and found to contain a letter as follows "Dear Powell—Col. Baden-Powell, excuse irion messenger. No other means of communicating. Please tell Mrs. — —, mother and family, all well Don't drink all the whiskey Leave some for us when we get in."

The sender's signature was torn off.

VICTORY URGENTLY NEEDED.

London, Dec. 20.—The Morning Post military expert says in to-day's issue: "The history of the war up to the present is a history of consequences of the insouciance of the cabinet from May to October.

"The British Government in June, July and August, instead of getting the army ready and on the spot, was trying to polish up its conscience, and even in September it could not bring itself to send more than 10,000 men to South Africa.

"A victory is now urgently needed, and the soonest to be had promises to be in Natal, where the British and Boer forces are now facing each other like wrestlers."

DENOUNCES CHAMBERLAIN.

Aberdeen, Dec. 20.—Mr. James Bryce M.P., in a speech here tod-ay severely attacked Joseph Chamberlain, the Secretary of State for the Colonies, and denounced his methods, manner and whole conduct, and said he hoped it would not much longer be possible for him to do his best to excite hostile feelings in Germany and alienate and throw back and do all possible injury to the closest understanding between us and the United States

Deroulede Raises a Rumpus.

Paris, Dec. 20.—In the Senate to-day sitting as a High Court of Justice, M. Deroulede, who, though ill, was present, virulently denounced the Senators and law officer for being "Subservient to the Government's orders."

Amidst immense uproar, M. Deroulede added—"I wish to be condemned. I will say what Ithink of these scoundrels. This assemblage is infamous and dishonors France and the republic."

During increasing din, M. Deroulede continued—"I include in my denunciations both the Senate and the President of the Republic."

The prosecutor with difficulty made himself heard in the tumult which ensued, and demanded the prompt punishment of M. Deroulede, who continued to hurl insults at the High Court, coupled with the assertion that he desired punishment.

The session was eventually suspended, and the court retired to consider the situation. The prisoners acclaimed M. Deroulede.

To Stop Prize Fights.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 20.—The Police Board has issued an order to Chief Campbell to stop all boxing contests that may in future be proposed, whether before a bona fide athlete club or otherwise, where the contest is for a moneyed purse or in which professional fighters are to be engaged. This is the direct result of the Neise fatality at the 14th street theatre.

Gets a Loan.

Oshawa, Dec. 20.—The McLaughlin carriage works, which was destroyed by fire a few nights ago, will be re-established here on condition of the town making the company a loan of $50,000 without interest repayable in twenty annual instalments. The company will build a three-storey factory, 700 feet long, by 50 feet wide. Mayor McLaughlin will resign before the agreement is put through by the Council.

Big Steamer Burned.

New Madrid, Mo., Dec. 18.—The steamer City of Kansas, of the Tennessee River Packet Company, burned to the water's edge early to-day while lying at the foot of Main street. The total loss is estimated at $500,000.

System Has Broken Down.

New York, Dec. 20.—Harry D. Tyler who last week shot and killed a bank burglar at Deep River, Conn, says a despatch from that place, has resigned his place in the bank, saying that the scene which he went through on the night of the shooting haunts him and that his nervous system has broken down.

Merrimac's Crew Saved.

Quebec, Dec. 19.—Mr. Levi, machanic, in the employ of Messrs. Carrier, Laine & Co., has received a cablegram from his cousin, Mr. Boulanger, fireman on board the overdue steamship Merrimac, stating that the vessel foundered at sea, but that the crew was taken off by a sailing vessel bound to India.

Mounted Police in Danger.

Seattle, Dec. 20.—During the latter part of last August Corporal Shirving of the North West Mounted Police and two comrades were sent out from Dawson to search for ill-fated parties on the Edmonton trail. Nothing has been heard from the rescuers and fears are entertained for their safety

A Challenge for Talmage.

New York, Dec. 20.—Dr. Joseph Collins, of this city, has challenged the Rev. De Witt Talmage VanDoren, of Norwalk, Conn., who claims to cure disease by the laying on of hands. Dr. Collins offered to place before Mr. VanDoren a patient, and if the clergyman cured him the doctor promised to give $1,000 to Mr. VanDoren's church. The Norwalk minister replied that he was too busy to consider the offer. He invited Dr. Collins to visit Norwalk.

We are Buried Alive.

New York, Dec. 20.—Dr. Henry J. Garrigues started the Academy of Medicine last evening by the following statement: "Those who have made a special study of the question assert that out of every 200 coffins put under ground in this country, the occupant of at least one of them is simply in a lethargic state and is buried alive. Dr. Carrigues asserted that decomposition of the vital parts is the only irrefutable and reliable sign of death.

A Big Christmas Present.

New York, Dec. 20.—The World today says that James R. Keene cleared up $5,000,000 through the recent slump in Wall street, and that he made his wife a Christmas present of $2,500,000 of his winnings.

A Loan of $40,000,000.

Paris, Dec. 20.—It is rumored here that the Bank of Russia has advanced the Bank of England $40,000,000.

Snow Plowing Contract.

To the Editor of Morning Times.

Sir,—I see the Council has let the contracts for the snow plowing. It would appear that the town engineer either has not tabooed a certain contractor, as was his duty on account of the rascally way he did the street watering last season, or the Council over ruled him—Which was it?

Now, Mr. Editor, I am not a kicker, but when a man undertakes to water the streets as the party referred to did last season, and take's the town's good money for it, he should be expected to show up at least once a week with the water cart. In the case referred to days and even weeks went by, during the heated term, when everybody living on the streets which were supposed to be watered were stifled with dust. Appeals to the engineer were made in vain. He either could not or would not compel the contractor to do his duty. I understand this did not prevent Mr. Hay from certifying to the account, however.

Is there no protection Mr. Editor, for such daylight robbery? I hope the electors will insist on pledging the candidates to a change.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am,

Mr. Robert Stewart, the popular drover, is in Cobourg to-day.

United Canada makes the following pleasing anecdotal reference to the popular parish priest of Young's Point—"Capt. Fitz, of the college champion football team of '88, '89, and '90, is now one of the most popular pastors in Peterborough Diocese, and was one of the speakers at the recent complimentary banquet in Peterborough to Hon. Secretary of State Stratton. These two gifted sons of Peterborough were boys together and always warm friends, and Rev. Fitzpatrick while a student at the capital, often told the boys that Jim Stratton would be heard from in the future affairs of the Province of Ontario. His prediction has already been fulfilled."

KING MENELIK'S OBJECT.

He May Wish to Force a Settlement of the Soudan Boundary Question.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—Commenting on recent rumors that Menelik, Emperor of Abyssina, was likely to declare war against England, The Tribune, one of the most reliable papers in the United States, says Menelik's object in making any demonstration of a military character just at present would be to force a definite boundary settlement between Abasinia and the Anglo-Egyptian territory. Such a settlement might surrender the Abyssinian monarch a large portion of the Bahar el Ghazal province which the French possessed until their commandant Marchand, was ordered by the Paris Cabinet to abandon Fashoda.

The kings of Ethiopia have always claimed the suzerainty of the territories extending northward as far as the White Nile. Menelik pretends to be the owner of the right bank of that river, from the 14th to the 2nd degree of latitude, just opposite Fashoda.

FRANCE IS TAKING ACTION.

She Sends Five Thousand Men to Protect Guadaloupe and Martinique.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—A despatch from Port of Spain, Trinidad, says that news has been received there that 5,000 have been sent by France to Guadaloupe and Martinque. It is believed that the increase in troops is the outcome of the recent reference in the French Chamber of Deputies to Joseph Chamberlain's speech at Leicester and of the demand for the protection of the colonies.

COMPOSITION OF CONTINGENT NOT YET KNOWN.

A Report That Canadians Have Already Been in an Engagement. Hon. Mr. Tarte Denies That He Objects to a Second Contingent Going.

Ottawa, Dec. 20.—Dr. Borden visited Rideau Hall this forenoon, and had a conference with Lord Minto on matters affecting the contingent.

Communications are still going on with the War Office as to the composition of the contingent. Some time this afternoon or evening an official announcement will be made, but it may be taken as good as settled that the contingent will be made up as already outlined in this correspondence.

A telegram was received to-day from Dr. Douglas, M.P., East Assiniboia, asking Dr. Borden if he would take 25 or 30 men from that district. Offers from all parts are still coming in.

THE DRAGOONS READY.

Toronto, Dec. 20.—The Royal Canadian Dragoons, in expectation that they will form part of Canada's second contingent, are preparing for active and instant service.

All leaves have been stopped, and yesterday Lieut. Sutton, who is in Quebec on furlough, and Lieut. Straubenzie, who is on a visit to Wninipeg, were notified by telegraph to return to headquarters instantly. Lieut. Sutton arrived this morning, and Lieut. Straubenzie is coming as fast as the train can carry him.

The rank and file of the detachment are enthusiastic over the idea of going to Krugersland and last night 67 out of the total strength of 76 volunteered. The matter of the second contingent is the sole topic of discussion at Stanley barracks toda-y, and all sorts of rumors of those who will be selected to go to the front are flying, but the men have had no official news from their officers, and the commanding officers have not received orders from the Department at Ottawa.

DOWN BY THE SEA.

St. John, N.B., Dec. 20.—Every hour brings in offers of more volunteers. The whole contingent could be easily raised in New Brunswick.

Capt. L. P. D. Tilley, son of the late Sir Leonard Tilley; Sergt. Doig, Lance-Sergt. Rowe, Capt. Charles F. Harrison, Lieut. Ralph Markham and Lieut. J. H. Parks are among the officers who have volunteered for the second contingent.

Lieut. Markham has made a request that, failing a commission, he be given a place in the ranks.

There is a feeling in active militia circles here that Maritime Province volunteers should garrison Halifax, thereby enabling all British regulars now there to join the forces at the front.

TARTE DOES NOT OBJECT.

Ottawa, Dec. 20.—The Citizen, this morning, accused Mr. Tarte of kicking against the second contingent, especially in rgard to the matter of pay. The Minister wired his private secretary to-day as follows—

Montreal, Dec. 20.

To F. Gelinais, Ottawa—

You may authorize newspapers to say to say that there is not a word of truth in the Citizens article. I have been confined to my house since Saturday by illness. Sir Wilfrid Laurier was kind enough to come and see me. However, I will be all well enough to say a word or two to-night on the position of the Government in reference to the second contingent, I fully agree with my colleagues.

(Sgd.) J. Israel Tarte.

MONTREALERS ANXIOUS.

Montreal, Dec. 19.—The decision to send a second contingent from Canada to South Africa has aroused the greatest enthusiasm in Montreal, where hundreds are ready to show their loyalty to the empire. All the officers of the Montreal Field Battery have volunteered for service in the Transvaal and are anxious to go their with their battery. Major Costigan, commanding the 3rd Montreal Field Battery, says he can organize a complete battery in a week, outfitted in every particular of armament as the Imperial batteries. The guns used in the Imperial service are the same as used here, and are the 12-pounder rifled breech-loading guns of the very latest pattern. The guns and equipment will probably be taken from the batteries at Quebec.

The Montreal contractor for militia clothing last night received a rush order from the department for great coats, trousers and pantaloons. The order will be prosecuted with all possible speed, and is likely to be completed within two weeks. The order for trousers is taken to indicate that infantry will likely be included in the contingent.

CONTINGENT IN A BATTLE.

Montreal, Dec. 20.—Lieut.-Col. McLean, Commanding Officer of the 62nd Battalion, St. John, N. B., is in the city. Yesterday afternoon, just before leaving St John, he received a cablegram from his son, who is with the Canadian contingent in South Africa, which leads him to believe that the Canadians have had a brush with the enemy. The cablegram simply contained the words "All right," but according to pre-arranged code between father and son it indicates an engagement had been fought and that the members of the New Brunswick contingent came out all right.

Colonel McLean says had there been any casualties another word would have been used, and the names of the wounded or killed in the New Brunswick company added. Col. McLean believes the Canadians have been in a tight box, and his son, believing news of the engagement had already reached Canada, hastened to reassure relatives and friends of the New Brunswick company that all were safe.

BRITISH COLUMBIA HAS 1,000.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 19.—British Columbia could supply Britain with 1,000 men for the Transvaal and still have many disappointed. Applications to serve on the second contingent are coming in rapidly.

TERRORITORIES HAVE 1,000 MEN.

Winnipeg, Dec. 19.—F. W. G. Haultain, Premier of the Northwest Territories, was seen by a reporter to-day, and in conversation about the second Transvaal contingent, said—"I am making safe estimate when I say that within twenty-four hours of call for troops Alberta alone would have more than enough volunteers to form a corps one thousand strong. There are several thousand men in the Territories, scattered around ranches, who would jump at the chance offered, and furnish their own horses and saddles.

The Libby Co. are drawing big crowds of ladies to their exhibitions. You may have seen all kinds of glass blowers, but if you never saw this troupe, you should not fail to see them, for they are the original Libby glass workers. Prof. Mitchell and his orchestra will continue to give music while they are here. They will be open every afternoon and evening the balance of the week. No doubt to-night the glass blowers will have a packed house. Admission 10 cents. Your presents free. Opposite Adam Hall's hardware store.

POULTRY ASSOCIATION.

Meeting of Directors of Peterborough Poultry and Pet Stock Association.

The dorectors of the above Association met in the Morgan House on Tuesday evening to make arrangements for the forthcoming Ontarion show, which will be held here from January 9 to 12. There was a good attendance. A communication was read from A. Browne, Secretary of the Ontarion Association, with regard to coops and general business, also giving names of those invited to take part in the annual meeting. Another was read from Dr. Bell re "Walker" and "Reliable" cups. The president, T. H. Golding and Wm. Head, were appointed a reception committee. The offer of Grafton & Co. to place their bears on exhibition was accepted. The Secretary and Mr. J. Robson were authorized to collect outstanding accounts and solicit subscriptions and donations. Hon. Sidney Fischer, Minister of Agriculture, will send a large display of dressed poultry, and Superintendent Gilbert, Dominion Experimental Farm, will be on hand to describe mode of feeding, killing, etc.

A Sudden Death.

Toronto, Dec. 19.—In Simcoe street opposite Erskine church, this morning, an aged saw filer, named Rawlings staggered, and would have fell but for Sergeant Cross, who caught him and laid him on the church steps. Cross telephoned for an ambulance but before it arrived the old man died. The body was taken to the morgue.

Heart failure probably caused death Dr. Cotton has issued a warrant for an inquest.

CANADA'S GREATEST SCHOOL OF SHORTHAND AND BUSINESS

PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS SHOULD NOTICE

This institution has prepared over seventy teachers for other Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States, more than twice as many as all other Business Colleges in Canada combined, have so placed.

The proprietors of five of the leading business colleges in Western Ontario, who are to-day among our strongest opponents in the field of Shorthand and Business training, received THEIR training under the Principal of this institution. Besides these, there are five others holding leading positions as teachers in Business Colleges in Ontario.

Since Sept 1st seven of our pupils have accepted positions as teachers in Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States; another is now negotiating for a similar opening in a Business College in a leading American city, and there are five unfilled calls of this kind on hand still.

DOES IT NOT PAY TO ATTEND THE BEST! You must decide.

236 of our pupils secured good positions in seventeen months, and the good work of placing our students still continues.

CANADA WILL SEND OUT HER FIELD ARTILLERY

The Force Will be Divided Equally Between Field Artillery and Mounted Infantry.

CONTINGENT TO BE ONE THOUSAND STRONG.

The Dominion Cabinet Meets to Hear the Minister of Militia's Plans—Contractors Rushing Work on Uniforms for the Second Contingent.

Ottawa, Dec. 19.—Hon. Dr. Borden was seen by your correspondent this forenoon, and on being asked if he would be able to give out the composition of the contingent, replied that he would not say anything on the subject until he made his report to the Cabinet.

It is likely that a meeting of Council will be held this afternoon and immediately afterwards the program will be made public. However, the Militia Department is not idle, and everything is being rushed so that no time will be lost in outfitting and equipping the contingent.

Three Batteries.

Although no official information is to be had, it is said to be settled that the contingent will comprise one thousand officers and men; There will be three batteries, not two, as first suggested. It takes 168 to a battery, so this would mean about 500 or half of the contingent. There are two permanent batteries, and the third would be made up from the field batteries all over Canada.

The Mounted Infantry.

The other 500 will be mounted infantry, which will come from the permanent cavalry, who will go as mounted infantry and recruits from the militia and ex-mounted policemen, etc.

The contractors have their orders for clothing, and everything will be ready in time.

"A" BATTERY'S STRENGTH.

Kingston, Dec. 19.—"A" Battery likely to be selected for South African service, is 35 under strength. It has 103 in the force. It has [illegible] horses, but to be put on a war footing 78 will be required. It will be an easy matter to recruit up to the full strength.

Four of the officers are on special service, three in South Africa. Major Hudon is in command.

The Batterymen are proud of the chance of going to the front.

THOUSANDS OF ROUGH RIDERS

Edmonton, N.W.T., Dec. 19.—There is a strong feeling here in favor of a Northwest contingent for Africa, made up of mounted plainsmen and mountaineers. A first-class corps could be mustered. Col. Steele, who is a man of wide experience, is spoken of as the proper leader. He has had years of experience on the plains and in the Yukon, and has but to call the men and he would get thousands of rough riders, not only in Canada, but from the neighboring States of Montana and Washington, who as riders, riflemen, packers and frontiersmen could not be surpassed.

THE POSITION OF THE CABINET.

Ottawa, Dec. 19.—Canada will send a second contingent of not less than a thousand men to the aid of the Imperial forces in South CAfrica. This was decided at a Cabinet meeting yesterday, and Dr. Borden, Minister of Militia, issued immediate instructions to go on with the preparations. He has had most of the details ready for a month and more. From advices which he received from England, the Minister of Militia early came to the conclusion that if a second contingent of Canadians should be found necessary the Dominion's most valuable contribution would be in the form of cavalry or of mounted infantry and artillery.

Mounted Police to Go.

To a correspondent yesterday he said that the Mounted Police would be given a chance to go to the front. Three hundred of this force could be spared, Dr. Borden thinks, and it is not likely that that number will be exceeded. General Hutton completely agrees with Dr. Borden that the Mounted Police will do most valuable service in South Africa.

A Corps of Cowboys.

Before forty-eight hours are past Dr. Borden will have put another project into effect. Steps will be taken towards recruiting 300 prairie cowboys, men who can ride and shoot as well as any cavalry man in the world and who are used to getting along on rations of the scantiest. Many of these denizens of the prairie are cowboys only in name. Hundreds of them have served in the mounted police and have gone into ranching, either on their own account or working for someone else. They will jump at the chance of active service, and, which will be an exceedingly valuable point, will be able to furnish their own horses suitably trained and hardened to the same privations that have been and will be successfully withstood by their masters.

The Recruiting.

The recruiting in the Northwest will be carried on at several points, probably at Regina, Calgary, Pincher Creek, Edmonton and Prince Albert. The mounted police who desire to enlist will be given their discharge on application, and the cowboys or ranchers will be enlisted at the same time. Regret is felt that so many of the mounted police are in the Yukon, but their presence at the gold fields is necessary, and, moreover, they could not be brought to the Northwest in time to join the contingent. The Royal Canadian Dragoons who remain at Winnipeg and Toronto will also be allowed to enlist, and should form most useful members of the contingent. They also are mounted on well-trained horses and are so well drilled as to make it possible for every man of them to instruct on shipboard the recruits from the Northwest.

Boers Fear the Lance.

As the Boers are said to have a healthy horror of the lance as a cavalry weapon, it has been decided that half at least of Canada's cavalry will be given this arm. The Royal Canadian Dragoons are already equipped with lances, as are the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards of Ottawa, and the 8th New Brunswick Hussars. Lieut.-Col. Domville, lately in command of the latter corps, to-day renewed his offer to join the contingent.

Mr. W. J. [illegible], evangelist from California, will preach in the Gospel Hall, corner of George and Brock streets, this evening at 8 p. m.

COPPER MINING STOCKS

For several months shrewd investors have been putting their money into the shares of Copper Mines. This is true not only of men with large amounts of money at their disposal but also applies to those who have made a study of investments with a view to securing a large return for small investments. As high as THREE AND FOUR HUNDRED PER CENT. has to our knowledge already been realized on some of these investments. Americans were the first to make a specialty of Copper Stocks. They knew what they were doing, for the reason is not far to seek. Every Copper Mine in the world is at present taxed to its utmost limit to meet the growing demand for copper for electrical purposes. The reserve stores of copper are being depleted until it pays no longer to use copper in some eastern countries as a coin. Copper has gone up in price from 9c to 18 cents. The supply of Copper from the mines of the world to-day is only about 80 per cent. of the consumption. That is the reason why financiers have their engineers searching the four quarters of the globe for Copper Mines, and that is the reason the shares in promising copper companies are so eagerly picked up by investors.

If you have any money to invest we would ask you to consider the shares of the SUPERIOR GOLD & COPPER COMPANY, LIMITED. This Company owns and operates some valuable native copper properties. We are in a position to offer you a special opportunity in this stock which as an investment should give you a profit of at least 100 per cent in six months. Send for prospectus and particulars.

Occasionally we have an opportunity of giving our clients a special offer on some stocks, and we have this opportunity now. If you are interested write to us at once. These shares are sold in large or small blocks to suit buyers.

We deal in all legitimate mining shares on commission. If you want to buy or sell write us.

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

How Did Koch Die?

London, Dec. 19.—W. T. Stead, in a letter to the Daily News tells this story of Philip Koch, a nephew of the Boer General Koch, in regard to the latter's experience at Elandslaagte: "The first of the wounded I happened on was Gen. Koch. He lay in a small tent entirely naked. He told me that an English soldier had come to him and robbed him of all the money that was in his trouser's pockets, of his watch and his clothes, excepting one coat. He also informed me that this person said he belonged to the Indian troops. The General was covered by a thin blanket lay on a small wet mattress. Although Gen. Koch was severely wounded, and Major Allthorn had promised that he should be allowed to return to Pretoria, where he would be well nursed. Gen. White refused to allow him to leave Ladysmith, as the detention of a general officer of his rank and distinction as a prisoner of war is of considerable value to the State. Gen. White represented that Gen. Koch died ten days after his wounds, on October 31st. His nephew says he died not so much from the wounds he received, as owing to the treatment he suffered in the first instance."

Lives Lost in a Fire.

New York, Dec. 19.—Seven lives were lost in two big tenement houses which were destroyed by fire in this city early today.

Five charred bodies were found on the upper floors of a burned tenement at 182nd street and Third avenue, known as the Mentor, and five women and a little girl, all badly burned, were carried alive from the blazing house to nearby hospitals. There was thought to be slight chance of any of the six surviving. Several other persons only escaped from the flames and dense smoke with cuts and bruises.

A few hours earlier a deadly fire attacked the five-story tenement No. 496 10th avenue near 38th street, burning to death a mother and her child. The charred remains of both were found after the fire was put out. The Harlem fire is supposed to have started in the cellar. The air shaft in the building and stairs aided the fire in gaining such rapid headway that there was no successful fighting of the flames, which had gained tremendous headway when the firemen arrived. The firemen did gallant work in rescuing the occupants of the boarding tenement, and but for their vigilance the loss of life would have been much larger.

Injured by the Fall of a Hoist.

Toronto, Dec. 19.—Edward Murphy, of the firm of Murphy & Powers, patent cork manufacturers, at 105 Adelaide street west, was seriously injured at the factory this morning by the fall of the hoist. Mr. Powers was just about to follow his partner on the hoist when it gave away and he thus escaped the fall.

Murphy was partially paralyzed and sustained internal injuries. He was taken to the Emergency Hospital. He is about 35 years old and lives at 125 Rose avenue.

Fraudulent Debtor in Jail.

Berlin, Ont., Dec. 19.—Hermann Winter, who was found guilty by a jury in the county Court here on the charge of defrauding his creditors was sentenced by Jude Chisholm today to a term of 11 months and 20 days in the Central Prison. He was also fined $800, and in lieu of its non-payment Winter will spend an additional year behind prison bars. Winter was in business here for about three months, during which a deficit of south $5,000 was accumulated. His explanation was that he had lost the money in gambling.

VINEGAR, THEN LEAD.

"I think my most exciting official experience," said Captain J. E. Stone, formerly United States postal inspector, "was at the town of Carbonville, Colo., in 1879. It was a star route post, and there was much complaint about the nonreceipt of mail, so I went over to investigate.

"The postmaster was a man named Wilson, who kept a general store, and the postoffice consisted of a soap box on the end of his counter. When mail arrived, it was dumped in, and every fellow helped himself, an arrangement that worked well enough until a chap known as Black Hills Pete came to town. Pete disturbed the entire system. When he didn't get a letter himself, he would tear up several others on the principle that misery loves company, and, being a notorious desperado, nobody dared interfere. I got the facts, and as the mail came in that evening I took a seat in the corner and awaited developments, first ordering the box removed.

"A little after dark the miners from camp began to assemble, and presently in came Black Hills Pete. He was a big brute of a fellow, and I saw at once there was going to be trouble. 'Where's that letter box?' he demanded of Wilson. 'I've ordered him not to use it any more,' I said, getting up. 'Who the blank blank are you?' roared Peter. 'I'm the inspector,' I replied. 'Well, you get me that box quick,' he retorted, and, seeing him reach toward his pocket, I made a grab for my gun; but, as bad luck would have it, the confounded thing caught in the holster.

"In a twinkling he had me covered, but before he could turn loose a quavering voice called out: 'Pete! Oh, Pete!' The desperado glared around, and there stood Wilson holding a large tin squirt gun used for drawing liquors. The sight was so ludicrous that the bully burst into a guffaw, and as he did so Wilson let drive the piston and hurled about a quart of the strongest kind of vinegar squarely into his face. The stuff blinded him, and before he could recover himself the storekeeper had two bullets in his shoulder.

"That's the true story of the strangest fight that ever occurred in the west. Pete recovered, but before he could be arrested was spirited away by friends to New Mexico. His right name was Luther Coleman, and there is a warrant now standing against him for destroying United States mail matter. After the episode I have narrated there was no further trouble at the Carbonville postoffice."—New Orleans

The Manitoba Elections.

Winnipeg, Dec. 18.—The latest returns for the constituency of Gimli give Baldwinson, Conservative, 22 of a majority. The standing of the new House now is 22 Conservatives, 17 Liberals, and one Independent Conservative. It is not expected that the Greenway Government will "move out" until early in January. There is a rumor that startling disclosures in connection with the Rhineland election will be made public in a few days. V. Winkler, the member elect, seems to be in a state of somnamoulism

They'd Bounced Britain's Friend.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—Public advocacy of Great Britain's side in the South African war by Dr. Andrews, superintendent of Public Schools in Chicago, was the cause of resolutions being introduced in the City Council last night, calling for his resignation, or his immediate suspension and removal from his position by the Board of Education.

The head of the Public Schools was subjected to a heated denunciation by Ald. Cullerton, the mover of the resolution. The resolutions were referred to the Committee on Schools.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. To Crisp Lettuce Leaves.

Do you know how to crisp lettuce leaves? A most simple process, but one rarely adopted judging by the wilted stuff we generally see served. A gentleman of the old school was my teacher, and while yet a mere maid I was promoted to the proud dignity of crisping the lettuce.

First carefully separate the leaves from the stalk, discarding discolored and imperfect ones and leaving untouched the tiny hearts; lay them all in cool, clear water for awhile, all morning if you choose; pick them over a couple of times before serving; wash one by one and lay in a wire basket if you have one; if not, a clean, soft towel will answer; gather the ends and sides loosely in your hand and lightly shake the lettuce; then put the leaves in a colander, which you set in the refrigerator, but not on the ice. Leave until needed, when you will find the lettuce deliciously cool and crisp enough to crack. Never cut the leaves. If very large, divide with the fingers into smaller pieces.—What to Eat.

$4,280,000 for Them.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—E. P. and C. S. Karoly, two electricians, of Chicago, the sons of Dr. S. Karoly, have inherited an estate in Hingary valued at $4,280,000. Dr. Karoly was a relative of Count Alois Karoly, Ambassador to the Court of St. James, and ran away from Europe with Bertha Frank, an actress.

Tribute to Our Loyalty.

London, Dec. 19.—The most ample recognition is given in the press to the great outburst of loyalty in Canada and the remarks of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Premier, and the cabinet, as representative of both the English and French-Canadian sections, are especially welcomed.

A Presentation.

Dr. A. Rose, L.D.S., was presented on Monday night, by the members of Otonabee Lodge, I.O.O.F., with an address of a very complimentary nature; expressing the esteem in which he is held by his brethern here and the sorrow which they feel over his departure for Toronto, where he will henceforth reside. The Times joins heartily in wishing Dr. Rose all sorts of good luck in his new home.

VIVID · HEALTH

Nothing so rare as charity, easily impaired or often lost—the envy of all and the grandest jewel in the crown of life is vivid health. Many a man has sold the fortune of richness for the gain of wealth. A loaded purse cannot atone for the deranged liver, the aching stop, the rebellious stomach. Every pulse beat of impoverished blood carries weakness and disease. Gradually all nerve power leaves you and the fire of life is gone. An empty sack cannot stand upright, and so Death gathers in his cheques.

CO BO

Stimulants and Purgatives cannot cure you, but The GREAT INDIAN BLOOD MEDICINE must and will

Every bottle of this universal blood maker and flesh builder carries a positive GUARANTEE. [illegible] undermine the entire system. CO BO, in its direct action on the liver, kidneys and stomach, cures every phase of mal-nutrition, makes blood and carries food and strength to every tissue, and gives back health when once turned down. Before it is too late stop that succession of colds that means nothing more or less than catarrh. Stop the suffering. Don't neglect yourself until consumption makes its fatal appearance. You can be cured. Not merely relieved, but absolutely and perfectly cured. Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder will restore you to complete, perfect health. It gives relief at once. It cures in an incredibly short time. Sold by Ormond & Walsh and H. S. McDonald.

Woes of Millionaires.

An English millionaire has just been adjudged incapable of looking after his property. He imagines himself the Prince of Wales.

Some years ago a rich merchant took the idea that he was penniless. His sons, to stop his worrying, assured him they had rescued his business and was to continue it. They offered him a clerkship at a small salary in his own office. He took it and kept at work nearly 20 years. When he died, he left nearly $15,000,000.

Two English millionaires were noted for their parsimony. One picked up and smoked cigar ends. The other, after fine receptions in his house, would go around carefully collecting candle ends to be used again. Neither of these men was insane. Both were shrewd in business.

Another millionaire imagined for a considerable time that he was a squirrel, and would eat nothing but nuts.

Another was too parsimonious even to buy himself a warm overcoat. Some of his friends made him a present of one, and he promptly sold it at secondhand and pocketed the money.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Was Hanged Over Again.

G. W. Stevens, who traveled extensively in India, tells the following interesting story: A Pathan was being hanged, when the rope broke. The warder bade him go up on to the scaffold again, but he objected. "No," he said, "I was sentenced to be hanged, and hanged I've been."

"Not so, friend," argued the warder; "you were sentenced to be hanged until you were dead, and you're not dead."

It was a new view to the Pathan, and he turned to the superintendent. "Is that right, sahib?"

"Yes, that's right."

"Very well. I didn't understand," and he went composedly up the steps and was hanged again like a man.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

They Keep One Eye Shut.

A recent traveler in Mexico, who visited the mines there during his journey, says that he was much astonished at seeing the men who carry the ore come out of the mine, each with one eye shut.

The foreman, seeing his surprise, explained the matter. He said the candles belonging to the tarateros (who drill and blast) do not give sufficient light in the drifts, where it is consequently quite dark, but where, nevertheless, the tarateros see well enough not to run their heads against the rocks, but, on emerging into daylight, they would be blinded did they not take precautionary measures.

For this reason, as they approach the mouth of the shaft, at the point where they catch the first glimpse of light they drop the eyelid of one eye and keep this down while they are discharging their ore and until they have redescended the shaft.

When they are again in the dark, they open the eye kept [illegible] and at once see everything distinctly, while the other eye, previously open and somewhat blinded by the daylight, perceives nothing.

What He Really Owed.

"Doctor," said the grateful patient, seizing the physician's hand, "I shall never forget that to you I owe my life."

"You exaggerate," returned the doctor mildly. "You owe me only for 15 visits. That is the point which I hope you will not fail to remember."

"JUST DRAGGING AROUND."

How many thousands of women understand the sad and pitiful meaning of that simple phrase: "Just dragging around." Women everywhere who feel that they have a work and a mission of womanhood to accomplish in this world will appreciate instantly the disheartened spirit of Mrs. Mattie Venhaus, of Tioga, Hancock County, Illinois.

"I had been sick for seven years," she says; "not in bed, but just dragging myself around. At last I took three bottles of Dr. Pierce's [illegible] and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and it is impossible to describe in words the good these medicines did me. My husband says 'Golden Medical Discovery' is the best medicine he ever tried for a cough. No praise is too high for Dr. Pierce's medicines."

Another lady, Mrs. R. P. Monfort, of Lebanon, Warren Co., Ohio, says, "I think Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery the finest medicine on record. I have taken a number of bottles and it is the only medicine that relieved my terrible headaches."

Women who suffer should write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. He will send them the best professional advice that can be had anywhere in America and entirely without charge. Neither the "Golden Medical Discovery" nor the "Favorite Prescription" contains any alcohol to inebriate or create a morbid craving for stimulants.

Every woman should own a copy of his splendid book "The Common Sense Medical Adviser." It is the grandest medical book for popular reading ever written. It contains a fund of knowledge of precious value to women. It has over a thousand pages elaborately illustrated with engravings and colored plates. The first great edition of more than half-a-million copies was sold at $1.50 each. The profit from this induced Dr. Pierce to carry out his cherished intention of issuing a free edition one copy of which in paper-covers will be sent for the bare cost of customs and mailing, 31 one-cent stamps; or a heavier, cloth-bound copy for 50 stamps.

An Unprofitable Bone.

Last summer a friend presented us with a tortoise. I do not know whether our dog had heard of turtle soup or whether he regarded the creature as a new kind of bone that walked about: at any rate, he determined to eat it.

Whenever the tortoise started out on a constitutional down the garden path Gyp arrested it and carried it into his kennel, where he gnawed at the impenetrable armor till his jaws ached.

The calm and philosophical manner in which the tortoise resumed its interrupted promenade irritated the dog exceedingly, but no failure discouraged him. Whenever we reminded him of the tortoise, he would go in search of it all round the garden, peering into every crevice, till eventually the creature was found, and then fresh but futile attempts were made to extract the meaty portions from the shell.—

He Won't Run.

The Times received a letter yesterday from a ratepayer challenging Ald. Langford to test public opinion on his methods of running the council and town contracts at the same time by again running for the council. We fancy our friend, Mr. Langford, is too long-headed to do any such thing. Although we think a jury composed of all the ratepayers would be a fair one..

GREAT CIVIC CONTEST.

Ald. McWilliams Once Again in the Lead.

WITH MR. WINCH SECOND.

The Ballots Coming in Very ThicK and Fast.

Ald. Denne Takes Third place in the Mayoralty Fight, with Mr. A. C. Braund a Leader for the Council.

The leading candidates for the Mayoralty up to three o'clock yesterday were—

Alderman McWilliams 1160
H. C. Winch 1120

The leading nominees for the Council are—

R. C. Braund 1085
A. W. Cressman 1080
R. J. Kidd 1065
W. Salisbury 985

The votes are now piling in, thick and fast. Alderman McWilliams, who was third yesterday in the Mayoralty contest, is now first, with Mr. Harry Winch a close second. Harry is very popular, and should he consent to enter the field either as Mayor or Alderman, will have hundreds of supporters. A curious feature of the vote is the number of new men who are being rushed to the fore. Mr. R. C. Braund, who leads in the Council procession, is the popular and successful south end grocer. Mr. A. W. Cressman, the well-known and highly esteemed local dry goods man, takes second place, while Messrs. R. J. Kidd, and W. Salisbury follow.

"A Subscriber" writes—"I enclose ten ballots in favor of Ald. McWilliams and Ald. Denne. These are the men who stood by the people in their hour of need."

A workingman says—"What's the matter with Harry Winch for Mayor? He has had large municipal experience, being for many years a member of the Council, and would make a Chief Magistrate that the people would respect and repose confidence in. I am sure he would be elected if he would consent to run."

"Hamilton's Foundry" writes—"I am a working man, and know how my mates feel in regard to the questions now before the people. We want less expense in our law department, and a less expensive street boss than the present one. In other words, we need practical men who earn their money. I therefore vote for my old friends Bob. Davidson for Mayor and Jack Sawers for Alderman."

Sandy writes—"I like your idea of inducing criticism of public men, and cheerfully respond. It is said that there is a trio at work to secure control of the town's affairs and run into the ground. Dr. Neil and Messrs. Reid and Hall may be very shrewd men in business matters, but they cannot work the little game on."

Another subscriber writes—"I would like to see a representative of the sporting element in the Council next year, and send in ten ballots marked for Capt. Hollingshead, the genial and popular head of the Hockey Club. "Holly" no doubt would, if elected, soon organize a hockey club composed exclusively of the Mayor and members of the council, which would be an innovation in this line. We all know that our City Fathers got quite a skate on this year, in the matter of spending money, but it wouldn't be a circumstance to the genuine article 'Rah for Hollingshead!'"

The people of the village are being interested in the coming elections, and anxiously scan the columns of the Times each morning. Reeve Adams is sure to be re-elected as he deserves to be. Ex-Alderman J. H. Smith is also fairly sure of election. The old Council has a clean record, and will probably nearly all, if not all, be re-elected.

"A Ratepayer" writes—"I enclose two ballots for Johnston for Reeve and Conroy for Councillor. I believe in new blood. Mr. Johnston will make a capital Reeve, while Mr. Conroy is so well known for his generous disposition and large heartedness that he will fill the bill to a T as chairman of the charity committee. A NAVAL BRIGADE FOR SOUTH AFRICA.

General White Says Ladysmith is Well Supplied With Food and Ammunition.

KITCHENER SETS SAIL FOR THE SEAT OF WAR.

London City Guilds Have Given an Additional Forty Thousand Pounds to Imperial Volunteers. No Definite News From South Africa.

Alexandria, Dec. 21

London, Dec. 22

The morning papers give prominence to Lord Robert's message and most of them comment editorially upon it. The Times says: "In an admirable message to America and Canada, Lord Roberts has given an adequate and welcome expression to our national sentiments."

The Daily Telegraph says: "We feel sure that the message will be welcomed in both the United States and Canada. Lord Roberts described in apt words what Englishmen feel. There is nothing like adversity to test the value of our friends and the magnificent devotion of our Colonies stand out in strong contrast with the cold, carping and envy of some continental nations."

London, Dec. 22

The Daily Mail says: "We understand that news has arrived from General White to the effect that Ladysmith is well supplied with food and ammunition and can hold out much longer than has been estimated. The troops are described as in good spirits and anxious to fight.

London, Dec. 22, 4.40 a. m.

There is still no definite news regarding the military operations in South Africa. Probably this is because the only cable that is now working is choked with official despatches. Gen. Buller's casualty list at Colenso, just published, shows that 148 were killed and 748 wounded. Two hundred and twenty-seven are described as missing, and of these about forty are known to be prisoners in the hands of the Boers. This makes a total larger than Gen. Buller's original estimates.

Royal letters signed by the Queen are being circulated by the archbishops to the bishops of the various diocese authorizing a collection in the church throughout England on Jan. 7th in aid of the fund for sick and wounded soldiers and their families.

Interest centres for the moment in the preparations to send out reinforcements. The various city guilds have given an additional 12,000 pounds for the expenses of the Imperial Volunteers, besides the gifts of horses, ambulances and other things.

The latest Noble volunteers include two nephews of Lord Roberts, Major Chas. Sheerston and Major Maxwell Sheerston. Their brother was killed at Glencoe.

The Admirality have decided to despatch another naval brigade of 787 men to South Africa.

It is believed that in mobilizing the eighth division, the War Office will have recourse to some extent to the militia. It being deemed inadvisable to denude the home garrisons overmuch of regulars.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, has issued a formal denial that any differences exist in the Cabinet regarding war expenditure.

According to a despatch from Cape Town there is a good deal of distress in the Orange Free State owing to a scarcity of grain.

INSIDE THE EGG-SHELL.

Tuli, Dec. 11, via Lourenzo Marquez, Dec. 16. Colonel Plumer with a strong reconnoitering party of horsemen has returned here after a week's expedition into Transvaal territory. He reached a point fifty miles from Pietersburg, in the South African Republic, but found no Boers, the country being seemingly empty of men.

CRONJE IS GETTING RUDE.

London, Dec. 21.—The War Office has received the following from Gen. Forestier-Walker, the British commander at Cape Town:

"Cape Town, Dec. 20.— Methuen wires that he has received a rude reply from General Cronje respecting his representations as to Lieut. Chandos-Pole-Gell, saying that this officer is regarded as a spy. General Cronje also states that he will hold no further communication with Methuen."

Lieut. Chandos-Pole-Gell was captured under a flag of truce.

MAGNIFICENT INFANTRY WORK.

London, Dec. 20.—Belated stories from Chieveley camp, Natal, concur in saying that the British did marvels in an impossible situation. The oldest war correspondents says they never saw anything comparable with the bravery of the men and officers. The naval contingent created an immense furore, engaging the Boers single-handed and hailing shrapnel and lyddite shells on the fortifications north of the town in a vain effort to silence the murderous fire of the Boers while the British forced the passage of the river. The advance of the second brigade along the road leading to the bridge in the face of a deadly fusilade is described as magnificent. The British forced their way across the fire zone under a perfect storm of bullets from the invisible Boers. The patter of the bullets on the dry plain raised the dust like heavy raindrops on water. The heat throughout was intense. There are many stories of special acts of bravery.

GALLANT BRITISH OFFICERS.

London, Dec. 21.—The Daily Mail prints a despatch from Chievely camp dated Saturday which says: There is an armistic till midnight in oreder to bury the dead and remove the wounded. Meanwhile the enemy is placing fresh guns so they may cover our ambulance parties. They express themselves as satisfied with yesterday's battle and boast that they can not be turned out of their present positions. The Dutch stripped our dead During the fighting some heroic deeds were performed, the irregulars vieing with the regulars for distinction. Lieut. Ponsonby of Thornycroft's mounted infantry and Private Farmer, of the Natal Carbineers attempted to save some of their comrades at imminent peril to their own lives. An injured man carred by Lieut. Ponsonby was mortally wounded while in the arms of that officer.

LITTLE PROSPECT OF RELIEF

London, Dec. 21.—There seems to be little prospect of relieving Ladysmith by a general advance along the railway. The probability increases that if General White is pressed for supplies he must fight his way south at all costs, in combination with such movement as General Buller's transport will admit.

Viewing the situation as a whole its extreme gravity is apparent. Our forces in the field are widely scattered and for a time will be unable to assume the offensive. The incubus of Ladysmith and Kimberley still dominates the position. It is clear that the problem of organizing transport is yet unsolved.

The Times in an article from the pen of a military expert laments the dispersion of the British forces, quotes the maxim of Napoleon in favor of concentration, and regrets that Lord Methuen did not retire to Orange River a week ago.

ARISTOCRATIC VOLUNTEERS.

London, Dec. 21.—The Duke of Marlborough, who is a lieutenant in the Oxfordshire yeomanry and who has volunteered for service in South Africa, will take with him fifteen men and horses of his troop. He will personally furnish the equipment for these men. The Earl of Warwick, the Earl of Dudley, the Earl of Lonsdale and Viscount Galway are among the other members of the aristocracy who have volunteered for service in the campaign against the Boers.

LESSONS OF ADVERSITY.

New York, Dec. 21.—England's policy concerning the Transvaal war was announced in Glasgow last night by Gerald Balfour, Secretary of State for Ireland. Mr. Balfour said: "The British Government and people will not move a hair's breadth from their resolve to carry the war to a successful conclusion. No reverse can possibly alter the end of the war, for Britain has power and resources to affect her settled purpose. Adversity is a stern teacher, but its lessons are most effective. Britain underestimated her adversary although she did not underestimate Boer courage; but in desperate valor and gallantry British soldiers are more than a match for Boers. Britain underestimated the Boer military capacity and tactics, but the Government is now ready to rise to the height of the emergency."

IN METHUEN'S REAR.

London, Dec. 21.—An official statement states that Van. Der Merwe, with a commando, is reported to be moving south from Jacobsdal. Whether this is connected with an attempt to cut General Methuen's communications or whether reinforcements for the Boers around Colesburg is contemplated cannot at present be known. [illegible] there is some reason to fear that the enemy is again established, in force, on the railway between the Modder and Orange Rivers. Major-General Gatacre has removed his troops and stores to Sterkstroom from Putter's Kraal, eight miles further south, but after his disastrous repulse cannot be in a position to undertake a forward movement until heavily reinforced. With the prevailing widespread disaffection in northeast Cape Colony, it is impossible not to feel some anxiety for the security of the railways in rear of Major-Generals French and Gatacre

THE QUEEN IS ANGRY.

London, Dec. 21.—Queen Victoria and Princess Beatrice went by train from Windsor to Farnborough this morning and spent an hour with ex-Empress Eugenie.

The Queen has been greatly annoyed by unfounded statements that she was in ill-health and perpetually weeping. A paragraph contradicting these stories appears in the apears, which add that it has never been Her Majesty's habit to display grief like a hysterical school girl.

LADYSMITH LACKS AMMUNITION.

London, Dec. 21.—The chief cause of uneasiness, which brings back a shadow to English faces, is the suspicion that the Ladysmith garrison is short of ammunition and incapable of a prolonged defence. The War Office does not admit that Ladysmith is in serious danger, and short of ammunition, but the censorship somehow has allowed these alarming reports to reach England. The censor apparently sometimes falls asleep.

AS TO GATACRE AND FRENCH.

London, Dec. 21.—The War Office has reported that there is no fresh news from Major-General Gatacre, and that Major-General French continues to operate against the enemy with the utmost prudence and vigilance, retiring when he was compelled to do so by a superior force without disorder or serious loss. The New Zealand contingent under his command has been under fire several times, and has acted with coolness and gallantry.

PROTESTING TO WASHINGTON.

New York, Dec. 20.—A. J. Twomey, of the New York Produce Exchange, and the Pennsylvania Milling and Export Co., sent a protest to Washington to-day against the seizure by the British of flour sent to South Africa by his firm. He received information to-day by cable that the ship Beatrice, with a cargo, had been seized in Delagoa Bay and sent to East London, while another ship, the Maria, had been sent to Port Natal. A week ago the Mashona, with 14,000 sacks of flour, was stopped and sent to Cape Town. The flour, it was suspected, was for the use of the Boers. The captured ships, which were chartered by the Pennsylvania Milling Co, belonged to Bucknell Bros., of London.

BOERS DAMMED THE RIVER.

London, Dec. 21.—At the battle of Colenso Captain Schofield, Captain Congreve and Lieut. Roberts made a very plucky attempt to save the guns, but failed. Generals Buller and Clery came under a heavy fire during the battle. Gen. Clery and one of Gen. Buller's aide-de-camps had their horses shot. The Boers dammed the river below Bridle Drift, rendering it almost impassable. The Dublin Fusiliers in attempting the passage lost four men by being drowned.

A STRONG REDOUBT.

London, Dec. 21.—At Modder River the Boers are building a strong redoubt between their camp and the river, 4,000 yds. southeast of the camp.

WHITE FLAG VIOLATED.

London, Dec. 21.—Colonel Bullock, commanding the Devonshire regiment, with three officers and forty men were surrounded and taken prisoners by the Boers while looking for the wounded under a flag of truce at Colenso.

BRITAIN'S ARMY IN SOUTH AFRICA.

The news contained in to-day's despatches from London, while not furnishing exact figures of the number of men to be sent to South Africa under the new call, give sufficient information to permit an approximate summary of the total force now there and to be sent. This force may be stated as follows.

Regulars now under Buller's command	75,500
Volunteers from the colonies and the Cape, estimated	10,000
Fifth Division, regulars, now on the sea	10,000
Sixth Division, regulars, now mobilizing	10,000
Seventh Division, regulars, now ordered out	10,000
Remaining reserves ordered to join the colors, estimated	30,000
Eleven militia regiments which have volunteered	11,000
Part of the Yeomanry Cavalry, estimated	3,000
Total called out for South Africa	159,500
Less losses in battle to date, estimated	7,000
Effective total	152,500

The magnitude of the effort which England is about to make to overwhelm the Boers may be better appreciated when it is realized that Great Britain sent only some 30,000 men to the Crimea in the war with Russia, and that Wellington had but 31,000 British troops when he defeated Napoleon at Waterloo.

The remaining British reserve forces, not affected by the present call are:

Regular troops in India	65,000
Regular troops in Egypt	45,000
Regulars in garrisons and in colonies	75,000
Militia not called out	100,000
Volunteers, selected regiments to be called out	232,000
Yeomanry cavalry not called out	9,000
Total	526,000

COMPOSITION OF THE SECOND CONTINGENT.

There Will be Over One Thousand Men and an Equal Number of Horses.

THE COMMANDING OFFICER NOT YET NAMED.

Nature of the Work Requires Officers Well Skilled in Cavalry Tactics, and Social Influence Will be Discouraged Altogether.

Ottawa, Dec. 21.—There is a general scramble for positions as officers on the contingent. As far as Dr. Borden is concerned, fitness for the position will be the only influence that will have any weight. The social pull is always put forward in cases of this kind strongly, but with the Minister of Militia it will have no effect.

The General as well as Dr. Borden is determined that the contingent will be one of which Canada will be proud. Among the officers for the command of the mounted troops the names of Lieut.-Col. Denison, of Toronto, and Lieut.-Colonel Evans are mentioned.

There will be in charge of the mounted rifles a commanding officer and a senior Major, or second in command. There will also be three majors, three captains, twelve subalterns, or in all about twenty-five officers. The artillery will have about nineteen officers.

OVER 100 VOLUNTEERS.

Ottawa, Dec. 21.—Major Hurdman, commanding the Ottawa Field Battery, has been constantly receiving offers of service from ex-members of the corps. These offers made by letter and wire total 100. All these volunteers one time served with the battery, and, although scattered over the provinces from Halifax to Vancouver, are anxious to re-enlist for service in the Empire's cause.

HALIFA XENTHUSIASTIC.

Halifax, Dec. 21.—According to a telegram received at headquarters here this morning, the steamers Parisian and Laurentian have been definitely settled upon as the two transports to convey the second Canadian contingent to Cape Town, and the date of departure from the port Jan. 15.

Enthusiasm is unbounded, and the departure will be the occasion of the most inspiring and imposing scene ever witnessed in Halifax. From the enthusiasm displayed, and extent of the plans, it promises to eclipse the send-off given the first contingent atQ uebec.

Your correspondent was informed on the best authority that the Northwest Mounted Police company would arrive in Halifax a week before embarkation, coming direct from the Northwest on a military special, and arrangemntes for their reception at the North street depot are already under way. The majority of the men will be quartered at the dock yards and the remainder at the military barracks. Nova Scotia men will, as far as possible, be quartered in the immigration shed.

It is believed the recruiting stations in Nova Scotia will be Sydney, C. B., the home of the Sydney Field Battery, and Canning, the headquarters of the King's Canadian Hussars, commanded by Major H. L. Borden, son of the Minister of Militia.

Applications for enlistment are pouring in from all quarters, three lawyers being among the number; Charles E. Tanner, barrister, of Pictou, and two Halifax solicitors, G. D. Sandford, of Berwick, who served three years in the Canadian militia, and who spent five years in the Transvaal, is very anxious to enlist.

CHARTERED THE UMBRIA.

Liverpool, Dec. 21.—The Cunard line steamer Umbria, which arrived here December 17 from New York, has been chartered by the British Government for use as a troop ship.

The Umbria is sister ship to the Etrutria. She makes the trip from Liverpool to New York in less than seven days and should consequently travel to South Africa in slightly over two weeks.

LORD ROBERTS SPEAKS.

London, Dec. 20.—Gen. Lord Roberts, who is to have full command of the troops in South Africa, accompanied by Lady Robers and their two daughters, arrived in London this morning, having travelled from Dublin with Mr. Chamberlain. Their departure from Dublin was marked by cheering crowds, but the general made a quiet entry into London. After going to a private hotel he spent about an hour at the War Office in consultation with the Marquis of Lansdowne, Secretary of State for War. Then he returned to the task of packing his effects and interviewing the officers selected for his staff. General Roberts willingly accented to give the Associated Press the following statement—

"Circumstances naturally forbid my speaking about the campaign ahead of me, except to say that I have entire confidence in the British soldier, and that I believe the traditions of our army will be upheld in South Africa.

"I cannot too warmly express my admiration for the spirit which prevails in our colonies. The action of Canada will always be a glorious page in the history of the sons of the empire. I look for great things from the men she has sent and is sending to the front.

"The reports which indicate that disloyalty exists in the Irish regiments are absolutely untrue. In the hour of danger my countrymen have ever been among the first to lay down their lives for their Queen and country, and whether it be against the Boers or men of any other nationality, the Irish soldier will be found loyal to hisQ ueen and brave in battle. You cannot deny these reports of Irish disloyalty too strongly."

The representative learned that Gen. Roberts entertains a great friendship for Gen. Kitchener, though they have never served together.

PATRIOTISM ON ALL SIDES.

London, Dec. 21.—There was no news from South Africa up to 3 p.m. to-day with the exception of fragments of disconnected stories of past events. The splendid patriotism of the volunteers continues to be evidenced on all sides. The newspapers note with satisfaction the effect of this display of British spirit and evidence of the resources the empire is able to command is having on continental critics. But the Westminister Gazette sounds a note of alarm. It thinks the moment is peculiarly unpropitious to send abroad the home defenders since no one is quite easy as to the effect the British proceedings in South Africa will have upon Great Britain's European neighbors.

NOMINATIONS TO-DAY.

Mayor, Aldermen and Trustees to be Nominated Today.

The nominations for the Council and Board of Education takes place to-day in the council chamber. Mayoralty nominations from 10 to 11, after which an hour will be allowed for speaking. From 12 to 1 nominations for aldermen and trustees will take place, after which speaking will begin and will last until the candidates are winded.

Election takes place on New Year's day, and no man, no matter if he hold property in every ward in town, can vote more than once.

Elections of school trustees will take place by wards as formerly.

An Old Resident Gone.

An old and respected resident of the county died in Ashburnham on Wednesday, in the person of Mr. James Armstrong. Deceased was born in 1814, county Fermanagh, Ireland. He came to Canada in 1832, settling in the township of Emily. During the troublous times of 1837, he volunteered his services. He did not see active service, however, as the rebellion was put down before his company reached its destination. In 1841, he with his brother John, moved to Otonabee, taking up the farm now occupied by his son-in-law, Mr. J. Smithson. Two years later he was united in marriage to Catharine Lang, of Emily, who died six years ago. He gave up farming some years ago and rmoved to Ashburnham. Mr. Armstrong was long a member of the Methodist church. In politics he was a Conservative. He had but one child his daughter Annie, wife of Mr. J. Smithson. Both she and his brother from whom he was inseparable, and beside whom he always lived, remain to mourn his loss. Deceased was a gentleman who was widely known and highly respected by all his friends and acquaintances. The funeral will take place to-day at two o'clock.

A Pretty Wedding.

A very pretty wedding took place at the residence of the bride's mother, Aylmer street, on Wednesday afternoon, when Miss Elizabeth Shields, youngest daughter of Mrs. George Shields, was united in marriage to Mr. Angus McIntosh, of Orillia, son of the late Mr. Wm. McIntosh, of Warsaw. The nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. S. J. Shorey. The bride was bewitchingly attired in plush brocade trimmed with white satin. The bridesmaids were Miss Susie Chambers, of Toronto, and Miss Gertie McCabe, neice of the bride. Both were handsomely dressed in white organdie trimmed with blue and carried bouquets of flowers. Mr. T. Kinsman, of Port Hope, was best man. The bride was given away by Mr. D. Spence. Many handsome gifts were received, amongst which was a set of silverware by Hon. J. R. Stratton and the staff of the Examiner Printint Co., where the bride had been employed for some years. Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh left for a wedding trip to Toronto and other points. They will reside in Orillia.

Three Years in Jail.

Montreal, Dec. 21.—Ferdinand [illegible] was found guilty this morning of having signed a false return tot he Government of the standing of Ville Marie Bank, of which he was chief accountant. The jury recommended him to mercy, and Mr. Justice Wurtele sentenced him to three years in the penitentiary.

Piano Talk!

See and examine the construction of our instruments for yourself. Then listen to the TONE. TRY the TOUCH and you will be convinced as well as others that there is nothing so well made, so beautiful in TONE, so delightful in TOUCH, as the Stanley Pianos, Our SCALE is perfectly even. The DESIGN is new and up-to-date, chaste in every particular, while the price and terms are sure to suit. It will pay you to investigate. Compare the QUALITY found in the STANLEY with other instruments. They will stand the test and stand it well. When you consider that we have given our lifetime, our energy and our whole thought to the scale of this excellent instrument you will cease to wonder then WHY WE are so successful, WHY our pianos are in so many homes. Oxol.

The importing of the high grade beef preparations from Europe will be effected by the placing on the market of the commodity "Oxol," manufactured in Canada, where the first fluid beef was manufactured nearly twenty years ago. That Oxol will be the equal, if not superior to any other fluid beef preparation on this market, is a matter beyond doubt. A factory for its preparation has been fitted up in Montreal, with every modern improvement and appliance, which enterprise and experience backed by liberal capital can procure. Added to this is the fact that the whole concern is under the personal management of F. C. Silcock, who has had by far the longest experience of any man in Canada, or in fact in any country, in the manufacture of fluid beef preparations. Under his management the finest preparations of this class were produced in Canada, and he has given the best of his life efforts in that direction. At the factory, corner of St. Peter and Flounding streets, Montreal, the work of producing these preparations is now in full swing, and the excellence of the goods turned out is of the most gratifying nature. Not only has Oxol made its stand for popularity as a beverage, but analytical tests place it above any other similar preparation now on the market for concentration of nutrition, combined with delicacy of flavor and easiness of digestion and assimilation when used a food for invalids. To the person familar with the use of fluid beef preparations, it requires only one trial to convince, that Oxol has taken the fiorost class amongst all preparations of that class. In a country like the Northwest, or British Columbia, Oxol can be put to many uses besides that of food for the weak, or a strengthening beverage. The explorer, the surveyor, the mining prospector, and such like professions require frequently a condensed animal food which will fortify for prolonged physical endurance, and for this purpose Oxol has no equal. Every outfit should contain a supply of it. Then, where mental strain requires to be prolonged, its value is equally great, as its easiness of digestion and readiness of assimilation make it a very desirable food for the closely confined student. As its manufacturers state, it is not an essence of extrat, but beef itself in the most concentrated and nutritious form. The grocer, the druggist, and general merchant in this country should find it a profitable and safe article to handle, as it does not in any way deteriorate by keeping.

THE Canada Business College.

CHATHAM, ONT.

CANADA'S GREATEST SCHOOL OF SHORTHAND AND BUSINESS

PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS SHOULD NOTICE

This college has prepared over seventy teachers for other Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States, more than twice as many as all other Business Colleges in Canada combined, have so placed.

The proprietors of five of the leading business colleges in Western Ontario, who are to-day among our strongest opponents in the field of Shorthand and Business training, received THEIR training under the Principal of this institution. Besides these, there are five others holding leading positions as teachers in Business Colleges in Ontario.

Since Sept 1st seven of our pupils have accepted positions as teachers in Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States; another is now negotiating for a similar opening in a Business College in a leading American city, and there are five qualified calls of this kind on hand still.

DOES IT NOT PAY TO ATTEND THE BEST? You must decide.

236 of our pupils secured good positions in seventeen months, and the good work of placing our students still continues.

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus is constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

Deroulede Raises a Rumpus.

Paris, Dec. 20.—In the Senate to-day sitting as a High Court of Justice, M. Deroulede, who, though ill, was present, virulently denounced the Senators and law officer for being "Subservient to the Government's orders."

Amidst immense uproar, M. Deroulede added—"I wish to be condemned. I will say what Ithink of these scoundrels. This assemblage is infamous and dishonors France and the republic."

During increasing din, M. Deroulede continued—"I include in my denunciations both the Senate and the President of the Republic."

The prosecutor with difficulty made himself heard in the tumult which ensued, and demanded the prompt punishment of M. Deroulede, who continued to hurl insults at the High Court, coupled with the assertion that he desired punishment.

The session was eventually suspended, and the court retired to considert he situation. The prisoners acclaimed M. Deroulede.

We are Burned Alive.

New York, Dec 20.—Dr. Henry J. Garrigues started the Academy of Medicine last evening by the following statement: "Those who have made a special study of the question assert that out of every 200 coffins put under ground in this country, the occupant of at least one of them is simply in a lethargic state and is buried alive. Dr. Carrigues asserted that decomposition of the vital parts is the only irrefutable and reliable sign of death.

System Has Broken Down.

New York, Dec. 20.—Harry D. Tyler who last week shot and killed a bank burglar at Deep River, Conn, says a despatch from that place, has resigned his place in the bank, saying that the scene which he went through on the night of the shooting haunts him and that his nervous system has broken down.

Merrimac's Crew Saved.

Quebec, Dec. 19.—Mr. Levi, machanic, in the employ of Messrs. Mounted Police in Danger.

Seattle, Dec. 20.—During the latter part of last August Corporal Shirving of the North West Mounted Police and two comrades were sent out from Dawson to search for ill-fated parties on the Edmonton trail. Nothing has been heard from the rescuers and fears are entertained for their safety

Gets a Loan.

Oshawa, Dec. 20.—The McLaughlin carriage works, which was destroyed by fire a few nights ago, will be re-established here on condition of the town making the company a loan of $50,000 without interest repayable in twenty annual instalments. The company will build a three-storey factory, 700 feet long, by 50 feet wide. Mayor McLaughlin will resign before the agreement is put through by the Council.

WANTED FIRE BELL CLOTHES.

He Just Made Up His Mind to Kill That Town of St. Joe.

"Ah'm come back home for some clothes, an Ah want 'em wahm," said a tall young negro to a Walnut street haberdasher one day last spring. "Ah'm jes' agoin to kill that town of St. Joe. Show me the heatedest clothes yo' got in the house."

He was not coul as to raiment to start with. His overcoat was cream colored, overlaid with pearl buttons the size of those small butter plates still in use in restaurants. His trousers were green and ended in yellow shoes with brown shot silk tops. His hat was light blue, mottled in brown; his gloves were red and his cane heavily silvered.

"Can't no St. Joe nigger tell me Ah come from Raytown," he muttered. "Ah goes up to St. Joe to work, and the coons there laugh at me and tell me Ah ain't from Kansas City, because mah clothes is so inconspicuous, and Ah just save up mah money, and Ah'm agoin back to kill the town. Now what I want is some underclothes and socks and shirts and things that are the wahmest you've got."

"How will these do?" asked the haberdasher, exposing some scarlet hosiery, banded with wide white stripes.

"That's it. That's the kind of clothes Ah want. They ain't nothin in St. Joe like that. Lemme look at them underwear."

He inspected some red underwear with white stripes, some of baby blue with pink stripes and others of green with blue, black and red stripes. He bought neckscarfs of every shade of red, blue and green and of the most bewildering patterns. His purchases included zebra collars and pale pink shirts, diamond scarfpins at 85 cents each, but with $85 of shine, and a brown waistcoat with scarlet moons emblazoned on it.

"Ah've got 'em dead," he exclaimed when he had finished. "They've ceased to live. When Ah get back to that town of St. Joe they'll ask me if I come from Raytown, will they? Ah'm agoin to take back to that little ole burg such wahm clothes that they'll meet me with the fish department. That town's dead now, and Ah've killed it."

How Wealth is Carried.

"It is rather amusing," remarked the head of the biggest bureau de change in London to the writer, "to notice the various methods in which men of different nationalities carry their worldly wealth. The Englishman carries his all loose in his right hand trousers pocket—gold, silver and copper all mixed up together. He pulls a handful of the mixture out of his pocket in a large, opulent way and selects the coins he has need of. The American carries his wad of bills in a peculiar long, narrow pocketbook, in which the greenbacks lie flat; the Frenchman makes use of a leather purse with no distinguishing characteristics, while the German uses one gayly embroidered in silks by the fair hands of some Lottchen or Mina.

"The half civilized capitalist from some torrid South American city carries his dollars in a belt with cunningly devised pockets to baffle the gentlemen with the light fingers. Some of these belts are very expensive. The Italian of the poorer classes ties up his little fortune in a gayly colored handkerchief secured with many knots, which he secretes in some mysterious manner about his clothes. A similar course has charms for the Spaniard, while the lower class Russian exhibits a preference for his boots or the lining of his clothes as a hiding place for his savings."—London Answers.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sung it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. A Big Christmas Present.

A Curious Old Ad.

A Boston paper has unearthed this curious old advertisement from the Boston Post Boy and Advertiser for March 16, 1767: "The Bell-Cart will go through Boston, before the End of next March, to Collect Rags for the Paper Mills at Milton, when all People that will encourage the Paper Manufactory may dispose of them; the best Price will be given. They are taken in at Mr. Caleb Davis's Shop, at the Fortification; Mr. Andrew Gillespie's, near Dr. Clark's; Mr. Andrew Ransdale's, near Phillips's Wharf; and Mr. John Boies's in Long Lane; Mr. Frothingham's in Charleston; Mr. Williams's in Marblehead; Mr. Ellson's in Salem; Mr. John Harris's in Newbury; Mr. Daniel Fowle's in Portsmouth; and at the Paper Mill in Milton.

"Rags are as Beauties, which concealed lie;
But when in Paper, how it charms the Eye;
Pray save Rags, new Beauties to discover,
For Paper truly, every one's a Lover:
By th' Pen and Press such Knowledge is displayed,
As wouldn't exist if Paper was not made.
Wisdom of Things, mysterious, divine,
Illustriously doth on Paper shine."

But They Weren't Civilized.

Traveling in southern India, one day I was taken into the country to see tapioca roots gathered and ground for use. The adults working in the grove, men and women, had each a rag around the loins, but the boys and girls, with their black, glossy skins, were free of all incumbrance.

Our guide explained to these people that we were from a country so far away and so different from theirs that the waters were sometimes made solid by the extreme cold and we could walk upon them; that sometimes it was so intensely cold that the rain was frozen into particles and lay on the earth so deep that people could not walk through it, and that three and four layers of heavy clothes had to be worn.

This happy people, as our guide told us, wondered why we staid there, why we did not come and enjoy life in their favored clime.—Andrew Carnegie in North

A Challenge for Talmage.

New York, Dec. 20.—Dr. Joseph Collins, of this city, has challenged the Rev. De Witt Talmage VanDoren, of Norwalk, Conn., who claims to cure disease by the laying on of hands. Dr. Collins offered to place before Mr. VanDoren a patient, and if the clergy man cured him the doctor promised to give $1,000 to Mr. VanDoren's church. The Norwalk minister replied that he was too busy to consider the offer. He invited Dr. Collins to visit Norwalk.

ARE BUBBLING OVER WITH WAR SPIRIT!

Volunteers From Ocean to Ocean Eager to Go in Defence of the British Empire.

COMPOSITION OF CONTINGENT NOT YET KNOWN.

A Report That Canadians Have Already Been in an Engagement.

Hon. Mr. Tarte Denies That He Objects to a Second Contingent Going.

Ottawa, Dec. 20.—Dr. Borden visited Rideau Hall this forenoon, and had a conference with Lord Minto on matters affecting the contingent.

Communications are still going on with the War Office as to the composition of the contingent. Some time this afternoon or evening an official announcement will be made, but it may be taken as good as settled that the contingent will be made up as already outlined in this correspondence.

A telegram was received to-day from Dr. Douglas, M.P., East Assiniboia, asking Dr. Borden if he would take 25 or 30 men from that district. Offers from all parts are still coming in.

THE DRAGOONS READY.

Toronto, Dec. 20.—The Royal Canadian Dragoons, in expectation that they will form part of Canada's second contingent, are preparing for active and instant service.

All leaves have been stopped, and yesterday Lieut. Sutton, who is in Quebec on furlough, and Lieut. Straubenzie, who is on a visit to Winnipeg, were notified by telegraph to return to headquarters instantly. Lieut. Sutton arrived this morning, and Lieut. Straubenzie is coming as fast as the train can carry him.

The rank and file of the detachment are enthusiastic over the idea of going to Krugersland and last night 67 out of the total strength of 76 volunteered. The matter of the second contingent is the sole topic of discussion at Stanley barracks toda-y, and all sorts of rumors of those who will be selected to go to the front are flying, but the men have had no official news from their officers, and the commanding officers have not received orders from the Department at Ottawa.

DOWN BY THE SEA.

St. John, N.B., Dec. 20.—Every hour brings in offers of more volunteers. The whole contingent could be easily raised in New Brunswick.

Capt. L. P. D. Tilley, son of the late Sir Leonard Tilley; Sergt. Doig, Lance-Sergt. Rowe, Capt. Charles F. Harrison, Lieut. Ralph Markham and Lieut. J. H. Parks are among the officers who have volunteered for the second contingent.

Lieut. Markham has made a request that, failing a commission, he be given a place in the ranks.

There is a feeling in active militia circles here that Maritime Province volunteers should garrison Halifax, thereby enabling all British regulars now there to join the forces at the front.

TARTE DOES NOT OBJECT.

Ottawa, Dec. 20.—The Citizen, this morning, accused Mr. Tarte of kicking against the second contingent, especially in rgard to the matter of pay. The Minister wired his private secretary to-day as follows—

Montreal, Dec. 20.

To F. Gelinas,O ttawa—

You may authorize newspapers to say to say that ther eis not a word of truth in the Citizens article. I have been confined to my house since Saturday by illness. Sir Wilfrid Laurier was kind enough to come and see me. However, I will be all well enough to say a word or two to-night on the position of the Government in reference to the second contingent. I fully agree with my colleagues.

(Sgd.) J. Israel Tarte.

MONTREALERS ANXIOUS.

Montreal, Dec. 19.—The decision to send a second contingent from Canada to South Africa has aroused the greatest enthusiasm in Montreal, where hundreds are ready to show their loyalty to the empire. All the officers of the Montreal Field Battery have volunteered for service in the Transvaal and are anxious to go their with their battery. Major Costigan, commanding the 3rd Montreal Field Battery, says he can organize a complete battery in a week, outfitted in every particular of armament as the Imperial batteries. The guns used in the Imperial service are the same as used here, and are the 12-pounder rifled breech-loading guns of the very latest pattern. The guns and equipment will probably be taken from the batteries at Quebec.

The Montreal contractor for militia clothing last night received a rush order from the department for great coats, trousers and pantaloons. The order will be prosecuted with all possible speed, and is likely to be completed within two weeks. The order for trousers is taken to indicate that infantry will likely be included in the contingent.

CONTINGENT IN A BATTLE.

Montreal, Dec. 20.--Lieut.-Col. McLean, Commanding Officer of the 62nd Battalion, St. John, N. B., is in the city. Yesterday afternoon, just beforeleaving St John, he received a cablegram from his son, who is with the Canadian contingent in South Africa, which leads him to believe that the Canadians have had a brush with the enemy. The cablegram simply contained the words "All right," but according to pre-arranged code between father and son it indicates an engagement had been fought and that the members of the New Brunswick contingent came out all right.

Colonel McLean says had there been any casualties another word would have been used, and the names of the wounded or killed in the New Brunswick company added. Col. McLean believes the Canadians have been in a tight box, and his son, believing news of the engagement had already reached Canada, hastened to reassure relatives and friends of the New Brunswick company that all were safe.

TERRITORIES HAVE 1,000 MEN.

Winnipeg, Dec. 19.—F. W. G. Haultain, Premier of the Northwest Territories, was seen by a reporter to-day, and in conversation about the second Transvaal contingent, said—"I am making safe estimate when I say that within twenty-four hours of call for troops Alberta alone would have more than enough volunteers to form a corps one thousand strong. There are several thousand men in the Territories scattered around ranches, who would jump at the chance offered, and furnish their own horses and saddles.

COPPER MINING STOCKS

For several months shrewd investors have been putting their money into the shares of Copper Mines. This is true not only of men with large amounts of money at their disposal but also applies to those who have made a study of investments with a view to securing a large return for small investments. As high as THREE AND FOUR HUNDRED PER CENT. has to our knowledge already been realized on some of these investments. Americans were the first to make a specialty of Copper Stocks. They knew what they were doing, for the reason is not far to seek. Every Copper Mine in the world is at present taxed to its utmost limit to meet the growing demand for copper for electrical purposes. The reserve stores of copper are being depleted until it pays no longer to use copper in some eastern countries as a coin. Copper has gone up in price from 9c to 18 cents. The supply of Copper from the mines of the world to-day is only about 80 per cent. of the consumption. That is the reason why financiers have their engineers searching the four quarters of the globe for Copper Mines, and that is the reason the shares in promising copper companies are so eagerly picked up by investors.

If you have any money to invest we would ask you to consider the shares of the SUPERIOR GOLD & COPPER COMPANY, LIMITED. This Company owns and operates some valuable native copper properties. We are in a position to offer you a special opportunity in this stock which as an investment should give you a profit of at least 100 per cent in six months. Send for prospectus and particulars.

Occasionally we have an opportunity of giving our clients a special offer on some stocks, and we have this opportunity now. If you are interested write to us at once. These shares are sold in large or small blocks to suit buyers.

We deal in all legitimate mining shares on commission. If you want to buy or sell write us.

Identity of Dead Soldiers.

The names of the British killed and wounded after a battle are ascertained by means of the identification cards which all our soldiers carry sewn upon the left hand corner of the khaki tunics. On the card is written the soldier's name, rank, regimental number, together with the name and address of his next-of-kin. The latter is added so that the authorities may know where to forward the effects of any soldier who gets killed.

After an engagement the roll is called as soon as the regiments get back to their camp. Every man who does not answer is ticked off as missing, and search is made for him on the field. As the search parties come across the dead and wounded men they rip open the tunic at the left hand corner and take out the identification card. The cards thus collected are carried back to camp and handed over to the clerks of the general in command, who therefrom completes the casualty lists.

After all the cards have been collected the roll is checked again, and a note made of these men of whom no trace has been discovered. These are usually presumed to have been taken prisoners, but it does not always follow that the assumption is correct.

In the corner of his tunic opposite the identification card every soldier carries a small pad of bandages, etc., for dressing a wound. This field dressing, as it is called, is added to Tommy's equipment in order that he may be his own surgeon until medical assistance arrives, or may have the wherewithal on him to bind up the wounds of a chum.

You will probably be surprised to learn that one of the last things Tommy does when ordered to the front is to make his will, although every regiment contains a percentage of happy-go-lucky fellows who do not worry themselves about what will be come of their property when they no longer require it.

Boers Will Fight to the Death.

Some time before the outbreak of the British-Boer war President Kruger in an interview with a correspondent gave evidence of his feeling against England and the methods by which the war was being hastened. "We were talking," says the correspondent "about the suzerainty, and England's ability to form a cordon about the Transvaal and starve the Boers out.

"'If the Lord wills it' said he, 'they can do it. If not the English may build a wall about us as high as Jericho and we can live in plenty for a score of years.

"'But we do not want war. This country is big enough for Boer and Uitlander. All are welcome. Every white man will be protected, and when he shows a willingness to share the burdens of his adopted country he will see that I shall treat him fairly and give him the right to vote.

"'For years we fought and bled to hold this country, long before its wealth was known. We were too poor then to attract the greed of England. Should we now yield when the Lord has given us a reward for our labor and our toil? Before heaven, no.

"'My constant prayer,' he concluded, 'is that the Lord will save us from war. Should He let it come, however, then we will give a good account of ourselves. Every Boer will fight for his country. Every house will be a fort. The old and young will shoulder a rifle. Aye, and the women, too. We will live or die together.

"'Before God, the English have no right to force us in this way. I have made every sacrifice. My trousers they demanded, and I gave them. My coat, too, they have taken. Now they will have my life. I cannot give it. Bloodshed we do not want, but if England will have our country, then let her take it, but it shall be done over our bodies, and the ash heaps of our property and goods. I have said it.'"

The Victoria Cross.

It is probable that of the 70,000 men who have sailed during the past month from England for South Africa there is hardly a single officer or soldier who does not look forward to returning home with that little bronze badge known as the Victoria Cross pinned upon his breast. It is a distinction that is within the reach of every member of the entire force, from the divisional generals down to the smallest bugler or drummer boy, and there is not one of them who would not infinitely prefer it to any form of promotion. For its possession indicates that its owner is in every sense of the word a hero, the cross being conferred only for some signal act of exceptional bravery, partaking of the character of heroism. It was founded at the time of the Crimean war, and among those whose breasts it adorns are generals such as Sir Redvers Buller, who commands in chief in South Africa; Field Marshal Lord Roberts and plain, ordinary privates in the army. In fact, at least 50 per cent of the 300 Victoria Cross men won the distinction as privates or non-commissioned officers of the army and as common sailors in the navy.

Sir Redvers Buller, for instance, received his Victoria Cross for riding back three times in one day in the face of a hotly pursuing foe to rescue wounded comrades and soldiers. Lord William Beresford, who is married to an American woman, received it for feats of a similar character. Gen. Sir Evelyn Wood got it in India for advancing under a heavy fire along a narrow causeway to place a bag of gunpowder against a gate of the city which the English were to storm during the mutiny, while at least two midshipmen received the cross for picking up bombs from the decks of their vessels during the Crimean war and throwing them overboard before the dizzling fuse had time to explode the shell and carry death and destruction to all around it.

In the case of military men the ribbon is of red, while in the navy the ribbon is blue. The metal of which the cross is made is of that same kind of bronze that 50 years ago was used for field guns. The cross is of the style known as Maltese; has the royal crown, surmounted by the lion, in the centre, and underneath a scroll bearing the inscription, "For valor." It is hung suspended by a "V" ring to a bar, on the reverse side of which the rank and name of the recipient is engraved, while on the cross itself are inscribed the name and date of the action in which the honor was won.

An additional act of bravery which would have won the cross for its holder had he not already possessed it is signalized by a bar or clasp being added to the ribbon just above the bar from which the cross is suspended. The cross carries with it a pension of $50 a year, and an additional $25 is given for each bar.

Servant Girl Problem.

By the Times Special Poet.

Peterboronians are pointing
With the proudest kind of pride
To solution of a problem
Long in vain by others tried.
They are hiring men as servants
To do all the household chores,
While the former maids are seeking
Jobs in offices and stores.

And the men are broadly smiling
O'er the easy work and pay,
And each one of them is hoping
That the girl will stay away.
For the tasks to them are trifling,
And their rooms and meals are free,
And it's just like finding money
When their salaries they see.

That they're giving satisfaction
Is a fact that's very plain,
For they're up in all the business
That made old-time servants vain.
Clouds of dust they're promptly raising
When they give the broom a whirl,
And the men can smash the dishes
Just as well as any girl.

There is no fear that madam's bonnet
Will be sported by the cook,
And the gown she highly prizes
Will be found upon it's hook.
There are now no lunches waiting
For the hungry beaux to eat,
And no smiling from the window
At the copper on the beat.

There are many other reasons,
But these surely should suffice,
Showing that the servant problem
InP eterboro cuts no ice.
There so well the scheme is working
That it's pretty safe to guess
Other cities will adopt it
And enjoy the same success.

Men will do the washing, baking,
And all other household chores,
While the women hold positions
In the offices and stores.
And some bubbles now are trembling,
Seeing in the plans this doom—
That their wives will go out clerking
While they wield the mop and broom.

An Unprofitable Bone.

Last summer a friend presented us with a tortoise. I do not know whether our dog had heard of turtle soup or whether he regarded the creature as a new kind of bone that walked about; at any rate, he determined to eat it.

Whenever the tortoise started out on a constitutional down the garden path Gyp arrested it and carried it into his kennel, where he gnawed at the impenetrable armor till his jaws ached.

The calm and philosophical manner in which the tortoise resumed its interrupted promenade irritated the dog exceedingly, but no failure discouraged him. Whenever we reminded him of the tortoise, he would go in search of it all round the garden, peering into every crevice, till eventually the creature was found, and then fresh but futile attempts were made to extract the meaty portions from the shell.—

Did you ever notice the man in the switching-tower? Does it ever occur to you that the lives of every living person on a train frequently depend on the promptness and intelligence with which he moves the switch levers under his control?

If men could only realize how small a thing may act at the critical instant to switch them from a dangerous track on to one of perfect safety, the yearly deaths from lung disease would be less by many thousands.

"I had a regular consumptive cough, of which I was afraid, and everybody cautioned and warned me concerning it," says Mr. A. F. Novotny, P. O. Box 1437, New York, in a significant letter to Dr. R. V. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y. "When I started to take your medicine I was losing weight rapidly; I was very pale and had no appetite whatever. I used three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and now my condition is changed entirely. I do not cough at all; I have gained eight pounds in weight, have gained my healthy color; and my appetite is enormous. I can and will recommend your medicine to everybody who may be in need of it; as it is a sure cure, and no humbug as so many other patent medicines are. It is by far the superior of all."

One chapter of Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page illustrated book, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser tells of nearly one hundred men and women thus promptly switched from the track of death by this matchless remedy. This book is sent free for the bare cost of customs and mailing, 31 one-cent stamps, or cloth-bound for 50 stamps.

The longest continuous period of sleighing will not be more than a week.

SPECIAL SESSION.

Of the Town Council Last Night—Contractor Sheehy Claims $300 or $400 Due Him, But Ald. McWilliams Figures His Account at Maximum Amount of $6.

Town Council met in special session last night, when there were present: Mayor Davis, and Aldermen Best, Denne, Langford, Hall, Neill; Corkey McWilliams and Sawers.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Jas. Burnett, asking that the income tax of Samuel Ferguson be remitted—Court of Revision.

A communication enclosing a draft suggesting an earlier auditing of the Town's books, and publishing of financial statement was unfavorably received.

From Mr. Crough asking for extension of pool table license—Licence Committee.

TREASURER'S SURETIES.

THE RAILWAY NUISANCE.

The notice of motion introduced by Ald. Hall at last meeting of Council respecting the alleged abuse of priviliges by the two railways in the matter of railway crossings, etc., was referred to a committee of the whole Council.

President Leary, of the Peterborough Poultry and Pet Stock Association petitioned the Council to include in their grant of $50 free use of Market hall, from the afternoon of January 6th to 12th, 1899.

As one of the days upon which the exhibition will be held happens to be Wednesday—a market day—coupled with the fact that Market Clerk LeBrun's privileges and heat and light will have to be taken into consideration, the matter was referred to the Market Committee with power to act.

SHEEHY'S ACCOUNT.

At this juncture Ald. Hall remarked that Mr. Sheehy claims there is a balance due him of $300 or $400 on his contract over and above the 15 per cent. held in hand and the deduction for broken stone and cement. If this is correct he would favor his being paid this amount.

Ald. McWilliams claimed that Engineer Hay had made a mistake in figuring up Sheehy's account, and that even if no deduction were allowed for the quantity of granite lacking the sidewalks constructed under this contract, together with the difference between Ensign and Star cement there remains a balance of only $7 or $6 coming to Mr. Sheehy. He had no objection to this being paid forthwith.

The matter was referred to a committee of the whole Council, which will meet early next week.

Council then adjourned.

MR. KENDRY TO RUN.

He Has Decided to Enter the Mayoralty Contest.

Mr. James Kendry, M.P., has consented to enter the mayoralty contest against Ald. McWilliams. A small deputation waited on him on Wednesday night, and prevailed upon him to become a candidate.

It has been known for some time that a certain number of citizens have been making desperate efforts to induce some one to contest the election against Ald. McWilliams for the Mayor's chair. Ald. Denne was approached, and urged hard to stand, but declined to do so. Others were appealed to with like result. Finally Mr. Kendry was approached, and after every possible pressure had been brought to bear upon him, he finally consented to stand. "Anything to beat McWilliams" was the motto of at least a number of the gentlemen referred to. Of Mr. Kendry the Times has not an unfavorable word to say. We think he has made a mistake, however. The contest promises to be sharp and hot.

There is no truth in the rumor that General (Billy) Buller has taken his supply train of transports running between the station and the Times Bookstore off. Instead of doing this he has increased the force in order to keep the supply of elegant Christmas goods up to the proper mark.

A Sensible Man.

Mr. Edward Meek, the well known Toronto lawyer, in a recent article on municipal matters, says: Canvassing should be stopped. It is a nuisance. It destroys the secrecy of the ballot. It is disliked by candidate and elector—if they are sensible men. I am aware that some like to be asked for their vote. They reason: "If my vote is worth anything it is worth soliciting." The humiliation of it is such that only the few, I am glad to say, will undergo it. The best men are turning away from it in loathing, and the day will come when it will be utterly tabooed.

BRITISH FLEET MAY TAKE A HAND IN THE WAR.

Unless Portugal Ceases to Allow the Boers to be Reinforced Through Delagoa Bay, Warships May Seize Lorenzo Marquez—No Orders Regarding the Second Contingent,

(Special Despatches to The Times, 3 a.m.)

London, Dec. 22.

A despatch from Cape Town, dated Sunday, Dec. 17, says that General Methuen's primary object in crossing the Modder River appears to have been to establish searchlight communication with Kimberley, which is believed to be still on full rations. The water in the mines is plentiful. On the other hand, in spite of their usual tactics, it is considered possible that the Boers have been compelled to assume the offensive, the commando having arranged for the disposition of the forces and anticipating difficulty in obtaining food supplys in the present positions. Moreover, it is said there is a growing desire among the Free Staters to return home, which is testified to on many sides and may tend to precipitate an action.

London, Dec. 22.

In spite of the delay of General Metuhen in advancing, he is regarded as largely the master of the situation and his entrenchments is believed to be unassailable. In the event of the Boers attacking Kimberley, General Methuen would be enabled to make a counter move with his artillery and cavalry. Consequently such a movement on the part of the Boers, it is said, is not contemplated. It is apparent, therefore, that to "make haste slowly" is the truest policy at present. In accordance with General Methuen's dictum the army should not advance faster than the slowest ox waggon.

London, Dec. 23rd.

The Lisbon correspondent of the Daily Mail discussing the Boer importation of food, munitions of war and recruits by way of the Portuguese port of Lorenzo Marques, says—"Portugal is undoubtedly doing her utmost to check the transit of war material for the Boers through Delagoa Bay, and says Great Britain would do well to make a demand for greater watchfulness. Portugal, however, is in constant terror of a Boer Raid on her African possessions, and cannot stop the passage of volunteers for the Transvaal."

Sterkstroom, Cape Colony, Dec. 16

The Boers have been largely reinforced sinnce Gen. Gatacre's reverse at Stormberg. The country north of that point is in arms, and the farms of the loyalists are being taken by the Boers, who reap the crops. Boer accounts of successful engagements are printed for distribution throughout the disaffected districts.

Cheiveley Camp, Natal, Sunday, Dec. 17

The camp which was pitched to the left of the position taken by the united brigade was shifted from that point this morning to Chieveley. The wounded are being entrained for Pietermaritzburg. Most of the wounds are in the arms of legs. Dr. Treives is operating on the wounded. Sir Wm. MacCormick attended at the railway platform, and several assistant surgeons are giving every attention.

REPLY TO THE TRANSVAAL.

New Yoek, Dec. 27.—The Herald's Washington correspondent learns that Secretary Hay has sent a reply to the Transvaal Government which protested against the sale of the munitions of war by American manufacturers and merchants to the British Government. Mr. Hay's reply reiterated the neutrality of the United States in the present war, and declared that American citizens in trading with both belligerents violated no neutrality obligations. The authorities have information showing that the Boers' Government has purchased supplies in the United States, but the British Government, appreciating the right of the Americans to sell to both belligerents, has submitted no complaint.

MAY OCCUPY DELAGOA BAY.

London, Dec. 22.—There is a grave suspicion that the Boers are being amply supplied with food, munitions of war and recruits with the cognizance of the Portuguese officials at Delagoa Bay, and that Dr. Leyds is forwarding them from Europe. A hint is being thrown out that England may be compelled to send a fleet to occupy Lorenzo Marquez. It is added that Germany would not object, having received a quid pro quo in Africa.

IT WOULD MEAN DISASTER.

New York, Dec. 22.—Thomas G. Sherman, in a letter to the Tribune, supports the idea that the defeat of the British in South Africa would be a disaster to the United States. Continuing, he says—"It is most astonishing that intelligent business men who know anything of the history of the country should ignore the inextricable involment of all our financial affairs with those of Great Britain and forget the lessons of our history which shows that whenever Great Britain has been involved in a serious war, as in 1884 and 1857, panic and disaster have occurred in the United States, and that when there was even a slight shadow of a war cloud arising between the two countries, as in December, 1895, the panic and disaster in this country were vastly greater than they were in Great Britain."

In discussing President Kruger, of the Transvaal Republic, Mr. Shearman says—"The plain, obvious truth which no one can fail to see who uses his own eyes, is that Paul Kruger is a corrupt, unscrupulous, treacherous despot, who no doubt has a certain amount of sincere religion, precisely as Philip of Spain or the Duke of Alva, and many other similar pious souls had, but who, like them, never allows his religion to stand in the way of his personal spites or to intercept any tide of gold which would otherwise flow into his pockets."

WINSTON CHURCHILL SAFE.

London, Dec. 22.—Lady Randolph Churchill has received a cable despatch from her son Winston Churchill, who was captured by the Boers in Natal and taken to Pretoria, and whose escape from there was announced Dec. 14. He says he has arrived safe at Delagoa Bay.

IS TRANSPORT DEFECTIVE?

London, Dec. 22.—The Mruing Post to-day says: "If it be true, as wellin formed persons assert, that the troops in South Africa are without transports divisional, brigade or regimental, except such transports as the generals have been able to get together, many things which at first sight appeared absolutely inexplicable become intelligent. Even the dispersion of a force becomes capable of, if not justification, at least explanation. A general can do nothing with troops he cannot feed.

"The neglect in the case has been that of the political class leaders of both parties. They have not for many years taken seriously the possibility of war as a conflict in which the nation's existence or that of the Empire might be staked."

THE MINES ARE SAFE.

Paris, Dec. 22.—Dr. Leyds, representative of the Boer Government in Europe has been talking to the Matin and says that although he believes the Boer arms will be successful, the Boers are and will be at any time ready to listen to peace proposals, provided they are equitable. Asked regarding the safety of the mines, Dr. Leyds said: "The mines have been entrusted to safe and loyal hands. President Kruger has set troops and police to guard the property."

Dr. Leyds also expressed grave fears of a rising of blacks against the whites massacreing both conquerors and conquered.

VOLUNTEERS STILL PLENTFUL.

London, Dec. 22.—There is no diminution of the enthusiasm among the volunteers. All kinds of offers are reaching Lord Chesham, who is to command the mounted volunteer force. Members of the stock exchange have already promised 100 horses from their stables, and an offer of an Irish contingent of 115 hunting men were accepted this morning.

Prince Francis of Teck, youngest brother of the Duchess of York, sailed for Cape Town to-day with a detachment of the Royal Dragoons.

Lord Salisbury and General Roberts had a conference with the Queen at Windsor this afternoon.

ANOTHER SKIRMISH.

London, Dec. 22.—A War Office despatch from Pietermaritzburg, Natal, gives a list of casualties on Monday, Dec. 18, of seven men killed and fourteen wounded, all non-commissioned officers and men. The names of the regiments concerned indicate a hitherto unrecorded sortie from Ladysmith on that date.

NO ORDERS FROM OTTAWA.

Toronto, Dec. 29.—And still no official word has reached Stanley Barracks concerning the second Canadian contingent to be sent to South Africa.

"We are marking time," was all the officers in charge were able to say. So far as instructions can be anticipated everything possible is being done. Veterinary Surgeon-Major Hall and Veterinary-Captain Quinn, of the Hamilton Field Battery, busied themselves inspectingt he horses this morning, but the work was stopped pending the arrival of instructions from the capital. Many equines were trotted up to the inspecting grounds. Some of them were all right, while others looked as if a sea voyage would be too much for them. One hundred and fifty horses are to be purchased here, both for cavalry and artillery. The animals that pass the veterinaries' hands are requisitioned by the Government, and later such of them as are required will be purchased.

In all probability not more than forty men will represent the cavalry of this citu on the contingent. More than the number which the Governor-General's Body Guards will be permitted to send have volunteered from one squadron.

The Boiler Exploded.

London, Ont., Dec. 21.—At ten minutes after seven this morning the boiler in the Crescent Milling Company's factory on Bathurst street blew up, completely wrecking the brick engine house, wherein it was located, but fortunately not damaging the factory close by. The force of the explosion shifted the boiler about 50 feet. The fragments of the engine house door were afterwards found two hundred feet away. James Hetherington was the only man in the engine house at the time. He was seriously scalded about the head and shoulders, but, strange to say, was not fatally hurt. The cause of the explosion was the giving way of a patch in the end of the boiler.

Not Untruthful.

"Sir, how is it that you adertise in The Morning Times, all the beer a fellow can drink for five cents and then stop me on one glass after I have paid my money?" indignantly demanded Hungry Willie as he lined up to the bar of the Snowden House and addressed the genial proprietor.

"I advertised all the beer you can drink for five cents, didn't I?" asked the latter.

"You did, sir," replied Will.

"Well, that's all the beer you can drink for five cents in this place. See?"

This South African business has got to be settled.

THE CIVIC NOMINATIONS

A Very Hot Contest Over the Mayoralty Issue.

SOME NEW MEN OUT.

Speeches of Ald. McWilliams and Mr. Kendry, the Mayoralty Candidates.

Much Interest Taken in the Nominations—A Number of New Men Are Out for the Council.

The nominations took place yesterday, and as a result of the attention given municipal matters by the Times, scores were unable to gain admission at the Council Chamber when Town Clerk Drmstrong announced the following nominations for Mayor—

James Kendry, proposed by Adam Hall, seconded by T. J. Maine.

J. B. McWilliams, proposed by John J. Hartley, seconded by R. H. Jackson.

Mr. Adam Hall stated that in Mr. Kendry the citizens had a man whom they had tried for four years, and knew what he was. That he had been found satisfactory had been proven by the fact that a requisition containing four of five hundred names had been signed requesting him to allow his name to be placed in nomination for the Mayoralty. He had sat in the council with Mr. Kendry for several years, and always found him progressive and economical.

Mr. T. J. Maine, Mr. Kendry's seconder, stated that he was supporting Mr. Kendry as a workingman, and he hoped all workingmen would unite to return him at the head of the poll.

Mr. J. J. Hartley, in nominating Mr. McWilliams, stated that last year he had supported Mr. Davis, who had been elected, but this year he was with Mr. McWilliams. He did not intend to criticize the actions of last year's Council, as the ratepayers were as fully posted in such matters as he was himself, but all would agree with him in the statement that the Council needed at its head a good, straightforward, pushing man. Mr. McWilliams' record as an alderman was before the public. No man could suit everyone, but when a man does his best this is all that can be expected. Mr. McWilliams had done this to the best of his ability, and would continue to do all he could for the advancement of the town. Mr. Kendry had too many irons in the fire to give the town the necessary attention. Mr. Kendry had been Mayor for four years, and had retired as he found he could not give the town's affairs the necessary amount of attention. He had gone into Parliament, which, with his own business, too up all his time. It was a step backwards on Mr. Kendry's part to offer himself for Mayor. There should be any amount of men, other than the Member of Parliament, in a town of eleven thousand inhabitants who should be capable of filling the chair. Mr. Kendry had enjoyed the honor of the Mayor's chair. He had been worthy of it, but he should not step in now to debar others from the same privilege.

Mr. R. H. Jackson briefly seconded Mr. McWilliams' nomination.

Mr. James Kendry stated that he supposed all present knew that it was in accordance with a largely signed requisition that he had entered the mayoralty field. Mr. Hartley had saif that hois time was up for this kind of thing but Mr. Clarke of Toronto whose duties would be one hundred times greater, was doing the same thing. In Montreal, Mayor Prefontaine was a member of the house, as had also been the case in Ottawa and Belleville. It was true that he had large business interests to look after but if he agreed to look after the town's business he would do it and do it well. He had never yet started in at anything that he did not find time to do it. He had been in the council for 13 years and had always endeavored to do what was right. He had never tried to further his own interests when he was there. He had not a dollar to-day that was not invested in the town and no man had tried to do more in the manufacturing way, with his small means as he had himself. The council should be run more harmoniously. A town was like a business firm—there must be harmony at headquarters if it is to be run right. He had not sought the nomination, but under the circumstances could not refuse it. He was running as a public duty, which he owed to the town. In the campaign he did not intend to say a word against Mr. McWilliams and would use every consideration in regard to him. If Mr. McWilliams was successful they would be as good friends as ever, but he intended to be Mayor himself. The Town needed the closest attention. It was hardly able to hold its own. There were too many empty stores. If he was elected he would do everything possible to encourage manufacturers and to carry on the business of the town in a business like manner. If any fault was to be found with the work of the council during the past few years he reminded the ratepayers that he was not responsible for it. Mr. McWilliams would doubtless have something to say about it.

Mr. J. B. McWilliams stated in opening that he was pleased to have an opportunity of discussing the business of the town with the ratepayers. His remarks, however, would be brief as a latter meeting would be held at which he would go into details. He was pleased to learn that Mr. Kendry had accepted the nomination as he had feared that one of the combination of A. L. Davis, Robert Neill, Wm. Langford and E. H. D. Hall would be out against him and it would not have been any credit to down any of these men. He was an Irishman and loved a good fight, therefore he welcomed Mr. Kendry's appearance. He had thought that in his remarks Mr. Kendry would bring up something against him. He was sorry he had not, as during his several terms in the council he had taken no action that he was not able and willing to defend. When he entered office he defend. When he entered office hehad done so with the intention of showing far or favor fo none, and it would have been a sorry thing if harmony had prevailed, as this could only result from letting men have their own way like Mr. Davis who had private interests to supports. He had earned Mr. Davis' enmity through various ways, as evidenced by the fact that last year Mr. Davis had asked his support, stating that it was [illegible] (Mr. McWilliams) for the Mayoralty for 1900—yet he was not doing it. This was because for one thing, when Mr. Davis wanted a grant of a town lot for th epiano factory, of which he is president, on the single condition that he would erect a building on it, the speaker had objected, insisting that a stipulated number of men be emploued and $20,000 be paid out in salaries. Any man would be glad to get a lot if he could get it by the erectionoia if he could get it by the erection of a building. The speaker didn't believe in giving away the town lots for nothing. Alderman McWilliams then went on to say that he had been interested in the change from the ward system, but he was sorry for it very shortly afterwards, as it resulted in the formation o fauch a ring as Hall, Neill, Langford and Davis, whose first action was to decide that a proper per person for the chairmenship of a committee was one who knew nothing cabout the work which that committee had to do. It was through them that the town had no Board of Works.

Davis and Langford had constituted themselves the Board of Works, and the Mayor was responsible for the work done. He it was who had a pavement laid out to his own place in the country and the streets made as smooth as a bowling alley, whilst the central portion of the town suffered. These were the men who had gone out with the requisition for Mr. Kendry. Mr. Kendry had spoken of the empty stores. Whose fault was it that the stores was empty? It was the result of the system of landlordism. The tenants were no better than clerks for their landlords. It surpassed Irish landlordism. Mr. Davis had gone round making every merchant sign to pay for the pavement in front of his store, when it was intended that the landlords, and no one else, should be at this expense. The speaker then went on to say that he had the misfortune to run up against the Auburn Company. The Electric Light Co. and the Auburn Co. were both in the electric business, and the latter company had succeeded in getting one of its members into the coucil in the person of Mr. Meldrum, who had worked to get the by-law repealed which taxed his company $400 a year for pole rent. Mr. Meldrum had been charged with making an agreement with the Peterborough Electric Light Company, whereby one company would control the lighting and the other the power. He had flatly denied this though at the time the agreement had been made in writing and was actually in existence. The by-law had been repealed and the town defrauded of the rental. A few weeks ago another by-law had been passed compelling the Auburn Co. to pay a rental of $1 per pole, placing them in the same position as the other company. Probably Mr. Kendry was entering the council with the object of having this by-law repealed. It was in endeavoring to fight all these combines that the speaker had aroused the enmity of the men who were opposed to him. There had been more trouble when he had opposed striking $20,000 off the assessment of a wealthy town manufacturer recently. It had been struck off, however, and the poor man had to bear this further burden. These were the reasons why he had opposition—because he was not a tool in thehands of the ring. He had spoken his mind openly rather than act as a snake in the grass. In running for the council he had Whitney's permission as well as that of the Premier. In regard to his attacks on the town solicitor he thought he was justified in them, as during 11 years, Mr. Edwards had lost $6000 for the town and had not won a High or County Court case, only being able to win two small Division Court cases. He did not attack town officials who were worthy, such as Town Clerk Armstrong who could not be surpassed in the Province of Ontario. He would like to have had Davis, Neill, Hall and Langford all come out against him at once and would offer to pay the expenses of the whole election if he could not beat the total vote polled for the whole combination. In regard to the contracts for the pavements, he wished to say that he favored the investigation as the result of Mr. Ranney's report. No man would be justified in passing it over. The Mayor and all the council had voted to hold an investigation, but the speaker was willing to shoulder the whole responsibility if necessary. The expenses had been small, witness fees only amounting to $30 or $40 and the only extra expense was the payment of the Judge and shorthand writer. He was willing to put up a bond to indemnify the town if they would assign that case to him and let him bear the expense himself in fighting it out in the courts. In coming out for Mayor he had first consulted Aldermen Best and Alderman Denne, as older members, and as neither of these were desirous of the honor he had come out himself. He was willing however, to retire if Mr. Kendry would do the same and allow Mr. J. J. Hartley to take the office by acclamation.

Mr. Kendry—"I would have been glad to do so if you had spoken earlier, but the hour of 12 is past and it is now too late."

Mr. McWilliams—"No, it isn't too late. We can make arrangements yet."

Mr. Kendry stated that if he entered the council he would not do so to further the interests of any company or to repeal any by-law.

Mayor Davis stated that though it was not his intention to say anything, still he felt impelled to contradict Alderman McWilliams' assertion about his promise

THE LIME JUICE CLUB

A Long Way After
The Lime Kiln Club

"I have been deeply pained," began Sir Richard, as he slowly rose up and stood with his hands under his coat tails. "I have been deeply pained at coming across fresh evidence to show that the average man is mentally wabbling about instead of walking right a head in the middle of the road. One week ago to-night I was in Brother Harry LeBrun's store when Cautious Miller of Keene came in and got measured for three shirts, and ordered Bro. Peter Corkery, to make them to button behind. He didn't see me, and I was so paralized that I couldn't have spoken to him if he had. All my life I have bought unbleached cotton at six cents a yard, and had the old lady make my shirts—and they were shirts same as Bro. Jim Stratton wore before he took to politics. The shirt that buttoned in front with buttons costing six cents a dozen, had been good enough for poets, warriors and statesmen. The home made shirt won liberty for the British people, and cleared our Canadian forests, ploughed our fertile Northwest forests, and laid the foundation of our present greatness. The idea that the time had arrived when a person earning six dollars a week, and having only one lung to breathe with feels that he must have two dollar shirts to be in the swim, just takes my breath away.

"A few nights ago I met Anvil McCann in a drug store. Anvil is a young man. Any one to look at him would say that he was not sot to stay sot. I had always considered him a man without any foolishness and you can imagine my surprise when he boldly enquired for scented soap, vaseline, cold cream and tooth powder! He actually turned away from a ten cent tooth brush and took one at 25! Bro. Bob Fife himself seemed kind of dazed as he packed up the goods.

Did Bro. Kendry enquire for scented soap before he jumped into the Municipal ring? Does Ald. McWilliams rub Ensign cement on his white cloth gaiters before he goes down town? Did Bro. Edwards brush his teeth with pink powder before commencing his memorable speech on the granolithic sidewalk case, so as to give his words a soothing effect to Ald. Langford et el? Shakespeare, Byron, Milton and Bro. Bob Fair clean their teeth with a rag tied to a stick, but our Anvil powders and greases his jaws like a duke!

"Where is Anvil Davis to-night? I answer that he is home and in bed, and the doctor says his backbone is two inches out of plumb. I was working in my yard the other day when Bro. Davis came in to see me. He leaned up against the fence and talked, and by and by he sprung it on me. What do you suppose that person wanted? Wanted to borrow five dollars to get a pair of shoes—patent leather shoes—and another dollar to buy a couple of pairs of silk socks! My friends, I didn't appear to breathe for three minutes. Then my breath came with a rush, and I picked up Bro. Davis and threw him over a nine-foot fence on a heap of bricks.

"My old woman was taken sick the other night, and I went over to the house of Cripes Mulcahey to borrow a little ginger. Bro. Mulcahey always appeared to me to be a solid, sensible man, and I couldn't scarcely believe that I was awake when I looked around that house. There was a cuckoo clock, same as Queen Victoria goes to bed by. There were three stuffed chairs, a bust of Napoleon, a footstool that never cost less than fifty cents, and right on the floor, being stepped on by all the family a dozen times a day, was a rug that cost $4? When Mr. Fulton invented the steamboat, did he have his feet on an $8 rug? When Sir Isaac Newton discovered gravity, did he have a cuckoo clock cuckooing to him? When the Duke of Wellington fought and licked the French, did he sit on a stuffed chair and direct his battles?

"But that was not all, my friends. I got a peep into the spare bedroom and beheld shamholders on the bed and a canopacious canopy above it, same as the kings of Europe. There was a red table cloth on the table, and albums fit for a queen lying around, and all the knives and forks had handles on them. Bro. Mulcahey works in a woodyard for $4 a week and has a wife and eight children, but he must be in the swim! I know one time last winter when he went without socks in order to buy a soup dish with two regular handles to it!

"My friends, I have mentioned only three or four instances out of a dozen I could name. It makes me sick at heart got to sit down on stuffed chairs, dangle his feet on $8 rugs and be sung to sleep by cuckoo clocks, then the sooner I am called to go the better. It's ahead of my time, and I can't catch up to it. I am not going to say any more about it, but I want it understood right here and now that the man who is in the swim hadn't better come to my house to borrow money. About the times he gets through explaining to me that he has got to have $8 to get a set of silk underclothes to wear to the hockey game I shall light down on him and make him wish he had never been born."

WINTER MOTTOES.

Bro. Coal Heaver McClellan, Chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, submitted the following new winter mottoes, which were ordered to be hung up around the Hall of Wisdom —

"One ton of coal is worth forty predictions that it is going to be a hard winter.

"Too much talk is like a string freshet in a creek. There's heaps of water, but it don't do anybody any good."

"The world certainly owes every man a living, but it doesn't specify whether he is to have sweet-cake or Indian-meal."

"Almost any religion is good enough to live by, but when it comes to a religion to die by there is a great scramble for an A1 brand."

"But for the few really honest people in this world there would be no need for poor-houses."

"It makes a heap of difference whether you lose your wallet or find somebody else's in the road. In the one case honesty is the best policy; in the other you walk about four weeks to think it over."

"It was not intended that man should take solid comfort. No sooner has the cold weather killed off the mosquitoes than along comes the chap who wants to borrow a dollar."

"The person who is chuck-full of promises is pretty certain to have empty pockets."

KNOCKED OUT.

Bro. Jamfed Jones had been looked upon as a deep thinker and wise philosopher. Great was the astonishment, therefore, when he slowly arose and offered a resolution to the effect that the sum of $25 be voted from the treasury for the purpose of purchasing a pier glass for the anteroom in the Hall of Wisdom. The motion was not supported, and the silence for the next sixty seconds was so deep that the cracking of Fortypercent Duncefort's toejoints sounded like the explosion of musketry. The President looked down upon Bro. Jones in a cold-blooded way, and finally replied —

"Bro. Jones, that resolution is only 16 degrees of longitude out of order, but it betrays a reckless disregard of the eternal fitness of things that almost paralyzes me. When this Great Club imagines that it has become so pretty, and the various members so filled up with vanity that the business of the Dominion of Canada must go to grass while we grin at ourselves in a looking glass, it will be time for us to disband. You have evidently become soft on the top of the head. But for believing this to be the case, I would fine you as high as $28,000 and costs. Sit right down, Bro. Jones, and the less you say between now and New Year's, the better it will be for you.

A PROPOSAL.

The janitor handed a sealed envelope to the President. He stated that he had received it annonymously.

On opening the letter it was found to contain an offer from Professor Gustavus Johnstone, of Bobcaygeon, to deliver his celebrated lecture on astromony for $8 (to be paid in advance.) He went on to say that he could prove that the popular theory of the sun moving is entirely wrong. He would expect some member of the Lime Juice Club to board and lodge him, and the Fire Brigade had to meet him at the depot.

The Secretary was instructed to answer that this club did not care a continental whether the sun moved or not, provided the moon appeared on regular dates, as several members held stock in the Peterborough Electric Light Company, and that $2.50 was the highest price the club would pay for any kind of a lecture, not followed by a grand display of fireworks.

ADJOURNED.

Bro. Buckeye called the President's attention to rule 376,423, which states that no business transacted after 11 p.m. would be legal, so the balance of the business was put in the safe, and the meeting went home for one week.

OVER 180 VOLUNTEERS.

Ottawa, Dec. 21.—Major Hurdman, commanding the Ottawa Field Battery, has been constantly receiving offers of service from ex-members of the corps. These offers made by letter and wire total 180. All these volunteers one time served with the battery, and, although scattered over the provinces from Halifax to Vancouver, are anxious to re-enlist for service in the Empire's cause.

Every one will feel sympathy for the aged Queen, thus bowed-down in her declining years by sorrow for the death of so many of her brave officers and soldiers, including a number of her personal relatives. Her Majesty's love of peace has often succeeded in averting war with other nations and it is peculiarly sad that in these latter years of her reign she should find Great Britain plunged in a conflict so fatal to the flower of the troops of the empire.

Servant Girl Problem.

By the Times Special Poet.

Peterboronians are pointing
With the proudest kind of pride
To solution of a problem
Long in vain by others tried.
They are hiring men as servants
To do all the household chores,
While the former maids are seeking
Jobs in offices and stores.

And the men are broadly smiling
O'er the easy work and pay.
And each one of them is hoping
That the girl will stay away.
For the tasks to them are trifling,
And their rooms and meals are free,
And it's just like finding money
When their salaries they see.

That they're giving satisfaction
Is a fact that's very plain,
For they're up in all the business
That made old-time servants vain.
Clouds of dust they're promptly raising
When they give the broom a whirl,
And the men can smash the dishes
Just as well as any girl.

There is no fear that madam's bonnet
Will be sported by the cook,
And the gown she highly prizes
Will be found upon it's hook.
There are now no lunches waiting
For the hungry beaux to eat,
And no smiling from the window
At the copper on the beat.

There are many other reasons,
But these surely should suffice,
Showing that the servant problem
In Peterboro cuts no ice.
There so well the scheme is working
That it's pretty safe to guess
Other cities will adopt it
And enjoy the same success.

Men will do the washing, baking,
And all other household chores,
While the women hold positions
In the offices and stores.
And some hubbies now are trembling,
Seeing in the plans this doom—
That their wives will go out clerking
While they wield the mop and broom.

MILLBROOK.

Batch of Breezy Notes From Peterborough's Southern Suburb.

We must congratulate our genial merchants for the attractive and painstaking manner they have taken in dressing the windows and interiors of their respective stores with the choicest and most suitable wares of Kriss Kringle Yule tide goods. The only suggestion or criticism we might make is that we think our larger stores should not impose on our smaller ones to such an extent by taking advantage of the holiday season in overcrowding their stock with fancy goods and toys, as it gives an up-to-date modern store the appearance of one of the city's toy or ten cent stores, and, also they should remember the old proverb—"Much Wants More and Loses All."

Our scientific citizens were again on the alert Saturday night to witness a partial eclipse of the moon, which proved to be very distinct, although occasionally obstructed by a passing cloud. Jas. Sanderson I.O.S.S., and astrometer, who made himself so famous by the magnificent observations and explanations of the eruptions of Mt. Vesuvious in the year 1872, which the former took from the Isthmus of Panama with a six inch telescope was the first to draw the attention of the usual large crowd on Saturday evening to view the eclipse, and after procuring Dr. H. A. Turner's X-rays, proceeded to Needler's pond and immediately took up John Sloan's prominent fishing position but found, after making numerous shifts, that his view was obstructed by a supposed bon fire in the island of Luzon, and he at once returned Mr. Turner's valuable instrument and proceeded to the dome of the world renowned U.S.O.R. Hall of Science. Theology Sociolgy Biology Anthology Anthropology Amphibology, Psychology, Archaeology, Geology, Omithology, Anaesthetics, Aconstics, Electricity, Cosmogony, History, Chemistry, Botany, Automobiles, Agriculture, Horticulture and all other leading achievements of the nineteenth century. After getting a cannon into position (relic of the war of 1812) and one of Mr. H. Johnston's bevel plate mirrors with the quicksilver erased from the same, proceeded to take observation, but after 48 hours diligent acutiny was shown, by a dignified friend, to his great consternation, that he had been watching the North star.

Mr. Wm. Raper went up to Toronto, Monday, to visit friends.

Mr. Wm. McKnight went to Port Hope on a business trip Monday.

Mrs. W. Lancashire left Monday to visit friends in Colborne.

Mrs. J. R. Eakins returned home Monday, after an enjoyable time with friends in Colborne.

Messrs. Thos. Grandy and J. R. Eakins shipped two car loads of excellent cattle to Montreal Saturday for the Christmas market.

We deeply regret the illness of Mrs. A. Raper, Dominion Hotel, and hope for a speedy recovery.

We congratulate Mr. A. C. on the binding obligation rumor states he has taken, and wish him many years of prosperous happiness.

We highly appreciate the dignified look of Johnnie M's countenance during the past two weeks, as he soon expects to resume his old haunts in sharing of the world's greatest treasure (bliss) upon C. S's return from the Queen city. He might reflect upon the word of Scotland's greatest poet, as a proverb of the past—"Had We Never Met or Never Parted, We Would Never Have Been Broken Hearted."

We would like to know if Miss Mary A. soon intends exciting the intellect of her many friends by the romance of Cupid, as we notice Mr. Wes. Williamson making frequent visits of late along the balmy street to the Octagon mill

It affords us the greatest pleasure to state that one of our noble sons, in the person of Mr. Van Raper, who left his native land a number of years ago to seek his fortune in South Africa, has taken up arms for our glorious Empire in the Transvaal. Mr. B. Raper received on the 18th inst. a letter dated Nov. 4th, stating that he had left his situation in Johannesburg when ordered to leave there after the war was declared, and had enlisted with the Coldstream Guards and expected to be ordered to the front at once, which is now 57 days ago, having taken the letter that length of time to reach here. And as we have seen by the papers, great gallantry displayed by this superb regiment, no doubt Mr. Raper has made his mark, as a soldier, as it would not be new to him, as he served in the Jameson raid in 1896.

A SUCCESSFUL EVENT.

One of the most successful events in the way of festivities known in the history of our fair town was held in the firemens' qualified hall Tuesday evening. After about 94 of its courageous members had done justice to a sumptuous repast in which oysters figured conspicuously on the bill of fare, Mr. H. Hewson was elected to the chair, and after making a suitable reply for the honor of the position given, opened the programme by singing, "Jolly Good Fellows," and "Soldiers of the Queen," and then called on Mr. W. Kinyon, elocutionist, whose songs and speeches were so medodious and fascinating that brothers applauded to such an extent that the roof on Collin's pond fell in and the water run dry in Victoria House cistern, and McIvors' cow was so badly frightened that it never came home for breakfast till Thursday morning at 12.62 p.m.

General W. Leach was next called on but his forlorn looking appearance at once showed that there would be as much difference between his speech and brother Kinyons as there would be between the time of the "Wedding March" and the "Dead March in Saul." He stated that the late reports from the seat of war preyed on his mind as the terrors of Island of Molokai, and he sincerely trusted to Providence that noble sons of Briton would soon wipe out the stain of Majuba Hill and Modder and Tugela rivers.

Mr. Teach's speech brought such a spasm of sorrow to the brethran that Jas. Handley had to put the enormous amount of steam of 200 pounds above cold water test to keep the superflous amount of tears Messrs. B. Raper, H. Nattrass, H. Dunsford, Wm. Scott, Chas. Neeler, E. McCorry and a number of other members then made some very appropriate speeches for the occasion, and wound up the meeting by singing all the leading patriotic songs, and a right old Irish jig, which was danced to perfection under the skilful supervision of Mr. N. Hogan, professor on modern etiquette. The boys left the hall when the electric current had vanished, giving three stentorian cheers for the British Lion before they broke up.

NOTES.

Mr. W. Kerr left Monday to spend his holidays with friends in the Queen city.

Miss A. Noble, of Cobourg, returned home Wednesday after a pleasant visit with the Misses. Grandy's.

A number of our young ladies, who have been attending college, returned home Wednesday to spend their holidays under the parental roof.

UNITED SONS OF REST.

Owing to the want of time on the part of your correspondent we now continue the minutes of the previous meeting of the above noble order which we left off at "Good and Welfare" in our last issue. When His Honor had called all to order by a summersault from the plush cushioned mahogany chair belonging to the Lime Juice Club, Peterborough, having indulged too much in the Centre House champagne, Mr. H. Paterson took the floor and stated that as he was a new member he did not know whether the business he wished to refer to came under this heading or not, but however if the Harmony Band would answer by playing, "Sing Out Old Man and Honor Your Land," which was quickly responded to, he would make the Society acquainted with the fact, which is that owing to the large demand he has had of late for his imported horses he found it necessary to enlarge his renowned stock farm to the munificent extent of 700 feet above sea level to supply the demand, and that he would require the Society's aid in gold for 8 hours, and four hundred men for 5 years.

Mr. H. Nattrass, Cutler to Paul Kruger, seconded Mr. Patterson's motion.

Before the echo of the last syllable had announced independence for the Americans patriotic friends in Cuba Mr. Patterson's motion was carried unamiously, as the horses are supposed to be despatched at once to the seat of war.

Bro. W. Strain then took the floor and claimed that as all other beneficiart societies had given liberally in different ways in showing their patriotism to our Empire, he would move that $4,000 be drawn from the treasury of the Society and an agreement be signed by the absent Secretary of the financial committee to furnish 1000 charfrons, and that Uncle Sam's noted war vessel, the Oregon, be chartered at the Society's expense, and that the same be despatched to General Buller with all haste, as it was for the want of the above that he was so severely repulsed on the 16th inst. at Colenso.

Mr. Strain's motion put such enthusiasm into the patriotic members that peace could only be restored when Went Gray tried to put the goat out of the window, thinking he could dispose of the same to the gypsies on their way up to W. S. and have one of his usual knee actors for Mr. W. J. Pearson, who is billed for here in the near future.

Mr. W. Bruce, late of the T.P.S., who had been nominated at a previous meeting to fill the President's chair stated that as the constitution called for the election of officers six times a year nearest the new moon, that next meeting night would be the night for same and as he had been troubled of late with elephantes, which had almost turned to [illegible], he would resign any position for the following term.

After a consultation between the Society's medical advisers, and Messrs. S. Sloan, N. McBrien and J. C. McMahon, it was decided that Mr. Bruce's motion be sealed and deposited in the Bank of England for 45 days, when it must be opened before the lodge and Mr. Bruce again nominated for the important office.

Mr. Thos. Hunter, whose nom de plume is "By Hang," claimed that as he was an old member of this society he thought that they should settle the bill of $5.65 for rations received of Thos. Sotheran during his wood cutting bee.

Mr. J. B. McMahon seconded the motion which was carried after considerable discussion

Mr. A. Raper then moved that Jas. Bullied, who had been given the office of gendarme, be discharged with all the honors of the lodge for incapability, and non-fulfillment of this important office, as the President might have been assassinated and he not have known it till the funeral notices were up.

Mr. Raper's motion was seconded by John Beatty and carried by a vote of 647 to nothing.

The meeting was then interrupted by Sweet William Armstrong, a prominent member of the Lime Juice Club Peterborough, who stated he wished to see the President on important business, which was only to view one of his choice apples which proved to be a haw taken from Thomas Redmond's orchard.

The President then ordered the sentinel to throw the search light on Mr. Armstrong and put him in irons till the 33 days of this month, when he would be court martialed for disturbing the meeting.

Treasurer Fred. Horner then moved that John Bullied report the business transacted on his trip to Lakefield, which he had let of a previous meeting to get ready, but as he had the same old story to repeat, Bro. J. Nattrass moved that he exchange his head for one of Bro. J. Lancashire's whey tanks, and after considerable comment it was decided to allow him till next meeting night to make a full report.

The President then arose and stated that as it was getting late, the next order of business be rushed through with all speed, as he would not adjourn any business which was done after three hours' diligent work.

The meeting was then closed with the final blessing and singing the last Doxology, and the secretary being requested to write to the secretary of the Lime Juice Clubs at Keene and Lakefield in federence to organizing a lodge of this Noble Fraternal Order.

Personal.

As your correspondent has accepted an invitation from General Joubert to spend his holidays in the Lowlands of the Netherlands, he will kindly ask those interested in the news of our fair suberb to extend their indulgence till his triumphal return in one of Joe Jewison's new automobiles, after signing the peace protocol with Paul Kruger on behalf of the U. S. O. and Benevolent Society.

PETERBOROUGH, DECEMBER [illegible]

A BIG SCHEME

The Conners syndicate, behind which there is said to be $200,000,000 capital, will make things hum on the St. Lawrence, and it promises soon to develop into what nature intended it should be, the great trade artery between the west and east. Mr. Conners is brimful of enthusiasm over the matter, and expresses himself as follows—

"We intend to build up a port here (Montreal) that will give employment on the wharves and piers to between 2,000 and 3,000 workmen, instead of about 700 as at present. These men will live in Montreal, and the money they earn will be distributed here, and the grocers and butchers and storekeepers of all classes will benefit. We shall bring, instead of 800 vessels to Montreal in the navigation season, from 1,600 to 2,000, and do you think these additional vessels will come here without bringing trade with them in exchange for the grain they will carry back to Great Britain? Don't you think this advent will represent an increased prosperity for the port? Why, of course, for the ships don't come here without making purchases. We intend to divert a very large part of the traffic that now goes by the way of New York and Buffalo to Montreal. How much do you think of the traffic of the great Canadian west comes to Montreal under present circumstances, you may ask me? Just two-tenths. You would hardly believe that. The rest goes to the railways, and New York, Boston and other ports have the benefit of it. We mean to have the remaining eight-tenths here. We mean to show that traffic can be handled cheaper here than in New York. We know that we can do this, and we believe that that this will give us the trade. We believe ourselves to be able to bring the traffic down the canals in our steamers elevate and load it into liners, carry it across the ocean and land in Liverpool half a cent a bushel cheaper than any body else can do. We shall have our steamers to bring the grain from the lakes to Montreal and these we intend to have specially built in Canadian shipbuilding yards. Don't you think Canadian industries will benefit by these? You will see a fleet very shortly of 250 of these vessels, with a tonnage up to 2,000, plying on the canals and lakes. We intend to have the grain, we intend to have the storing of it, and the handling of it here, and we intend to own the ships that will carry it; and grain will not be our only cargo, for we intend to go extensively into the carriage of iron and other products."

A SOUND PLANK

If the following pledge of Hugh John Macdonald played a prominent part in drawing support to him, it speaks well for the quality of the Manitoba electorate. The pledge is this—"I pledge myself personally, that when leader of the Provincial Government, I shall insist on the disqualification from the franchise of all who cannot read and write in English, or who will not bear arms." That is a sound plank to put in any Canadian political platform.

One of the great defects of the U.S. constitution is that it allows ignorant foreigners to vote, and the evil over the border is a huge one, because foreign immigration has resulted in the swarming into the country of the offscourings of all the European nations in such numbers as to in many cases outvote and outinfluence the genuine Americans. The vagaries of Uncle Sam's foreign policy and the tail twisting shrieking of his politicians are largely due to the presence of this large foreign vote, to whose anti-British prejudices American demagogues of the baser sort are constantly pandering. Canada will do well to guard against similar evils, and the passage of a law along the lines laid down above will be a step in the right direction.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

General A. G. Wauchope (pronounced Wokop) who was killed in the battle on Monday north of Modder river, was one of the most popular officers in the army. He was formerly colonel of the Black Watch, and had followed the fortunes of that hard-fighting regiment since he joined it as ensign in 1865. General Wauchope was a small, spare man, but always kept himself in first-class condition, and was active in the field, and very fond of fighting. He had been wounded no less than seven times, and once very severely—in fact he got wounded in every campaign he has been in. He served in the Ashanti war of 1873, and was wounded once slightly and once severely, was mentioned in despatches, and got a medal and a clasp. He served in the Egyptian war and later on in the Sudan at El Teb—severely) wounded, mentioned in despatches, two medals, three clasps and khedive's star. Took part in the Nile expedition for the relief of Gordon, and subsequent operations in the Sudan under General Earle, being very severely wounded at Kirbekan, receiving more medals and clasps. Altogether, he was a fine type of the British soldier, and he died at last a soldier's death.

The Boers will evidently make the British army a much better fighting machine before they are through.

Armenians are being massacred again by the Kurds, who are loyal Turks, Mohammedans and polygamists. The Armenians are Christians, monogamists and do not hold slaves. Their cries this year will fall on deaf ears. England and the United States, the only powers that ever did have any sympathy for them, are engaged in other affairs just now.

• • • • •

Every one will feel sympathy for the aged Queen, thus bowed-down in her declining years by sorrow for the death of so many of her brave officers and soldiers, including a number of her personal relatives. Her Majesty's love of peace has often succeeded in averting war with other nations and it is peculiarly sad that in these latter years of her reign she should find Great Britain plunged in a conflict so fatal to the flower of the troops of the empire.

CANADA'S GREATEST SCHOOL OF SHORTHAND AND BUSINESS

PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS SHOULD NOTICE

This Institution has prepared over seventy teachers for other Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States, more than twice as many as all other Business Colleges in Canada combined, have so placed.

The principals of five of the leading business colleges in Ontario, who are to-day among our strongest opponents in the field of Shorthand and Business training, received THEIR training under the Principal of this institution. Besides these, there are five others holding leading positions as teachers in Business Colleges in Ontario.

Since Sept 1st seven of our pupils have accepted positions as teachers in Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States; another is now negotiating for a similar opening in a Business College in a leading American city, and there are five unfilled calls of this kind on hand still.

DOES IT NOT PAY TO ATTEND THE BEST? You must decide.

236 of our pupils secured good positions in seventeen months, and the good work of placing our students still continues.

A Rheumatic Cripple's Release!

A "jury" of doctors, specialists and medicine vendors decreed that James Smith, of Grimsby, Ont., should spend the rest of his days in the agonizing chains of rheumatism

But common sense and modern medical science produced rebuttal evidence and procured his release.

The Great South American Rheumatic Cure turned the tables, relieved the pain in a few hours and healed, cured and freed.

To the man or woman suffering the agonies of pain produced by Rheumatism, of whatever form, an essay on its causes, its symptoms, and its action, are idle; the one desirable objective point with the sufferer is the shortest cut to relief from the pain and the surest cure from distressing, wrecking burdensome ailment.

No medicine of modern times has proved half so effective in giving almost instant relief, or has made as many cures bordering on the miraculous, as the great South American Rheumatic Cure. So often has it proved its efficacy in cases that were placed on the "no cure" list by doctors and specialists, that many of the most eminent lights in the profession have been frank enough to make confession that South American Rheumatic Cure, without discussing its formula at all, has proved the most efficacious of remedies, and to back up their convictions, are prescribing it daily in practice; and doctors have always been the slowest to convince of the merits of any proprietary remedy.

South American Rheumatic Cure is powerful, potent, but harmless. It is a specific for all phases of Rheumatic Ailments; it goes directly to the seat of the trouble, dissolves and eradicates from the foreign matters which cause the excruciating pains which stiffen and swell the joints. It acts quickly and surely, and as proof of it there is ample testimony to show that in cases of many years' standing, where the patient was almost helpless, bed-ridden and so acute was the suffering that it was necessary to turn the victim in sheets, because of the torture to have even the gentlest touch of the hand on the body. In twelve hours after the first dose was taken all pain was gone, and inside of three days, recovery was so marked that the patient walked without assistance. Many have had a similar experience and have testified to it.

James Smith, a dairyman of Grimsby, Ont., was a great sufferer from sciatica and rheumatism. He was almost helpless; could not walk without crutches. He had tried any number of remedies, and had been treated by almost innumerable doctors without any permanent help. He began using South American Rheumatic Cure. In a few hours the pain left him; in a few days he threw away the crutches and has never had a touch of the trouble since. You are at liberty to write him about his own case. No need for an hour's suffering. South American Rheumatic Cure can do as much for you as it has done for thousands.

South American Kidney Cure is a liquid kidney specific; it cures Diabetes, Bright's Disease, Inflammation of the Bladder and all disorders arising from imperfect working of the kidneys. It gives relief in six hours.

Hall's Bridge.

On Friday evening, Dec. 15th, a tea meeting was held in connection with St. Matthew's Anglican church of this place, and, needless to say, it was very successful, financially and otherwise, the net sum of $52 being realized over and above all expenses. The weather was all that could be desired, the sleighing being excellent, and people of all denominations for miles around turned out to enjoy themselves, and to show their appreciation of the faithful services of our popular lay reader, Mr. C. R. D. Booth, to whose untiring efforts the success of the meeting was largely due.

Tea was served in the school house from four to seven o'clock, and after ample justice had been done the good things provided by the ladies, all repaired to the hall, which was filled to overflowing, where the following programme of songs, recitations, etc., was rendered—

The committee in charge desire to thank the ladies, who provided so liberally for the tea, also all those who so kindly helped to make the programme a success.

Did you ever notice the man in the switching-tower? Does it ever occur to you that the lives of every living person on a train frequently depend on the promptness and intelligence with which he moves the switch levers under his control?

If men could only realize how small a thing may act at the critical instant to switch them from a dangerous track on to one of perfect safety, the yearly deaths from lung diseases would be less by many thousands.

"I had a regular consumptive cough, of which I was afraid, and everybody cautioned and warned me concerning it," says Mr. A. F. Novotny, P. O. Box 1437, New York, in a significant letter to Dr. R. V. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y. "When I started to take your medicine I was losing weight rapidly; I was very pale and had no appetite whatever. I used three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and now my condition is changed entirely. I do not cough at all; I have gained eight pounds in weight, have gained my healthy color; and my appetite is enormous. I can and will recommend your medicine to everybody who may be in need of it; as it is a sure cure, and no humbug as so many other patent medicines are. It is by far the superior of all."

One chapter of Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page illustrated book, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser tells of nearly one hundred men and women thus promptly switched from the track of death by this matchless remedy. This book is sent free for the bare cost of customs and mailing, 31 one-cent stamps, or cloth-bound for 50 stamps.

TO BEAT THE DUTCH.

BRITISH CONSUL-GENERAL IN NEW YORK RECEIVES MANY APPLICATIONS.

From Men Who Want to Fight for Britain's Flag and Prestige in the Present Campaign in South Africa.

New York, Dec., 21.—Sir Percy Sanderson, the British consul general here, is thinking of having a new sign painted and hung outside his door, painted and hung outside his door, to read as follows: "Article 5,282 of the Revised Statutes of the Unitedd States makes it a penal offence to enlist recruits in the United States for the British army." Sunch a sign would save him and his endless trouble and annoyance.

Since the Anglo-Boer war began the consul and his clerks have been besieged daily by scores of men who want to go out to South Africa and fight.

The Applicants are not all British as a matter of fact, Englishmen form only a small proportion of the would-be warriors. Some of them are Americans born and bred. These tell the consul that they sympathise with England, and want to help her crush the Dutch. The others are mixed—Swedes, Germans, Italians, coloured men, and not a few Dutchmen. They all hate the Dutch, but cannot tell xactly why. It seems to be primarily a love of war for war's sake.

"We have a stereotyped answer for all of them," said the consul. "We tell them that statute 5,282 makes it a penal offense to enlist emn in this this country for the British service."

If it is seen, however, that the men are really anxious to go to Africa to fight they are advised to work their passage across the ocean and enlist on the other side. Some of them do this. Those who have been at sea before have no difficulty in "getting a ship" and working their way over before the mast. The others—the landlubbers, who can only fight, not sail ships—try to secure work attending to the animals on one of the cattle ships which leave the port daily.

"I don't know how many men have applied for enlistment," one of the consular officials said, "but the number is very large. They are of all nationalties and occupations. The majority of them are young men just 'boiling for a scrap.' The foreigners as a rule say that they want to fight because they don't like the Boers. English applicants say that they are inspired by patriotic motives solely.

"One big Yorkshireman who came in the other day was particularly disappointed because he could not "list." He had been getting 'Dutch courage' before he came in and used all sorts of arguments to induce the consul to to send him to England. Finally he became so obstreperous that we had to put him out in the hall by main force. Then he sat down on the stairs and began to howl like a baby. 'I'm a British subject I am," he bawled between his sobs, 'an' they won't let me go to help old England lick the blooming Boers. Every 'air of me 'ead's British. I played on the Yorkshire eleven an' carried me bat against Notts, an' they won't let me go and lick those blasted Boers. It's a 'owling shame, I say. I'm a fighter an' me 'ole family's fighters. We had to get the janitor to put him out.

"Occasionally we have men from the United States army clad in full regimentals who want to go otu to fight for England. We realize that they would be very useful on the other side and it goes against the grain sometimes to tell them that 'article 5,282 etc.' Those men usually ask the quickest way to get to England. After getting particulars they will hustle out. I hope they get across.

"After the British reverses at Ladysmith owing to a stampede of the mule batteries were reported in the newspapers we had a lot of mule drivers up here looking for a job. Most of them have been through the Cuban campaign, and to judge from their own accounts of themselves, what they didn't know about mules and mule-driving wasn't worth knowing.

"'We didn't have any mules stampede with us in Cuby,' they'd say 'an if there is any old African mule that's meaner or cusseder that a genuine American army mule we want to see him, that's all.' We were sorry of course, but we had to recite our little article 5,282 of the revised statutes.' The mule-drivers didn't seem to understand what the revised statutes had to do with it so long as the mules stampeded in the British army. Two or three of those men have gone across on cattle ships. I'd like to have their opinion of the British army mule as compared with his American brother when they return.

"One of the applicants whom we had to turn away was a young Sweda who had fought in the last Boer War. He was particularly bitter against the Boers, and said that he would join any army that would put them down. He had a good knowledge of the South African country. He had been a Uitlander there, he said."

AFTER THE BATTLE.

Scenes Among the Dead and Wounded on the Battlefield of Elandslaagte.

The correspondent of the London Chronicle tells this little incident of Elandslaagte. He says: "The victory was our. We had gained a stony and muddy little hill strewn with the bodies of dead and wounded peasants, clerks, lawyers and other kinds of men Most were from Johannesburg. Nearly all spoke English like their native language. In one corner of the slope of the hill toward their little camp and wagons I counted fourteen dead together. In one of the tents were three dead men, all killed by the same shell, apparently while asleep. Yet I do not think there were more than thirty actually killed among the rocks in all. It is true that darkness fell rapidly, and the rain was blinding; but I was nearly two hours on the ground moving about. The wounded lay very thick groaning and appealing for help. In coming down I nearly trod on the upturned white face of an old white-bearded man. He was lying quite silent, with a kind of dignity. We asked who he was. He said: 'I am Kock, the father of Judge Kock. No, I am not the commandant He is the commandant. But the old man was wrong. He himself had been in command, though instead of fighting he had read the Bible and prayed. One bullet had passed through his shoulder, another through his groin. So he laid still and read no mor. Nar him was a boy with a hand just the mixture of shred and bones and blood. But he too was very quiet, and only asked for a handkerchief to bind it together. Others were gradually dying. Many were not found till daylight. The dead on both sides lay unburied till Monday."

I think it truly a very efficacious remedy for this very prevalent ailment." Sold by Ormond & Walsh and H. S. McDonald.

As will be seen from the balance sheet herewith submitted, the bank has shared to some extent, in the increased trade and prosperity which has been enjoyed by the country generally for a considerable part of the last year. In view of this general improvement in trade and the consequent probable increased demand for money, your directors deemed it prudent, in June last, to avail themselves of the authority given them by the shareholders at the annual meeting in 1897 to issue 5,000 shares of new stock, which they accordingly did at $175 per share. They consider that this action has been justified by the subsequent course of business, and they have pleasure in reporting that most of this issue has been taken up by the shareholders.

Since the last annual meeting branches of the bank have been established at Avonmore, Hull, Lachute, Lanark and Vankleek Hill, in each case with satisfactory results. The bank has now 25 offices in all. Your directors feel obliged to decline overtures made for the opening of branches at several other points.

The usual inspection of the offices of the bank have been made during the year.

The directors have pleasure in testifying to the zeal and assiduty with which the officers of the bank have performed their respective duties.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

President.

GEO. BURN,
General Manager.

The President's Address.

The President said: Gentlemen, before moving the adoption of the report I propose, as is the custom, to offer a few remarks.

This bank commenced business in December, 1874; we are to-day celebrating our 25th birthday, and I think the report submitted by the directors is one that should be satisfactory to the shareholders. It exhibits the result of a quarter of a century's almost continuous progress and prosperity, not only in material wealth and strength but in growth of public confidence.

On the 30th November, 1898, the total deposits in all the banks amounted to $246,002,000, and on the 31st October, 1899, according to the latest Government return, they were $272,-897,000, showing an increase of $26,-895,000 for the eleven months. Our proportion of this increase would be in our deposits for the year ending $794,000, whereas the actual increase 30th November is $1,815,000.

The increase in loans and discounts is still more marked, being $2,872,844. Our holding of municipal and railway securities is increased by $216,941.

The circulation only increased by about the same amount as the increase of paid up capital, as we have been for some time close up to our limit and have circulated within the last three months over $1,500,000 of other bank's bills.

Rates for call money have advanced during the last half of the year, but the competition for the better class of commercial business is so keen that discount rates have not advanced in proportion.

You are informed by the report that five branches of the bank have been opened during the year. The opening of so many branches in one year is a serious strain on the staff, as well as on the profits of the year, as the preliminary expenses of a new branch usually swallow up the profits of the first half-year.

A very considerable reduction has been made in the bank premises account by the present approriation. The bank owns the offices in Winnipeg and Carleton Place, as well as this building. These properties, as well as the safes and fittings in all the offices, are included in the amount of $120,000 at the debit of bank premises.

The coming session of Parliament will probably be one of considerable interest to the banking community of Canada generally, as the usual decennial revision of the bank act is likely to come before the House then. Ten years ago very material improvements were introduced into the act, more especially in the sections relating to circulation, but recent occurrances seem to indicate a necessity for closer control over the issues of each bank, particularly in view of the fact that each bank is in a measure responsible for the circulation of all the others. However this control may be secured, whether by means of the Canadian Bankers' Association or through the Finance Department it is to be hoped that a measure will be devised by which the issuing of notes for circulation beyond the limits prescribed by law will be decisively checked.

The lumber trade has been very active during the past season. Almost everything fit for shipment has been sold and moved out, and prices have advanced very considerably, especially red pine and spruce lumber. It is just possible, however, that prices may have advanced too rapidly and there may be danger of a reaction. The quantity of logs to be taken out this winter may be somewhat restricted owing to the scarcity of and advance in the cost of labor.

Business of all kinds throughout the Dominion is active and profitable, the people generally are prosperous and contented, loyal to Queen and country, and proud of forming part of the great Imperial power of Great Britain. It occurs to me, however, that the advantages received from the connection with the mother country are not sufficiently appreciated. The very prosperity of the bank as exemplified in the report we are considering and the security for life and property enjoyed by the people of this country is largely due to the protection afforded by the army and navy of Great Britain, and towards the maintenance of which Canada contributes nothing. The feeling is growing throughout the Dominion that the times has come for some amendment to the articles of copartnership and that we should cease to occupy the undesirable position of taking all and giving nothing. It is true that we have recently sent voluntarily a thousand of our bravest and best young men to assist in maintaining the rights of British subjects in South Africa, and from present appearances the second contingent offered will likely be accepted; but that is not enough. The country can afford in addition to making greater provision for the defence of the different provinces, to follow the lead of Australia and Cape Colony and make a direct annual contribution to the cost of supporting the British navy.

I need hardly say that these latter are my own views, and that you must not hold the Board of Directors responsible.

The Chairman then delayed putting the motion, pending the remarks from the shareholders, after which it was Moved by the President, seconded by the Vice-President, "That the report of the directors and the statement now read be adopted and printed for the information of the shareholders."—Carried.

The Directors Thanked.

Mr. Sheriff Sweetland, in moving a vote of thanks to the President, Vice-President and directors, said that the result of the year's business was very satisfactory and he thought the management was much to be congratulated upon it. He was glad to note that the bank was getting its share of the increased volume of business, and he felt sure that the directors knew enough and had experience enough in the past, to be able to take in sail when the proper time came, so as to avail themselves to the full of the era of prosperity, without suffering at a latter date from loss, when the rebound came and financial storms began to blow. He had much pleasure in moving, seconded by Mr. J. G. Whyte.

"That the thanks of the shareholders are due, and are hereby tendered to the President, Vice-President and directors for their careful attention to the interests of the bank during the past year." Carried.

Mr. J. G. Whyte, in seconding the motion, said that while others might not agree with the remarks of the Chairman as to our duty as Canadians and as part of Greater Britain he was heartily in accord with them, and he believed we had responsibilities to face as well as priveleges to enjoy as part of that great empire. He thought the report was one which could not fail to be gratifying to the shareholders, showing, as it did, a material advance in business during the year. He thought it a pity that our neighbors to the south of us could not take pattern by our banking system and adopt some of its good points, just as they had adopted the Canadian and called it the Australian ballot; but he feared that they would scorn to do so as coming from their weaker neighbor to the north of them. The troubles of the past year in Montreal, showed, however, that there were flaws among the Canadian banks as well, and the events then transpiring were enough to make shareholders in banks think of the double liability. He had pleasure in seconding the motion.

The resolution was then carried.

The General Manager.

Moved by Mr. Alex. Maclaren, seconded by Mr. J. Roberts Allan:—

"That the thanks of the shareholders be tendered to the General Manager and other officers of the bank for the efficient manner in which they have performed their respective duties

Mr. Maclaren, in moving the above resolution, said that from the management of his own business he knew how important it was to be well supported by efficient employees who took an interest in their work and he knew that in conducting the affairs of a bank this must also be very necessary. He thought the report of the year's business showed that the employees had been zealous and efficient in their respective capacities, and he had much pleasure in moving the resolution, seconded by Mr. Allan

In putting this resolution to the meeting, the Chairman said he had much pleasure in doing so, and in endorsing everything that had been said regarding the diligence and efficiency of the staff. Carried.

The General Manager, in replying for the staff, thanked the meeting for the resolution and for the words of commendation which accompanied it, and which he was sure would be highly appreciated by the other members of the staff as they were by himself. He said that he was satisfied that, take them as a whole, the 112 employees which the bank now had were as efficient and diligent a staff as that of any other institution of the kind in the country. He believed that most of them realized that their interests were identical with those of the bank they served. He then proceeded in reply to Mr. J. G. Whyte's remarks, to refer to what is known as the Baltimore plan for amending the banking and currency system of the United States, which were adopted at a Bankers' meeting at Baltimore some years ago, and which is based to a very considerable extent on the Canadian system. He referred to the good work the Canadian Bankers' Association had been doing for the banks as a whole and to the fact that incorporation was being applied for by that body.

The Directors.

It was then moved by Mr. R. L. Blackburn, seconded by Mr. F. J. Wilson, and carried: "That the ballot-box be now opened, and remain open till 3 o'clock for the election of seven directors for the ensuing year; and that Messrs. J. F. Cunnigham and Albert Maclaren be appointed scrutineers, the poll to be closed whenever five minutes shall have elapsed without a vote being tendered."

The scrutineers reported the re-election of the old board.

The meeting then adjourned.

At a meeting of the newly-elected board, held immediately afterwards, Mr. Charles Magee was re-elected President, and Mr. George Hay, Vice-President.

COPPER MINING STOCKS

For several months shrewd investors have been putting their money into the shares of Copper Mines. This is true not only of men with large amounts of money at their disposal but also applies to those who have made a study of investments with a view to securing a large return for small investments. As high as THREE AND FOUR HUNDRED PER CENT. has to our knowledge already been realized on some of these investments. Americans were the first to make a specialty of Copper Stocks. They knew what they were doing, for the reason is not far to seek. Every Copper Mine in the world is at present taxed to its utmost limit to meet the growing demand for copper for electrical purposes. The reserve stores of copper are being depleted until it pays no longer to use copper in some eastern countries as a coin. Copper has gone up in price from 9c to 18 cents. The supply of Copper from the mines of the world to-day is only about 80 per cent. of the consumption. That is the reason why financiers have their engineers searching the four quarters of the globe for Copper Mines, and that is the reason the shares in promising copper companies are so eagerly picked up by investors.

If you have any money to invest we would ask you to consider the shares of the SUPERIOR GOLD & COPPER COMPANY, LIMITED. This Company owns and operates some valuable native copper properties. We are in a position to offer you a special opportunity in this stock which as an investment should give you a profit of at least 100 per cent in six months. Send for prospectus and particulars.

Occasionally we have an opportunity of giving our clients a special offer on some stocks, and we have this opportunity now. If you are interested write to us at once. These shares are sold in large or small blocks to suit buyers.

We deal in all legitimate mining shares on commission. If you want to buy or sell write us.

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

A citizen dropped into the Times office last night to enquire if Ald. Langford intended to again be a candidate for the Council. of support. He had never entered into any such compact and wished to deny it most emphatically. If Alderman McWilliams had run against him last year he could have licked him. Even if he had entered into such an arrangement he would have been freed from the obligation on account of the treatment he had received at the hands of Alderman McWilliams. No man could put a hand on any action of his in the council and call it dishonorable. He had started out in the town a poor boy and had to earn all that he got. His character, therefore, was everything to him. Alderman McWilliams had openly charged him with malfeasance, and he had been called before Judge Weller to clear himself. It was an outrage and enough to keep any man from running for council. He would [illegible] ting later.

Alderman McWilliams reiterated his statement about having been promised Mayor Davis' support this year. The promise had been made in the presence of a witness, who had suggested that the matter be put in writing, but the speaker had thought Mr. Davis a man of his word. The Mayor had been one of the men who had voted for the investigation. Any man who didn't would have been neglecting his duty. Mayor Davis, however, had gone before the Judge with a Q. C. at his elbow. Mr. Stratton was there as well as Mr. Dennistoun and Mr. Dumble. No one could tell on which side Mr. Edward was appearing, and a boy with his first case in court had to fight all these. Mr Langford had been chairman of the Board of Works until August 7th and Mr. Davis afterwards. The responsibility of the pavement trouble lay between them. The ratepayers knew the circumstances by this time. The profits in these contracts should go to the workingmen and not to a contractor. He had worked 18 hours a day himself when younger and knew what labor was like. He proposed to do his duty by the workingmen if he had to fight all the combines in the town.

Mayor Davis stated that no one could afford to vote against the investigation, as if he did, he would have been picked out as the guilty one.

Alderman Sawers from the back seats stated that Mayor Davis had been down at the test and nearly fainted when he saw the results, saying that there was nothing for it but an investigation—there was wrong somewhere. He would not settle it. It would have to go to the judge.

Mr. Davis—"I was in favor of the investigation."

Mr. McWilliams—"Why are you trying to shirk the responsibility then?"

Mr. Sheehy asked permission to say a few words. He stated that no one was more surprised than himself when he heard of an investigation being ordered. Mr. McWilliams stated that it had been ordered on the strength of Mr. Ranney's report. Well, Mr. Dennistoun showed every line of this report to be incorrect, before the judge. He had done work for over a hundred different men and had yet to hear the first one say that he hadn't done a first-class job. His character was worth more to him than all the deductions which the council could make, and if the Engineer and the inspectors had been called in to talk the matter over the whole affair could have been settled without any investigation.

Alderman McWilliams pointed out that Mr. Sheehy was given every opportunity of settling the matter, a council meeting being postponed from Monday until Friday for his benefit, but he refused to discuss the matter.

The meeting then adjourned until Friday evening, Dec. 29th.

THE MAYORALTY.

The two candidates are going to work in earnest, and the campaign promises to be an exceedingly lively one. Mr. Kendry is a strong man, and under ordinary circumstances would beat any man that might be brought out against him. But on the present occasion there are circumstances that tend to weaken him. It is known that a clique in the Council and out of it are very much opposed to Mr. McWilliams. His fearless attitude in connection with the paving scandals was not relished, and his attack on the Town Solicitor on account of the half-hearted way that officials conducted the case for the Town at the Court of Investigation, was a bitter pill for a number of citizens whose names figure in Mr. Kendry's requisition.

The Times does not desire to be misunderstood. We have a high regard for Mr. Kendry, but on the present occasion we think he has got into bad company. The ratepayers are sick and tired of the way things have been mismanaged during the past year, and the fact that the same crowd from Mayor Davis down, are first at the back of Mr. Kendry, is fair to assume that a similar condition of affairs will exist should that gentleman be elected.

A PROSPEROUS INSTITUTION

Elsewhere will be found a report of the 27th annual meeting of the shareholders of the Bank of Ottawa, which took place in the head office of that institution on Wednesday of last week.

The report shows net profits amounting to $217,893.96. Adding $46,037.06 amount to the credit of the Profit and Loss account, the total is $263,951.02. After paying dividends amounting to $157,056.74, writing $22,070.28 off bank premiums, and carrying $60,000 to Rest Account, there was a balance available for Profit and Loss of $44,824.

The Rest Account amounted to $1,770,000, to which has been added premiums on new stock, $140,000 and $60,000 from Profit and Loss Account, bringing the Rest Account up to $1,970,000.

From the above it will be seen that the Bank's position is a very strong one. It has become, under the present capable management, one of the strongest financial institutions in the country. The report of last year's operations is most gratifying to the friends of the bank, as well as to the stockholders.

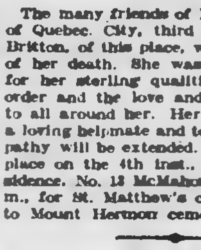
Obituary

The many friends of Mrs. J. E. Treffry, of Quebec City, third daughter of John Britton, of this place, will regret to learn of her death. She was universally loved for her sterling qualities of the highest order and the love and charity she bore to all around her. Her husband has lost a loving helpmate and to him sincere sympathy will be extended. Her funeral took place on the 4th inst., from her late residence, No. 13 McMahon street, at 2.30 p. m., for St. Matthew's church and thence to Mount Hermon cemetery.

The Band.

President Crowe, of the 57th Battalion Band, has made a very successful canvas for funds for that popular organization. The total subscriptions in 1899 amounted to $575, which all went towards expenses.



"SAVE THE BABY!" The first instinct of the mother-heart is to preserve her little one. Its life and health take precedence even over her own. The common dread which women who are looking forward to the coming of a new and precious baby into the world first feel, is that they may not themselves be able to go safely through the trying ordeal, and secondly comes the fear that the darling little baby's life or health or general well-being may somehow be sacrificed.

But there is no real need of apprehension in either direction. If any woman who is expecting to become a mother will follow the example of Mrs. Orrin Stiles, of Downing, Dunn Co., Wis., the most perfect confidence may be felt in the happy outcome of this critical period, both for the mother and the child.

"I have been intending to write to you ever since my baby was born," says Mrs. Stiles in an interesting letter to Dr. R. V. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y., "in regard to what your 'Favorite Prescription' has done for me. I cannot praise it enough, for I have not been as well for five years as I now am. In July last I had a baby boy weight 11 lbs. I was sick only a short time, and since I got up I have not had one sick day. I have not had any womb trouble since I got up. I was not only surprised myself but all of my friends here are surprised to see me so well."

The properties of this grand "Prescription" and what it has accomplished for thousands of women, are more fully described in one chapter of the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser by R. V. Pierce, M. D., a splendid thousand-page illustrated volume. It will be sent free paper-bound, for 31 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of customs and mailing only; or, cloth-bound for 50 stamps.

The "Favorite Prescription" is entirely free from alcohol, unlike nearly all other proprietary medicines for women, which merely give a temporary stimulation and are likely to induce a morbid, unhealthy craving. The "Favorite Prescription" gives energy and nerve-tone that is real, healthy and permanent.

THE MAYORALTY.

To the Ratepayers of the Town of Peterborough:
LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

At the request of hundreds of the ratepayers of the town expressed in a requisition presented to me, I have accepted nomination for the Mayorality for 1900, and am in the field seeking your sufferages. I do not believe that it will be necessary to assure you that I did not seek the office, but only entered the contest because in the face of the request made of me by so many of our citizens I felt that it was a duty I owed to the public which I have been privileged to serve in different capacities so frequently. It was from no desire to monopolize offices that are within the gift of the people, but simply because I was made to feel that at the present time the citizens wanted my services and that when the demand was made so forcibly I would indeed be lacking in my duty if I did not respond, even though the response meant much personal sacrifice to myself.

Having accepted nomination I respectfully solicit your votes and influence, and if elected I promise to give my best attention to the duties of the office. I will give my time and what ability I possess to the advancement of the town's best interests. The town's interests are my interests, for I have, as you are aware, no small stake here, and economy and progress will be my watchwords. All questions coming before the Council will receive my careful and unprejudiced attention, and my aim will be to maintain that harmony and unity in the consideration of civic business that will allow the best results to be realized.

It will be impossible owing to the short time between now and election day for me to call personally on all of you, and I therefore solicit your support in this way, hoping for a renewal of the confidence expressed in me as a member of the Council and as Mayor in former years.

I desire to thank those who have already expressed their confidence in me by signing the handsome requisition presented to me.

Wishing you one and all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

I am ladies, and gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

JAS. KENDRY.

ENTERIC FEVER PLAYS HAVOC AT LADYSMITH

Seven More Deaths From the Dread Disease Reported From White's Garrison

GATACRE ADOPTS SEVERE RULES FOR COLONISTS

Lord Kitchener Arrives at Malta on His Way to Theatre of War. Certain Residents of Mamesburg Celebrated Gen. Gatacre's Repulse by a Dinner.

New York, Dec. 24.

The London correspondent of the Tribune cabling under date of Sunday says—"Another voice has come from the darkness of Ladysmith. Seven more deaths from enteric fever are reported in the casuality list from White's garrison. These messages flashed from one British camp to another have a different sound from the cheery "all well," which was received daily from Ladysmith at Estcourt a few weeks ago. All is not well where the typhoid fever and dysentery are prevelant and men are dying daily in the hospital from sickness induced by unsanitary conditions and a defective water supply. The War Office makes no comment on this message, but adds five words of belated explanation to a previous casuality list of twenty-four killed and wounded, which London journals have attributed to a bursting shell from the enemy's batteries. These casualties are now officially described as occurring in an engagement."

Malta, Dec. 24.

General Lord Kitchener, Chief of Staff to Gen. Lord Roberts, arrived here to-day from Alexandria on the British second class cruiser Isis. He went immediately on board the British cruiser Dido, which sailed for Gibraltar, where he will join Lord Roberts.

Cape Town, Monday, Dec. 18.

General Gatacre in order to check insurrection among the Dutch colonists and to prevent disaffected persons giving information or other assistance to the Boers has issued a modified reconcentrado order. By its terms all males over 12 years old, of whatever nationality, resident outside of towns or villages, but within a radius of 12 miles of military camps now established, or hereafter to be established north of Sterkstrom, are are required immediately to vacate their places of residence and either to remove to some place outside the 12 mile radius or to form a camp in close proximity to the nearest military camp, the spot to be selected by the officer commanding, where they must reside until further notice, providing for their own needs. All persons found within the radius without passes will be arrested.

Advices from Colesburg assert that not many colonial Dutch have joined the Boers in that district.

BRAINS, BLOOD AND MUSCLE.

London, Dec. 23.—Peers with vast business, property and political interests are exhibiting the utmost eagerness in their desire to have their names enrolled among the volunteers who are going to endeavor to retrieve the reverses of the British arms. The day of wild war enthusiasm and over-confidence has passed and there reigns in its stead a grim determination to atone for the mistakes of the past by individual effort regardless of consequences.

An instance of the spirit which pervades the country is that in the Cumberland and Westmoreland yeomanry of which the Earl of Lonsdale is colonel, every officer and nearly every man in the regiment has volunteered and is using his influence to be accepted. The Duke of Marlborough will probably receive an appointment on Lord Chesham's staff.

In the northern counties there is keen rivalry as to who shall do the most for his country in the hour of need. Northumbrians headed by Earl Grey have subscribed large sums to equip one hundred men, and the Earl of Durham calls on the men of his county not to be outdone by the Northumbrians and heads the list with a substantial subscription. Lords Stanley and Wolverton go as yeomanry-troopers, though the former at one time was an officer in the Guards and the latter is an admiral's son. Two nephews of General Lord Roberts, both ex-majors of the regular army, have volunteered to go in any capacity in the yeomanry. The Earl of Essex, who is a major of the Hertfordshire yeomanry, accompanies the contingent of his county. In short the eight thousand mounted men who have responded to the call for yeomen will have brains, blood, muscle and dare-deviltry to make a first-rate cavalry force.

STARTING FOR THE CAPE.

New York, Dec. 23.—A London cable to The Tribune gives a hint that Lady Randolph Churchill intends sailing today from England on the hospital ship Maine for South Africa. The despatch reads: "Tidings of Winston Churchill's arrival at Delagoa have arrived barely in time to cheer his mother before her departure on the hospital ship Maine for the Cape."

Sterkstrom, Dec. 23.—Up to Dec. 17 the Boers around this place, which is General Gatacre's headquarters, were inactive, although considerably reinforced since the defeat of Stormberg. No doubt the Boers are concentrating all their forces in the hope of capturing Kimberley. This accounts for their lack of enterprise elsewhere.

FRENCH MEDIATION ASKED.

London, Dec. 23.—The Paris correspondent of the London Daily Mail says Dr. Leyds waited on M. Delcasse and asked his services in the cause of peace. The French Minister, it is understood, gave an equivocal reply asking, in fact, for time for consideration.

AN OFFICIAL DENIAL.

Paris, Dec. 23.—The French Foreign Office denies the statement of the Paris correspondent of the Daily Mail of London, that Dr. Leyds, the European representative of the Boers has asked the services of M. Delcasse, the Minister of Foreign Affairs in the cause of peace.

ENGLAND ANSWERS NOBLY.

London, Dec. 23.—England continues to display patriotism of the highest and most practical order. Volunteers and yeomanry to the number of 100,000 are already at the service of the Government, or ten times as many as the War Office has asked for. The Stock Exchange is providing horses for the Lord Mayor's volunteers; Westminster will have its own regiment, and the country is responding well and disclosing the vast resources at the command of the Government.

METHUEN THE MASTER.

London, Dec. 23.—In spite of the delay of General Methuen in advancing, he is regarded as largely the master of the situation, and his entrenched position is believed to be unassailable. In the event of the Boers attacking Kimberley, General Methuen would be enabled to make a counter move with his artillery and cavalry. Consequently, such a movement on the part of the Boers, it is said, is not contemplated. It is apparent, therefore, that to "make haste slowly" is the truest policy at present.

TRANSPORTS BEING DIVIDED.

New York, Dec. 23.—The inference is drawn in London that General Methuen will hold his ground at Modder River and not retreat to Orange River, as it was thought might be necessary, says the London correspondent of the Tribune. This inference is drawn from the Admiralty reports of the movements of transports that the battalions of the fifth division as they arrive in South Africa are divided between Natal and the western border, some going to Durban and the others to De Aar. Military men now assert that if General Methuen's retirement had been contemplated all the reinforcements arriving at Cape Town would have been hurried forward to Natal to complete the work of relieving Ladysmith, since they would not have been needed at De Aar or Belmont. They also venture to assume that Modder River will be made a second base for ultimate operations across the country to Bloemfontein, when the auxiliary transport with mule train and carts shall have been organized.

WHERE THE REAL DANGER IS.

Cape Town, Dec. 23.—The danger is not purely in the military situation. The Boer fighting line is very thin, and a single success might pierce it completely. Indications are that the Boer position at Magersfontein will become untenable in tenable in the long run and the defence of the Tugela can hardly leave a sufficient force for the effective investment of Ladysmith. The real danger is rebellion in Cape Colony, which would make the area of the war so great that an extra force of 50,000 men could easily be swallowed up in maintaining the enormous long line of communication. Hitherto Major-General Gatacre's reverse seems to have produced no effect, but it is impossible to judge whether the disloyal elements are not strong enough to provoke a concentrated rising, or whether the present quiet is a lull before the storm. Meanwhile everything is being done to organise loyalists to police their own districts. The spread of disloyalty along the borders made the Boer invasion irresistible at first.

The Havelock Fires.

The Reeve and several citizens of Havelock called at the Times on Saturday and requested us to say that the recent fires in that village, had not been so bad as reported. The Fire Underwriters Association had evidently got the idea, from what appeared in the Times, that fires were becoming too frequent in the village and were increasing their insurance rates. The origin of the last fire is doubtful, it being by no means certain that it was the work of an incendiary. As everybody reads the Times, the Havelock gentlemen were anxious that the above facts should be published in these columns.

A Legal Decision.

Harper v. Toronto Type Foundry Co.—Judgment on appeal by plaintiff from judgment of Robertson J., in favor of defendants in action for damages by reason of the alleged wrongful issue by defendants of a replevin order. The defendants claimed the goods in question, some printing presses, under a hire receipt. The plaintiff brings this action as assignee of the claim for damages of a third party, who had purchased the goods on the faith of the terms contained in a letter written before the purchase by defendants to Harper, by which it was contended that the defendants had waived their rights under the hire receipt. Rule 1,074 is 48 Vict. Ch. 15, sec. 8 imported into the rules. It is clumsily drawn, but the obvious intent of it was not to give an independent right of vote upon it, but merely to add another condition to the replevin bond. It is unnecessary to point out what remedy the plaintiff has, if any, it is sufficient to determine that he has no remedy in this action. Judgment below affirmed, action dismissed with costs. Poussette, Q.C., for plaintiff. Ryckman for defendants.

A PATRIOTIC CARDINAL.

Vaughan Takes a Strong British Stand Regarding the Justice of the War.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—Cardinal Vaughan, Archbishop of Westminister, has issued a somewhat remarkable pastoral to the clergy of his diocese. The document is noteworthy for its strong pro-British sentiment, which is the exact antithesis of the utterances of the Osservatore Romano and other newspapers supposed to be influenced by the Vatican. The cardinal enjoins "public and united supplications for our army and the speedy success of the British arms." He continues:

"Whatever doubt was entertained of the lawfulness of enforcing the British demands by resource to the sword, there cannot be any doubt now that we have been forced into the war, and that justice is on our side. It is now a question of something more than what is the lawful question. It is, Shall the British Empire be allowed to fall to pieces by supiness, by want of determination and self-denial? The answer is no. This Empire has been upraised by thesame Providence that called the Roman Empire into existence, and as God used one towards the attainment of divine purposes and mercy, so does he seem to be using the other."

The cardinal proceeds to describe the mission of the Empire as being peace, liberty and preparing the way for Christianity, and admonishes to humanity and repentance while endeavoring to worthily fulfil this mission

CANADA'S INDIANS ARE LOYAL.

Six Nation Indians in Council Offer Their Services in South Africa.

TORONTO, Dec. 23.—The following resolution, a copy of which was received in the city yesterday by G. M. Chadwick, shows where the Indians of the Six Nations Reserve stand with reference to the Boer war: "The Six Nation chiefs in council decided to express their sympathy to Her Majesty Queen of Great Britain on the occasion of the Boer difficulty in the Transvaal, and to forward to Her Majesty assurance of the loyalty of the Six Nations to the British Crown, andbeg also to tender to Her Majesty the hearty willingness of the Six Nations to offer their services if required as an Indian contingent, officered by Indians or those officials connected with them, in accordance with the customs, usages and treaties of their forefathers, who have in the past always fought in the deefnce of the Crown and British flag. The secretary of the Six Nations Council is hereby authorized to transmit this decision through the proper channel to Her Majesty our mother, the Queen of Great Britain." I hereby certified that the above is a true copy from my minute book. (Signed) Josiah Hill, chief and secretary of Six Nations Council, Ohswoken Council House, November 10, 1899.

BRAVE ARTILLERYMEN TO THE WAR WOULD GO

Every Man in "A" Battery, Kingston, Volunteers for Service in South Africa.

NO DEFINITE ORDERS RECEIVED FROM OTTAWA.

Officers From all Parts of Canada are Resigning Their Commissions in Order to Serve in the Ranks—Scarcity of Suitable Cavalry Horses.

Kingston, Dec. 23.—Recruiting began today. Every man in A Battery offered for enlistment. Dr. Duffis was the medical examiner. The batterymen, after full explanations as to their identity and allowances are satisfied.

Sergt. W. H. Ponton, Belleville, was among the first accepted, along with Privates Black and Banwell, of the Bay City.

Lieut.-Col. Montizambert will recruit the cavalry, and he has a very large number to select from. Capt. Clyde, Capt. Leatherland and Lieut. Knight, of the 4th Hussars are volunteers. Capt. Leatherland was with the Jubilee contingent in London, England.

VESSEL CHARTERED.

Ottawa, Dec. 23.—The Minister of Militia has closed a contract with the Elder-Dempster Line for the Montezuma to carry part of the troops to South Africa.

Dr. Borden says that he has made the same arrangement in regard to the price for this steamer as the War Office does, namely, to pay so much per ton. The rates are to be the same in this case as the Imperial authorities pay.

If the Laurentian of the Allan Line is engaged the terms of the contract will be exactly the same as that given to the Elder-Dempster Line.

The difficulty about closing a contract with the Allans is that they are talking about two steamers, instead of one. The Department will accept this if the price is the same as if one vessel were used.

MOUNTED POLICE OFFERS.

Regina, Dec. 23.—Every mail brings letters to Commissioner Herchmer from persons anxious to volunteer for South Africa. A troop of Mounted Police stationed at Regina alone have volunteered.

Edmonton, Dec. 23.—Major Griesbach opened the lists for recruiting here this morning. A dozen men volunteered at once. Great enthusiasm prevails here.

Lethbridge, Dec. 23.—Sixteen men have already volunteered here for the South African service, and many more are expected. It is most difficult to notify the cowboys.

Macleod, Dec. 23.—There is great enthusiasm in Macleod and Pincher Creek regarding active service in South Africa. There were sixty volunteers for the mounted corps in Pincher Creek within one hour of the reception of the news. The best experienced men in the police are in readiness.

Calgary, Dec. 23.—Thirty applications have been received by Inspector Wilson at the barracks here as volunteers for service in South Africa.

Battleford, Dec. 23.—The volunteers for enrollment for South African service now number fourteen, including the two mounted police officers of this division.

OFFERS FROM GREY COUNTY.

Toronto, Dec. 23.—Col. Delamere has received a letter from Eugenia, Grey county, asking him to use every effort to secure for the writer a place on the Canadian contingent. The applicant promises to furnish his own steed, and, according to his own report, is very well favored.

A second letter accompanies the application, which is presented in case of rejection. It reads partly as follows—

"We wish to be authorized by proper authority to organize a cavalry troop here. A number of young fellows have repeatedly requested me to try to get permission to raise a troop. We could furnish our own horses and could get a large force of the best of men. We have made such a request before, but have been informed that cavalry is out of date. The present war has exhibited its usefulness. If cavalry was encouraged, companies could be formed in all of these parts."

"GAT" HOWARD GOING.

Montreal, Dec. 23.—"Gatling Gun" Howard left last night for Hartford, Conn., to bid farewell to his friends there, previous to his departure for South Africa, where he will be attached to the British forces.

MESSAGE FROM COL. OTTER.

Ottawa, Dec. 23.—The following cable was received by General Hutton to-day—

Belmont, Dec. 23.—All well. Regiment sends greetings to all.

(Signed.) OTTER.

COL. MEAD NOT TO GO.

Ottawa, Dec. 23.—Hon. Dr. Borden has been notified that the War Office will sanction the engagement of four nurses for service with the second contingent.

It is almost certain that Colonel Mead, of the 9th Toronto Field Battery, will not be one of the officers, but a younger man, probably Mr. Wentworth Irving, will be taken from Hamilton and Wentworth batteries.

Regarding the artillery contingent, it is the intention of the Militia Department to enlist as officers those who are proficient in the new gun drill. Of such officers, it is understood, only 63 are in the country. Major Hurdman, of the Ottawa Field Battery, is certain to be selected, and Captain Mackie, of the 43rd Rifles, is also sure of an appointment.

Port Hope, Dec. 23.—Up to date Lieut.-Col. McLean, of the Durham Field Battery, has received applications from the following, who desire to join the Canadian contingent—Lieut. Cairns, Lieut. Bradburn, Sergt.-Major Hutchinson, Sergt. Scollie, Gunner Chowne, Jas. N. Moffat Bethany; Harry Kerr, Tilsonburg; Capt. Milligan, 40th Battalion; V. A. Hall, 40th Battalion; Fred. Davey, Toronto University; Thomas Taylor, Sergt. Ough, Robt. Gamble, Sudbury.

Ashburnham and Peterborough.

People are discussing the union of Peterborough and Ashburnham as if it only required the assent of the citizens of the town. Ashburnham, we fancy, will have none of it. The way our affairs have been mismanaged, especially during the past year is not likely to cause our friends across the river to desire union. The Times Times thinks that union is out of the question at present.

The Queen vs. Mary McDonald.

His Lordship Judge Falconbridge gave judgment in the above case on Saturday 23rd Dec., quashing the conviction of the defendant by Police Magistrate Dumble and ordering the defendant discharged from custody, E. H. Stone for the defendant, the Deputy Attorney General for the Crown.

It will be remembered that the Police Magistrate had sentenced defendant to six months in the Mercier reformatory and fined her $50.

A Splendid Day.

Saturday was a good day for the local business people, nearly all the merchants doing a larger business than usual. Mr. Wilson, of China Hall, said it was the best day he had in 17 years. Mr. Davidson, of the Peterborough Hardware Co., said his firm did a good trade—far better than usual. Mr. Martin, of the Spot Cash Grocery, told the Times that his business exceeded that of last year by a large majority. Mr. R. J. Kidd did a big trade. Harry LeBrun, Richard Hall & Son, Ed. Brown, W. A. Sanderson and others report the holiday trade much ahead of previous years. The tellers in the various local banks will have a busy day tomorrow counting the stacks of worn and ragged bills that will come in with the deposits. Nearly every business man in town will have a substantial deposit to make.

Richest Duke is Dead.

London, Dec. 23.—The Duke of Westminster is dead.

Hugh-Lupus Grosvenor, the Duke of Westminster, P.C., K.G., was born at Eaton in 1825, and was educated at Eton and Balliol College, Oxford. He was member of Parliament for Chester from 1847 to 1868, and though in his earlier years a Whig, had for many years been a Liberal-Unionist.

He was the wealthiest of Englishmen, owning vast estates in Cheshire and Flintshire, and real estate and buildings in the heart of London City, the value of which can hardly be estimated. A thorough sportsman, he has owned many of the finest of English race horses, and his stables at Eaton are the most perfect in the United Kingdom.

The Duke had taken a lifelong interest in the volunteer movement, and was A.D.C. to several volunteer infantry battalions and yeomanry regiments. He was also an A.D.C. to the Queen. His heir, Viscount Belgrave, is only twenty years of age.

Seventy Men Entombed.

Pittsburg, Dec. 23.—A Uniontown, Pa., despatch says 75 men were entombed and probably killed by the explosion in the Baznell mine. The force of the explosion was so great that the tipple at the head of the shaft was blown over. The Baznell mine is located four miles from Brownsville, on the Red Stone Railroad.

Word from Baznell by train says only one man has been taken out of the mine. Men could be heard talking at the bottom of the shaft. The mine boss went down but has not returned, and it is supposed that he and the men have been overcome by afterdamp, as all sounds has ceased to come from the bottom. There is great excitement. Miners are flocking from surrounding mines to assist in the rescue.

A Good Bargain.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Only a few days ago the British Cabinet held a special meeting to decide that President Kruger should go to St. Helena, presumably to occupy Napoleon's old quarters. That was all very well. Now, the Boer Cabinet, not to be outdone, serves notice on Downing Street that Cecil Rhodes, the cause of all their trouble, will be exhibitied to the people of the Transvaal in a steel cage, along the road from Kimberley to Pretoria. What is necessary to render these threats interesting is the capture of the men who are to be the central figures in the play.

•• • ••

At the same time it's odd they can't get on to Aguinaldo's trail. He's certainly making tracks.

•• • ••

Considering the part the stocking plays in it, is Christmas at the head of the year's holidays or at the foot?

•• • ••

England's poets have one thing to be thankful for in no needing to write any odes to victory. Names like French, Methuen and Gatacre make tough rhyming.

•• • ••

There is one thing to be said for the British generals—they always own up to defeat when they suffer it.

•• • ••

Blowing up the bridges in South Africa won't get the war over any sooner.

•• • ••

Aguinaldo's snow heading for the mountains recalls it has been rather uphill work for him from the start.

•• • ••

There is no doubte the Britons are beginning to form a healthy respect for the Boer bullet. It never struck them this way before.

•• • ••

The party in Dominion politics which will make the abolition of all bonuses and tax exemptions a plank of its platform will get the votes of the thinkers. The bonus evil will never be suppressed satisfactory save by the passage of a cast iron, rock ribbed Dominion law which will admit of no evasion. A case in point is furnished by Kingston's experience with the locomotive works, the proprietors of which having been offered a grant of $75,000 to move their works outside the province very naturally expect Kingston to make them as good an offer to stay where they are. The need of a law to prevent manufacturing concerns from thus burglarzing municipal treasuries must be patent to everyone.

•• • ••

What the British need in South Africa is artillery and cavalry. Canada can furnish both at short notice.

•• • ••

It seems that Pope Leo has decided after all, that the twentieth century will begin on January 1, 1901. And so another struggle between science and religion has been happily averted

•• • ••

It is most amusing to watch the attempts of the press of Hamilton, Toronto, Ottawa and other places to make somebody believe that they can ever become centers of electric power, like this great town of Peterborough.

•• • ••

It would appear that the first duty of Canada is to make another tender of troops—not to wait until the mother Country may have to ask for them but to act promptly. And let the offer be a substantial force—a regiment of rough riders from the Northwest, a brigade division of artillery, three batteries, and a brigade of infantry, at least.

Wanted the Earth.

Mullen & Muir, wall paper manufacturers, of Toronto, who would not accept Orillia's inducements to locate there are in communication with the Barrie Board of Trade. They ask the county town for a bonus of $15,000 and an additional $50,000 by subscription from the townspeople. This is not an instance of "man wants but little here below." This is a kind of industry that Peterborough does not want.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramophone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramophone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. "ADMIT WITHIN FIRE LINES."

An Extraordinary Motto For a Reporter's Funeral Emblem.

In his story of "The Last of the Mulberry Street Barons," in The Century, Mr. Jacob A. Riis, author of "How the Other Half Lives," tells a rather gruesome but very amusing anecdote of a fellow reporter attached to police headquarters in Mulberry street, New York.

There had been a feud of long standing between the reporters in Mulberry street, and in consequence news was plentiful. There were mutual scores to be paid off, and we paid them off in the coin of the realm. The coin of Mulberry street was murder, fire and sudden death (we had passed the stage of boxing gloves and did not speak as we passed by), and it went a long way. I do not mean, of course, that we murdered or burned up one another, but these things were the staples of our daily work as police reporters, and when we were "out" the precinct returns received an extra sifting, with the result that many a grain of newspaper wheat that would otherwise have escaped was rescued from the dust bin.

We had our specialties in this contest of wits. One was distinguished as a sleuth. He fed on detective mysteries as a cat on a chicken bone. He thought them out by day and dreamed them out by night, to the great exasperation of the official detectives, with whom their solution was a commercial, not in the least an intellectual, affair. They solved them on the plane of the proverbial looking of honor among thieves, by the formula, "You scratch my back, and I'll scratch yours."

Another came out strong on fires. He knew the history of every house in town that ran any risk of being burned, knew every fireman and could tell within $1,000, more or less, what was the value of the goods stored in any building in the dry goods district and for how much they were insured. If he couldn't, he did anyhow, and his guesses often came near the facts, as shown in the final adjustment. He sniffed a firebug from afar and knew without asking how much salvage there was in a bale of cotton after being 24 hours in the fire. He is dead, poor fellow. In life he was fond of a joke, and in death the joke clung to him in a way wholly unforeseen.

The firemen in the next block, with whom he made his headquarters when off duty, so that he might always be within hearing of the gong, wished to give some tangible evidence of their regard for the old reporter, but, being in a hurry, left it to the florist, who knew him well, to choose the design. He hit upon a floral fire badge as the proper thing, and thus it was that when the company of mourners was assembled and the funeral service in progress there arrived and was set upon the coffin, in the view of all, that triumph of the florist's art, a shield of white roses, with this legend written across it in red immortelles: "Admit Within Fire Lines Only." It was shocking, but irresistible. It brought down even the house of mourning.

Proud of Him.

When he was 60, he returned to his native town "just to see how the old place looked." He found it unchanged. The old store, where as a lad he had clerked it and sold calico and groceries to the old farmers, was just the same. He contrasted the sleepy old place with himself and felt a glow of satisfaction when he thought how much these 60 years had done for him. "They ought to be proud of me," he said to himself.

Presently he met one of the old inhabitants.

"Waal, I declare, is it really you, Hank!" said the old man incredulously. "We've heard you've been prospering fust rate since you went west. They've made you a railroad president or suthin of the sort, ain't they? I heard so, but I couldn't believe it. It's really true, is it? Waal, all I've got to say is they must be purty hard up for railroad presidents out there."

He took the next train for the west.—

What He Really Owed.

"Doctor," said the grateful patient, seizing the physician's hand, "I shall never forget that to you I owe my life."

"You exaggerate," returned the doctor mildly. "You owe me only for 15 visits. That is the point which I hope you will not fail to remember."

They Keep Moving.

The religion of a Bedouin tribe seems to be to "move onward." Having once begun the nomadic life, it becomes almost necessary for them to keep it up. In the first place, they don't want to settle down, and they wouldn't have any place to stop if they wanted to. Sometimes it becomes expedient that they make great haste in these long journeys. Wandering around over the plains are other tribes whose only occupation is "moving on." There is frequently enmity between two of these Arabian families, and should one pursue the other it behooves the pursued to hasten onward with all the speed their animals are capable of. Or it may be that the springs of water are so widely separated that hard travel is necessary to make the distance from one to the other in a day.

When either of these contingencies arises, they cook and eat while on the march. They don't eat much. Two or three dinners such as American boys and girls are used to every day and something extra for Sundays and company are supposed not to agree with Bedouin children's stomachs. When on the road, bread is their chief food. This is baked while riding. One woman will mix the coarse flour which is carried in a sack on the back of her camel, another will roll and shape the dough, which is brought to her in small quantities, and a third will make a fire in an earthen vessel and attend to the baking. Women or boys on foot run along from one cook to the other and carry the material, and when the feast is ready they distribute it among the various members of the tribe.

An Unprofitable Bone.

Last summer a friend presented us with a tortoise. I do not know whether our dog had heard of turtle soup or whether he regarded the creature as a new kind of bone that walked about; at any rate, he determined to eat it.

Whenever the tortoise started out on a constitutional down the garden path Gyp arrested it and carried it into his kennel, where he gnawed at the impenetrable armor till his jaws ached.

The calm and philosophical manner in which the tortoise resumed its interrupted promenade irritated the dog exceedingly, but no failure discouraged him. Whenever we reminded him of the tortoise, he would go in search of it all round the garden, peering into every crevice, till eventually the creature was found, and then fresh but futile attempts were made to extract the meaty portions from the shell.—

Woes of Millionaires.

An English millionaire has just been adjudged incapable of looking after his property. He imagines himself the Prince of Wales.

Some years ago a rich merchant took the idea that he was penniless. His sons, to stop his worrying, assured him they had rescued his business and was to continue it. They offered him a clerkship at a small salary in his own office. He took it and kept at work nearly 20 years. When he died, he left nearly $15,000,000.

Two English millionaires were noted for their parsimony. One picked up and smoked cigar ends. The other, after fine receptions in his house, would go around carefully collecting candle ends to be used again. Neither of these men was insane. Both were shrewd in business.

Another millionaire imagined for a considerable time that he was a squirrel, and would eat nothing but nuts.

Another was too parsimonious even to buy himself a warm overcoat. Some of his friends made him a present of one, and he promptly sold it at secondhand and pocketed the money.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Was Hanged Over Again.

G. W. Stevens, who traveled extensively in India, tells the following interesting story: A Pathan was being hanged, when the rope broke. The warder bade him go up on to the scaffold again, but he objected. "No," he said, "I was sentenced to be hanged, and hanged I've been."

"Not so, friend," argued the warder; "you were sentenced to be hanged until you were dead, and you're not dead."

It was a new view to the Pathan, and he turned to the superintendent. "Is that right, sahib?"

"Yes, that's right."

"Very well. I didn't understand," and he went composedly up the steps and was hanged again like a man.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

THE POULTRY YARD.

Pen fowls are small bodied birds, and it will not pay to raise them for their flesh.

CANADA'S GREATEST SCHOOL OF SHORTHAND AND BUSINESS

PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS SHOULD NOTICE

This Institute has prepared over seventy teachers for other Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States, more than twice as many as all other Business Colleges in Canada, combined, have so placed.

The proprietors of five of the leading business colleges in Western Ontario, who are to-day among our strongest opponents in the field of Shorthand and Business training, received THEIR training under the Principal of this institution. Besides these, there are five others holding leading positions as teachers in Business Colleges in Ontario.

Since Sept 1st seven of our pupils have accepted positions as teachers in Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States; another is now negotiating for a similar opening in a Business College in a leading American city, and there are five unfilled calls of this kind on hand still.

DOES IT NOT PAY TO ATTEND THE BEST? You must decide.

236 of our pupils secured good positions in seventeen months, and the good work of placing our students still continues.

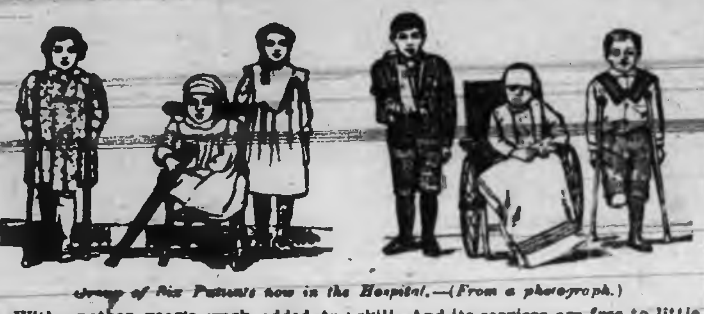
The Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto.

A Charitable Institution Caring for Sick and Crippled Children from All Parts of the Province of Ontario.



Group of Six Patients now in the Hospital.—(From a photograph.)

With another year's work added to the twenty-two years of its existence, the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, has sent out its report of the good that it has done. In 23 years the Hospital has nursed and treated 30,000 pain-stricken children, which is truly a great record. Last year over 5,000 children were treated in the indoor and outdoor departments. The fame of the Hospital has travelled far indeed, for the little patients are brought to its doors from all parts of the province. Some marvellous cures have been effected by its skilful physicians, while many a little crippled child has recovered the use of deformed limbs under the care of its surgeons. No expense is spared in any single case where there is the least hope of such expenditure proving beneficial.

The better to procure the appliances needed in curing the deformities of many little patients, the Hospital Trustees have this year added a very important department to the Hospital. A building adjoining the large Hospital on College street was purchased, and in it were placed the machinery and material needed for the making of all kinds of appliances needed in different cases of surgery. An expert workman has been secured from New York to superintend the making of these appliances to the exact measurements and designs submitted by the surgeons attending each case.

The results have been eminently satisfactory. Not only is it possible to get these appliances quickly and correctly made for each patient, but the expense has been greatly reduced, and endless savings will be effected.

Many of the little patients come from homes where every dollar is needed for every day needs, and where the parents could not possibly afford to supply the braces, supports and orthopaedic apparatus, let alone secure the attendance of the eminent surgeons who dedicate their services to the Hospital.

Picture the improvement that must follow to a crippled child piteously suffering from some sad spinal disease, lying perhaps in a dark corner on a hard bed, and attended lovingly but intermittently by a hard-working mother. Picture the improvement in that child's prospects of recovery when taken into the bright atmosphere of a hospital ward, where it will be carefully and tenderly nursed and where every care of modern surgical and medical science will be given it.

It would make one's heart ache to see the surroundings of discomfort where some of these little lives have been slowly ebbing away until word of the Hospital's mercies has brought a promise of health to the child and the pleasures of hope to the parents.

We take pleasure in telling our readers of this noble institution, for who knows but some of the little ones within this district may even now have need of its services! The trustees desire us to announce that the doors of the Hospital are thrown wide open to receive any sick or ailing child under 14 years of age who could be benefited by its skill. And its services are free to little children whose parents cannot afford the small fee charged. None are refused admission. For this Hospital was founded in 1875 by great-hearted men and women, who saw the need of the special care necessary for sick, destitute and friendless children, little ones who, through misfortune, disease and poverty could not help themselves, though to-day its fame has spread, and many of the Hospital patients come from stately homes as well as humble dwellings. What charity has so great a claim on the sympathies of men, women and children!

The Hospital is one of the largest institutions of its kind in the world. In it there is accommodation for 200 children. To-day there are more than 100 patients in the cots—babies, boys and girls.

In close affiliation with the Hospital is The Lakeside Home for Little Children, the convalescent branch, where all the patients who can be moved are taken to spend the warm summer months. The Lakeside Home was a gift of a Toronto gentleman to the Hospital. It is located on the south-west corner of Toronto Island, and the situation is a breezy and health-giving one.

This great charity is supported by the voluntary contributions of the people of Ontario. The ordinary expenditure last year was over $35,000. Yet, thanks to the generosity of the public, this expense was met, and $25,000 was paid off the mortgage, which had been retarding and harassing the work for years.

There is still left a mortgage of $25,000 and a bank overdraft of $5,000, or a total debt of $30,000. If the friends of the Hospital are just a little more liberal this year, that huge indebtedness will be lifted, and the Hospital for Sick Children will swing into the twentieth century free from debt.

The Trustees are making a special Christmas appeal for money to discharge this debt. They know they have the kindly sympathy of every one for a mother charity, which stands erect, with arms outstretched, ready to gather into its embrace the sick and ailing little creatures who are entitled to health, the first great need to a fair start on life's journey.

They will be pleased to send a report or any required particulars to any reader of this paper.

All they ask is a dollar from each kind heart—or more if you feel you can spare it.

A donation of $100 will support a cot in the Hospital for one year.

A donation of $2,000 will endow a cot for all time.

And $1 is an appreciable gift. For many dollars will follow yours. "He who gives quickly gives twice."

Through the columns of the Toronto Evening Telegram each donation will be acknowledged, as well as in the Annual Report. J. Ross Robertson, Chairman of the Hospital Trust, Toronto, to whom donations may be sent, will also send written acknowledgment of any donations as soon as received.

The Boiler Exploded.

London, Ont., Dec. 21.—At ten minutes after seven this morning the boiler in the Crescent Milling Company's factory on Bathurst street blew up, completely wrecking the brick engine house, wherein it was located, but fortunately not damaging the factory close by. The force of the explosion shifted the boiler about 10 feet. The fragments of the engine house door were afterwards found two hundred feet away. James Hetherington was the only man in the engine house at the time. He was seriously scalded about the head and shoulders, but, strange to say, was not fatally hurt. The cause of the explosion was the giving way of a patch in the end of the boiler.

Not Untruthful.

"Sir, how is it that you adertise in The Morning Times, all the beer a fellow can drink for five cents and then stop me on one glass after I have paid my money?" indignantly demanded Hungry Willie as he lined up to the bar of the Snowden House and addressed the genial proprietor.

"I advertised all the beer you can drink for five cents, didn't I?" asked the latter.

"You did, sir," replied Will.

"Well, that's all the beer you can drink for five cents in this place. See?"

True Boston Culture.

"Fifty cents for this beautiful little vase," called the auctioneer. "Going, going for 50. Do I hear 55 for this beautiful little vase?" and no one thought anything about the auctioneer or the vase which went for 50 cents until another one was put up, an immense affair of cloisonne. "Now we will show you an exquisite piece, not to be duplicated in this country," he went on. "An exquisite cloisonne varse"—and there the Wellesley girl said [illegible] to her companion:

"Now, that is what I call true Boston culture. Would you expect a man of that kind to make such a delicate distinction? He must have been educated at a woman's college. When he is selling a 50 cent article, he says vase in the ordinary way, with the long sound of the 'a,' but when he comes to a big piece of cloisonne it is varse, with the broad 'a' every time. That is according to rule. Over $10 in price you find a varse, but under that nothing but an ordinary, everyday vase."—New York Times.

Crocodile Tears.

The expression "crocodile tears" can be found in almost every European language, but it is doubtful if one in a thousand of those who use it have an idea of its origin. We are told in the Bestiary of Guillaume le Clerc that when the crocodile finds an unwary traveler it devours him, but afterward weeps over him all the rest of its life. This is very evidently the allusion in "Othello," "Each drop she falls would prove a crocodile" (4, 257).

There is another version of the fable, however, which is more often referred to in literature, and according to which the crocodile sheds tears in order to allure the traveler to destruction. Shakespeare alludes to this in the passage where he tells how

the mournful crocodile
With sorrow snares relenting passengers.
—"2. Henry VI." 3. [illegible]

VIVID · HEALTH

Nothing as rare as charity, easily impaired or often lost—the envy of all and the grandest jewel in the crown of life is vivid health. Many a man has paid the forfeit of richness [illegible] the gain of wealth. A loosed purse cannot atone for the deranged liver, the [illegible] step, the rebellious stomach. Every pulse beat of impoverished blood carries weakness and disease. Gradually all nerve power leaves you and the [illegible] of life is gone. The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

Manufactured under the patents of Bell, Tainter, Edison and Macdonald. Our establishment is headquarters of the world for Talking Machines and Talking Machine Supplies. Write for catalogue.

SIMPLE LITTLE MIX UP.

Helped One Man at the Expense of Another.

How a bunch of roses sold a couple of high priced railroad tickets is the basis of a queer little comedy of errors enacted the other day at a leading city hotel. Among the guests of the house was a wealthy Texas merchant who was en route with his wife for a visit to New England. The Texan has a local business representative here in the person of a hustling young man about town, who was especially anxious to make the stay of his principal as pleasant as possible. Accordingly he rushed to a florist's as soon as he saw the names on the register and ordered him to put up the handsomest bunch of roses he had in the shop and send them over to Mrs. Blank at such and such a hotel. In his hurry he forgot to leave his card for inclosure, and, supposing it was omitted intentionally, the florist proceeded to prepare a magnificent bouquet, which he dispatched forthwith by messenger.

It so happened at the moment the flowers arrived that a city passenger solicitor for one of the north bound roads had just handed over his card to be sent to the Texas gentleman's apartment, and quite naturally the pasteboard and the roses went up together. The visitors were both astonished and pleased. "This is certainly a princely way of soliciting business," exclaimed the merchant, examining the flowers. "Why, these things must have cost all of $10. Show the gentleman up."

The solicitor was shown up, received most cordially and given an immediate order for through transportation both ways. He departed, chuckling merrily, but a little dazed by the facility of his deal and puzzled to understand the many references to his "courtesy" and "thoughtfulness."

An hour or so later the local representative dropped around and was met by his employer in the lobby. The greeting was painfully matter of fact, and not a word was said about the flowers. The young man was greatly chagrined and began to believe he had made a bad break. Next day he accompanied the couple to the depot, and incidentally something was said about the route.

"We decided to go this way on account of the gentleman who called to sell us tickets," explained the lady. "He was so courteous and pleasant! Why, would you believe it," she continued, "he actually sent me an enormous bunch of beauty roses with his business card!"

Light dawned on the local representative, and he groaned. In his pocket was a florist's bill for $12.75.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

They Keep One Eye Shut.

A recent traveler in Mexico, who visited the mines there during his journey, says that he was much astonished at seeing the men who carry the ore come out of the mine, each with one eye shut.

The foreman, noting his surprise, explained the matter. He said the candles belonging to the barateros (who drill and blast) do not give sufficient light in the drifts, where it is consequently quite dark, but where, nevertheless, the barateros see well enough not to run their heads against the rocks, but, on emerging into daylight, they would be blinded did they not take precautionary measures.

For this reason, as they approach the mouth of the shaft, at the point where they catch the first glimpse of light they drop the eyelid of one eye and keep this down while they are discharging their ore and until they have redescended the shaft.

When they are again in the dark, they open the eye kept hitherto in reserve and at once see everything distinctly, while the other eye, previously open and somewhat blinded by the daylight, perceives nothing.

COPPER MINING STOCKS

For several months shrewd investors have been putting their money into the shares of Copper Mines. This is true not only of men with large amounts of money at their disposal but also applies to those who have made a study of investments with a view to securing a large return for small investments. As high as THREE AND FOUR HUNDRED PER CENT. has to our knowledge already been realized on some of these investments. Americans were the first to make a specialty of Copper Stocks. They knew what they were doing, for the reason is not far to seek. Every Copper Mine in the world is at present taxed to its utmost limit to meet the growing demand for copper for electrical purposes. The reserve stores of copper are being depleted until it pays no longer to use copper in some eastern countries as a coin. Copper has gone up in price from 9c to 18 cents. The supply of Copper from the mines of the world to-day is only about 80 per cent. of the consumption. That is the reason why financiers have their engineers searching the four quarters of the globe for Copper Mines, and that is the reason the shares in promising copper companies are so eagerly picked up by investors.

If you have any money to invest we would ask you to consider the shares of the SUPERIOR GOLD & COPPER COMPANY, LIMITED. This Company owns and operates some valuable native copper properties. We are in a position to offer you a special opportunity in this stock which as an investment should give you a profit of at least 100 per cent in six months. Send for prospectus and particulars.

Occasionally we have an opportunity of giving our clients a special offer on some stocks, and we have this opportunity now. If you are interested write to us at once. These shares are sold in large or small blocks to suit buyers.

We deal in all legitimate mining shares on commission. If you want to buy or sell write us.

A JUMPING TOOTHACHE.

How It Won Its Victim Credit For Bravery In Battle.

"It was a toothache," said the veteran, "that won me a reputation for daring at the battle of Bull Run. That was the only fight I was ever in where I didn't wish I could find a hole to crawl into. All this talk about coolness on the eve of battle is nonsense, invented by people who have never been there or old soldiers whose tongues get away with their memories. Our men and officers were as brave as any in the war and made good records, but they all had the ague and longed for sick leave just about the time the bullets began to fly. But I had the toothache for two days before that battle, and if there is an aggravation on earth that will make a man want to bat his best friend in the face that is it.

"On the night before the fight I did not sleep a wink. The old tooth got to jumping like a goat, and I couldn't have suffered more from an amputated leg. I was also furiously mad. I felt that I'd either got to bolt for the rear in search of relief or encourage some rebel to put a ball through my head.

"We'd been waiting in battle line for an hour, and the boys had grown white and were all choked up. I had been entirely occupied with the old tooth, and the first thing I knew the fight was on. We were holding them in check, but that didn't suffice me. As I got hold of my gun and pulled the handkerchief off my jaw I yelled out for the boys to follow, and we struck a whole brigade and whirled it around and sent it back half a mile. I felt that I could lick the whole of Lee's army for an hour or two! They told me that I yelled and dodged death a thousand times, but I remember nothing but the jumps of that tooth. When they stopped, or for what particular reason, I could never say, but after a couple of hours I came to myself, as it were, and was being complimented on all sides, and the jumps had ceased."

THE BOXER'S FINISH.

ONE BOUT THAT SETTLED HIS PUGILISTIC AMBITION.

He Didn't Know the Man He Ran Up Against Until He Came Back to Consciousness, After Having Seen a Large Display of Stars.

"When I was much younger," said the portly government official, "I was a husky young fellow, chesty and sassy about my pugilistic ability. I got the boxing bee in my bonnet and practiced hard with the gloves every night. I had been sparring with fellows in my gymnasium for about six months and picking up what I thought was a whole lot of cleverness, when I moved to a boarding house on Pierrepont street, in Brooklyn. I had a room on the top floor of this boarding house. The top floor's rooms were all occupied by young fellows like myself—law and medical students, newspaper chaps and that sort. It was rather a scapegrace lot, and I got acquainted with most of them immediately. I had a lot of athletic gear along with me—clubs, dumbbells, weight pulling machines and stuff—and from the jump I gave these floor mates of mine to understand that I was some considerable pumpkins as an athlete. When I showed 'em my boxing gloves, I was particular to dwell upon the fact that boxing was my one particular graft, and I think I modestly threw the hint out that I'd never yet met a man of my weight that could put the gloves on with me in the amateur class. For a couple of nights running I let them look at me in the act of punching a bag I had suspended from the ceiling of my room, and they all agreed, I think, that I'd be rather an unsafe proposition to get addled up with in a scrap.

"One of the occupants of that top floor was away when I struck the house, and he didn't return until I had been in the house for about a week. When he got back, the other fellows introduced me to him. I didn't catch his name at the time, but he didn't strike me as being a very cheerful chap, and I rather ignored him. Well, all got to talking on my favorite subject, sparring, after awhile, and I invited any of the fellows present to put on the gloves for a little 'go' with me.

"'I won't hurt you, you know,' said I. 'I'll just tap you lightly, and you can hit me as hard as you want. It's raining, and I don't want to go to the gym tonight, and I wish one of you ducks 'ud just slip 'em on with me.'

"I didn't quite understand what they all meant when they exchanged glances and pushed forward the man who had been away since my advent in the house and whom I had just met.

"'Go on and put 'em on with him,' they urged this man. 'He won't hurt you. You've had the gloves on once or twice, anyhow, while none of the rest of us knows anything about boxing. Go ahead and give him a little exercise.'

"'All right,' said this man rather reluctantly. He looked just like an ordinary man with his coat on, and I felt that he would be dead easy as a subject upon whom to practice and to show the other fellows what I knew about the fine points of the game. When he returned from his room, however, stripped to his trousers and his gauze undershirt, I couldn't help but look at the chap. For a man of ordinary size he had the hugest chest I had ever seen, and his arms and shoulders were simply knotted and twisted with muscles. He was as quiet spoken a duck as ever I saw, though, and he didn't look to be lively on his feet, so we went at it.

"Well, say that was a one man bout, and the other fellow was the one man. There was nothing to it but him. From the very minute that we squared off I could see by the way he handled his dukes that the boxing game was his'n and that I was like six lead nickels in comparison with him. He just fooled with me at first—rapped me here and there at will, adding insult to injury by quietly announcing where he was going to jolt me next—and I never got in a lick or a dab on him. I tried my derndest when I saw I was totally outclassed to get in just one belt at him somewhere or other, but it was no go. He had a lightning guard for every essay I made to crack him one, and after about five minutes I was puffing like a tree toad and still taking whacks all over my hide, while he was as cool as a cucumber.

"'You're pretty good,' I gasped when we took a momentary rest. 'You've been at this game often, haven't you?'

"'I've had 'em on a few times,' he replied quietly. 'Let's have another short go.'

"Then we went at it again. He fiddled around for a minute, and then he caught me one with his left fist right under the chin. I went sailing up into the air—I saw enough stars to have gone sailing right up among 'em—and I was out when I came down—good and out, as clean a case of knocked out boxer as ever happened in a prize ring. It was fully ten minutes before I came to, and when I did the other fellows were all fanning me and rubbing my head with ammonia and wondering if I was a sure enough dead 'un. I was all right after I got my head under the cold water spigot, and then one of the fellows took me into the center of the gang and said to me:

"'Maybe you didn't quite catch the name of the man you boxed with when you were introduced to him, hey?'

"'No, I didn't,' said I. 'Who is he—John L. Sullivan?'

"'Not exactly. Mr. Ford, step up and shake hands again. This,' went on the young fellow doing the introducing addressing me, 'is Malcolm W. Ford, the champion all around athlete of America. He has held that title for three years, earning it each year in competition with the best men in the whole country in athletic games. He holds the record for the running broad jump, the standing high jump, the pole vault, hammer throwing, shot putting, and he's among the best in the world as a 100 yard sprinter. He's all right.'

"'Yes,' said I. 'I think he is—even if he is a party to this awful job on me,' and we shook hands. When the gang saw I was game enough to take my roasting good naturedly, they let up on me. But my pugilistic ambition wilted absolutely from that night."

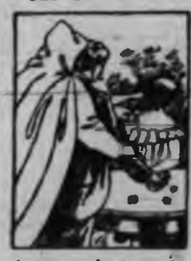
ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Cultivate the young orchard thoroughly early in the season.

In selecting trees, take those with smooth, healthy looking bark.

Ground bone is good for small fruit plants, grapevines and bearing apple orchards.

The deeper the culture the larger the reserve of moisture for the roots in time of drought. To secure quick growth prepare the soil deeply.



The cut is after an old painting of a man gambling with Death with his life as a stake. Behind the man stands his good angel striving to save him.

This game with life as the stake is the every-day game of men and women. Behind the player stands the good angel Nature, striving to preserve the life. Even when the game is almost in Death's hands, the man who turns to Nature and lets her help him may yet save himself. Medical science knows this, and its highest authorities affirm that the utmost medical skill can do is to help Nature.

The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing wasted bodies, weak lungs, and obstinate and lingering coughs, is based on the recognition of this fundamental scientific truth. "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body building, tissue repairing, muscle making materials, in condensed and concentrated form. With this help Nature supplies the strength to throw off diseases of the lungs, heal the sick stomach, re-establish the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purify and enrich the blood, and nourish the nerves.

If your dealer offers something "just as good," it is probably better for him; it pays better. But you are thinking of the cure not the profit, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

In a letter received from A. D. Weller, Esq., of Pensacola, Escambia Co., Fla. (Box 544), he states: "I have, since receiving your diagnosis of my case as stomach trouble and liver complaint, taken eight bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and must say that I am transformed from a walking shadow (as my friends called me), to perfect health. I value your remedies very highly and take pleasure in recommending them to any and all who suffer as I did. Four months ago I did not think to be in shape to assist our 'Uncle Samuel' in case of hostilities, but thanks to you, I am now ready for the Dons!"

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, In Plain English; or, Medicine Simplified, 1008 pages, over 700 illustrations, paper-bound, sent for 31 one-cent stamps, to cover cost of customs and mailing only. Cloth-bound 50 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Where the Pot of Gold is Buried.

How many women are fretting and struggling along on a very little money when a good sized yard or adjoining patch of ground is going to waste! Yet that very piece of ground may contain all sorts of possibilities—clothes, furniture, books, medicines, luxuries and even necessities otherwise impossible.

Clear, plow, fertilize and plant. This done, the great beginning is made, and perseverance and attention will secure the rest. Onions, tomatoes, cabbages, celery, a small poultry farm, a violet or rose farm—any one of these may add several hundred dollars to one's purse every year. Small fruits, hops, tuberoses and grapes are also very profitable. With some intelligence a blooming garden can always be made a paying one. Make it a principle to have no more waste in the garden than in the kitchen.

If there is only a very small place and just enough raised for one's own family, try, after the table is supplied, to prepare what vegetables and fruits are left over for sale for winter use. There is always a demand for good homemade canning and preserving. Do not let a valuable scrap of ground be idle.—Annette Halliday-An-

To Join the Contingent.

Dr. Alex. Bell, the popular and efficient Clerk of Lakefield, has applied for a position on the medical contingent that is to be sent to South Africa. The Dr. is quite enthusiastic over the prospects of his services being accepted. He is a surgeon of large experience, having served in the American rebellion, where he gained much experience in army work.

In McWilliam's Favor.

A bet was made by a couple of prominent citizens over the matoraity election. The McWilliams man had to give odds, though in order to get up money. The wager was $25 to $10 that Ald. McWilliams would win. Another bet was made even that McWilliams would have over 300 majority.

THE MAYORALTY CONTEST

The entrance of Mr. Kendry into the municipal ring in opposition to Ald. McWilliams has stirred the whole town. The majority of the ratepayers regard Mr. Kendry as a good citizen, as well as a popular Parliamentary representative. Those who have studied the trend of events, municipally, are at a loss to understand why he has allowed himself to be made use of by those who are anxious to beat Mr. McWilliams solely for personal reasons. The Times will venture the assertion that not one of those who are whooping for Mr. Kendry but who have some personal reason actuating them. The same gentlemen it was who "knifed" Mr. Cahill when he was a candidate against Mr. Yelland for the Mayor's chair. Our Roman Catholic friends are now being told that Mr. McWilliams plainly showed his hostility to them when he objected to the way Mr. Sheehy was carrying out his contract with the town. They talk this way when they know in their hearts that it was solely a regard for the town's interests, and a high sense of duty that impelled Mr. McWilliams to take the action he did. We fancy few of our Roman Catholic friends will not be misled by any such fool stories.

The Times has a very great personal regard for Mr. Kendry, and we are sorry to be forced to ask the ratepayers to vote against him on this occasion. This journal cannot allow personal feelings to interfere with what it conceives to be its duty. Mr. McWilliams has been faithful to his trust as a Councillor, and possesses all the necessary qualifications in an eminent degree for the higher office to which he now aspires.

ELECTION NOTES.

Watch the "machine" work for Kendry.

•• • ••

The Review calls Mr. Kendry "the People's Candidate." It evidently refers to Messrs. Davis, Langford and Neill as the people.

•• • ••

"Anything to beat McWilliams" is the battle cry of the clique.

•• • ••

Messrs. Davis, Langford, Neil, et el; have undertaken a contract that will use up all their surplus sand.

•• • ••

Although Ald. Langford is an expert in the use of sand, he does not seem to possess much of that very useful article.

•• • ••

Elect an honest, intelligent, progressive council, and, after the ventilation of civic affairs the past season, the abuses and moss-covered methods of municipal administration will be thoroughly reformed.

Only Ten Candidates.

There are only ten candidates in the field for the Council, this will leave only one man to be defeated. Those who have retired are Messrs. E. H. D. Hall, Harry Winch, J. J. McBain, Adam Hall, W. G. Morrow, T. F. Matthews, J. J. Hartley, T. E. Bradburn, Geo. Ball and Ald Best. Ald. Langford has decided to run as he figures on slipping in under such circumstances, one or two of the candidates being very weak.

MAYORALTY CONUNDRUMS.

Why are some of the candidates for the council like men with wooden legs?
Because they cannot run well.

•• • ••

Why is James Kendry like the busted Peterborough Central Exhibition?
Because he's got no show for next year.

•• • ••

Why is Ald. McWilliams like Gen. Buller?
Because he is fighting the battles of the local Uitlander against street grabbing, monopolies and paving contract wrong-doing.

•• • ••

Why does Mr. Kendry claim the votes of the working men?
We give it up.

•• • ••

Why does Ald. Langford and other local contractors prefer Mr. Kendry to Ald. McWilliams for mayor?
Because they know that the latter, if elected, will make them toe the mark in all contracts with the town.

•• • ••

If Ald. McWilliams is elected, why cannot he take the mayor's chair?
Because it's fastened to the floor.

On Tuesday afternoon last a peculiar accident happened on the farm of Mr. W. Preston, Smith, at a threshing. A number of sheep were feeding near the horse power, when one of them got caught on the main shaft connecting the horse power and the mill, and in an instant its skin was stripped off and its hind leg torn completely away from its body. The animal stopped the machine and the horses became so frightened that they nearly ran away.

Mr. Fred Bell, son of Dr. Bell, of Lakefield, who is ranching in the Northwest, came as far as Toronto, on his way to visit his parents. When he reached the Queen City he heard that his father had made application to go to the seat of war. The young man immediately started for his home in the Northwest, and sent in his application along with other ranchmen or "cowboys," as they are called, for service as cavalryman or scout. It is not unlikely that both father and son will be at the front fighting the battles of their country.

THE MAYORALTY.

To the Ratepayers of the Town of Peterborough:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

At the request of hundreds of the ratepayers of the town expressed in a requisition presented to me, I have accepted nomination for the Mayorality for 1900, and am in the field seeking your sufferages. I do not believe that it will be necessary to assure you that I did not seek the office, but only entered the contest because in the face of the request made of me by so many of our citizens I felt that it was a duty I owed to the public which I have been privileged to serve in different capacities so frequently. It was from no desire to monopolise offices that are within the gift of the people, but simply because I was made to feel that at the present time the citizens wanted my services and that when the demand was made so forcibly I would indeed be lacking in my duty if I did not respond, even though the response meant much personal sacrifice to myself.

Having accepted nomination I respectfully solicit your votes and influence, and if elected I promise to give my best attention to the duties of the office. I will give my time and what ability I possess to the advancement of the town's best interests. The town's interests are my interests, for I have, as you are aware, no small stake here, and economy and progress will be my watchwords. All questions coming before the Council will receive my careful and unprejudiced attention, and my aim will be to maintain that harmony and unity in the consideration of civic business that will allow the best results to be realized.

It will be impossible owing to the short time between now and election day for me to call personally on all of you, and I therefore solicit your support in this way, hoping for a renewal of the confidence expressed in me as a member of the Council and as Mayor in former years.

I desire to thank those who have already expressed their confidence in me by signing the handsome requisition presented to me.

Wishing you one and all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

I am ladies, and gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

JAS. KENDRY.

A CANADIAN PICKET REPORTED TO BE CUT OFF.

General Joubert at the Front Again—Colonel Long, Wounded at Tugela River, is Recovering—British Cruiser Captures Norwegian Vessel.

London, Dec. 27, 4.50 a.m.

Despatches from South Africa are still greatly delayed, but they are arriving more freely, which shows that the censorship is being relaxed. There appears to be no great change in the situation. A despatch from Lorenzo Marquez, dated Thursday, Dec. 21, gives the following from the Boer head laager, dated Tuesday, Dec. 19—"The British naval guns at Colenso have been cannonading Bulwer Bridge, over the Tugela river, with a view of smashing it."

The bombardment of Ladysmith is proceeding slowly. General Joubert has arrived and has been accorded a hearty welcome. He addressed the burghers on Dec. 18.

London, Dec. 27.

Despatches from Modder River, dated Thursday, December 21, reports that intermittent firing was continuing on both sides, although the Boer shell fell short. A number of Free State burghers had surrendered. There is an unconfirmed report that a Canadian picket was cut off near Belmont. It is also asserted that fever is raging among the Boers.

London, Dec. 27.

"More British prisoners have been sent to Pretoria, including Colonel Billock, Major Walters, Major Ballwark, Major Forester, Captain Dick, Captain Nolfern, Captain Fitzherbert, Captain Ford, Captain Hutchingson, Lieut. Bonham, Lieut. Smythers, Lieut. Thoune, Lieut. O'Connoyghy, Lieut. Kumbauld, Lieut. Christian, Lieut. Brigg, Lieut. Rirch, Lieut. Halford, Lieut. Larbull and Lieut. Jones."

A despatch to the Daily News from Ladysmith, dated Friday, Dec. 15, by heliograph, says—"Another sortie last night Gen. Hunter with 500 volunteers destroyed one six-inch creusot gun, one Howitzer and one maxim. One British killed. The Boers fled. There is an idea in some quarters here that General Buller's destruction of the Tugela bridge heralds an attempt to cut off the Boers now south of the river; but the general opinion is that the British will not make any serious move pending the arrival of Lord Roberts."

The Transport Tantalon Castle has arrived at Cape Town with a number of Howitzer and quick firers, which Gen. Buller urgently needs.

The Government has chartered the Lake Erie of the new Elder Dempster and Company's Line, which was built for the Canadian mail service. She has a capacity of 12,000 tons.

A despatch from Chieveley Camp dated Thursday, Dec. 21, says lyddite shells are daily thrown into the Boer camp to prevent them working at the trenches. The firing of the big guns is heard daily from the direction of Ladysmith.

London, Dec. 27.

The Times in a special article discussing the international law aspects of Boer importations through Delagoa Bay, says—"Were we to adopt, either with or without the consent of Portugal, the drastic measures which are so airily suggested in some quarters, we might find ourselves suddenly confronted with international complications far more serious and injurious to the successful prosecution of the South African war than the evils of which it was sought to secure an abatement."

London, Dec. 26.—The War Office has received a despatch from Pietermaritzburg, Natal, dated Sunday, Dec. 24, announcing that in an engagement at Ladysmith on Dec. 22 Major A. C. King, Captain Watchen and Oakes and Lieut. Hulse and Lieut. Colonel Fawcett were wounded, and that nine non-commissioned officers and men were killed and ten wounded.

This engagement had not been recorded before this.

London, Dec. 26.—Another American ship carrying stores to the Boers has been captured by a British cruiser off the coast of Africa. This makes four seizures of this kind. Complications with the American Government over these seizures are more than probable.

London, Dec. 26.—A Modder River despatch of Dec. 19 says—The British artillery fired four shots from 4.7-inch guns this morning. There was no response from the Boers. Since the British artillery has proved more powerful, the Boers are trying to conceal the location of their guns, and are waiting for the British to get within rifle range. All permits to pass pickets have been cancelled. A market has been established at the fourth line of pickets, where butter, milk and vegetables are allowed to be sold by licensed farmers.

COL. LONG RECOVERING.

London, Dec. 26.—A Pietermaritzburg despatch, dated Dec. 20, says—There is reasonable hope of Col. Long's recovery. It is thought the bullets passed clean through his body, as none have been found. Other wounded are progressing favorably.

The British had to destroy the Colenso road to prevent the Boers bringing the artillery across.

NO CHANGE IN SITUATION.

London, Dec. 26.—The latest cable despatches from South Africa show that the situation at the front is practically unchanged. With the exception of desultory artillery practice, to which the Boers do not reply, the British continue to mark time.

The Boers heavily bombarded Ladysmith for a couple of hours on December 16, the day after the battle of Tugela River, but little damage was done. They killed one man and wounded two men of the garrison.

IN A TIGHT PLACE.

Advices from Cape Town say the New Zealanders with General French at Naauwpoort were in a tight corner on Dec. 18. They were nearly surrounded byt he Boers, and retired under a hail of bullets fired at short range, but sustained only slight loss.

Among the Boers killed at [illegible] were many of that locality who had joined the Orange Free State forces.

Several newspaper correspondents have returned to Cape Town from the Modder River, apparently confirming the belief that no immediate advance of the British is projected.

GEN. JOUBERT AT THE FRONT.

Pretoria, Dec. 18.—General Joubert has recovered. He returned to the front today.

There were special services yesterday in the different laagers, as thanksgiving for the victories of Colenso, Stormberg and Modder River.

CAPTURE BY BRITISH CRUISER.

Durban, Dec. 19.—The Norwegian barque Regina, from Java, loaded with stretchers and railway sleepers, has been captured near Delagoa Bay and brought here by the British second class cruiser Forte.

WELL ENTRENCHED.

London, Dec. 26.—The War Office has received the following despatch from Cape Town, dated Dec. 15. "There is no change in the situation at Modder River. Gen. Methuen is well entrenched and the Boers have not disturbed him.

"General Gatacre reports that a force of 150 police have occupied Dordrecht, the Boers retreating with no loss."

Mr. Lionel Walter Rothschild, Unionist member of Parliament for the Aylesbury division of Buckinghamshire, eldest son of the first Baron Rothschild, and the latter's heir, has volunteered for service in South Africa. He was born in 1868 and is unmarried.

SEDITION IN CAPE COLONY.

London, Dec. 26.—It is announced in a cable despatch from Cape Town, dated Wednesday, Dec. 20, that glanders has broken out among the American mules, of which there are 1,100 at the Stellenbosch remount farm. Twenty-six of the mules have been destroyed and 78 have been isolated.

The despatch adds that sedition is spreading in Cape Colony. Three members of the Cape Parliament are alleged to be implicated, and one of them is said to have presented a Free State flag to a Boer commander and at the same time expressed the hope that he would carry it to glory and victory. Another member of Parliament is said to be recruiting for the Boers. Wealthy farmers are now aiding the invaders.

WIPING OUT GUERILLA BANDS.

United States Troops Carrying on the War Against the Filipinos.

Manila, Dec. 26.—Col. Franklin Bell of the 36th infantry encountered 150 Filipinos on Thursday near Alaminos, [illegible] killed, wounded or captured 25 of them, and captured a number of rifles and a quantity of ammunition. One American was wounded.

A detachment of the 24th infantry encountered a band of the enemy on Saturday at Aritao, province of New Viscara and routed them, killing two and wounding or capturing 13. The Americans also seized a quantity of ammunition.

The 21st regiment attacked a Filipino outpost on Sunday near Calamba, scattering them and killing five of the enemy.

The 32nd regiment on Sunday had a brush with the enemy from the mountains northwest of Dinalupijan. One American was wounded. The troops captured 125 head of cattle.

In the island of Panay Captain Brownell's company of the 26th infantry fought the enemy near Sala. The rebels lost heavily and the Americans captured a number of rifles.

The funeral of Major General Lawton will take place on Dec. 30. The body will be embarked on the transport Thomas.

IS THIS MURDER?

Two Men Went Down to the Water's Edge and Only One Returned to Vanish Again

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 26.—An incident that may probably turn out to be murder, or murder and suicide, or double suicide, occurred last evening at the Whirlpool Rapids Park promenade, just below the Grand Trunk steel arch bridge. Two young men arrived in a hack owned and driven by a hackman named Davis at about [illegible] o'clock and asked to be lowered down to the promenade walk alongside the Rapids. The men not returning by dark, Mr. Powell, the manager, grew alarmed, and sent one of his help down to see where the men were.

The men were nowhere to be seen on the walk below. The matter was reported to Chief of Police Young, and Officer Mains and Superintendent Rothery, with a guide named Preston, made a detour and search of the promenade, and found, by footprints in the snow, that the two men had walked to the extreme end of the promenade towards the whirlpool, and, leaving it together, had climbed over the rugged rocks and fallen trees for about 500 feet, after which only the tracks of one man could be found. A few feet from the point where the double footprints had petered out to one man's tracks there was the mark of one man's body, where he had fallen.

On account of the darkness and dangerous condition of the locality, the party gave up the search. The police stationed men along the river to apprehend anyone who should attempt to come up from below the bank at any of the paths that lead below, and have him give an account of the whereabouts of his companion.

ONE MAN ESCAPED.

Niagara Falls, Ont. Dec. 26. — The mysterious disappearance of the two men at the Whirlpool Rapids Park seems to assume indications of murder.

The police had guides follow up the footmarks in the snow at daylight this morning from the point where they were abandoned last evening, on account of darkness, and found the one man's track continued on down the river to the Whirlpool, over large boulders, fallen trees and rocks towering up from 5 to 20 feet high, and leaning towards the seething rapids, where one misstep or slip on the icy, snow covered rocks meant certain death. On went the man's foot tracks to the Whirlpool, around the bend of the pool and alongside of the Rapids below the pool. At this point the travelling was more dangerous and arduour, through rugged and dangerous flats, and up the pathway and steps at Niagara Glen, where the footmarks were lost track of on the ties of the electric railway at the top of the bank.

The man certainly made successfully the most arduous and dangerous detour of Niagara's Gorge for a distance of four miles that could be found between the Falls and Queenston.

Now the mystery darkens, and the question is, who the men were, and what became of the second man, whose footprints petered out 500 yards below the promenade of the Whirlpool Rapids Park. The man that made the detour to Niagara Glen certainly could not have done so without showing some signs of the trip on either his clothing or person. The Ontario police have the matter in hand.

An Attractive Feature.

Mr. Wm. Collins, Secretary of the Peterborough Poultry Association, has received a letter from Mr. Browne, secretary of the Provincial Association, stating that he has secured Mrs. and Mrs. Gilbert, who will be at the provincial show here in January, and kill, draw and dress poultry and explain how to do it. This was the most attractive feature at the fat stock show at London, and should be a great drawing card for the show here. Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert are experts on the important matter of killing, drawing and dressing fowl.

Church Consumed.

The Roman Catholic church at Campbellford was burned to the ground early on Christmas morning. The blaze broke out about about two o'clock, and as the building was a frame structure it was not long until it was consumed. The origin of the fire is not known, but it is supposed that the building ignited from the pipes or the chimney, as a fire had been put in the stove that the building might be warm for the early mass at 6.30 o'clock.

TALK OF SENDING TWO THOUSAND MEN NOW.

The Increase in Contingent Will Probably be in the Mounted Infantry Arm.

RECRUITING GOES ON FOR THE CONTINGENT.

Three Full Field Batteries of Six 12-Pounders Will Enter Into Composition of the Second Contingent—Commissions for Military College Graduates.

Toronto, Dec. 26.—A gentleman who is quite epris of the Cabinet Ministers at Ottawa has just returned from the capital with an interesting rumor.

He says it is in the wind down there to increase the contingent to two thousand men, and the increase will be in the mounted infantry arm.

From nurses and medical men there is an enormous number of applications, but it is not likely that more than four nurses and four surgeons will be sent with the volunteers to the Transvaal. In both cases, as the Government pays the shot, the Government reserves the right of selection.

It was at first proposed to send the bearer corps from Halifax, but this was so recently formed that its efficiency is only conjectural. Consequently it will be kept at home.

OFFICERS NOT YET NAMED.

Ottawa, Dec. 26.—No announcement has yet been made to the officers who will be placed in command of the second Canadian contingent. It is well understood, however, that Col. Evans will command the cavalry. To an interviewer in Victoria, B.C., he stated that he could raise without any difficulty 500 experienced horsemen and riflemen in the North-west at a few day's notice, and with a little more time could secure 2,000 men with horses who would be willing and anxious to go. Col. Evans is now on his way East, but will stop at Calgary to organise his company.

Three full field batteries of six 12-pounder guns will enter into the composition of the contingent. For a time there was a misunderstanding between the Militia Department and the War Office. The latter having the impression that Canada did not possess the necessary 12-pounder guns, declared a preference for only two batteries of artillery, the balance of the contingent to be mounted infantry. The War Office was informed that the guns had been purchased and were already in possession of the Canadian artillery.

The Three Transports.

It is definitely settled that the Montezuma will carry the mounted rifles and their horses, while two battalions of artillery and horses will go on the Laurentian, and one battery and horses and the re-mounts will be carried by the Pomeranian.

Dr. Vaux, a nephew of the late Senator Sanford, will likely be one of the medical staff of the contingent.

As a result of recent communications with the Home Government it appears that the offer of commissions by the War Office to graduates of the Royal Military College is for the Royal Artillery only. The offer is confined to those who have graduated within the past three or four years, and come within the army regulations respecting age. The appointments are permanent, not covering merely the period that the war may last. Col. Kitson has been asked by the Minister to report on the available men.

Dr. McEachren, veterinary surgeon of the Dominion Agricultural Department, has advised the Militia Department that North-west horses should be accepted for the mounted rifles.

PLENTY FOR "A" BATTERY.

Kingston, Dec. 26.—Thirty-six members of "A" Battery have already been examined and accepted. The full strength of the battery, 132, will be secured without trouble. Of these 66 will make up one section of "C" Battery, and 66 will make a section of "D" Battery. Col. Stone will arrive here to-morrow to organize the artillery. For this district Major Straubenzie will organize the mounted infantry. The officers, non-commissioned officers and men of "A" Battery are to a man anxious for the day of departure for the Transvaal. [illegible] medical graduates of Queen's have volunteered to go to the front attached to the ambulance corps.

Will Take Steel Nippers.

The Militia Department has closed a contract for a supply of steel nippers to be used in cutting the barb wire entanglements which the Boers have used as barricades. A gross of them will be taken. The enteric fever lymph with which the officers and men are to be inoculated will also be purchased. Chief Medical Officer Dr. Neilson has ascertained that the toxine can be obtained from an American wholesale drug firm which has a branch business in Canada, and has telegraphed for a supply.

MAY SEND MORE CAVALRY.

Ottawa, Dec. 26.—It is now officially announced that the list of officers appointed to the second Canadian contingent will be issued this evening. Hon. Dr. Borden, Minister of Militia, and Major-General Hutton have been closeted all the morning preparing the list, and probably to-morrow every one will be able to know who are going.

The rumor that two instead of three batteries of artillery would go, though officially denied, was well-founded, in fact, having taken its rise from the tone of cable despatches from the War Office. The remark was made this morning that the War Office did not seem to know its own mind in this matter. As soon as the second contingent is under way the question of sending a large force of cavalry will be discussed. The War Office wants cavalry, and it was that need that led to the question of sending less artillery and more cavalry. It has now been decided that the consideration of sending further cavalry shall be left over.

MORE FENIAN FROTH.

Unanimous Vote in Favor of Running All Over Canada.

New York, Dec. 26.—The following despatch from Worcester, Mass., is published in one of the "yellow" journals this morning:

Division 26 of the Ancient Order of Hibernians has voted unanimously in favor of an invasion of Canada, if the opportune moment should arrive. President James Noonan had spoken on the Boer war, and urged all to be ready for action if an emergency should arise. Then he called for a show of hands from all in favor of a raid on Canada, and who would go. Every one of the hundred or more men present raised his hand in a tumult of enthusiasm. The officers of the division were appointed a committee to consult with officers of other Irish societies and arrange a mass meeting to express sympathy for the Boers. There are over 1,500 members of the Hibernians here.

MORE PIE FOR THE "YELLOW."

New York, Dec. 26.—The same "yellow" which contains the Worcester, Mass., despatch regarding a proposed raid on Canada, prints another similar story from Omaha, Neb. It says: The leading Irish-Americans of Nebraska are moving in the direction of a raid on Canada, now that the province is being denuded of her troops for service in South Africa. The statement is made that an extensive correspondence is being carried on between Fenians in the leading cities of the United States, and that the Omaha meeting called for next Sunday is a part of a preconcerted, widespread movement whose object is to enlist Irish-Americans everywhere in a grand effort to aid the Boers by causing trouble in Canada. The arms that were used or intended for one of the Fenian invasions of Canada were bought in Nebraska.

There is a story in Lincoln that for many years a lot of these arms was stored somewhere in that city under the care of the late John Fitzgerald, who is said to have contributed the money to buy them. It is also known that these arms, or others for the same cause, were used as equipments for one or two companies of Irish militia in Omaha, of which many prominent men of the city were once members.

British Red Cross Society.

Editor Morning Times.

Dear Sir,—As no doubt you are well aware, the Government propose to send a second contingent composed of the flower of our young men to assist in maintaining British supremacy in South Africa, and to give the world a demonstration of the solidarity of the British Empire. These troops will be equipped in most essentials by the Government. There are, however, many common comforts which the Government will not supply, both in the way of clothing and food. This Society, which is the recognized agency for voluntary aid, proposes to furnish the contingent with bath towels, 2,000 handkerchiefs, 250 pairs of slippers for sick or footsore, tobacco, wooden pipes, lime juice cordial, beef iron and wine, cocoa, cocoa wine, lime juice, pickles, jams, canned fruits, fluid beef, beef essence, Fuller's earth, toilet soap, stationery, surgical dressings, etc.

[illegible] the front Lt.-Col. Neilson, Director-General of Canadian Medicine Service, in a letter dated 17th October, wrote, "On behalf of the Minister of Militia and of the Major-General commanding, I may inform you that the most generous and timely gifts offered to our brave volunteers are gratefully accepted." His Excellency the Governor-General telegraphed, "Entirely approve proposals." This applies also to the present contingent.

These proposals, thus officially accepted, will necessarily involve the expenditure of a very considerable sum of money. We again confidently appeal to the public to assist in this good and patriotic cause. We would feel grateful to you for a subscription, which may be sent to the Treasurer, 60 College Street, Toronto.

A Sad Christmas.

News comes from Toronto that the wife of Robert Fairbairn died at their home in that city on the day before Christmas and was buried the day after Christmas. Mrs. Fairbairn was well and favorably known in Peterborough where the family at one time resided. The family consists of four sons and one daughter, all of whom reside in Toronto except the eldest son who resides in Detroit. We extend to the bereaved husband and family our heartfelt sympathies.

SHOT DOWN AT ELANDSLAAGTE

YOUNG BRITISH OFFICER'S EXPERIENCE IN AND AFTER THE BATTLE.

He Thought He Had Got a Kick from Behind when a Bullet Came into His Leg—First Feeling Under Fire.

The following letter to a friend from a British officer severely wounded at Elandslaagte, is published in the London Outlook, Dec. 2—

WESLEMAN CHAPEL,
Temporary Hospital,
Ladysmith,
Tuesday, Oct. 24.

Mr ——,—Here I am within four whitewashed walls, and in a bed with sheets on it—never dreamt that I should be wallowing in the lap of luxury to such an extent until we had marched triumphantly to Johannesburg or Pretoria. Well, you will have heard before now why I am leading this indolent life, and I hope you got the wire that I sent you Sunday telling you that my wound, though severe, was not serious.

It was rough getting knocked over in the first engagement. I was most awfully sick about it. However, I don't fancy that we shall have a finer fight all through the campaign than Elandslaagte, for it was a splendid bit of manoeuvring and most gallantly carried out by the men. They behaved magnificently, and the staff are full of the very highest praises of our regiment; nothing could be more satisfactory than that, and I am proud of belonging to such a corps. My chief regret is that I got knocked over just before getting into the position.

How It Felt.

I had just got my sword and revolver out, and had started on the charge with a crowd of my boys behind me when I was suddenly knocked clean off my legs by what appeared to me at the moment to be a violent kick from behind; I jumped up again, but only to go down head over heels, for my right leg was powerless. I had no idea I had been shot till I saw the blood all over my trousers. I was right mad—for after coming with the men as far, over such awful ground, and under such a heavy fire, it seemed so hard to be able to do nothing but sit on the ground and shout and cheer, and wave my helmet. They swept past me with a cheer that only British soldiers can give—a cheer which will ever ring in my memory. We drove them from the position at the point of the bayonet; then I heard the firing start again, and I knew from the ringing cheers I heard in the distance that we had carried another position. Night was fast closing in and a steady drizzle had commenced, and as usual in this place the cold became intense. Firing was still going on in the distance, and from time to time five or six shots were fired at us on the battlefield from some brutes who had hidden among the rocks.

A Tommy of mine and a sergeant of the Gordons dressed my wound roughly to stop the bleeding and my Tommy and myself lay down to wait for the ambulance.

A WEARY NIGHT.

The firing had practically stopped by now save for a shot or two that were still being fired at the wounded from amongst the rocks, and all the field around seemed covered with men groaning in agony and calling out for the ambulance in vain. I prefer to say no more of that night in the field for it is best forgotten. You may be sure that I never welcomed the daylight as I did on Sunday morning. I knew that help would come with the light, and soon the stretcher-bearers were at work. Many, of course, had been removed during the night, but the darkness and the roughness of the ground made it almost impossible for the bearing parties to work.

I am glad my Tommy (a private in my own company called R——) stayed with me, for he wrapped me in his own great coat and lay with his arms around me all the night to try to keep me warm. If he hadn't I am afraid I should have pegged out, for it was bitterly cold, and I could not move at all.

Search parties were out all night, of course, looking for us, and four men tried to carry me in their arms; but it was too frightful as they kept falling amongst the rocks, and dropping me, until I had to cry off.

Shelter at Last.

About 6.30 a.m. I was put on a stretcher and carried about three miles to the railway, where our regiment was drawn up to cover the entrainment of the wounded. They were all gloriously happy, having captured three big guns, two of the enemy's flags, and as many rifles, pistols, stores, blankets, provisions, etc., etc., as they could carry. They gave me a hearty greeting as I was carried past them for I had been reported dead.

When we arrived at Ladysmith I was carried to the head hospital and was dressed by Major —— ——. He was awfully nice and kind, though frightfully busy and up to his eyes in blood.

Getting Out a Bullet.

The bullet was still in my leg, and he decided to put me under the X-rays next day and see if he could find it. I felt quite certain that the bullet was in my right hip, though it had gone in just below the groin of the right leg, just missing the femoral artery by a hair's breadth. Jolly, lucky, wasn't it? that it wasn't quarter of an inch higher. Yesterday I had a bit of a doing, being lifted from my bed to a stretcher, and placed under the X-rays, where I was for about an hour. While there I discovered the bullet in my hip, and, as it was not very deep, I was put on the stretcher and carried off to the operating theatre. I had had breakfast, so could not have chloroform, and as Major —— —— cut it out it did hurt a bit, I must confess; but I was jolly glad to have it out. It is a nice solid Mauser rifle bullet, and does not seem any the worse of hitting me. I shall have a hole put in it when I go down to Pietermaritzburg and have the date engraved on it, and "Elandslaagte," and shall keep it as a record. I did not sleep very well last night, as I was a bit feverish, and the lifting on and off the stretcher had rather tickled up the torn muscle of the leg, and then the incision that was necessary for taking out the bullet smarted a bit. But I am feeling a good deal better now, and really the treatment here is quite wonderful. The nurses in this ward are perfect dears, and nothing is too much trouble for them, though they are most frightfully hard worked.

We had ten officers here on Sunday and Monday, as the officers' ward was full to overflowing; but six went to Pietermaritzburg, as they were considered fit to travel in the hospital train. You see, they kept clearing us off from the hospital at the front so as to make room for other who are sure to come in. I am afraid there will be some more to-night, as there is an artillery action going on about five miles from here.

It is sickening lying here and listening to the boom of the guns, when I might have been out on escort duty with them.

Style of Some Boers.

You can't imagine what brutes the Boers are. They are absolute savages. Some of them were using elephant rifles with explosive bullets, some were using expanding bullets like our dum-dum, which we gave up as we considered them (the Boers) a civilized nation. If ever I have a chance at them I shall kill every one I can, even if he turns down his rifle, for that's what they did on Saturday when they saw the cold steel at their chests, and as soon as our fellows passed they picked up their rifles and fired at them from behind. I don't fancy our fellows will give much quarter next time they get the Boers in reach of the bayonet. They have also captured a captain of ours and a captain of the Gordons, with their respective parties of about twenty men, who went out to bury the dead. Are they not sublime devils? and my one wish is to be well again soon, and to be able to fly at their throats. We took numbers of prisoners on Saturday, a more brutal lot of faces I never saw in my life.

I must not write any more just now, as my leg is beginning to ache with sitting up so long.

It is all tommy-rot about fellows all being frightened the first time under fire. I enjoyed the battle tremendously from the start to the time I got knocked out, and I am sure my men were not a bit funky either, but treated the whole matter as a huge joke. We had an unpleasant quarter of an hour lying in the open with no cover, and the Boers using us as targets from about 2,000 yards off. They made pretty fair practice, for though they only got two men in the front line, the bullets were kicking up the dirt all around us. I got a bullet through my helmet, one of my Tommies had the heel of his boot shot, and another got a shot through his water bottle, so you see it was quite close enough, especially as we were not allowed to reply to it.

Yours, ——

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. CANADA'S GREATEST SCHOOL OF SHORTHAND AND BUSINESS

PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS SHOULD NOTICE

This Institute has prepared over seventy teachers for other Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States, more than twice as many as all other Business Colleges in Canada combined, have so placed.

The proprietors of five of the leading business colleges in Western Ontario, who are to-day among our strongest opponents in the field of Shorthand and Business training, received THEIR training under the Principal of this institution. Besides these, there are five others holding leading positions as teachers in Business Colleges in Ontario.

Since Sept 1st, seven of our pupils have accepted positions as teachers in Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States; another is now negotiating for a similar opening in a Business College in a leading American city, and there are five unfilled calls of this kind on hand still.

DOES IT NOT PAY TO ATTEND THE BEST? You must decide.

23[illegible] of our pupils secured good positions in seventeen months, and the good work of placing our students still continues.

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Seventy Men Entombed.

Pittsburg, Dec. 23.—A Uniontown, Pa., despatch says 75 men were entombed and probably killed by the explosion in the Baznell mine. The force of the explosion was so great that the tipple at the head of the shaft was blown over. The Baznell mine is located four miles from Brownsville, on the Red Stone Railroad.

Word from Baznell by train says only one man has been taken out of the mine. Men could be heard talking at the bottom of the shaft. The mine boss went down but has not returned, and it is supposed that he and the men have been overcome by afterdamp, as all sounds has ceased to come from the bottom. There is great excitement. Miners are flocking from surrounding mines to assist in the rescue.

Richest Duke is Dead.

London, Dec. 22.—The Duke of Westminster is dead.

Hugh-Lupus Grosvenor, the Duke of Westminster, P.C., K.G., was born at Eaton in 1825, and was educated at Eton and Balliol College, Oxford. He was member of Parliament for Chester from 1847 to 1869, and though in his earlier years a Whig, had for many years been a Liberal-Unionist.

He was the wealthiest of Englishmen, owning vast estates in Cheshire and Flintshire, and real estate and buildings in the heart of London City, the value of which can hardly be estimated. A thorough sportsman, he has owned many of the finest of English race horses, and his stables at Eaton are the most perfect in the United Kingdom.

The Duke had taken a lifelong interest in the volunteer movement, and was A.D.C. to several volunteer infantry battalions and yeomanry regiments. He was also an A.D.C. to the Queen. His heir, Viscount Belgrave, is only twenty years of age.

Minnie Seligman will appear in the vaudeville houses in a one act play called "Therese," which has been done in Europe by Sarah Bernhardt.

In a play called "Wine, Women and Song," recently produced at the Princess theater, London, two demimondaines, armed with butchers' knives, fight to the death in a beautiful setting profusely decorated with flowers.

George Bernard Shaw submitted his new play, "Caesar and Cleopatra," to Richard Mansfield, but as Shaw had required a 60-year-old baldheaded Caesar to make love to a 16-year-old Cleopatra the manuscript was returned.

BEE BUZZES.

Beeswax is dark because of the impurities mixed with it.

All excess of drone comb should be removed from the hive.

Bees start to work earlier if the hives face the south or east.

It is essential during hot weather that the hives be well ventilated.

Avoid blowing your breath among the bees while handling the comb.

Dirt and filth accumulating on the bottom boards make a propagating place for the moths.

Bees reared in the spring and summer are shorter lived than those reared later in the season.

The swarming season usually begins about 10 or 20 days after white clover comes into bloom.

Bees will enter a cool hive much more readily than one which had been baked in the hot sun all day.

Honey properly kept will improve with age. The older it is the better it will be, but it must be kept dry.

All bees should be examined now and the hives thoroughly cleaned. No trash of any kind should be left on the bottom boards.—St. Louis Republic.

Woes of Millionaires.

An English millionaire has just been adjudged incapable of looking after his property. He imagines himself the Prince of Wales.

Some years ago a rich merchant took the idea that he was penniless. His sons, to stop his worrying, assured him they had rescued his business and was to continue it. They offered him a clerkship at a small salary in his own office. He took it and kept at work nearly 20 years. When he died, he left nearly $15,000,000.

Two English millionaires were noted for their parsimony. One picked up and smoked cigar ends. The other, after fine receptions in his house, would go around carefully collecting candle ends to be used again. Neither of these men was insane. Both were shrewd in business.

Another millionaire imagined for a considerable time that he was a squirrel, and would eat nothing but nuts.

Another was too parsimonious even to buy himself a warm overcoat. Some of his friends made him a present of one, and he promptly sold it secondhand and pocketed the money.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Was Hanged Over Again.

G. W. Steevens, who traveled extensively in India, tells the following interesting story: A Pathan was being hanged, when the rope broke. The warder bade him go up on to the scaffold again, but he objected. "No," he said, "I was sentenced to be hanged, and hanged I've been."

"Not so, friend," argued the warder; "you were sentenced to be hanged until you were dead, and you're not dead."

It was a new view to the Pathan, and he turned to the superintendent. "Is that right, sahib?"

"Yes, that's right."

"Very well. I didn't understand," and he went composedly up the steps and was hanged again like a man.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

What He Really Owed.

"Doctor," said the grateful patient, seizing the physician's hand, "I shall never forget that to you I owe my life."

"You exaggerate," returned the doctor mildly. "You owe me only for 15 visits. That is the point which I hope you will not fail to remember."

An Unpredictable Bone.

Last summer a friend presented us with a tortoise. I do not know whether our dog had heard of turtle soup or whether he regarded the creature as a new kind of bone that walked about; at any rate, he determined to eat it.

Whenever the tortoise started out on a constitutional down the garden path Gyp arrested it and carried it into his kennel, where he gnawed at the impenetrable armor till his jaws ached.

The calm and philosophical manner in which the tortoise resumed its interrupted promenade irritated the dog exceedingly, but no failure discouraged him. Whenever we reminded him of the tortoise, he would go in search of it all round the garden, peering into every crevice, till eventually the creature was found, and then fresh but futile attempts were made to extract the meaty portions from the shell.—

New York has established a state college of forestry. One of its labors will be to replant the tracts denuded of pine and other valuable conifers. It set out a large area this spring and is rearing 3,000,000 seedling pines for future use.—St. Louis

The Havelock Fires.

The Reeve and several citizens of Havelock called at the Times on Saturday and requested us to say that the recent fires in that village, had not been so bad as reported. The Fire Underwriters Association had evidently got the idea, from what appeared in the Times, that fires were becoming too frequent in the village and were increasing their insurance rates. The origin of the last fire is doubtful, it being by no means certain that it was the work of an incendiary. As everybody reads the Times, the Havelock gentlemen were anxious that the above facts should be published in these columns.

COPPER MINING STOCKS

For several months shrewd investors have been putting their money into the shares of Copper Mines. This is true not only of men with large amounts of money at their disposal but also applies to those who have made a study of investments with a view to securing a large return for small investments. As high as THREE AND FOUR HUNDRED PER CENT. has to our knowledge already been realized on some of these investments. Americans were the first to make a specialty of Copper Stocks. They knew what they were doing, for the reason is not far to seek. Every Copper Mine in the world is at present taxed to its utmost limit to meet the growing demand for copper for electrical purposes. The reserve stores of copper are being depleted until it pays no longer to use copper in some eastern countries as a coin. Copper has gone up in price from 9c to 18 cents. The supply of Copper from the mines of the world to-day is only about 80 per cent. of the consumption. That is the reason why financiers have their engineers searching the four quarters of the globe for Copper Mines, and that is the reason the shares in promising copper companies are so eagerly picked up by investors.

If you have any money to invest we would ask you to consider the shares of the SUPERIOR GOLD & COPPER COMPANY, LIMITED. This Company owns and operates some valuable native copper properties. We are in a position to offer you a special opportunity in this stock which as an investment should give you a profit of at least 100 per cent in six months. Send for prospectus and particulars.

Occasionally we have an opportunity of giving our clients a special offer on some stocks, and we have this opportunity now. If you are interested write to us at once. These shares are sold in large or small blocks to suit buyers.

We deal in all legitimate mining shares on commission. If you want to buy or sell write us.

A Legal Decision.

Harper v. Toronto Type Foundry Co.—Judgment on appeal by plaintiff from judgment of Robertson J., in favor of defendants in action for damages by reason of the alleged wrongful issue by defendants of a replevin order. The defendants claimed the goods in question, some printing presses, under a hire receipt. The plaintiff brings this action as assignee of the claim for damages of a third party, who had purchased the goods on the faith of the terms contained in a letter written before the purchase by defendants to Harper, by which it was contended that the defendants had waived their rights under the hire receipt. Rule 1,074 is 48 Vict. Ch. 13, sec. 8 imported into the rules. It is clumsily drawn, but the obvious intent of it was not to give an independent right of vote upon it, but merely to add another condition to the replevin bond. It is unnecessary to point out what remedy the plaintiff has, if any, it is sufficient to determine that he has no remedy in this action. Judgment below affirmed, action dismissed with costs. Poussette, Q.C., for plaintiff, Ryckman for defendants.

They Keep one Eye Shut.

A recent traveler in Mexico, who visited the mines there during his journey, says that he was much astonished at seeing the men who carry the ore come out of the mine, each with one eye shut.

The foreman, seeing his surprise, explained the matter He said the candles belonging to the barateros (who drill and blast) do not give sufficient light in the drifts, where it is consequently quite dark, but where, nevertheless, the tarateros see well enough not to run their heads against the rocks, but, on emerging into daylight, they would be blinded did they not take precautionary measures.

For this reason, as they approach the mouth of the shaft, at the point where they catch the first glimpse of light they drop the eyelid of one eye and keep this down while they are discharging their ore and until they have redescended the shaft.

When they are again in the dark, they open the eye kept hitherto in reserve and at once see everything distinctly, while the other eye, previously open and somewhat blinded by the daylight, perceives nothing

TRANSPORTS BEING DIVIDED.

New York, Dec. 23.—The inference is drawn in London that General Methuen will hold his ground at Modder River and not retreat to Orange River, as it was thought might be necessary, says the London correspondent of the Tribune. This inference is drawn from the Admiralty reports of the movements of transports that the battalions of the fifth division as they arrive in South Africa are divided between Natal and the western border, some going to Durban and the others to De Aar. Military men now assert that if General Methuen's retirement had been contemplated all the reinforcements arriving at Cape Town would have been hurried forward to Natal to complete the work of relieving Ladysmith, since they would not have been needed at De Aaar or Belmont. They also venture to assume that Modder River will be made a second base for ultimate operations across the country to Bloemfontein, when the auxiliary transport with mule train and carts shall have been organized.

Sterkstrom, Dec. 23.—Up to Dec. 17 the Boers around this place, which is General Gatacre's headquarters, were inactive, although considerably reinforced since the defeat of Stormberg. No doubt the Boers are concentrating all their forces in the hope of capturing Kimberley. This accounts for their lack of enterprise elsewhere.

True Boston Culture.

"Fifty cents for this beautiful little vase," called the auctioneer. "Going, going for 50. Do I hear 55 for this beautiful little vase?" and no one thought anything about the auctioneer or the vase which went for 50 cents until another one was put up, an immense affair of cloisonne. "Now we will show you an exquisite piece, not to be duplicated in this country," he went on. "An exquisite cloisonne varse"—and there the Wellesley girl said excitedly to her companion:

"Now, that is what I call true Boston culture. Would you expect a man of that kind to make such a delicate distinction? He must have been educated at a woman's college. When he is selling a 50 cent article, he says vase in the ordinary way, with the long sound of the 'a,' but when he comes to a big piece of cloisonne it is varse, with the broad 'a' every time. That is according to rule. Over $10 in price you find a varse, but under that nothing but an ordinary, everyday vase."—New York Times.

Crocodile Tears.

The expression 'crocodile tears" can be found in almost every European language, but it is doubtful if one in a thousand of those who use it have an idea of its origin. We are told in the Bestiary of Guillaume le Clerc that when the crocodile finds an unwary traveler it devours him, but afterward weeps over him all the rest of its life. This is very evidently the allusion in "Othello," "Each drop she falls would prove a crocodile" (I. 257).

There is another version of the fable, however, which is more often referred to in literature, and according to which the crocodile sheds tears in order to allure the traveler to destruction. Shakespeare alludes to this in the passage where he tells how

"ADMIT WITHIN FIRE LINES."

An Extraordinary Motto For a Reporter's Funeral Emblem.

In his story of "The Last of the Mulberry Street Barons," in The Century, Mr. Jacob A. Riis, author of "How the Other Half Lives," tells a rather gruesome but very amusing anecdote of a fellow reporter attached to police headquarters in Mulberry street, New York.

There had been a feud of long standing between the reporters in Mulberry street, and in consequence news was plentiful. There were mutual scores to be paid off, and we paid them off in the coin of the realm. The coin of Mulberry street was murder, fire and sudden death (we had passed the stage of boxing gloves and did not speak as we passed by), and it went a long way. I do not mean, of course, that we murdered or burned up one another, but these things were the staples of our daily work as police reporters, and when we were "out" the precinct returns received an extra sifting, with the result that many a grain of newspaper wheat that would otherwise have escaped was rescued from the dust bin.

We had our specialties in this contest of wits. One was distinguished as a sleuth. He fed on detective mysteries as a cat on a chicken bone. He thought them out by day and dreamed them out by night, to the great exasperation of the official detectives, with whom their solution was a commercial, not in the least an intellectual, affair. They solved them on the plane of the proverbial lacking of honor among thieves, by the formula, "You scratch my back, and I'll scratch yours."

Another came out strong on fires. He knew the history of every house in town that ran any risk of being burned, knew every fireman and could tell within $1,000, more or less, what was the value of the goods stored in any building in the dry goods district and for how much they were insured. If he couldn't, he did anyhow, and his guesses often came near the facts, as shown in the final adjustment. He sniffed a firebug from afar and knew without asking how much salvage there was in a bale of cotton after being 24 hours in the fire. He is dead, poor fellow. In life he was fond of a joke, and in death the joke clung to him in a way wholly unforeseen.

The firemen in the next block, with whom he made his headquarters when off duty, so that he might always be within hearing of the gong, wished to give some tangible evidence of their regard for the old reporter, but, being in a hurry, left it to the florist, who knew him well, to choose the design. He hit upon a floral fire badge as the proper thing, and thus it was that when the company of mourners was assembled and the funeral service in progress there arrived and was set upon the coffin, in the view of all, that triumph of the florist's art, a shield of white roses, with this legend written across it in red immortelles: "Admit Within Fire Lines Only." It was shocking, but irresistible. It brought down even the house of mourning.

To Crisp Lettuce Leaves.

Do you know how to crisp lettuce leaves? A most simple process, but one rarely adopted judging by the wilted stuff we generally see served. A gentleman of the old school was my teacher, and while yet a mere maid I was promoted to the proud dignity of crisping the lettuce.

First carefully separate the leaves from the stalk, discarding discolored and imperfect ones and leaving untouched the tiny hearts; lay them all in cool, clear water for awhile, all morning if you choose; pick them over a couple of times before serving; wash one by one and lay in a wire basket if you have one; if not, a clean, soft towel will answer; gather the ends and sides loosely in your hand and lightly shake the lettuce; then put the leaves in a colander, which you set in the refrigerator, but not on the ice. Leave until needed, when you will find the lettuce deliciously cool and crisp enough to crack. Never cut the leaves. If very large, divide with the fingers into smaller pieces.—What to Eat.

Proof of Him.

When he was 50, he returned to his native town "just to see how the old place looked." He found it unchanged. The old store, where as a lad he had clerked it and sold calico and groceries to the old farmers, was just the same. He contrasted the sleepy old place with himself and felt a glow of satisfaction when he thought how much those 30 years had done for him. "They ought to be proud of me," he said to himself.

Presently he met one of the old inhabitants.

"Wal, I declare, is it really you, Hank?" said the old man incredulously. "We've heard you've been prospering fust rate since you went west. They've made you a railroad president or suthin of the sort, ain't they? I heerd so, but I couldn't believe it. It's really true, is it? Wal, all I've got to say is they must be purty hard up for railroad presidents out there."

He took the next train for the west.

THE BOXER'S FINISH.

ONE BOUT THAT SETTLED HIS PUGILISTIC AMBITION

He Didn't Know the Man He Ran Up Against Until He Came Back to Consciousness, After Having Seen a Large Display of Stars.

"When I was much younger," said the portly government official, "I was a husky young fellow, chesty and sassy about my pugilistic ability. I got the boxing bee in my bonnet and practiced hard with the gloves every night. I had been sparring with fellows in my gymnasium for about six months and picking up what I thought was a whole lot of cleverness, when I moved to a boarding house on Pierrepont street, in Brooklyn. I had a room on the top floor of this boarding house. The top floor was occupied by young fellows like myself—law and medical students, newspaper chaps and that sort. It was rather a scapegrace lot, and I got acquainted with most of them immediately. I had a lot of athletic gear along with me—clubs, dumbbells, weight pulling machines and stuff—and from the jump I gave these floor mates of mine to understand that I was some considerable pumpkins as an athlete. When I showed 'em my boxing gloves, I was particular to dwell upon the fact that boxing was my one particular graft, and I think I modestly threw the hint out that I'd never yet met a man of my weight that could put the gloves on with me in the amateur class. For a couple of nights running I let them look at me in the act of punching a bag I had suspended from the ceiling of my room, and they all agreed, I think, that I'd be rather an unsafe proposition to get mixed up with in a scrap.

"One of the occupants of that top floor was away when I struck the house, and he didn't return until I had been in the house for about a week. When he got back, the other fellows introduced me to him. I didn't catch his name at the time, but he didn't strike me as being a very cheerful chap, and I rather ignored him. Well, all got to talking on my favorite subject, sparring, after awhile, and I invited any of the fellows present to put on the gloves for a little 'go' with me.

"'I won't hurt you, you know,' said I. 'I'll just tap you lightly, and you can hit me as hard as you want. It's raining, and I don't want to go to the gym tonight, and I wish one of you ducks 'ud just slip 'em on with me.'

"I didn't quite understand what they all meant when they exchanged glances and pushed forward the man who had been away since my advent in the house and whom I had just met.

"'Go on and put 'em on with him,' they urged this man. 'He won't hurt you. You've had the gloves on once or twice, anyhow, while none of the rest of us knows anything about boxing. Go ahead and give him a little exercise.'

"'All right,' said this man rather reluctantly. He looked just like an ordinary man with his coat on, and I felt that he would be dead easy as a subject upon whom to practice and to show the other fellows what I knew about the fine points of the game. When he returned from his room, however, stripped to his trousers and his gauze undershirt, I couldn't help but look at the chap. For a man of ordinary size he had the hugest chest I had ever seen, and his arms and shoulders were simply knotted and twisted with muscles. He was as quiet spoken a duck as ever I saw, though, and he didn't look to be lively on his feet, so we went at it.

"Well, say that was a one man bout, and the other fellow was the one man. There was nothing to it but him. From the very minute that we squared off I could see by the way he handled his dukes that the boxing game was his'n and that I was like six lead nickels in comparison with him. He just fooled with me at first—rapped me here and there at will, adding insult to injury by quietly announcing where he was going to jolt me next—and I never got in a lick or a dab on him. I tried my dernedest when I saw I was totally outclassed to get in just one belt at him somewhere or other, but it was no go. He had a lightning guard for every essay I made to crack him one, and after about five minutes I was puffing like a tree toad and still taking whacks all over my hide, while he was as cool as a cucumber.

"'You're pretty good,' I gasped when we took a momentary rest. 'You've been at this game often, haven't you?'

"'I've had 'em on a few times,' he replied quietly. 'Let's have another short go.'

"Then we went at it again. He fiddled ground for a minute, and then he caught me one with his left fist right under the chin. I went sailing up into the air—I saw enough stars to have gone sailing right up among 'em—and I was out when I came down—good and out, as clean a case of knocked out boxer as ever happened in a prize ring. It was fully ten minutes before I came to, and when I did the other fellows were all fanning me and rubbing my head with ammonia and wondering if I was a sure enough dead 'un. I was all right after I got my head under the cold water spigot, and then one of the fellows took me into the center of the gang and said to me:

"'Maybe you didn't quite catch the name of the man you boxed with when you were introduced to him, hey?'

"'No, I didn't,' said I. 'Who is he—John L. Sullivan?'

"'Not exactly. Mr. Ford, step up and shake hands again. This,' went on the young fellow doing the introducing, addressing me, 'is Malcolm W. Ford, the champion all around athlete of America. He has held that title for three years, earning it each year in competition with the best men in the whole country in athletic games. He holds the record for the running broad jump, the standing high jump, the pole vault, hammer throwing, shot putting, and he's among the best in the world as a 100 yard sprinter. He's all right.'

"'Yes,' said I. 'I think he is—even if he is a party to this awful job on me,' and we shook hands. When the gang saw I was game enough to take my roasting good naturedly, they let up on me. But my pugilistic ambition wilted absolutely from that night."

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Cultivate the young orchard thoroughly early in the season.

In selecting trees, take those with smooth, healthy looking bark.

Ground bone is good for small fruit plants, grapevines and bearing apple orchards.

The deeper the culture the larger the reserve of moisture for the roots in time of drought. To secure quick growth prepare the soil deeply.

STOP WOMEN

from exercising common sense? You can't do it. As the old rhyme runs:

> "The man's a fool who tries by force or skill
> To turn the current of a woman's will
> For if she will, she will, you may depend on't
> And if she won't she won't, so there's an end on't."

Common sense tells a woman that when she's sick she needs a doctor.

Common sense tells a woman that in disease the first question is not of man or woman, but of recognized medical ability.

Common sense applied to advertisements which invite women to "write to a woman because she is a woman and understands women," will show the women so appealed to, that it's no use to write to any woman about disease unless that woman is a physician.

Common sense used in the reading of advertisements will discover that no claim is made in them to a physician's knowledge or diploma. And that is not because the claim would be morally culpable as a lie, but because it would be legally punishable as a fraud. The law permits you to masquerade as a doctor in an advertisement so long as you don't actually claim to be a doctor, or put M. D. after your name. That's why the advertisement is worded "write to a woman" instead of write to a doctor.

Common sense has brought more than half-a-million women, afflicted with some form of female disease, to Dr. R. V. Pierce as one of the most expert physicians in the United States in the treatment of female diseases. Dr. Pierce is a specialist. He has given more than thirty years of active practice to the treatment of female diseases. Dr. Pierce is not a "physician" by courtesy. He is a physician regularly graduated, legally empowered to practice and with thirty years of experience in the treatment of diseases of women, which he has made his specialty.

The offer of free consultation by letter made by Dr. Pierce is a real offer, an honest offer. It is an offer backed by a medical institution, with a world-wide reputation, a staff of nearly a score of regularly graduated physicians, a practice which reaches every state in the Union and a record of more than half-a-million women treated and ninety-eight out of every hundred perfectly cured.

Write to a doctor. That's the first thing. Write to the doctor. That's the next thing. The woman's doctor, is Dr. R. V. Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

Where the Pot of Gold Is Buried.

How many women are fretting and struggling along on a very little money when a good sized yard or adjoining patch of ground is going to waste! Yet that very piece of ground may contain all sorts of possibilities—clothes, furniture, books, medicines, luxuries and even necessities otherwise impossible.

Clear, plow, fertilize and plant. This done, the great beginning is made, and perseverance and attention will secure the rest. Onions, tomatoes, cabbages, celery, a small poultry farm, a violet or rose farm—any one of these may add several hundred dollars to one's purse every year. Small fruits, hops, tuberoses and grapes are also very profitable. With some intelligence a blooming garden can always be made a paying one. Make it a principle to have no more waste in the garden than in the kitchen.

If there is only a very small piece and just enough raised for one's own family, try, after the table is supplied, to prepare what vegetables and fruits are left over for sale for winter use. There is always a demand for good homemade canning and preserving. Do not let a valuable scrap of ground be idle.—Annetta Halliday-Antona.

MUNICIPAL ELECTION NOTES.

The candidates in the Mayoralty contest are working hard. Mr. McWilliams is meeting with every encouragement and hopes to have a substantial majority at the close of the poll on Monday night.

•• • ••

Ald. Best's retirement is a loss to the town. By his withdrawal only ten candidates remain, nine of which will be elected. The ten are Messrs. C. B. Robertson, John Sawers, Adam Dawson, Robert Weir, John Corkery, G. M. Roger, T. H. G. Denne, Wm. Langford, Robt. Clinkscale and J. B. Oke.

•• • ••

There was a large and enthusiastic gathering at Ald. McWilliams' committee rooms last night. The greatest enthusiasm prevailed.

•• • ••

An irate and overbearing citizen whose name we will withold for the present, called on the Times yesterday in regard to an article in Monday's paper, in which we asserted that the clique who are now running Mr. Kendry knifed Mr. Cahill when that gentleman aspired to the civic chair. So far from retracting the statement we will again assert its truth. Mr. Cahill, who is a Roman Catholic, would undoubtedly been Mayor had these false friends been true to him. They knifed him because he was a Catholic, and for no other reason. This plain Anglo-Saxon talk is not always platable, but it is true nevertheless.

•• • ••

The boiler plate newspaper on Hunter street says that "there can be no doubt of the man who should be Mayor if the records are viewed." Exactly. Ald. McWilliams asks the people to look at his record and vote accordingly.

•• • ••

We cannot believe that a majority of the ratepayers will vote for the candidate of Messrs. Neil, Langford and Sheehy, et al. These men are all decent enough as private citizens, but they are not the men to manage your affairs.

•• • ••

An anonymous writer in an evening contemporary takes Ald. McWilliams to task for not giving way in the Council when matters were brought forward to which he could not agree. This is the kind of men the Kendry party need just now—men who will keep quiet while the ratepayers are being fleeced.

•• • ••

By electing Ald. McWilliams, it will make it impossible for contractors to rob the town. By electing Ald. McWilliams the ratepayers will be assured that the contractors who have wronged the Corporation in the past will have to disgorge. By electing Ald. McWilliams, the ratepayers will be placing an insurmountable obstacle in the way of surrendering the streets to a private company. By electing Ald. McWilliams the ratepayers will be doing the very best possible thing for themselves and the town's future.

HATS OFF IN CHURCH, LADIES.

The Rule is About to be Enforced by a Midland Pastor.

The adherents of the Methodist church of Midland are in a whirlpool of speculation and excitement consequent upon a degree of the pastor Rev. Thos. Dunlop, that the ladies of the congregation will please remove their hats during service.

This sort of innovation, which no man, at least, will dispute the righteousness of, is not the kind one expects to see introduced so close to home. It is Americanism up-to-date. Such a report coming from Kansas or Texas would have occasioned little comment. The remarks of the Midland Free Press on the request of Rev. Mr. Dunlop will be of interest to Morning Times readers:

"An announcement was made from the pulpit of the Methodist church on Sunday morning last which rather startled the audience and has set thousands of tongues in the town talking. Commencing with Sunday next the ladies were asked to remove their hats during the service. The request was made because the pastor had received numerous complaints that members in the audience could not see the preacher because of some of the displays of millinery worn to church. The pastor therefore made the above request, having first talked the matter over with a number of his lady members who promised obedience to the mild request. No doubt some will comply, while others will kick furiously, with the result that—but time will tell. But everybody is talking this week, and many speculations are advanced as to what the ladies will do with their millinery. To place the hat on the floor is out of the question; to put it on the seat would occupy too much room and also endanger the delicate creation; to hold it on the lap or in the hand would be too much bother. A bandbox seems the only solution. No doubt the experiment in the Methodist church will be watched with interest by the other denomination and if it goes well the innovation may become quite the style."

Plucky Small Boys.

On Saturday last, while Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Rightmyer, who live near the river just south of the fair grounds were at market, their three sons, aged 10, 9 and 7 years respectively together with a neighbor's boy named Victor Wilson, aged 10, were playing on the ice along the river edge. Clinton Rightmyer went too near the edge and broke in, catching on the edge of the ice he held fast until Wilson came to his assistance, when he also broke in, going down twice. Wilson being nearest shore Gordon Rightmyer, aged 9, went to his assistance, rescuing him. Wilson then again went to the help of Clinton, who still clung to the ice but was weak. Wilson lay flat down on the ice and got hold of the other's arm, holding him from losing his grip. Gordon Rightmyer then went to meet Grant, aged 7, who had been sent to the barn to get a strap, about six feet long which the boys knew was hanging in the stable. Securing this he threw the end to Clinton, then the three boys got hold of the strap and slowly drew him out on safe ice. Clinton was so nearly exhausted that he had to be assisted to walk to the house.

THE MAYORALTY.

To the Ratepayers of the Town of Peterborough:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

At the request of hundreds of the ratepayers of the town expressed in a requisition presented to me, I have accepted nomination for the Mayoralty for 1900, and am in the field seeking your sufferages. I do not believe that it will be necessary to assure you that I did not seek the office, but only entered the contest because in the face of the request made of me by so many of our citizens I felt that it was a duty I owed to the public which I have been privileged to serve in different capacities so frequently. It was from no desire to monopolise offices that are within the gift of the people, but simply because I was made to feel that at the present time the citizens wanted my services and that when the demand was made so forcibly I would indeed be lacking in my duty if I did not respond, even though the response meant much personal sacrifice to myself.

Having accepted nomination I respectfully solicit your votes and influence, and if elected I promise to give my best attention to the duties of the office. I will give my time and what ability I possess to the advancement of the town's best interests. The town's interests are my interests, for I have, as you are aware, no small stake here, and economy and progress will be my watchwords. All questions coming before the Council will receive my careful and unprejudiced attention, and my aim will be to maintain that harmony and unity in the consideration of civic business that will allow the best results to be realized.

It will be impossible owing to the short time between now and election day for me to call personally on all of you, and I therefore solicit your support in this way, hoping for a renewal of the confidence expressed in me as a member of the Council and as Mayor in former years.

I desire to thank those who have already expressed their confidence in me by signing the handsome requisition presented to me.

Wishing you one and all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

I am ladies, and gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

JAS. KENDRY.

Caned Their Employer.

A Big Industry.

The Times has received a letter from the manager of the McLaughlin Carriage Co., whose factory was recently destroyed by fire in Oshawa, in regard to locating in Peterborough. We sent the latter to the Secretary of the Board of Trade. The Times would like to see this concern come to Peterborough, with its 400 employees.

The Red Cross Fund.

It is expected that several new features will be introduced into the patriotic entertainment on Thursday evening, chiefly of a military nature. A tableau will probably be put on by the Dragoons representing their method of warfare, and one portraying the work of the Sisters of Mercy. Major Miller is revising the two scenes produced under its supervision, which will be given with alterations and improvements. Reserved seats can be secured at Bradburn's office without any extra charge. Everything points to a most successful affair.

—THE— MAYORALTY.

COMMITTEE ROOMS have been opened by Mr. Kendry in the store lately occupied by the hardware firm of Warde & Hall, No. 382 George street, next door south of E. Brown & Co's grocery.

All friends are requested to rally to the support of Mr. Kendrey and assist in the work of the campaign.

THERE WILL BE A RALLY AT THESE ROOMS TO-NIGHT. All ratepayers are invited.

BOERS VERY STRONG NEAR MODDER RIVER.

Entrenching Miles Beyond Their Outlying Pickets, Says an Official Despatch.

GENERAL WHITE HAS PLENTY OF PROVISIONS.

General Roberts Would Not Assume Command Until He Was Given an Absolutely Free Hand in South Africa.

Story of Churchill's Escape.

Cheiveley Camp, Natal, Dec. 26.

The naval guns began shelling the Boer position at five o'clock this morning, using lyddite. The shelling continued about two hours. Ever since the engagement at Colenso the enemy have been energetically improving their entrenchments. They can be seen galloping freely from hill to hill.

Ladysmith also had a busy morning to-day, shelling the Boer positions on Umbulwayna mountain. The bursting shells were plainly visible at Chieveley camp.

Kimberley, Dec. 26.

At half past two this morning mounted detachments under Col. Peakman with three maxims and three seven pounders under Major May, reconnoitered. Leaving the entrenchments, the British advanced to Tall Pan. The Boer pickets fired and our maxims replied, the Boers disappearing over the ridge. Our guns then began to shell Tall Pan, at a range of 2500 yards. A Boer gun dropped four shells near our men, but did no damage. As the Boers were strongly entrenched, we withdrew. Their guns are well posted.

London Dec. 28th, 4.40 a.m.

Mr. Winston Churchill's non-arrival at Cheiveley is perhaps responsible for some over coloring of the gravity of the situation, but all to-days news conveys the impression that Gen. Buller may be intending another attack upon the Boer position; certainly the Boers are not inactive. At both Modder River and the Tugela they are said to be strengthening their forces and increasing their defences, which are now seemingly almost impregnable.

THAT CANADIAN PICKET.

London, Dec. 27.—The Chronicle's correspondent at Modder River camp says that it is reported that Lieut Molyneux and a Canadian picket had been cut off by the enemy east of Belmont, but the report is not confirmed.

Though the report has not been officially confirmed yett, there is some ground for the belief that the statement that a Canadian picket has been cut off is true. The Associated Press despatch first gave publicity to the report, and to-day the London Chronicle reiterates it, and its correspondent furnishes further particulars. The Canadians are at Belmont, and that they would be on picket duty is not unlikely. The lieutenant in command may not be a Canadian, as there is no officer in the contingent Molyneux by name, though there is a Private C. R. Molyneux of the Fifth Royal Scots, Montreal, in the Montreal Company of the contingent.

METHUEN'S LAST DESPATCH.

London, Dec. 27. — By Associated Press.—The War Office has received the following despatch from Cape Town, dated Tuesday, Dec. 26:—

"There is no change in the situation Methuen reports that the enemy's force has increased, and is engaged in entrenching three and a half miles from his outlying pickets.

"Methuen reconnoitred with two squadrons of mounted infantry for two miles along the line, and drew the fire of four guns and two Vickers' machine guns. Four horses were hit.

"The Queen's Christmas message was received with enthusiasm.

"Gatacre is endeavoring to re-open communication with the Indwe collieries."

STORY OF CHURCHILL'S ESCAPE

London, Dec. 27. — By Associated Press.—Mr. Winston Spencer Churchill has cabled, and the Morning Post publishes to-day an account of his escape from captivity with the Boers after having been taken prisoner in the reconnaissance of an armored train at Estcourt. The despatch, which is dated Lorenzo Marquez, Dec. 21, says:—.

"In the evening I concealed myself in a railway truck under a great pile of sacks. I had a small store of good water. I remained hidden so, chancing discovery. The Boers searched the train at Komatipoort, but did not search deep enough. After sixty hours of misery I came safely here. I am very weak, but am free. I have lost many pounds in weight, but am light heart. I shall avail myself of every opportunity henceforth to urge earnestly the unflinching and uncompromising prosecution of the war.

"On the afternoon of Dec. 12, the Transvaal's Secretary of War informed me that there was little chance of my release. I therefore resolved to escape, and the same night I left the State School Prison in Pretoria by climbing the wall when the sentries' backs were turned momentarily. I walked through the streets of the town without disguise, meeting many burghers, but was not challenged by any in the crowd. I got through the pickets of the town guard and struck the Delagoa Bay railroad. I walked along it, evading the watchers at the bridges and culverts, and waited for a train beyond the first station. The 11.30 goods train from Pretoria had arrived before I reached the place, and was moving at full speed. I boarded it with great difficulty and hid under coal sacks. I jumped from the train before dawn, and was sheltered during the day in a small wood in company with a huge vulture, who displayed a lively interest in me.

"I walked on at dusk. There were no more trains that night. The danger of meeting the guards of the line continued, but I was obliged to follow it as I had no compass or map. I had to make wide detours to avoid bridges, stations and huts, and so my progress was very slow. Chocolate is not a satisfying food. The outlook was gloomy, but I persevered with God's help. For five days my food supply was very precarious. I was lying up by daylight and walking by night.

"Meanwhile my escape had been discovered and my description telegraphed everywhere. All trains were searched and everyone was on the watch for me. Four times the wrong people were arrested.

"The sixth day I managed to board a train beyond Middleburg, from whence there was direct service to Delagoa."

KITCHENER JOINS ROBERTS.

Gibralter, Dec. 27. — By Associated Press.—The British steamer Dunottar Castle, having on board General Lord Roberts of Kandahar, commander-in-chief of the British forces in South Africa, arrived here yesterday evening General Kitchener, who came from Egypt to join General Roberts as his chief of staff, embarked on board the Dunottar Castle, and the vessel sailed early this morning for Cape Town.

CAPE TOWN PLOT.

London, Dec. 27.—A despatch from Cape Town that a plot was discovered there a few days agoto seize the forts, blow up the magazines and carry off General Forestier-Walker and Sir Alfred Milner during the Christmas festivities. The affair was discovered just in the nick of time.

General Gateacre, with the Second Division, has met defeat at Stormberg, in Cape Colony, in the centre.

General Lord Methuen, who started with the First Division on November 22, to relieve besieged Kimberley, seventy miles away on the west, was checked at Belmont, Gras Pan and Modder River, and now, after being heavily reinforrced, has been defeated at Magersfontein, but though badly checked, he holds his position.

Generral Buller has admitted asevere defeat at Tuegla River with loss of ten cannon.

NOTHING OFFICIAL YET.

London, Dec, 27. — By Associated Press.—Enquiries made to-day by a representative of the Associated Press at the United States Embassy shows that the American Ambassador, Joseph H. Choate, has not yet received instructions from Washington regarding the seizure of cargoes of American flour by British warships off Delagoa Bay, Portuguese East Africa, on the ground that the flour was intended for the Boers and was therefore contraband of war.

GEN. WHITE NOT ANXIOUS.

New York, Dec 27.—By Associated Press.—The World to-day has a despatch dated Pietermaritzburg, Dec. 24, which was sent by its correspondent in Ladysmith by heliograph to Pietermaritzburg. The despatch says "Although expected relief has been delayed, General Sir George White feels no anxiety. The garrison has an ample store of provisions. The health of the troops continues good, considering the season.

"Officers and men are in excellent spirits and will render a good account of themselves in any public event.

"The Boers made an attack on the British left, but the evidence was evidently stronger than they expected. The British would not go out beyond their strength."

SEIZURE OF LORENZO MARQUEZ.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—The Record's London correspondent cables:—

It is urged that the Government must either seize Lorenzo Marquez and the bay or else absolutely stop the entrance of ships within the three-mile limit. Otherwise, it is suggested, Portugal should be warned, as was Belgium by Germany in 1870, that if the kingdom itself is unable to enforce the neutrality of its territory Great Britain must cease to regard it, as an active power, and must take upon its own shoulders the task of making neutrality effective.

Although exception might be taken to the fact that individual Americans are exporting arms and ammunition to the Transvaal, it is thought here that the United States Government will take no active steps to prevent traffic. The French Government dares do noothing. Germany is in the same position as the United States, and Russia is indifferent, at least for all that appears.

ROBERTS' COMPLETE POWER.

New York, Dec. 27. — By Associated Press.—Lord Roberts, according to the Herald's London correspondent, absolutely refused to take command in South Africa until this ultimatum was acceded to:

"The only conditions under which I will go out are that I shall have absolutely supreme command and receive no instructions from home."

This was said at a meeting of the War Office at which were present Lord Lansdowne, Secretary of State for War, and Lord wolseley, the Commander-in-Chief. It lasted for hours, during which it was demonstrated by the arguments that the opinions of those present were far from being unanimous. When the point he had insisted upon had been carried, Lord Roberts than demanded that General Lord Kitchener be given him, and this was agreed to.

It is argued now that Lords Roberts and Kitchener will so completely reorganize the methods of the campaign that it will be March before the first decisive move is made to end the war.

IS FLOUR CONTRABAND OF WAR?

New York, Dec. 27.—By Associated Press.—The seizure of vessels with flour destined for Delagoa Bay—the Mashona, the Beatrice and the Maria, owned in London, but loaded by the Pennsylvania Mining Co.—is opposed by the interested persons, but the question whether flour is contraband of war remains open. The British Consul in this city was shown the newspaper paragraph relating to the detention of these vessels, which carries flour shipped to merchants in Johannesburg before the outbreak of the war, and his comment was:—"If you will show me anyone who can define contraband of war, I will tell you what I think about this. If our countrymen consider flour contraband of war, as giving aid and comfort to the Boers by being part of their sustenance, it was perfectly right to seize the vessels on the high seas, even though they were directed to a neutral port. In a recent Chinese war rice was declared contraband of war."

NO MONEY FROM DR. LEYDS.

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 27.—By Associated Press.—M. Pere Berrit, recruiting for the ambulance corps for the Boer army, suspended operations today on account of the failure to receive an expected draft from Dr. Leyds.

IT PLEASES THE FRENCH.

New York, Dec. 27.—By Associated Press.—The demands that are being made in certain quarters in England for immediate action on the part of the British Government to prevent the transport of supplies to the Boers by way of Delagoa Bay have quickened French interest in the possibility of trouble between the United States and Great Britain in consequence of the seizure by a British cruiser of American flour off Lorenzo Marquez, says a French despatch to the Herald. Nothing so tickles the French palate as the merest suspicion of a possibility of seeing an Anglo-American quarrel frow out of the Transvaal war.

A POPULAR PRINICIPAL.

Mr. Jones of the Murray St. Separate School Honored by His Pupils.

Last Friday evening Mr. Jones, principal of the Murray street Separate school, was presented with a volume of Wordsworth. The following address was read by Godfrey Coughlin and Wm. O'Brien presented the volume—

Mr. Jones, Principal Separate School.

Dear Teacher,—On this the eve of Christmas, we, the boys of form V., feel that we should be ungrateful were we to allow this joyous season to pass without expressing in some way our warm appreciation of your many acts of kindness to us during the past year.

We will not enumerate your many noble and manly qualities which have endeared you to the hearts of your pupils; suffice it to say that the boys feel that in you they have a true friend and one whose every thought is for their welfare.

As a souvenir of this the last year of the 19th century, we ask you to accept the best wishes of the boys and while extending to you the compliments of the season, we hope that you and yours may enjoy many happy years of the coming century.

Signed on behalf of the boys.

LARGE INCREASE IN SECOND CONTINGENT.

Five Hundred Additional Mounted Infantry Will be Recruited from North-West.

IMPORTANT CHANGES IN THE ESTABLISHMENT.

More Volunteers Offering Themselves Than Can Possibly be Accepted. Orders From Ottawa Not Definite and Much Uncertainty Exists.

Toronto, Dec. 27.—Because the Militia Department has not yet persuaded itself what the second Canadian contingent shall consist of, local officers are conducting the recruiting without knowing with any degree of certainty the number or class of men required. The names of the officers of "A squadron", it was promised, would be announced some time to-day, but a telegram received at Stanley Barracks from Ottawa last night upset the arrangement. This communication, which came in cypher, informed Col. Kitson that the establishment of the second Canadian contingent had been altered. What the revised proposition is the Col. was unable to state. Among many of the officers it is believed that two batteries of artillery and not three, as first agreed upon, will be sent, and additional cavalry recruited to make up the full strength of the contingent.

Many Men Offer.

As early as 9 o'clock would-be fighters of Oom Paul Kruger gathered at the armories, and when Colonel Kitson and Major Young arrived fully 150 men were kicking their heels together on the east end of the building. Between sixty and seventy lined up for inspection. Colonel Kitson, Major Young, Colonel Clarence Denison, of the Body Guard, passed in front of the line and asked those who looked likely cavalry men to stand aside. Preference was given to members of the Governor General's Body Guards andt o those who have taken a course at the cavalry school. Thirty-six were finally selected, and if they pass medical examination at the hands of Surgeon-Major Nattress, they have very good chances of going to the front.

For Headquarters Staff.

Nearly all the above-mentioned are members of the Governor-General's Body Guard or experienced riders who have belonged to the militia. T. G. Delamere is a son of Colonel Delamere, and Trooper D. D. Young is a son of Major Young, acting D. O. C. While it is true that only 11 or 12 men will represent Toronto in B troop of A squadron, the balance being drawn from other cavalry corps, 31 men are needed for the headquarters staff, and most of these will in all probability be enrolled here.

Ten more members of the Royal Canadian Dragoons will be sworn in late this afternoon or to-morrow, bringing in the strength of A troop of A squadron up to 40 men, as prescribed. The non-coms have not yet been appointed, but it is believed that Sergt. Skinner and Sergt. Ross, the latter of whom has been ordered here from Winnipeg, will be sergeants of the troop. Sergt.-Major Sparks is likely to be made squadron sergt.-major.

Artillery Recruits Wanted.

Sergt. Jas. McMullen and Sergt. Dyer, who were taking a course at Stanley Barracks, have gone to Winnipeg, with the intention of enlisting there.

Col. Dunn, who was a colonel of the G. G. B. G. as far back as 1853, was on hand this morning to identify ex-members of the corps.

Recruiting for the battery of artillery part of which is to be enrolled here, will commence at the armories to-morrow at 11 o'clock. As in the case of the cavalry, the orders from Ottawa respecting the recruiting for the artillery are a very fair imitation of a Chinese puzzle. No artillery horses have been purchased at Stanley Barracks, and it is now announced that these purchases will be made by a Board of officers, of which Col. Mead will be chairman.

Mr. R. W. Barker to-day received a telegram from Capt. Bert. Barker, of C company, wishing all a merry Christmas. It is dated Belmont.

TWO BATTALIONS INSTEAD OF ONE.

Montreal, Dec. 27.—As to the changes proposed in the establishment of the contingent, it is said to be the intention to divide the cavalry accompanying the second contingent into two battalions of two squadrons each, instead of one battalion of three squadrons. Two of these squadrons, it is said, will be recruited in the Northwest, and will be composed of mounted police and scouts. The other two squadrons will be raised from the militia in Manitoba and the east.

GENERAL HUTTON'S EXPLANATION.

Ottawa, Dec. 277.—A rumor has been current this morning that there was to be a change in the establishment of the second contingent. Hon. Dr. Borden, on being seen, denied the rumor in toto, but stated that there was a slight change contemplated, but merely in detail, and he preferred to say nothing about it until the matter was fully settled.

Major-General Hutton was seen, and said no change had been made in the establishment. It would still remain three batteries of artillery and the other moiety of the contingent of cavalry. "It all arises," said the General, "from the Imperial Government's desire for mounted men."

The change wholly refers to the cavalry, then, General?"

"Yes, but I desire to say nothing about it until you get it in black and white in the Militia Orders."

"Will you require more officers?"

"No, not here; but I decline to answer questions at present."

It is understood that there will be no addition to the number of the contingent owing to the proposed change.

RECRUITING IN HAMILTON.

Hamilton, Dec. 27.—Major Hendrie, of the Hamilton Field Battery, opened a recruiting station this morning. Some thirty-nine men have offered their services for the artillery brigade. Surgeon-Major Griffith, of the 13th Regiment, who was appointed medical examiner for recruits enlisting here, had examined a dozen of the men during the morning, and of these a goodly proportion had all 7the necessary qualifications called for in the order.

None of the applicants have been enrolled as yet, and none will be enrolled until the examination of other applicants is completed. Major Hendrie's instructions are to enlist eighteen men, eleven gunners and seven drivers for C Battery, of the artillery brigade in the second contingent. He will have no difficulty in securing the services of a very high class of gunners. It is confidently expected here that Lieut. Miller, of the local battery, will be chosen as an officer of this district of the second contingent.

FORCE FOR SOUTH AFRICA.

Major Greenwood, of Peterborough, Receives Instructions.

Major Greenwood, commanding the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, has received a copy of the general militia orders relative to the enlistment and equipment of the second Canadian contingent for service in South Africa. It contains considerable matters of interest.

For the enrollment of the second troop of A squadron of the "Canadian Mounted Rifles" the stations will be Peterborough, St. Catharines, Toronto and Ottawa. Three squadrons of a total strength each of 160 of all ranks are to be enrolled. As there are four troops in A squadron of 161 only 41 men will be required from the four recruiting stations of Peterborough, St. Catharines, Toronto and Ottawa. For this squadron recruiting stations extend from St. John, N. B., to London. B and C squadrons will be enrolled from Winnipeg to the Rocky Mountains. As yet no orders have been received as when recruiting will begin at Peterborough. Major Greenwood has received a number of letters from which it is evident that the writers are under the impression that recruiting is going on. This is not correct and the time will be made known.

To qualify for service the applicant must reach the height of 5 feet 6 inches with 34 inch chest measurement, age to be not less than 22 years and not more than 40. Men are invited to offer their own horses, which will be purchased if suitable. The horses are to be 15 to 16 1-2 hands high and sound.

The non-commissioned officers and men of the permanent force or of the North-west Mounted Police will be allowed to count their service in this regiment as a portion of a period of their enlistment.

Authority is also given in the same orders for the formation of a Brigade Division of Field Artillery of three batteries. C battery will be mobilized at Kingston, D at Ottawa, and E at Quebec. Port Hoe is one of the places of enrollment for D Battery. The qualifications for service are practically the same for artillery men as for the mounted rifles.

Sergt. Scully, of town, of the 14th Field Battery, has returned from Port Hope, where he has passed the medical examination necessary for acceptance in the contingent.

To-day's Globe says—The Christmas lull in the preparations for sending the second Canadian contingent was followed by the greatest activity at Stanley Barracks yesterday. Practically the whole of the first troop of A squadron mounted infantry was selected, of whom thirty men were sworn in. The orders received since the last working day also gave the details to be observed in the enrollment of the second troop of A squadron, and recruiting for this troop will begin at the Armories this morning at 11 o'clock. The notice in this case is rather brief, but as none will be finally be chosen to-day, but rather after two days' volunteers have been looked over this will not be such a serious matter. Col. Kitson will be at the Armories to-day, accompanied by Surgeon-Major Nattress and other staff officers. Some disappointment has been expressed at the fact that only 43 men are to be selected in Toronto, in addition to the Dragoons for the Mounted Infantry, though added to the 43 Dragoons in the first troop, the total will be brought up to 84. This number may be increased if it is found that the quota asked [illegible] the other recruiting stations is not reached. Of the 43 only ten men and two farriers will belong to the second troop, the other 31 being wanted for the headquarters staff. The balance of the second troop will be made up of ten men from the 2nd Dragoons, St. Catharines; ten men from 3rd Dragoons, Peterborough, and seven men from the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards, Ottawa. It is understood of course that volunteer civilians may be included in those enrolled at any of these points.

Sergt.-Major E. H. Hutchinson, of the 14th Field Battery, and Messrs. Herb. Snowden and Bruce Chowen have volunteered and went down to Port Hope at noon to-day for medical examination.

True Boston Culture.

"Fifty cents for this beautiful little vase," called the auctioneer. "Going, going for 50. Do I hear 55 for this beautiful little vase?" and no one thought anything about the auctioneer or the vase which went for 50 cents until another one was put up, an immense affair of cloisonne. "Now we will show you an exquisite piece not to be duplicated in this country," he went on. "An exquisite cloisonne varse"—and there the Wellesley girl said excitedly to her companion:

"Now, that is what I call true Boston culture. Would you expect a man of that kind to make such a delicate distinction? He must have been educated at a woman's college. When he is selling a 50 cent article he says vase in the ordinary way, with the long sound of the 'a,' but when he comes to a big piece of cloisonne it is varse, with the broad 'a' every time. That is according to rule. Over $10 in price you find a varse, but under that nothing but an ordinary, everyday vase."—New York Times.

Crocodile Tears.

The expression "crocodile tears" can be found in almost every European language, but it is doubtful if one in a thousand of those who use it have an idea of its origin. We are told in the Bestiary of Guillaume le Clerc that when the crocodile finds an unwary traveler it devours him, but afterward weeps over him all the rest of its life. This is very evidently the allusion in "Othello," "Each drop she falls would prove a crocodile" (1, 257).

There is another version of the fable, however, which is more often referred to in literature, and according to which the crocodile sheds tears in order to allure the traveler to destruction. Shakespeare alludes to this in the passage where he tells how

the mournful crocodile
With sorrow snares relenting passengers.

Seventy Men Entombed.

Brownsville, Pa., Dec. 23An explosion occurred at the Baznell coal works four miles from here, to-day. Sixty men are reported entombed. The tipple is wrecked. Passengers have been sent here for doctors.

Pittsburg, Dec. 23.—A Uniontown, Pa., despatch says 75 men were entombed and probably killed by the explosion in the Baznell mine. The force of the explosion was so great that the tipple at the head of the shaft was blown over. The Baznell mine is located four miles from Brownsville, on the Red Stone Railroad.

Word from Baznell by train says only one man has been taken out of the mine. Men could be heard talking at the bottom of the shaft. The rescue boss went down but has not returned, and it is supposed that he and the men have been overcome by damp, as all sounds has ceased from the bottom. There is great excitement. Miners are flocking from surrounding mines to assist in the rescue.

FRASERVILLE.

The patrons of Fraserville cheese factory held their annual meeting Nov. 29 th. The minutes of the last meeting was read and confirmed. The Secretary's and Auditors' reports were read and adopted. The Secretary's report showed that there had been 11 standards of milk received at the factory this season, and which, manufactured into cheese gave an output of 112,846 lbs. of cheese, making an average for the season of 10.79 lbs. of milk per pound of cheese. The total amount of money received during the season was $11,627.87. The average price for the season was 10 1-16c. per lb., being the highest price in the history of the factory. 12cts. per pound was received for the 2nd half of Aug. The auditors—Messrs. R. Waterman and J. Smyth—reported that they examined all the books in connection with the factory and found everything correct. The whey of the factory was sold for next season at 70c. per standard. Mr. Klim, the proprietor of the factory, agreed to make the cheese for next season on the same terms as this season, at 3-4c. per pound. The meeting was brought to a close by giving Mr. Klim a vote of thanks for the interest he showed towards the patrons during the season, and for manufacturing cheese for the patrons own use after the season closed.

Peterborough vs. Lindsay.

Lindsay is putting forth strong efforts to get connection with the C.P.R., and bonuses are being freely asked from the different municipalities interested towards the construction of a line from Pontypool to Lindsay and thence to Boocaygeon. Such a line will be of great advantage to a large section of country, particularly Lindsay, and will cut Peterborough off from a portion of trade that now comes this way. We have a so-called Board of Trade, the members of which occasionally meet and discuss such matters as the pullets sold on the market, and kindred subjects, but who do not appear to be capable of dealing with such matters as is now engaging the attention of the Lindsay people.

The Times' War Service.

The Times is the only newspaper in Eastern Ontario that has complete telegraphic service from the seat of war. We give the same news as is contained in the Toronto papers of the same day. Our enterprise is being appreciated, for hundreds are subscribing for the paper. We need a thousand additional subscribers, however, in order to carry out some extensive lines of improvement that we have in view, and appeal to the people not only of the town for support, but also those residing in the towns and villages throughout Eastern Ontario. Why not have as good a morning paper in Peterborough as any of the Toronto papers? A paper of which the people of Peterboro' will be proud ?. Give us the support which we need, and to which we believe we are entitled, and we will do the rest.

A JUMPING TOOTHACHE.

How It Won Its Victim Credit For Bravery in Battle.

"It was a toothache," said the veteran, "that won me a reputation for daring at the battle of Bull Run. That was the only fight I was ever in where I didn't wish I could find a hole to crawl into. All this talk about coolness on the eve of battle is nonsense, invented by people who have never been there or old soldiers whose tongues get away with their memories. Our men and officers were as brave as any in the war and made good records, but they all had the ague and longed for sick leave just about the time the bullets began to fly. But I had the toothache for two days before that battle, and if there is an aggravation on earth that will make a man want to bat his best friend in the face that is it.

"On the night before the fight I did not sleep a wink. The old tooth got to jumping like a goat, and I couldn't have suffered more from an amputated leg. I was also furiously mad. I felt that I'd either got to bolt for the rear in search of relief or encourage some rebel to put a ball through my head.

"We'd been waiting in battle line for an hour, and the boys had grown white and were all choked up. I had been entirely occupied with the old tooth, and the first thing I knew the fight was on. We were holding them in check, but that didn't suffice me. As I got hold of my gun and pulled the handkerchief off my jaw I yelled out for the boys to follow, and we struck a whole brigade and whirled it around and sent it back half a mile. I felt that I could lick the whole of Lee's army for an hour or two! They told me that I yelled and dodged death a thousand times, but I remember nothing but the jumps of that tooth. When they stopped, or for what particular reason, I could never say, but after a couple of hours I came to myself, as it were, and was being complimented on all sides, and the jumps had ceased."

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. They Keep One Eye Shut.

A recent traveler in Mexico, who visited the mines there during his journey, says that he was much astonished at seeing the men who carry the ore come out of the mine, each with one eye shut.

The foreman, seeing his surprise, explained the matter. He said the candles belonging to the tarateros (who drill and blast) do not give sufficient light in the drifts, where it is consequently quite dark, but where, nevertheless, the tarateros see well enough not to run their heads against the rocks, but, on emerging into daylight, they would be blinded did they not take precautionary measures.

For this reason, as they approach the mouth of the shaft, at the point where they catch the first glimpse of light they drop the eyelid of one eye and keep this down while they are discharging their ore and until they have redescended the shaft.

When they are again in the dark, they open the eye kept hitherto in reserve and at once see everything distinctly, while the other eye, previously open and somewhat blinded by the daylight, perceives nothing.

CANADA'S GREATEST SCHOOL OF SHORTHAND AND BUSINESS

PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS SHOULD NOTICE

This institute has prepared over seventy teachers for other Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States, more than twice as many as all other Business Colleges in Canada, combined, have so placed.

The proprietors of five of the leading business colleges in Western Ontario, who are to-day among our strongest opponents in the field of Shorthand and Business training, received THEIR training under the Principal of this institution. Besides these, there are five others holding leading positions as teachers in Business Colleges in Ontario.

Since Sept 1st, seven of our pupils have accepted positions as teachers in Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States; another is now negotiating for a similar opening in a Business College in a leading American city, and there are five unfilled calls of this kind on hand still.

DOES IT NOT PAY TO ATTEND THE BEST? You must decide.

236 of our pupils secured good positions in seventeen months, and the good work of placing our students still continues.

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

Manufactured under the patents of Bell, Tainter, Edison and Macdonald. Our establishment is headquarters of the world for Talking Machines and Talking Machine Supplies. Write for catalogue.

HATS OFF IN CHURCH, LADIES.

The Rule is About to be Enforced by a Midland Pastor.

The adherents of the Methodist church of Midland are in a whirlpool of speculation and excitement consequent upon a decree of the pastor Rev. Thos. Dunlop, that the ladies of the congregation will please remove their hats during service.

This sort of innovation, which no man, at least, will dispute the righteousness of, is not the kind one expects to see introduced so close to home. It is Americanism up-to-date. Such a report coming from Kansas or Texas would have occasioned little comment. The remarks of the Midland Free Press on the request of Rev. Mr. Dunlope will be of interest to Morning Times readers:

"An announcement was made from the pulpit of the Methodist church on Sunday morning last which rather startled the audience and has set thousands of tongues in the town talking. Commencing with Sunday next the ladies were asked to remove their hats during the service. The request was made because the pastor had received numerous complaints that members in the audience could not see the preacher because of some of the displays of millinery worn to church. The pastor therefore made the above request, having first talked the matter over with a number of his lady members who promised obedience to the mild request. No doubt some will comply, while others will kick furiously, with the result that—but time will tell. But everybody is talking this week, and many speculations are advanced as to what the ladies will do with their millinery. To place the hat on the floor is out of the question; to put it on the seat would occupy too much room and also endanger the delicate creation; to hold it on the lap or in the hand would be too much bother. A bandbox seems the only solution. No doubt the experiment in the Methodist church will be watched with interest by the other denominations and if it goes well the innovation may become quite the style."

BEE BUZZES.

Beeswax is dark because of the impurities mixed with it.

All combs of drone comb should be removed from the hive.

Bees start to work earlier if the hives face the south or east.

Avoid blowing your breath among the bees while handling the comb.

Dirt and filth accumulating on the bottom boards make a propagating place for the moths.

Bees reared in the spring and summer are shorter lived than those reared later in the season.

Bees will enter a cool hive much more readily than one which had been baked in the hot sun all day.

Crocodile Tears.

The expression "crocodile tears" can be found in almost every European language, but [illegible] those who use it have an idea of its origin. This is [illegible] the allusion in "Othello," "Each drop she falls would prove a crocodile" (4, 1).

There is another version of the fable, however, [illegible] believed to [illegible] the crocodile sheds tears in order to allure the traveler to destruction. Shakespeare alludes to this in the passage where he tells how [illegible]

IS THIS MURDER?

Two Men Went Down to the Water's Edge and Only One Returned to Vanish Again

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 26.—An incident that may probably turn out to be murder, or murder and suicide, or double suicide, occurred last evening at the Whirlpool Rapids Park promenade, just below the Grand Trunk steel arch bridge. Two young men arrived in a hack owned and driven by a hackman named Davis at about 3 o'clock and asked to be lowered down to the promenade walk alongside the Rapids. The men not returning by dark, Mr. Powell, the manager, grew alarmed, and sent one of his help down to see where the men were.

The men were nowhere to be seen on the walk below. The matter was reported to Chief of Police Young, and Officer Mains and Superintendent Rothery, with a guide named Preston, made a detour and search of the promenade, and found, by footprints in the snow, that the two men had walked to the extreme end of the promenade towards the whirlpool, and, leaving it together, had climbed over the rugged rocks and fallen trees for about 500 feet, after which only the tracks of one man could be found. A few feet from the point where the double footprints had petered out to one man's tracks there was the mark of one man's body, where he had fallen.

On account of the darkness and dangerous condition of the locality, the party gave up the search. The police stationed men along the river to apprehend anyone who should attempt to come up from below the bank at any of the paths that lead below, and have him give an account of the whereabouts of his companion.

ONE MAN ESCAPED.

Niagara Falls, Ont. Dec. 26. — The mysterious disappearance of the two men at the Whirlpool Rapids Park seems to assume indications of murder.

The police had guides follow up the footmarks in the snow at daylight this morning from the point where they were abandoned last evening, on account of darkness, and found the one man's track continued on down the river to the Whirlpool, over large boulders, fallen trees and rocks towering up from 5 to 20 feet high, and leaning towards the seething rapids, where one misstep or slip on the icy, snow covered rocks meant certain death. On went the man's foot tracks to the Whirlpool, around the bend of the pool and alongside of the Rapids below the pool. At this point the travelling was more dangerous and arduous, through rugged and dangerous flats, and up the pathway and steps at Niagara Glen, where the footmarks were lost track of on the ties of the electric railway at the top of the bank.

The man certainly made successfully the most arduous and dangerous detour of Niagara's Gorge for a distance of four miles that could be found between the Falls and Queenston.

Now the mystery darkens, and the question is, who the men were, and what became of the second man, whose footprints petered out 500 yards below the promenade of the Whirlpool Rapids Park. The man that made the detour to Niagara Glen certainly could not have done so without showing some signs of the trip on either his clothing or person. The Ontario police have the matter in hand.

Plucky Small Boys.

On Saturday last, while Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Rightmyer, who live near the river just south of the fair grounds were at market, their three sons, aged 10, 9 and 7 years respectively together with a neighbor's boy named Victor Wilson, aged 10, were playing on the ice along the river edge. Clinton Rightmyer went too near the edge and broke in, catching on the edge of the ice he held fast until Wilson came to the assistance, when he also broke in, going down twice. Wilson being nearest shore Gordon Rightmyer, aged 9, went to his assistance, rescuing hoim. Wilson then again went to the help of Clinton, who still clung to the ice but was weak. Wilson lay flat down on the ice and got hold of the other's arm, holding him from losing his grip. Gordon Rightmyer then went to meet Grant, aged 7, who had been sent to the barn to get a strap, about six feet long which the boys knew was hanging in the stable. Securing this he threw the end to Clinton, then the three boys got hold of the strap and slowly drew him out on safe ice. Clinton was so nearly exhausted that he had to be assisted to walk to the house.

TRANSPORTS BEING DIVIDED.

New York, Dec. 22.—The inference is drawn in London that General Methuen will hold his ground at Modder River and not retreat to Orange River, as it was thought might be necessary, says the London correspondent of the Tribune. This inference is drawn from the Admiralty reports of the movements of transports that the battalions of the fifth division as they arrive in South Africa are divided between Natal and the western border, some going to Durban and the others to De Aar. Military men now assert that if General Methuen's retirement had been contemplated all the reinforcements arriving at Cape Town would have been hurried forward to Natal to complete the work of relieving Ladysmith, since they would not have been needed at De Aar or Belmont. They also venture to assume that Modder River will be made a second base for ultimate operations beyond the country to Bloemfontein, when the auxiliary transport with mule train and carts shall have been organized.

VOLUNTEERS STILL PLENTFUL.

London, Dec. 22.—There is no diminution of the enthusiasm among the volunteers. All kinds of offers are reaching Lord Chesham, who is to command the [illegible] volunteer force. Members of the stock exchange have already promised 100 horses from their stables, and an offer of an Irish contingent of 115 hunting men were accepted this morning.

Prince Francis of Teck, youngest brother of the Duchess of York, sailed for Cape Town to-day with a detachment of the Royal Dragoons.

Lord Salisbury and General Roberts had a conference with the Queen at Windsor this afternoon.

Church Consumed.

The Roman Catholic church at Campbellford was burned to the ground early on Christmas morning. The blaze broke out about about two o'clock, and as the building was a frame structure it was not long until it was consumed. The origin of the fire is not known, but it is supposed that the building ignited from the pipes or the chimney, as a fire had been put in the stove that the building might be warm for the early mass at 5.30 o'clock.

MORE FENIAN FROTH.

Unanimous Vote in Favor of Running All Over Canada.

New York, Dec. 26.—The following despatch from Worcester, Mass., is published in one of the "yellow" journals this morning:

Division 36 of the Ancient Order of Hibernians has voted unanimously in favor of an invasion of Canada, if the opportune moment should arrive. President James Noonan had spoken on the Boer war, and urged all to be ready for action if an emergency should arise. Then he called for a show of hands from all in favor of a raid on Canada, and who would go. Every one of the hundred or more men present raised his hand in a tumult of enthusiasm. The officers of the division were appointed a committee to consult with officers of other Irish societies and arrange a mass meeting to express sympathy for the Boers. There are over 1,500 members of the Hibernians here.

MORE PIE FOR THE "YELLOW."

New York, Dec. 26.—The same "yellow" which contains the Worcester, Mass., despatch regarding a proposed raid on Canada, prints another similar story from Omaha, Neb. It says: The leading Irish-Americans of Nebraska are moving in the direction of a raid on Canada, now that the province is being denuded of her troops for service in South Africa. The statement is made that an extensive correspondence is being carried on between Fenians in the leading cities of the United States, and that the Omaha meeting called for next Sunday is a part of a preconcerted, widespread movement whose object is to enlist Irish-Americans everywhere in a grand effort to aid the Boers by causing trouble in Canada. The arms that were used or intended for one of the Fenian invasions of Canada were bought in Nebraska.

There is a story in Lincoln that for many years a lot of these arms was stored somewhere in that city under the care of the late John Fitzgerald, who is said to have contributed the money to buy them. It is also known that these arms, or others for the same cause, were used as equipments for one or two companies of Irish militia in Omaha, of which many prominent men of the city were once members.

Proud of Him.

When he was 50, he returned to his native town "just to see how the old place looked." He found it unchanged. The old store, where as a lad he had clerked it and sold calico and groceries to the old farmers, was just the same. He contrasted the sleepy old place with himself and felt a glow of satisfaction when we thought how much those 30 years had done for him. "They ought to be proud of me," he said to himself.

Presently he met one of the old inhabitants.

"Waal, I declare, is it really you, Hank?" said the old man incredulously. "We've heard you've been prospering fust rate sence you went west. They've made you a railroad president or suthin of the sort, ain't they? I heerd so, but I couldn't believe it. It's really true, is it? Waal, all I've got to say is they must be purty hard up for railroad presidents out there."

He took the next train for the west.—

COPPER MINING STOCKS

For several months shrewd investors have been putting their money into the shares of Copper Mines. This is true not only of men with large amounts of money at their disposal but also applies to those who have made a study of investments with a view to securing a large return for small investments. As high as THREE AND FOUR HUNDRED PER CENT. has to our knowledge already been realized on some of these investments. Americans were the first to make a specialty of Copper Stocks. They knew what they were doing, for the reason is not far to seek. Every Copper Mine in the world is at present taxed to its utmost limit to meet the growing demand for copper for electrical purposes. The reserve stores of copper are being depleted until it pays no longer to use copper in some eastern countries as a coin. Copper has gone up in price from 9c to 18 cents. The supply of Copper from the mines of the world to-day is only about 80 per cent. of the consumption. That is the reason why financiers have their engineers searching the four quarters of the globe for Copper Mines, and that is the reason the shares in promising copper companies are so eagerly picked up by investors.

If you have any money to invest we would ask you to consider the shares of the SUPERIOR GOLD & COPPER COMPANY, LIMITED. This Company owns and operates some valuable native copper properties. We are in a position to offer you a special opportunity in this stock which as an investment should give you a profit of at least 100 per cent in six months. Send for prospectus and particulars.

Occasionally we have an opportunity of giving our clients a special offer on some stocks, and we have this opportunity now. If you are interested write to us at once. These shares are sold in large or small blocks to suit buyers.

We deal in all legitimate mining shares on commission. If you want to buy or sell write us.

A JUMPING TOOTHACHE.

How It Won Its Victim Credit For Bravery In Battle.

"It was a toothache," said the veteran, "that won me a reputation for daring at the battle of Bull Run. That was the only fight I was ever in where I didn't wish I could find a hole to crawl into. All this talk about coolness on the eve of battle is nonsense, invented by people who have never been there or old soldiers whose tongues got away with their memories. Our men and officers were as brave as any in the war and made good records, but they all had the ague and longed for sick leave just about the time the bullets began to fly. But I had the toothache for two days before that battle, and if there is an aggravation on earth that will make a man want to hit his best friend in the face that is it.

"On the night before the fight I did not sleep a wink. The old tooth got to jumping like a goat, and I couldn't have suffered more from an amputated leg. I was also furiously mad. I felt that I'd either got to bolt for the rear in search of relief or encourage some rebel to put a ball through my head.

"We'd been waiting in battle line for an hour, and the boys had grown white and were all choked up. I had been entirely occupied with the old tooth, and the first thing I knew the fight was on. We were holding them in check, but that didn't suffice me. As I got hold of my gun and pulled the handkerchief off my jaw I yelled out for the boys to follow, and we struck a whole brigade and whirled it around and sent it back half a mile. I felt that I could lick the whole of Lee's army for an hour or two! They told me that I yelled and dodged death a thousand times, but I remember nothing but the jumps of that tooth. When they stopped, or for what particular reason, I could never say, but after a couple of hours I came to myself, as it were, and was being complimented on all sides, and the jumps had ceased."

An Attractive Feature.

Mr. Wm. Collins, Secretary of the Peterborough Poultry Association, has received a letter from Mr. Browne, secretary of the Provincial Association, stating that he has secured Mrs. and Mrs. Gilbert, who will be at the provincial show here in January, and kill, draw and dress poultry and explain how to do it. This was the most attractive feature at the fat stock show at London, and should be a great drawing card for the show here. Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert are experts on the important matter of killing, drawing and dressing fowl.

Woes of Millionaires.

An English millionaire has just been adjudged incapable of looking after his property. He imagines himself the Prince of Wales.

Some years ago a rich merchant took the idea that he was penniless. His sons, to stop his worrying, assured him they had rescued his business and was to continue it. They offered him a clerkship at a small salary in his own office. He took it and kept at work nearly 20 years. When he died, he left nearly $15,000,000.

Two English millionaires were noted for their parsimony. One picked up and smoked cigar ends. The other, after fine receptions in his house, would go around carefully collecting candle ends to be used again. Neither of these men was insane. Both were shrewd in business.

Another millionaire imagined for a considerable time that he was a squirrel, and would eat nothing but nuts.

Another was too parsimonious even to buy himself a warm overcoat. Some of his friends made him a present of one, and he promptly sold it at secondhand and pocketed the money.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Was Hanged Over Again.

G. W. Stevens, who traveled extensively in India, tells the following interesting story: A Pathan was being hanged, when the rope broke. The warder bade him go up on to the scaffold again, but he objected. "No," he said, "I was sentenced to be hanged, and hanged I've been."

"Not so, friend," argued the warder; "you were sentenced to be hanged until you were dead, and you're not dead."

It was a new view to the Pathan, and he turned to the superintendent. "Is that right, sahib?"

"Yes, that's right."

"Very well. I didn't understand," and he went composedly up the steps and was hanged again like a man.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Proud of Him.

When he was 50, he returned to his native town "just to see how the old place looked." He found it unchanged. The old store, where as a lad he had clerked in and sold calico and groceries to the old farmers, was just the same. He contrasted the sleepy old place with himself and felt a glow of satisfaction when he thought how much the [illegible] years had done for him. "They ought to be proud of me," he said to himself.

Presently he met one of the old inhabitants.

"Well, I declare, is it really you, Hank?" the old man [illegible]. "We've heard you've been [illegible] [illegible] but I couldn't believe it. It's really true, is it? Well, all I've got to say is [illegible]—"

Robert Dronet will play John Storm in "The Christian" with Miss Allen next season.

"Annie Rooney" is undergoing a revival in Paris to the temporary eclipsing of Dreyfus.

David Belasco has completed an original play which will be produced early in the season with a specially selected company.

An elaborate revival of Shakespeare's tragedy of "Macbeth" will be the feature of Frederick Warde's repertory next season.

It is unofficially announced that Rudyard Kipling is to write the fairy play to be produced at the London Lyceum next season.

Some German statistician has discovered that stage dancing is conducive to longevity. Taglioni lived to be 80 and Fanny Elssler to be 74.

Rose Coghlan has been re-engaged for her original role of "Mlle. Fifi" for next season, the piece to open its tour in August in Chicago.

BEE BUZZES.

Beeswax is dark because of the impurities mixed with it.

All excess of drone comb should be removed from the hive.

Bees start to work earlier if the hives face the south or east.

It is essential during hot weather that the hives be well ventilated.

Avoid blowing your breath among the bees while handling the comb.

Dirt and filth accumulating on the bottom boards make a propagating place for the moths.

Bees reared in the spring and summer are shorter lived than those reared later in the season.

The swarming season usually begins about 10 or 20 days after white clover comes into bloom.

Bees will enter a cool hive much more readily than one which had been baked in the hot sun all day.

Honey properly kept will improve with age. The older it is the better it will be, but it must be kept dry.

All bees should be examined now and the hives thoroughly cleaned. No trash of any kind should be left on the bottom boards.—St. Louis Republic.

SIMPLE LITTLE MIX UP.

How a bunch of roses sold a couple of high priced railroad tickets is the basis of a queer little comedy of errors enacted the other day at a leading city hotel. Among the guests of the house was a wealthy Texas merchant who was en route with his wife for a visit to New England. The Texan has a local business representative here in the person of a hustling young man about town, who was especially anxious to make the stay of his principal as pleasant as possible. Accordingly he rushed to a florist's as soon as he saw the names on the register and ordered him to put up the handsomest bunch of roses he had in the shop and send them over to Mrs. Blank at such and such a hotel. In his hurry he forgot to leave his card for inclosure, and, supposing it was omitted intentionally, the florist proceeded to prepare a magnificent bouquet, which he dispatched forthwith by messenger.

It so happened at the moment the flowers arrived that a city passenger solicitor for one of the north bound roads had just handed over his card to be sent to the Texas gentleman's apartment, and quite naturally the pasteboard and the roses went up together. The visitors were both astonished and pleased. "This is certainly a princely way of soliciting business," exclaimed the merchant, examining the flowers. "Why, these things must have cost all of $10. Show the gentleman up."

The solicitor was shown up, received most cordially and given an immediate order for through transportation both ways. He departed, chuckling merrily, but a little dazed by the facility of his deal and puzzled to understand the many references to his "courtesy" and "thoughtfulness."

An hour or so later the local representative dropped around and was met by his employer in the lobby. The greeting was painfully matter of fact, and not a word was said about the flowers. The young man was greatly chagrined and began to believe he had made a bad break. Next day he accompanied the couple to the depot, and incidentally something was said about the route.

"We decided to go this way on account of the gentleman who called to sell us tickets," explained the lady. "He was so courteous and pleasant! Why, would you believe it," she continued, "he actually sent me an enormous bunch of beauty roses with his business card!"

Light dawned on the local representative, and he groaned. In his pocket was a florist's bill for $12.75.—New Orleans

An Unpredictable Bone.

Last summer a friend presented us with a tortoise. I do not know whether our dog had heard of turtle soup or whether he regarded the creature as a new kind of bone that walked about; at any rate, he determined to eat it.

Whenever the tortoise started out on a constitutional down the garden path Gyp went for it and carried it into his kennel, where he gnawed at the impenetrable [illegible]. The calm manner in which the tortoise resumed its interrupted promenade irritated the dog exceedingly, [illegible]

For more than four years Mrs. Bender has been using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as a family medicine.

Mrs. E. A. Bender lives in K[illegible], Coshocton Co., Ohio, and from there she writes: "As a cough remedy and blood purifier there is nothing better [illegible] having [illegible] is just the right medicine for a complete building up. Our boy has taken this [illegible] for St. Vitus's dance. He was very nervous and constantly [illegible] seems entirely cured."

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is a medicine that will help you no matter what ails you. This is true because it works directly at the roots of all disease—the digestive system, the blood, the nerves. Keep these in healthy condition and you cannot be sick.

Many of the cures of the "Golden Medical Discovery" seem almost miraculous. Its effect is almost immediate. It takes hold at once. It tones up the stomach, invigorates the liver, regulates the bowels.

It gets right into the blood and carries strength and comfort to every fiber of the body. It nourishes and invigorates the weakened, irritated nerves and puts the entire system in perfect tune.

It is a safe medicine. Safe for adults—safe for children. It contains no sugar, syrup, whisky, alcohol or dangerous opiates. Therefore, it does not create craving for stimulants. It is distinctly a temperance medicine.

If a medicine dealer tries to substitute some other preparation when you ask for "Golden Medical Discovery"—look out for him. He is either ignorant or dishonest and you can't trust him.

Where the Pot of Gold is Buried.

How many women are fretting and struggling along on a very little money when a good sized yard or adjoining patch of ground is going to waste! Yet that very piece of ground may contain all sorts of possibilities—clothes, furniture, books, medicines, luxuries and even necessities otherwise impossible.

Clear, plow, fertilize and plant. This done, the great beginning is made, and perseverance and attention will secure the rest. Onions, tomatoes, cabbage, celery, a small poultry farm, a violet or rose farm—any one of these may add several hundred dollars to one's purse every year. Small fruits, hops, tuberoses and grapes are also very profitable. With some intelligence a blooming garden can always be made a paying one. Make it a principle to have no more waste in the garden than in the kitchen.

If there is only a very small place and just enough raised for one's own family, try, after the table is supplied, to prepare what vegetables and fruits are left over for sale for winter use. There is always a demand for good homemade canning and preserving. Do not let a valuable scrap of ground be idle.—Annetta Halliday Antona.

Sham Rock

Is a name given by some to our granolithic pavements. Some shoes have sham soles, which when wet are taken off very easily by the sham rock, and thus the sham sole is lost. To avoid the latter buy your shoes from Kidd—the price is no more, but less, and trading stamps given as well.

MUNICIPAL ELECTION NOTES.

Just ten candidates for the Council, with nine seats to fill. Who'll be the lucky man to be left out?

•• • ••

A good deal will depend on the Judge's report of the investigation, which will be submitted to the Council this morning. If it is strongly adverse to the contractors, councillors and engineer, it will be a spoke in Ald. McWilliams' wheel in his race for the Mayoralty prize.

•• • ••

That old municipal war horse, Mr. Adam Dawson, is amongst those who are sure of re-election. Mr. Dawson made a capital councilor in the past, and no doubt will keep up his record in this regard in the future.

•• • ••

Ald. McWilliams is a worker, and if this one quality will make him Mayor he will succeed. He is out early and late, and by the time election day arrives he will have had most of the town covered.

•• • ••

The outlook in regard to the Mayoralty is not at all rosy from Mr. Kendry's point of view. Mr. McWilliams and his friends are receiving the greatest encouragement from the ratepayers.

•• • ••

An impression seems to prevail that on account of the civic nominations taking place on Friday last, the election will be held to-morrow. This is not the case as voting takes place on New Year's day. A change in the statute prevents voters from exercising the franchise in more than one ward.

•• • ••

Our good and pious Hunter street contemporary, in speaking of the style of ballots to be used this year remarks: "The names of the Mayoralty and Aldermanic candidates are all on one ballot, the Mayor at the top and Aldermen underneath. Mr. Kendry's name is at the top of the ballot, and it will be at the top of the poll." The Review forgets that "the first shall be last and the last shall be first."

MARRIED IN TORONTO.

Wedding of Mr Harry Beale Miss Emma Lang.

Miss Emma Lang, of Paris, and Mr. Harry Beale, of the Peterborough Light and Power Co., were quietly married on Monday, in the Metropolitan church, Toronto. The bride wore a pretty travelling suit of brown cloth, and at the conclusion of the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Beale left for the bride's home in Paris.

After a honeymoon of a week or two they will return to Peterborough. Both are well known and have many friends in town. The Times extends the heartiest congratulations.

Refused.

The Times yesterday received a letter for publication, dealing with the Mayoralty question. Although the writer gave his name, he asked us to publish the letter over a nom de plume, stating that he did not care to reveal his identity. This is all very well, so far as it goes. When a man hides behind a mask in order to attack a foe he is little better than an assassin. The Times supports Ald. McWilliams in the Mayoralty contest because it believes that he is the best man for the position. We will not, however, allow our columns to be used to blacken Mr. Kendry, for whom the Times entertains the highest regard.

THE MAYORALTY.

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

In coming before you as a candidate for the office of Mayor for the year 1900, it is proper that I should state clearly my reasons for so doing, to justify the course I have pursued in the past, and indicate the policy I intend to follow in reference to the more important municipal questions.

I have been a member of the Council for the last three years, as well as for a term some years ago, and at each election I have been honored with a vote at the head of the poll, three times in the Third Ward, and last year in the whole town. I have taken, I think I may say, a constant, active interest in the municipal business, and as those members of the Council [illegible] on most of the questions coming before us have declined to stand, I felt justified in presenting myself for the honor of the Mayoralty.

During my three years in the Council I have endeavored to the best of my ability to promote all measures which were in the interests of the town, and it cannot be said by any person that my course has ever been influenced by consideration for any persons or corporations, to the detriment of the town. I believe in requiring of all officials and all persons dealing with the municipality, a strict fulfilment of their obligations, and in insisting upon that entirely regardless of personal considerations.

In calling for an investigation into the recent pavement trouble I was in no sense actuated by personal feeling, my only motive being the performance of a very plain duty—to insist on every suspicion of wrong doing being enquired into, both to ascertain the present responsibility and prevent the possibility of anything similar occurring in the future. In taking an active part in those proceedings I followed what I consider was the only course to make sure of a full investigation into the conduct of those against whom an apparently well founded suspicion of breach of trust had been created. If in this, and other matters, I have seemed to be at times somewhat personal, it is because I have believed that those whom I have felt called upon to criticize had failed in their duty to the town; I leave to the decision of the electors the propriety of my course in this respect.

I am entirely in favor of the policy of building permanent works whenever the existing ones require renewal. The cost of such improvements is little more than that of inferior work at the present time, and in the end is very much cheaper. This policy should be adhered to as far as possible without raising the rate of taxation, and in this connection I am in favor of having these permanent works done by the town, under the supervision of a competent foreman, and the employment thereon of our own citizens only, who should receive $1.25 per day for nine hours. I believe there are many ways in which our expenses could be reduced, without injury, and the money thus saved could be used for objects which would be a permanent benefit to the town.

I am in favor of doing everything in my power to increase the number of our manufacturing industries by bringing new works here, but I am not in favor of imposing unreasonably heavy burdens on the taxpayers for that purpose.

I believe it would be to the great advantage of the town to acquire control of the water power on the river, and thus be in a position to give power to our manufacturers, both present and future, at a rate with which no other town or city in Ontario could compete, which would be the means of stimulating the establishment of industries, and of giving employment to our working classes. With our natural power, commercial situation and railway facilities, we have everything necessary to make the town one of the strongest manufacturing centres in Canada.

I am also of the opinion that by a judicious advertising of our advantages and position as a centre for summertravel we can add greatly to the reputation and profit of the locality.

I am strongly in favor of completing the union of Peterborough and Ashburnham, approved by the electors three years ago, for their interests are indentical, and by union we can take our proper place as the capital of the Midlands and the premier town in the province.

I am also in favor of the town acquiring control of the waterworks and lighting. I believe that by proper administration these services can be given to the ratepayers at a greatly reduced figure, and at the same time a large saving effected to the corporation. This has been carried out in other places with the most satisfactory results, and would give a much better service, and at the same time enable those advantages to be more generally enjoyed.

I am strongly opposed to the introduction of party politics into municipal affairs. I have never during all the years I have been in the Council allowed my actions to be influenced by party spirit, and I am not now the candidate of any party nor seeking support from anyone by reason of party feeling or service.

I beg, therefore, to request the honor of your votes at the approaching municipal elections. As it will be impossible to make a canvass of the whole town, I will ask you to accept this request in lieu of a personal one to each individual. I promise, if elected, a progressive, honest, and impartial administration of your affairs, and I am quite willing that my record in the past should be judged by that standard.

Hoping that I may have the pleasure of your support and wishing you all the compliments of the season,

I remain,
Your Obedient Servant,
J. B. McWILLIAMS.

YOUR PATRONAGE SOLICITED

THE MAYORALTY.

To the Ratepayers of the Town of Peterborough:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN.

At the request of hundreds of the ratepayers of the town expressed in a requisition presented to me, I have accepted nomination for the Mayoralty for 1900, and am in the field seeking your sufferages. I do not believe that it will be necessary to assure you that I did not seek the office, but only entered the contest because in the face of the request made of me by so many of our citizens I felt that it was a duty I owed to the public which I have been privileged to serve in different capacities so frequently. It was from no desire to monopolize offices that are within the gift of the people, but simply because I was made to feel that at the present time the citizens wanted my services and that when the demand was made so forcibly I would indeed be lacking in my duty if I did not respond, even though the response meant much personal sacrifice to myself.

Having accepted nomination I respectfully solicit your votes and influence, and if elected I promise to give my best attention to the duties of the office. I will give my time and what ability I possess to the advancement of the town's best interests. The town's interests are my interests, for I have, as you are aware, no small stake here, and economy and progress will be my watchwords. All questions coming before the Council will receive my careful and unprejudiced attention, and my aim will be to maintain that harmony and unity in the consideration of civic business that will allow the best results to be realized.

It will be impossible owing to the short time between now and election day for me to call personally on all of you, and I therefore solicit your support in this way, hoping for a renewal of the confidence expressed in me as a member of the Council and as Mayor in former years.

I desire to thank those who have already expressed their confidence in me by signing the handsome requisition presented to me.

Wishing you one and all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

I am ladies, and gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
JAS. KENDRY.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS VERY ABLY DISCUSSED

At Bradburn's Opera House Last Night--A Most Enthusiastic Public Meeting.

McWILLIAMS, KENDRY AND DAVIS CROSS SWORDS

Langford, Neill and Adam Dawson Receive an Attentive Hearing—Only Public Meeting of Campaign Gives Marked Approval of Ald. McWilliams as Our Next Mayor.

The public meeting in the opera house last night was attended by a large and enthusiastic audience, who gave an attentive ear to the several speakers in the interest of the municipal election campaign now in full swing. Ex-Councillor Hartley presided and gave British fair play to each candidate for municipal honors. Of course the greatest interest was centered in the Mayoralty candidates—Messrs. McWilliams and Kendry—and the former undoubtedly can claim the meeting as his own, despite the strong combination of his opponents brought to bear against him. He carried his audience with him at every point and the tone of the meeting certainly augurs well for his success at the polls on Monday next.

MAYOR DAVIS.

the first speaker, drew attention to the fact that two years ago he had been elected to the Mayor's chair by the largest majority ever obtained by any previous candidate for the same position. He had on assuming the important trust invested in him determined upon an honest and straightforward policy, and he did not think he could be charged with deviating from that course in any particular. He had adopted also a policy of improvements in the matter of roads and bridges, and he was proud to say that notwithstanding the many miles of granolithic sidewalks constructed during the past two years, the rate still remained at 17 mills on the dollar. Continuing, he claimed credit for bringing new and important industries to Peterborough during his administration. He had been mainly the means of inducing Mr. Ackerman to locate here, and also the Stanley Piano Mfg. Co. In the latter case he had persuaded Mr. Cox to invest a capital of $30,000, on the strength of which the company had transferred their manufacturing business to Peterborough. He did not know, of any clique in the council against Ald. McWilliams. Certain aldermen, together with himself, had certainly objected to Ald. McWilliams retaining the chairmanship of the Street and Bridge Committee for 1899 on account of the expenditure in this direction having exceeded by some $1,400 under his chairmanship the amount spent for like works during previous years. The Council had therefore decided that he was not a fit man for the position, and accordingly made the necessary change. This was the only clique he was aware of that Ald. McWilliams can take exception to. In conclusion he quoted figures to show that the lamentable decrease in the town's revenue during his administration had been met by economical measures in the matter of roads and bridges. He is leaving the Mayor's chair with nothing to be ashamed of in his past transactions, and thought he could honestly claim credit for having introduced much needed permanent improvements without having extended the rate above seventeen mills on the dollar.

THE MAYOR FOR 1900.

Ald. McWilliams next took the platform and was received with a perfect ovation. For the past three years he said, he had served the town faithfully as alderman, taking an active part in municipal affairs. During his term of office he had not made a single motion he was ashamed of, or that he would not make again under similar conditions. Applause. But now he is campaigning for the chief magistrate's position he has to run up against unlooked for opposition. The Review newspaper which during the past three years has not printed one single line in condemnation of my actions as alderman, has a great deal to say why I should not be returned to the polls on Monday next. Twenty-eight years ago when I secured the Government appointment I now have the honor to hold the same paper bitterly attacked me; but during my Crown Timber Agency I have secured to the Province an increase of revenue from $68,000 to $170,000. I have also to contend with the promenent supporters of the Review, but in spit of this I think that on counting the ballots Monday evening its edito will find that the ravings of his paper has had very little effect upon the electorate. Continuing, he deplored the appointment as chairmen of committees men who knew nothing of the business of which they were to be the head. While he had favored the appointment as engineer of Mr. Hay, he must now object to him on the ground of incompetency. Two bridges constructed under his supertendence cost 50 per cent. more than his original estimates. Turning to the sidewalk investigation, he showed a saving of $4573 to the contractors on three contracts, through the original specifications not being carried out, and not a member of the Council but Ald. Langford knew of this deviation from specifications. Referring to the investigation he claimed that the town will save by it at least $2,500; for in future no engineer will dare to vary from the specifications furnished him. Mayor Davis is endeavoring to put the whole blame for the investigation on me, and I am prepared to shoulder the responsibility together with the honor attached to it. He next gave figures to show that the cost of the investigation will not exceed $400, which is money well invested. Hear, hear.

The speaker then took exception to the Review's affirmation that there would be no harmony in the Council while Ald. McWilliams was a member. He did not very well see how he could be a disturbing factor, considering he had a majority of six in his favor out of ten, and he had never had an unpleasant word with his colleagues. Mayor Davis took exception to him because he opposed the Ackerman deal. He had certainly opposed a by-law giving the firm land valued at $1,200 upon which to erect a 100 or [illegible] ft. building without specifying the material of which it was to be built. He also had insisted that a clause should be inserted guaranteeing the employment of a certain number of hands at a specified salary for a period of ten years. (Applause.) He admitted insisting upon knowing upon whose authority the wretched [illegible] had been surprised to learn that Messrs. Davis and Langford were responsible for some of them. He had also objected to Mayor Davis using broken stone upon his street, which is only travelled by light conveyances, and such time, labor and material spent upon it till the road had been converted into a veritable bowling alley. (Laughter.) He condemned Ald. Neill for trying to secure the location here of the Rubber Co., in which Neill is interested. His opinion is that they were playing off Peterborough against Dalhousie in order to secure the best possible terms from the latter town. He did not believe in paying a solicitor $500 a year, win or lose, together with his disbursements. Why, Mr. Edwards has lost every case in the High Court at a cost of $2,600, while he has only won two paltry actions in the Division Court amounting to $31 or $33 all told. (Laughter).

In conclusion, he had, be said, been so unfortunate as to run up against the Auburn Company, because he had insisted upon paying a tax upon poles for the conveyance of power. He did not think that this company had furnished the town with cheaper power, while they had received an exemption of $2500, together with many other priveleges from the town. They are now asking for three hydrants—in fact Ald. Neill had better put a rubber band aroun d the earth and give it to them. Laughter.

met with a hearty reception. He had been brought forward he said by a requisition signed by all classes of citizens. He did not think he was too busy a man to fill the position of Mayor; if elected he would guarantee to all the duties demanded of him. As to his past services for the town he thought he could claim a fair share in furthering its interest. He had been one of those who went to Montreal and in a few days had secured the location here of the General Electric Company. Cheers. He also helped to reorganize the Carbon works; he put $500 into the concern and lost every dollar of it. He would like to know how much money Mr. McWilliams had spent in the town. He, Kendry, had also invested in the Bridge Works, which furnished work to a large number of men.

Continuing he referred to the statement circulated regarding the miserable wages paid by the Auburn Woolen Co., and went on to say that a few years ago, when the woolen trade of Canada was paralyzed and wages cut down to the lowest possible figure, he had to follow suit in order to compete with other mills, but in spite of this reduction he had run his mill for three years at a loss when many similar institutions were shut down. He would leave it to his employees whether he had ever taken advantage of any man or boy in his employ. (Applause.) In the matter of taxation upon the Auburn Power Co's poles, he did not think it just to tax them immediately they were erected. This company are furnishing power to every part of the town at a reasonable rate and are even willing to rent a motor when a man is too poor to purchase one. So far as the Telephone Co. is concerned, everyone knows that they pay $400 for exclusive right—this excludes any other company from coming into town and competing with them.

Turning to the matter of hydrants for the mill, Mr. Kendry claimed that his company had been paying the tax for fire rate several years now without receiving any benefit therefrom, therefore they very reasonably requested the town to supply us with hydrants. Finally they put in a doz on themselves at a big cost. The town then agreed to take over three of them in consideration of the company furnishing protection to their part of the town; but the Council have broken their agreement with us.

In conclusion the speaker claimed credit for the Auburn Company in starting the Knitting Works, which is now employing a large number of hands. He would now leave the issue in the hands of the electorate, whom he thought would readily recognize that he, through being in touch with so many manufacturing interests, is in a better position to serve the town to advantage than his friend, Ald. McWilliams. (Applause.)

ALD. McWILLIAMS.

In a brief reply to Mr. Kendry, while favoring the establishment here of the General Electric Company, argued that Mr. Kendry and his colleagues were responsible for raising the amount of bonus from $15,000, as originally decided upon, to $35,000. And they went further than this. A by-law was prepared authorizing an additional bonus of $5,000, but for some reason this by-law was not pushed through. In the matter of increased expenditure on roads and bridges during the chairmanship of that committee, it must be borne in mind that a large amount of work was done on roads that year necessitating the use of a great quantity of broken stone which accounts for the increase of $1,400 in that department.

OTHER SPEAKERS.

Ald. Neill and Langford, and would-be Ald. Dawson, had their innings, of which they made the most, speaking to the point, all excelling themselves. We regret that space will not permit us to publish their really very creditable efforts. We must not forget to mention, however, that Ald. Langford paid a glowing tribute to Mr. R. F. McWilliams for the exceedingly able manner in which he conducted the case for his father at the investigation, although he regretted that his talent had been thrown away in such a cause. (Laughter).

The meeting was an exceedingly enthusiastic one, but both audience and contestants adjourned on good terms with one another and the world at large.

The Famine in India.

Calcutta, Dec. 29.—About three million persons are receiving famine relief. The Government is spending nearly two lakhs of rupees daily. It is estimated that the cost of the relief to the end of March will be three crores of rupees. Owing to the rapid increase in the number of people asking relief, the Viceroy, Lord Curzon, of Kedleston, invites a closer scrutiny of the claims of the applicants.

Landslide in Ireland.

New York, Dec. 29.—A London cable says that the English Metropolis has decided to adopt the underground electric street car system, such as is now in use in Washington, Boston and New York, and will use American built and American equipped vehicles. The county council has taken steps to appropriate about $15,000,000 to instal the system.

Will Keep Them Separate.

Ottawa, Dec. 29.—The Government plan is to keep the two squadrons of Mounted Police and Rough Riders under separate command. Colonel Steele will occupy the same post over them as Colonel Lessard holds over the two squadrons of mounted rifles of the eastern provinces. This will allow the Mounted Police to be used as scouts, for which their training in the West so admirably fits them.

The Government has given the Ottawa Car Company a contract to construct fourteen express waggons for field service. They will be perfectly equipped with the most modern appliances and will be ready in ample time for the embarkation of the contingent.

Col. Hutchinson, of Nashville, Tenn., has written to Mr. Geo. C. Holland, official Senate reporter, offering to supply 200 horsemen to go along with the second Canadian contingent. The men served in the Cuban war and are all experienced, dashing riders and eager to go. Mr. Holland has handed the letter to the Minister.

New Steamship Line.

New York, Dec. 29.—Announcement is made that arrangements have been completed by Frederick Leyland & Company, Limited, of Liverpool, for the establishment of a weekly passenger steamship service between New York and Liverpool. The new line will have six big vessels in operation within two months.

London Goes Ahead.

London, Dec. 29.—Severe gales rain and snowstorms are reported in the mountains of Ireland. At Nenagh, near the Nenagh river, a landslide, followed by a rush of water swept away two farm houses, with their occupants. Much damage has been done to other property. Reports from Queenstown say there is no abatement in the force of the gale which has been raging for hours. The Dominion Line steamer New England, from Boston to Liverpool was unable to land her mails. Several barges have foundered in Queenstown harbor and the club house of the Royal Cork Yacht Club is half wrecked.

Volunteers at Calgary.

Calgary, N.W.T., Dec. 29.—Out of 125 applicants for the contingent here 86 passed the medical examination and 34 have been accepted.

Trains Running at Colenso

Pretoria, Dec. 25.—General Schalkburger reports, under date of Dec. 23, that trains are now running to Colenso, indicating that the Boers have built a connection around Ladysmith. General Cronje reports from the Modder river, Dec. 24, that the Boers captured two British forts at Kuruman, Dec. 17. It is rumored that General Methuen's big naval gun has exploded.

SAYS IT WAS NOT ALL SMOKE.

A Correspondent Thinks There is Something in the Delagoa Bay Statement.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Commenting upon the official denial made concerning the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger's story of the secret treaty by which Portugual's colonial possessions are to be devided, the Tribune's London correspondent declares that the story is not all smoke, saying that all well-informed diplomatists are convinced, however, that Germany will enlarge her colonial possessions in some quarter at the end of the war, and will have a free hand when she wants it in the future in Asia Minor or elsewhere. It is not considered probable that Lord Salisbury has consented to the sale of Goa, Macao, and Damao to Germany, but the future of the East African possessions of Portugal was discussed without doubt at the Foreign Office with the German Ambassador a year ago. The German Emperor and Mr. Chamberlain are known to have held a prolonged consultation at Windsor a few weeks ago, and by the process of exclusion the diplomats have reached the conclusion that East Africa was the subject which interested them. It may be premature or unsafe to carry out these arrangements at present in view of Russian reprisals in Herat and of French intrigues in Morocco, but the shewdest observers in diplomatic circles forecast the ultimate occupation of Delagoa Bay by Great Britain, and the enlargement of German East Africa southward to Zambesi. The Berlin disclosure is probably accurate to that extent, but has been overloaded with fiction respecting Portuguese possessions within the Indian sphere.

HAS GEN. GATACRE WON ANOTHER BATTLE?

The Road to Indwe Collieries Has Been Re-opened by the British Forces.

THE BOERS HAVE MOUNTED ANOTHER HOWITZER

The Gun Which Was Captured in a Recent Sortie Has Been Replaced—Eight Hundred Boers Secede From the Army. Soldiers Pleased at Roberts' Appointment.

London, Dec. 29.

The War Office has received this despatch dated Cape Town, Dec. 28, "The Indwe colliery line is now working again."

A despatch received by the War Department, dated Cape Town, Dec. 28; says there is no change in the situation so far as Generals Gatacre and French are concerned.

Kimberley, Dec. 22

Before dawn to-day a detachment of the mounted forces, with artillery and light infantry, moved out in a westerly direction. Boer artillery from Camperdam opened fired at Ottos Kopje, Kimberley fort replied with twenty shells. The British force reconnoitered outposts along Lazaretto ridge, the Boer patrols retreating. Having accomplished this and having discovered Boer reinforcements approaching from Wimbledon ridge, Col. Chamier with the Royal Artillery, exchanged a dozen shells as soon as the guns could be limbered up. Some 500 Boers poured in a heavy fire from their earthworks, the British finally retiring with the loss of one horse. The movement showed that the Boers were still keeping the regions in the vicinity of Kimberley and are able to summon reinforcements rapidly. It also showed their proness to vacate a position immediately when weaker than the opposing forces.

London, Dec. 29.

The Prince of Wales has accepted the chief coloneleney of the Royal Yeomanry and has contributed one hundred pounds for the use of the organization.

Pretoria, Dec. 26

By way of Lourenzo Marques, Dec. 28, Commandant Swart reports from the laager at Alowyns kop, near Zeorust, that he had an engagement on Dec. 22nd with Kaffirs in the neighborhood of Dorderpoort. The Kaffirs occupied a strongly fortified position and were well prepared for emergenceies. After heavy fighting the Burghers captured the Kaffir position, losing three killed and five wounded.

Commandant Snyman reports as follows from Molepo, "On Monday morning the enemy from Mafeking attacked one of our forts in force with cannon, maxims and an armored train and so persistently that there was fighting right on the walls of the fort, but we have retained our fort. The British loss is reported as 55."

The other commandos report all quiet with the exception of the usual bombardment of Ladysmith. General Lucas Meyer has recovered and returned to the front.

Ladysmith, Dec 24

General White has had a slight attack of fever, but he is now convalescent. The Boer shell fire has been very damaging recently. On Friday, one shell killed six men and wounded nine. The same missle killed fourteen horses. Another just missed the Fifth Lancers lines, slightly wounding six officers. Several shells have fallen close to General White's house, compelling the removal of headquarters to another point.

It is reported that General Joubert is again in command of the Boers here. The military authorities appear confident, but they are very reticent.

Boers have been observed moving northward and westward in large numbers.

MUTINY AMONG THE BOERS.

London, Dec. 29.—A despatch from Lorenzo Marquez, dated Dec. 21, says a curious story is current emanating from Boer sources that Mattsteyn, brother of the President of the Orange Free State, and 800 Free Staters have definitely refused to continue the war.

Mattsteyn, acting as spokesman for the party, is reported to have told the President that he was only authorized to intervene in the interest of peace and that the burghers did not feel they were bound by his "unwarrantable conduct" especially as they ran the risk of the confiscation of their property, and they simply desired to be permitted to farm in peace and proposed to immediately return to their farms.

SOLDIERS ARE ENTHUSIASTIC.

London, Dec. 29.—Despatches from all parts of South Africa emphasize the great enthusiasm among the troops and public occasioned by the new appointments, those of Generals Roberts and Kitchener. The announcement that the former will have supreme command and that the latter will be chief of staff has largely dispelled the depression in Cape Colony caused by the recent reverses, while the soldiers anticipate everything from the presence of "Bobs" fresh from success in battle to [illegible].

THE DUKE WILL FIGHT.

New York, Dec. 29.—The British War Office has notified the Duke of Marlborough that his offer to serve in South Africa as a captain of Imperial yeomanry is accepted, says a London cable. The Duke expects to sail about the end of January. John Churchill, a cousin of the Duke, Lady Randolph's second son, 19 years old, is accepted as a lieutenant in the same corps.

LATEST FROM MAFEKING.

London, Dec. 29.—A War Office despatch from Col. Baden-Powel, dated Dec. 12, announcing that Lady Sarah Wilson has arrived safe and well at Mafeking, adds that the bombardment and musketry fire continue daily on all sides, and that the health and spirits of the garrison are very satisfactory.

MOUNT ANOTHER HOWITZER.

Pietermaritzburg, Dec. 27.—A despatch from Ladysmith dated Dec. 22, says:—The Boers have mounted another Howitzer on Surprise Hill, replacing the gun captured in the sortie of the rifle brigade. While they watch us nightly with a searchlight and bombard the place daily they show not signs of assaulting the town. They probably think they can starve us out but we have plenty of provisions.

The total casualties since the siege are seventy men killed and two hundred and thirty-six wounded.

FIGHTING NEAR STORMBERG.

Cape Town, Dec. 28.—A despatch from Cradack reports heavy firing in the direction of Stormberg. It is supposed this is connected with General Gatacre's attempt to reopen communication with the Indwe collieries.

FAMINE FOLLOWS WAR.

Deserted Cities of tha Republic and Free State.

AWFUL STATE OF AFFAIRS.

Exodus of Uitlanders Unprecedented in the History of the Country.

Consul General Stowe Sends a Lengthy Despatch to The American Government—The Transvaal's Troubles are Only Beginning.

(Special To The Times.)

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—Consul Gen. Stowe wires from South Africa—The exodus of Uitlanders from the South African Republic and Orange Free State, has, I believe, been unprecedented in history. Many of the people—the mining population, the bone and sinew of the country—have scattered over the world. Numbers of them, too poor to get out of the country, are subject to charity in the cities of Cape Colony and Natal, and have to be fed. Some have funds for a few days or weeks, but will in time have to be supported by the public, and this country, that can not, or does not, produce the food-stuffs for its own people. The English army is fed with supplies from other countries, and while much of these may have originally come from the United States, they reached here via England. The customs duties and railroad and telegraphs are owned by the government, a very large source of government support is lost, to say nothing of the employes thrown out of work.

Johannesburg in the Transvaal, and Bloemfontein, in the Free State, are to all intents and purposes deserted cities. Johannesburg, the largest commercial center in South Africa, has, so far as trade is concerned, ceased to exist. This once busy, bustling city, producing monthly over fifteen tons of gold, and nearly $60,000,000 worth is silent. Up to this time goods have reached the Transvaal, via Delagoa Bay, but it is not supposed they will long be permitted to [illegible] two republics must then live on [illegible] resources. Their crops are ready [illegible] sickle, but can not be cut, as th[illegible] are off to the war. Prices are [illegible] that the trade papers refrain fr[illegible] lishing the usual column of 'ma[illegible] ers.' Large quantities of gold [illegible] to seaports in this colony for [illegible] to England have been taken by t[illegible] Representatives here of export [illegible] ion houses of the United States [illegible] stantly booking and cabling [illegible] ders, particularly of food-stuffs, [illegible] comes from the canners of meat and fish, makers of flour, cornmeal, etc., that they have about all they can do to supply the home demand, and are many weeks or months behind orders.

That famine will follow war is no secret. Already the price of breadstuffs is advancing, and things will soon be at famine prices.

THE PAVING CONTRACTS

The Report of Judge Weller Made Public.

NO STARTLING DISCLOSURES

The Judge holds that the Investigation was most Imperative.

Town Engineer May Left to Finish Where Judge Left Off—An Interesting Document.

The following is the decision of Judge Weller in the granolithic pavement investigation —

To the Mayor and Aldermen of the Town of Peterborough in Council:

I now beg leave to make to you my report upon reference to me under your resolution passed upon the 6th day of October last. That resolution reads as follows:

That whereas it has been alleged in this council, that the work of building the granolithic pavements has not been carried out in accordance with the contracts entered into between the town and various contractors, viz., R. Sheehy and Evans & Langford, and that said contractors have failed to fulfil their contracts, and that one or more of the officers of the corporation or members of the council, or contractors, have been guilty of malfeasance, breach of trust, or other misconduct in connection with such contracts;

Therefore, be it resolved that the Judge of the County Court of the County of Peterborough, be requested to investigate all matters which may be brought before him by any interested party in connection with the said contracts and particularly as to the following questions in relation to each of the above referred to contracts:

1. Has the contract been fulfilled in accordance with the specifications stated therein?

2. If not, in what particulars, and to what extent is there a difference?

3. Has such difference increased or decreased the cost of the work to the contractor, and to what amount?

4. If the specifications have been changed, by whom and by what authority was each change made?

5. Did the Inspectors, the Town Engineer and the Chairman of the Board of Works, respectively, take all proper steps according to their duties, to prevent or report any alteration or inferiority in the work called for by the contract?

6. Is there any evidence of fraud upon the part of the contractors or any of their employees?

7. Has any member of the Council, or officer of the corporation, or any of the said contractors been guilty, of any malfeasance, breach of trust, or other misconduct in relation to the duties or obligations of such member, officer or contractor to the municipality in connection with any of said contracts?

And that in such investigation all members of the council, officers of the corporation and contractors and their sureties, shall be considered to be interested parties, and shall be permitted to be heard, and to be represented if they so desire.

And that the Clerk be instructed to forward this resolution to the County Judge at once, and to request him to take up such investigation, and report thereon, as speedily as possible.

This resolution was passed under the authority of section 324 of "The Municipal Act" by virtue of which only the council would have power to pass such a resolution.

That section is as follows:

In case the council of any municipality at any time passes a "resolution requesting the Judge of the County Court of the county in which the municipality is situate to investigate any matter to be mentioned in the resolution and relating to a supposed malfeasance, breach of trust or other misconduct on the part of any member of the council or office of the corporation or of any person having a contract therewith in relation to the duties or obligations of the member, officer or other person to the municipality. . . . The Judge shall enquire into the same and shall for that purpose have all the powers which may be conferred upon commissioners under the act respecting inquiries concerning public matters."

It should be carefully borne in mind and I desire to state that the words "or other misconduct" mean misconduct of the kind and character im[illegible] preceding, namely, "mal[illegible]" or "breach of trust." The [illegible]reaking of any contract by a [illegible] may be said to be and is mis[illegible]ct for which he may be made [illegible] by ordinary process un[illegible] has proper justification or ex[illegible]t such a breach does not nec[illegible] imply malfeasance, breach of [illegible] misconduct of that kind. [illegible] be as well that I should an[illegible] several questions put in the [illegible] in their order: [illegible] the contract been fulfilled [illegible] with the specifications stated therein?

This refers to the first contract entered into by Mr. Sheehy. It provided for the making of sidewalks composed of a foundation of stone about which there is no complaint; upon this was to be laid a layer of concrete called throughout the enquiry, the base, and upon this the wearing surface was to be laid. As to the base objection was made that the cement used was "Ensign" brand instead of the "Star" brand. These are both manufactured by the Rathbun Co., and in the opinion of Mr. Allan who has charge of this department and who gave evidence, one is as good as the other for the purpose for which it was used. The contract does not provide for any particular quality. The "Ensign" was approved by the Engineer and therefore properly used by the contractor. The Engineer before approval made every reasonable enquiry in regard to it, and it is impossible to say that his judgment was erroneous, at any rate it is plain to see it was exercised in good faith.

In regard to the wearing surface it was objected that the quality of cement used was much less than required by contract. This called for one part of best Portland cement to two parts of crushed granite with a certain percentage of sand in the discretion of the Engineer. In beginning the work, this proportion of granite and cement was used for one batch but Mr. Lawless who was the top dresser found it was not workable. Then a certain quantity of sand was used and that mixture was found by him not to answer and finally a mixture of one box of granite, one box of sand and five and a half bags of cement was found satisfactory and was used throughout the contract. Mr. Lawless seemed to be a man of much experience in this kind of work and I should say from what I saw of him in the witness box, thoroughly reliable. Mr. Ranney, the inspector of the work appointed by the council was present when these experiments were being made and assisted at them. He objects however, in his report, that two bags of cement had been "purloined." What he means by that is, I suppose, that although there was in reality seven bags of cement put into the mixture at first, when he counted them after being emptied, there were only five bags, two of them having been abstracted and that he was thereby deceived and led to believe that the quantity of cement used thereafter, (5 1-2) bags was the quantity he saw mixed with the granite and sand. If that purloining was done, then Mr. Ranney would be quite justified in saying that a fraud had been committed by someone. Now Mr. Ranney is a thoroughly honourable and upright man and to my own knowledge he has borne that character and reputation for the past fifty years, and would not make an assertion of this kind unless he honestly believed it to be true. Still like all men, no matter how honest, he may sometimes be mistaken. The evidence shows I am compelled to say, that such was the case in this instance. He himself could not affirm that the act he complained of was committed, but merely that the he believed so, whereas all those who could possibly have done it, on their oaths declared that it was not done by them or anyone else.

The use of this mixture with the 5 1-2 bags of cement continued till the contract was partly performed and the walk built as far as Westlake's livery stable on Water st., where Mr. Ranney reported to the Engineer the improper use as he thought of the 5 1-2 bags. The Engineer examined into the matter and acquiesced in the proportions and directed the work to go on as before and it was therefore so continued to completion, and Mr. Ranney did not make his report to the council until long after such completion, in fact not till after Mr. Sheehy had been awarded his second contract.

The work having been performed in this way and under these circumstances it is plain that there was no malfeasance, breach of trust or any like misconduct on the part of Mr. Sheehy in regard to either of his contracts and I may as well now say the same as to Evans & Langford in regard to whom in fact, no such misconduct was set up or urged. I have no opinion to express regarding the work outside the question of "malfeasance, breach of trust or other misconduct." It would be wrong for me to do so, as I might thereby prejudice the mind of the Engineer in his future dealings with contractors.

If there has been any breach of the contract requiring compensation by the contractors, they and the corporation have agreed that the Engineer shall be the person to settle that, and in considering any such question, he will no doubt take the contract conditions and specifications as a whole. Clause one of the general conditions provides in part, "should any discrepancies appear or any misunderstand arise. . . as to the quality or dimensions of the materials or as to the due and proper execution of the works . . . . or as extras therefor, or deductions therefrom, the same shall be determined by the Town Engineer, and his decision shall be final and binding upon both parties, and from it there shall be no appeal." Therefore in regard to such differences by express agreement between the parties, the Engineer is to be the judge. Clause 4—"The Engineer shall be the sole judge of the quantity and quality of the work done, . . . and his decision shall be final and binding on both parties to this contract." Clause 38 of the General Conditions provides in part, "The Engineer shall have the right to . . . increase or

An Extraordinary Motto For a Reporter's Funeral Emblem.

In his story of "The Last of the Mulberry Street Barons," in The Century, Mr. Jacob A. Riis, author of "How the Other Half Lives," tells a rather gruesome but very amusing anecdote of a fellow reporter attached to police headquarters in Mulberry street, New York.

There had been a feud of long standing between the reporters in Mulberry street, and in consequence news was plentiful. There were mutual scores to be paid off, and we paid them off in the coin of the realm. The coin of Mulberry street was murder, fire and sudden death (we had passed the stage of boxing gloves and did not speak as we passed by), and it went a long way. I do not mean, of course, that we murdered or burned up one another, but these things were the staples of our daily work as police reporters, and when we were "out" the precinct returns received an extra sifting, with the result that many a grain of newspaper wheat that would otherwise have escaped was rescued from the dust bin.

We had our specialties in this contest of wits. One was distinguished as a sleuth. He fed on detective mysteries as a cat on a chicken bone. He thought them out by day and dreamed them out by night, to the great exasperation of the official detectives, with whom their solution was a commercial, not in the least an intellectual, affair. They solved them on the plane of the proverbial lacking of honor among thieves, by the formula, "You scratch my back, and I'll scratch yours."

Another came out strong on fires. He knew the history of every house in town that ran any risk of being burned, knew every fireman and could tell within $1,000, more or less, what was the value of the goods stored in any building in the dry goods district and for how much they were insured. If he couldn't, he did anyhow, and his guesses often came near the facts, as shown in the final adjustment. He sniffed a firebug from afar and knew without asking how much salvage there was in a bale of cotton after being 24 hours in the fire. He is dead, poor fellow. In life he was fond of a joke, and in death the joke clung to him in a way wholly unforeseen.

The firemen in the next block, with whom he made his headquarters when off duty, so that he might always be within hearing of the gong, wished to give some tangible evidence of their regard for the old reporter, but, being in a hurry, left it to the florist, who knew him well, to choose the design. He hit upon a floral fire badge as the proper thing, and thus it was that when the company of mourners was assembled and the funeral service in progress there arrived and was set upon the coffin, in the view of all, that triumph of the florist's art, a shield of white roses, with this legend written across it in red immortelles: "Admit Within Fire Lines Only." It was shocking, but irresistible. It brought down even the house of mourning.

A Curious Old Ad.

A Boston paper has unearthed this curious old advertisement from the Boston Post Boy and Advertiser for March 16, 1767: "The Bell-Cart will go through Boston, before the End of next March, to Collect Rags for the Paper Mills at Milton, when all People that will encourage the Paper Manufactory may dispose of them; the best Price will be given. They are taken in at Mr. Caleb Davis's Shop, at the Fortification; Mr. Andrew Gillespie's, near Dr. Clark's; Mr. Andrew Randale's, near Phillips's Wharf; and Mr. John Boies's in Long Lane; Mr. Frothingham's in Charleston; Mr. Williams's in Marblehead; Mr. Ellson's in Salem; Mr. John Harris's in Newbury; Mr. Daniel Fowle's in Portsmouth; and at the Paper Mill in Milton.

"Rags are as Beauties, which concealed lie;
But when in Paper, how it charms the Eye!
Pray save Rags, new Beauties to discover,
For Paper truly, every one's a Lover:
By th' Pen and Press such Knowledge is displayed,
As wouldn't exist if Paper was not made.
Wisdom of Things, mysterious, divine,
Illustriously doth on Paper shine."

But They Weren't Civilized.

Traveling in southern India, one day I was taken into the country to see tapioca roots gathered and ground for use. The adults working in the grove, men and women, had each a rag around the loins, but the boys and girls, with their black, glossy skins, were free of all incumbrance.

Our guide explained to these people that we were from a country so far away and so different from theirs that the waters were sometimes made solid by the extreme cold and we could walk upon them; that sometimes it was so intensely cold that the rain was frozen into particles and lay on the earth so deep that people could not walk through it, and that three and four layers of heavy clothes had to be worn.

This happy people, as our guide told us, wondered why we staid there, why we did not come and enjoy life in their favored clime.—Andrew Carnegie in North

THE BOXER'S FINISH.

ONE BOUT THAT SETTLED HIS PUGILISTIC AMBITION.

He Didn't Know the Man He Ran Up Against Until He Came Back to Consciousness, After Having Seen a Large Display of Stars.

"When I was much younger," said the portly government official, "I was a husky young fellow, chesty and cocky about my pugilistic ability. I got the boxing bee in my bonnet and practiced hard with the gloves every night. I had been sparring with fellows in my gymnasium for about six months and picking up what I thought was a whole lot of cleverness, when I moved to a boarding house on Pierrepont street, in Brooklyn. I had a room on the top floor of this boarding house. The top floor's rooms were all occupied by young fellows like myself—law and medical students, newspaper chaps and that sort. It was rather a scapegrace lot, and I got acquainted with most of them immediately. I had a lot of athletic gear along with me—clubs, dumbbells, weight pulling machines and stuff—and from the jump I gave these floor mates of mine to understand that I was some considerable pumpkins as an athlete. When I showed 'em my boxing gloves, I was particular to dwell upon the fact that boxing was my one particular graft, and I think I modestly threw the hint out that I'd never yet met a man of my weight that could pull the gloves on with me in the amateur class. For a couple of nights running I let them look at me in the act of punching a bag I had suspended from the ceiling of my room, and they all agreed, I think, that I'd be rather an unsafe proposition to get addled up with in a scrap.

"One of the occupants of that top floor was away when I struck the house, and he didn't return until I had been in the house for about a week. When he got back, the other fellows introduced me to him. I didn't catch his name at the time, but he didn't strike me as being a very cheerful chap, and I rather ignored him. Well, all got to talking on my favorite subject, sparring, after awhile, and I invited any of the fellows present to put on the gloves for a little 'go' with me.

"'I won't hurt you, you know,' said I. 'I'll just tap you lightly, and you can hit me as hard as you want. It's raining, and I don't want to go to the gym tonight, and I wish one of you dubs 'ud just slip 'em on with me.'

"I didn't quite understand what they all meant when they exchanged glances and pushed forward the man who had been away since my advent in the house and whom I had just met.

"'Go on and put 'em on with him,' they urged this man. 'He won't hurt you. You've had the gloves on once or twice, anyhow, while none of the rest of us knows anything about boxing. Go ahead and give him a little exercise.'

"'All right,' said this man rather reluctantly. He looked just like an ordinary man with his coat on, and I felt that he would be dead easy as a subject upon whom to practice and to show the other fellows what I knew about the fine points of the game. When he returned from his room, however, stripped to his trousers and his gauze undershirt, I couldn't help but look at the chap. For a man of ordinary size he had the hugest chest I had ever seen, and his arms and shoulders were simply knotted and twisted with muscles. He was as quiet spoken a duck as ever I saw, though, and he didn't look to be lively on his feet, so we went at it.

"Well, say that was a one man bout, and the other fellow was the one man. There was nothing to it but him. From the very minute that we squared off I could see by the way he handled his dukes that the boxing game was his'n and that I was like six lead nickels in comparison with him. He just fooled with me at first—rapped me here and there at will, adding insult to injury by quietly announcing where he was going to jolt me next—and I never got in a lick or a dab on him. I tried my derndest when I saw I was totally outclassed to get in just one belt at him somewhere or other, but it was no go. He had a lightning guard for every essay I made to crack him one, and after about five minutes I was puffing like a tree toad and still taking whacks all over my hide, while he was as cool as a cucumber.

"'You're pretty good,' I gasped when we took a momentary rest. 'You've been at this game often, haven't you?'

"'I've had 'em on a few times,' he replied quietly. 'Let's have another short go.'

"Then we went at it again. He fiddled around for a minute, and then he caught me one with his left fist right under the chin. I went sailing up into the air—I saw enough stars to have gone sailing right up among 'em—and I was out when I came down—good and out, as clean a case of knocked out boxer as ever happened in a prize ring. It was fully ten minutes before I came to, and when I did the other fellows were all fanning me and rubbing my head with ammonia and wondering if I was a sure enough dead 'un. I was all right after I got my head under the cold water spigot, and then one of the fellows took me into the center of the gang and said to me:

"'Maybe you didn't quite catch the name of the man you boxed with when you were introduced to him, hey?'

"'No, I didn't,' said I. 'Who is he—John L. Sullivan?'

"'Not exactly. Mr. Ford, step up and shake hands again. This,' went on the young fellow doing the introducing addressing me, 'is Malcolm W. Ford, the champion all around athlete of America. He has held that title for three years, earning it each year in competition with the best men in the whole country in athletic games. He holds the record for the running broad jump, the standing high jump, the pole vault, hammer throwing, shot putting, and he's among the best in the world as a 100 yard sprinter. He's all right.'

"'Yes,' said I. 'I think he is—even if he is a party to this awful job on me,' and we shook hands. When the gang saw I was game enough to take my roasting good naturedly, they let up on me. But my pugilistic ambition wilted absolutely from that night."

Was Hanged Once Again.

G. W. Steevens, who traveled extensively in India, tells the following interesting story: A Pathan was being hanged, when the rope broke. The warder bade him go up on to the scaffold again, but he objected. "No," he said, "I was sentenced to be hanged, and hanged I've been."

"Not so, friend," argued the warden, "you were sentenced to be hanged until you were dead, and you're not dead."

It was a new view to the Pathan, and he turned to the superintendent. "In that [illegible] sahib!"

When you dream that somebody is pushing you over a precipice it's time you looked after your stomach and liver. You may not believe in dreams but that particular sort of dream is likely to come pretty near true if you don't take prompt measures to prevent it. If you neglect the warning you may find that you are actually pushing yourself over the precipice of disease into the abyss of death. Don't forget that your heart and lungs and brain and nerves are supplied with blood and nutriment through your stomach, liver and bowels. If they do not do their work properly — if the blood is full of poisonous matter your whole body will soon be full of impurity and disease, and it is small wonder you dream of disaster.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery purifies and enriches the blood. It cleanses the whole digestive system and is an antidote for poison in the blood. It is a blood-maker and flesh-builder and is good for the nerves. It brings restful sleep and a clear head. It contains no alcohol, whisky, sugar, syrup, or dangerous opiates.

"I used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets' and have had no trouble with indigestion since," writes Mr. W. T. Thompson, of Townsend, Broadwater Co., Montana. "Words fail to tell how thankful I am for the relief, as I had suffered so much and it seemed that the doctors could do me no good. I got down in weight to 130 pounds, and was not able to work. Now I weigh nearly 160 and can do a day's work on the farm."

Where the Pot of Gold is Buried.

How many women are fretting and struggling along on a very little money when a good sized yard or adjoining patch of ground is going to waste! Yet that very piece of ground may contain all sorts of possibilities—clothes, furniture, books, medicines, luxuries and even necessities otherwise impossible.

Clear, plow, fertilize and plant. This done, the great beginning is made, and perseverance and attention will ensure the rest. Onions, tomatoes, cabbages, celery, a small poultry farm, a violet or rose farm—any one of these may add several hundred dollars to one's purse every year. Small fruits, hops, tuberoses and grapes are also very profitable. With some intelligence a blooming garden can always be made a paying one. Make it a principle to have no more waste in the garden than in the kitchen.

If there is only a very small place and just enough raised for one's own family, try, after the table is supplied, to prepare what vegetables and fruits are left over for sale for winter use. There is always a demand for good homemade canning and preserving. Do not let a valuable scrap of ground be idle.—Annette Halliday-An-

THE LIME JUICE CLUB

A Long Way After The Lime Kiln Club

"What I was going to remark," said the President, as the seige opened, "was to the effect that Kingwilliam Smith, commonly known as the [illegible] now in the antie-room waiting for an invitation to deliver his oration on 'The Great Men of the Past.' He has come from Ottawa for this special purpose, paying his own fare part of the way and walking the rest on the railroad ties, and if there are no objections we'll bring him in."

"Did I understand the chair to say if there are no 'dejections'?" asked Bro. Bombshell Conroy, as he suddenly popped up.

"You did, sir."

"Dejections—ah. Didn't the chair mean to say there was no——

"Bro. Conroy," interrupted the President, "when this chair says dejection he don't mean inflections, directions or deflections. The last time you interrupted the proceedings of this meeting you were told that the next display of capfulness on your part would result in a fine. Painful as it is to me, and as much as I feel for you, I shall impose a fine of $400 and costs. The costs, as near as I can figure, will be about $900. You will consider yourself suspended from membership until the fine is paid."

Bombshell sat down on his chair. His eyes rolled, his breathing was labored, and he suddenly fainted away and dragged Bro. Frank Fairen with him to the ground.

During the excitement nine or ten persons received the contents of the water pail and Bro. Croft was woke out of his first nap. Bro. Bombshell finally revived and bound a wet towell around his head.

Bro. Dick Davidson arose to make a statement. He was intimately acquainted with the pecuniary resources of Bro. Bombshell. His earnings for the past year were exactly $383.29. His expenditures were exactly $283.25. The balance was only four cents. This year the balance would be closer still, and even in the best year to come there was no hope of a great increase. Giving four cents as the average yearly balance, and it would take Bro. Bombshell 250,000 years to pay his fine and secure his restoration to membership. The speaker hoped that mercy would prevail and the fine be withdrawn.

After a brief consultation with Darkness Ross and Bro. Fife, the President arose and announced that he would remit the fine and costs, and that the member's narrow escape from being killed stone dead would be a great moral warning for him throughout the rest of his days.

The Lecture.

The Committee on Reception then donned their red neckties and escorted the great orator into the Hall. He was given a general introduction from the platform, a glass of water and a lemon placed on his left hand, and after clearing his throat and adjusing his necktie, he began:

[illegible] by he world cheered his name. When he recommended any liver pills them pills were considered boss. (Sensation.) When he acted as judge at a horse race no man dared appeal. When he entered a street car everybody hitched along. When he rode out in his carriage bucher carts turned pale and took a back street. The newspapers glo-ified him, the public applauded him, and the banks fairly ached to cash his checks. (Wild cheer by Bro. Billy Lech, who escaped a fine of $1,200.) But where is he to-day? His sweet song is silent; his dog has quit barking, and even his name is forgotten except by the few interested in antiquities. (Cheers by Mainspring Wasson.)

"Where is Plato? Ask Sir Wilfred Laurier or Sir Charles Tupper, and they can't tell you. Ask them at the depots and a shake of the head will tell the sad story. Gone! Gone! When he crossed the rubicon the world thundered with applause. (Applause from Bro. Sam Ray.) When he crossed the Alps nations trembled. (Cheers from the back end of the Hall.) When he wrote poetry the world wept. (Suppressed aplause from Bro. McKay.) But he is passed away. (A quiet sob from Boneyard Billyjim.) The blight and the mildew struck him and he faded, and only now and then, as you see a game of dominoes, do you hear his name referred to. (Prolonged cheers.)

"But I did not come here to take up the time of this meeting. (Applause.) I simply desired to present you with a few gems from my oratorical album, and to say to you that hereafter I can be found at Bro. Powie Morgan's commodious hotel, where I shall be ready at all times to cure bunyons, cracked heels and sore toes and deliver my full lecture at the low price of twenty-five cents a head—children free."

For fully two minutes there was a dead silence, and then Bro. Alf Tyrell gave a cheer that cracked seven lamp chimneys and released forty-three chunks of plaster from the ceiling.

A Dead Failure.

During a discussion in the Club some time since on the question of preadarving fall vegetables Bro. Jim Davidson, a member from Smith, announced that pumpkins, after being treated to two coats of varnish, could be kept for several years. Bro. Wm. O'Brien, of Douro, chairman of the Committee on Agriculture, was instructed to treat several pumpkins in this manner and report progress to the Club. At this meeting he announced his readiness to report and said:

"The next time this Club wants to waste any varnish it had better pour it down a rat hole. It took just a quart to a pumpkin. The first week there was no great change in the pumpkins, but during the second week two of them showed signs of the measels—one turned wrong side out and the other two kind of turned over to the north. At the end of the third week the sanitary officer of Slopeville knocked on the door and told my hired girl that if we didn't remove that smell out of the neighborhood they'd send me a summons, and no doubt I would be sent to prison for eighteen hundred years. The varnish business is a fraud and a snare, and it takes a heap of soap to wash it off the fingers." (Wild cheer by mistake from Anvil McCann, who was promptly fined three hundred dollars and costs.)

A Photograph Question.

At this point Bro. Thanksawfully Smith, his face illuminated with a smile, secured the floor and announced that a proposition had been made to the Club through him. It was that a photograph should be taken of the Hall of Wisdom by Bro. Camera Whiten, with a weekly meeting in full blast, and in return for the privilege each member was to be presented with a copy free.

When he had taken his seat there was great hitching around, and Billy Bletcher, Darkness Ross, and Jack Genmell were seen posing themselves as if ready for the camera. By and by the President arose and said:

"Gentlemen, there ain't the smallest doubt that some of us are so awfully pretty that we hadn't ought to lose any time in seccuring our photographs at any price, but out of respect to the feelings of those who haven't any beauty to brag about, we'll wait awhile before consenting to the proposition. I had my picture taken with Bro Billy Lech, Bob Fair, John Maloney, Dr. Greer, and some more of the boys at the Olympic picnic last summer, and it was the most give-away I ever saw. I can close one eye and imagine what a photograph of this Hall would be, and I don't want any of it."

Christmas Melody.

Mozart Rogers and the Harmony Club now secured the floor and rendered the following "Ode to Christmas," written expressly for the occassion by Bro. Snowden:

Turkey's in the oven,
Rooster in the pot,
Betsie grating taters,
Coffee scalding hot.

Kendry's got the turnips
Macie's got the beer,
Sally set the table—
Be quick there, my dear.

This Christmas Day
The President has willed;
Of beer, tater and turkey
You and I must be filled.

The Elections.

The President said he had a few remarks to make in regard to the elections on Monday.

Go to the polls early and get right away as soon as you have put in your vote.

If any of the Kendry crowd should molest you, or endeavor to persuade you that black is white, just tell them that you read the Morning Times and know which side your bread is buttered on.

Don't blow about the candidates. Let the candidates do their own blowing.

Don't stand around the poll talking about the high taxes and the elegant sidewalks and roadways in the neighborhood of Ald. Neill's residence. Ald. Neill isn't running this year and your talk will do no good.

Don't mix up in any fights, because fights are none of your business and folks may get their ribs broken

The Close.

The hour for closing having arrived, the President rolled up his eyes and said:

"If Bro. Ed. Brown will kindly wake up Bro. Croft, we will close the meeting. You will all remember, gentlemen, that the loudest voice don't sink the deepest into the heart. Big words may shut the other man up, but it won't convince him. One kind word is worth more than a pleasant day, while a pound of crackers and about half a pound of cheese will put more heart into a poor man than all the promises ever made on the eve of an election. We will now press out into the cold and cruel world, and seek our respective homes."

THE PEOPLE'S UNBOUNDED EULOGY!

Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Power Has Had an Almost Universal Endorsation as the Greatest Healer of the Most Insidious and Common Disease of the Century.

Catarrh is a Menace to the Race--The Precursor of Much Suffering and the Forerunner of Incurable Throat and Lung Troubles.

But this Great Remedy Cures and Prevents Colds, Drives Out Catarrh Germs and Frees the Whole System from the Foulness Incident to Catarrh.

No remedy yet compounded for the healing of catarrh has received the unbounded eulogy from the people in high positions, socially, publicly or professionally, as Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder.

Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder is a specific for catarrh. It gives almost instant relief, not only in the acute forms, but chronic cases of many years' standing vanish under its persistent use. It will break up a cold in the head in almost quicker time than it takes to tell it. It is a pleasant, powerful and potent protection against the almost constant climatic changes to which this northern world is subject.

Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder is the permanent eradicator and perpetual exterminator of this most insidious and yet common foe of humanity generally. If you are a sufferer take counsel of the thousands to whom it had been a sovereign balm—the beacon to show the way to health and the haven of health.

Mrs. J. H. Harte, of 223 Church street, Toronto, in telling of her faith in and cure by this wonderful remedy, says—"I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder. For years I suffered intensely and constantly from catarrh in its worst form. I took everything I could purchase that promised me a cure, without any permanent results until I tried Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder. The first application of it—and it's so simple to apply—gave me great relief. I perservered in the use of it for eight months and to-day I am fully restored, not the slightest symptom of the malady remaining, and I am thankful to be able to give this testimony for so worthy a remedy after trying so many so-called [illegible] to disappointment."

Have you a cough? Is the voice husky? Is the breath foul? Are you losing flesh? Do you ache all over? Do you take cold easily? Is the nose stopped up? Does your nose discharge? Do crusts form in the nose? Do you cough sometimes until you gag? Is there pain in the back of the head? Is there a pain across the eyes? Is there tickling in the throat? Is your sense of smell leaving you? Are you losing the sense of taste? Is there a dropping in the throat? Is there a burning pain in the throat? Any and all of these symptoms indicate the presence of catarrh, and while some of them may seem but trival, you cannot afford to treat them lightly, for, remember, dire consequences may result from neglect, for all victims of throat and lung troubles have been subject to catarrh.

Dr. Agnew's Ointment puts out the fire from distressing skin troubles, such as Eczema, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Tetter, and will cure Piles in from 3 to 5 nights.

Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart gives relief from the most violent spasms in heart disease in 30 minutes. It saves life.

Hutch in Barrie.

W. E. Wismer, Phm. B., is a druggist, of Barrie, Ont., whose splendid establishment and large practice mark him as an aggressive pharmaceutical authority—This is what he says of Hutch:—

"As regards the sale of Hutch it is simply wonderful, several times I have been sold right out after receiving a generous supply from the wholesale. It is one of the very few things a retail druggist may order in quarter and half-gross lots with perfect safety.

"As regards its efficacy I have yet to meet a person who does not say 'there is something in it' after having used the tablets.

"Only yesterday on enquiring as to its virtues a traveller said, 'until Hutch was introduced I could get nothing to relieve me and was a thoroughbred dyspeptic. Hutch cured me.' This is only one instance of the very many good things said about Hutch. Another proof of its value is that people always come back for a second package. Knowing that a genuine article is sure to succeed, I remain, yours truly, "W. E. WISMER, Phm. B."

The wonderful—almost startling—cures that Hutch is making, its overwhelming endorsation by the public, by scientific experts, and men thoroughly well versed in their knowledge of what cures, marks it as the very best cure for dyspepsia, constipation, and stomach disorders extant.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, DECEMBER 27, 1899

Keene.

A concert and entertainment under the auspices of Keene Jubilee School was held in the Town Hall on Friday night, 22nd inst. The object of the concert was to raise funds to aid in procuring a library for the school, and it proved a success in every way. Too much credit cannot be given the pupils who took part, or the two teachers, Mr. T. Wallace, of the senior and Miss Maggie Campbell, of the Junior departments, who were so untiring in their efforts to have the pupils properly drilled. A very entertaining and appropriate programme was prepared for the occasion, and undoubtedly was proficiently rendered. At the appointed hour to commence the performance the hall was packed to its utmost capacity, many being unable to secure seats, a feature which bespeaks credit to the citizens of this vicinity for the interest manifested in the cause of education. The following is the programme —

1. Chorous—Holidays and School.
2. Chairman's address.
3. Solo—Aggie Campbell.
4. Club swinging—Little girls.
5. Recitation—Jennie Weir.
6. Solo—Walter Laing.
7. Dialogue—"Fractions."
8. Violin Solo—Miss L. Bell.
9. Drill—Twelve boys.
10. Recitation—Willie Kerr.
11. Autumn Song—Little folks.
12. Recitation—Katie Skinner.
13. Chorous—"Men of the North."
14. Club Swinging—Sr. girls.
15. Solo—Lillie Bell.
16. Recitation—Irene McNeil.
17. Duet—Mabel and Pearl McCann.
18. Sword Exercise—Four boys.
19. Solo—Richard Wedlock.
20. Mouth Organ Solo—Gordon Laing and Willie Dickson.
21. Solo—Ettie Edwards.
22. Dialogue—"Why Mrs. G. did not hire a cook."
23. Chorous—"Soldiers of the Queen."
24. God Save the Queen.

Never before was the National Anthem rendered in a more patriotic and enthusiastic spirit than on that occasion, all the audience taking part, no doubt being aroused to a greater spirit of loyalty to their country and Queen on account of the opposition displayed by the Boers in South Africa.

We are happy to understand that the proceeds of the concert amounted to the handsome sum of $25.00.

WANTED FIRE BELL CLOTHES.

He Just Made Up His Mind to Kill That Town of St. Joe.

"Ah'm come back home for some clothes, an Ah want 'em wahm," said a tall young negro to a Walnut street haberdasher one day last spring. "Ah'm jes' agoin to kill that town of St. Joe. Show me the hestedest clothes yo' got in the house."

He was not cool as to raiment to start with. His overcoat was cream colored, overlaid with pearl buttons the size of those small butter plates still in use in restaurants. His trousers were green and ended in yellow shoes with brown shot silk tops. His hat was light blue, mottled in brown; his gloves were red and his cane heavily silvered.

"Can't no St. Joe nigger tell me Ah come from Raytown," he muttered. "Ah goes up to St. Joe to work, and the coons there laugh at me and tell me Ah ain't from Kansas City, because mah clothes is so inconspicuous, and Ah just save up mah money, and Ah'm agoin back to kill the town. Now what I want is some underclothes and socks and shirts and things that are the wahmest you've got."

"How will these do?" asked the haberdasher, exposing some scarlet hosiery, banded with wide white stripes.

"That's it. That's the kind of clothes Ah want. They ain't nothin in St. Joe like that. Lemme look at them underwear."

He inspected some red underwear with white stripes, some of baby blue with pink stripes and others of green with blue, black and red stripes. He bought neckscarfs of every shade of red, blue and green and of the most bewildering patterns. His purchases included zebra collared pale pink shirts, diamond scarf[illegible] 85 cents each, but with $85 of [illegible] and a brown waistcoat with scarlet [illegible] emblazoned on it.

BEE BUZZES.

Beeswax is dark because of the impurities mixed with it.

All excess of drone comb should be removed from the hive.

Bees start to work earlier if the hives face the south or east.

It is essential during hot weather that the hives be well ventilated.

Avoid blowing your breath among the bees while handling the comb.

Dirt and filth accumulating on the bottom boards make a propagating place for the moths.

Bees reared in the spring and summer are shorter lived than those reared later in the season.

The swarming season usually begins about 10 or 20 days after white clover comes into bloom.

Bees will enter a cool hive much more readily than one which had been baked in the hot sun all day.

Honey [illegible] with age. The older it is the better it will be, but it must be kept dry.

All bees should be examined now and the hives thoroughly cleaned. No trash of any kind should be left on the bottom boards.—St. Louis Republic.

They Keep One Eye Shut.

A recent traveler in Mexico, who visited the mines there during his journey, says that he was much astonished at seeing the men who carry the ore come out of the mines, each with one eye shut.

The foreman, [illegible] his surprise, explained the matter. He said the candles belonging to the barreteros (who drill and blast) do not give sufficient light in the drifts, [illegible] but which, nevertheless, the workmen see well enough not to run their heads against the rocks, but, on emerging into daylight, they would be blinded did they not take precautionary measures.

For this reason, as they approach the mouth of the shaft, at the point where they catch the first glimpse of light, they drop the eyelid of one eye and keep this down while they [illegible] and until they have [illegible] the shaft.

When they are again in the dark, they open the eye kept hitherto in reserve and at once see everything distinctly, while the other eye, previously open and somewhat blinded by the daylight, perceives nothing.

How Wealth Is Carried.

"It is rather amusing," remarked the head of the biggest bureau de change in London to the writer, "to notice the various methods in which men of different nationalities carry their worldly wealth. The Englishman carries his all loose in his right hand trousers pocket—gold, silver and copper all mixed up together. He pulls a handful of the mixture out of the pocket in a large, careless way and selects the coins he has need of. The American carries his wad of bills in a peculiar long, narrow pocketbook, in which the greenbacks lie flat; the Frenchman makes use of a leather purse with no distinguishing characteristics, while the German uses one gayly embroidered in silks by the fair hands of some Lottchen or Mina.

"The half civilized capitalist from some torrid South American city carries his dollars in a belt with cunningly devised pockets to baffle the gentlemen with the light fingers. Some of these belts are very expensive. The Italian of the poorer classes ties up his little fortune in a gayly colored handkerchief secured with many knots, which he bestows in [illegible] mysterious manner about his clothes. A similar course has charms for the Spaniard, while the lower class Russian exhibits a preference for his boots or the lining of his clothes as a hiding place for his savings."—London Answers.

To Crisp Lettuce Leaves.

Do you know how to crisp lettuce leaves? A most simple process, but one rarely adopted judging by the wilted stuff we generally see served. A gentleman of the old school was my teacher, and while yet a mere maid I was promoted to the proud dignity of crisping the lettuce.

First carefully separate the leaves from the stalk, discarding [illegible] and [illegible] perfect ones and leaving untouched the tiny hearts; lay them all in cool, clear water for a while, [illegible] if you choose; [illegible] a couple of times before serving; wash one by one and lay in a wire basket if you have one; if not, a clean, [illegible] towel will answer; gather the ends and sides loosely in your hand and lightly shake the lettuce; then put the leaves in a [illegible], which you put in the refrigerator, but not on the ice. Leave until needed, when you will find the lettuce deliciously cool and crisp enough to crack. Never cut the leaves. If very large, divide with the fingers into smaller pieces.—What to Eat.

What He Really Owed.

"Doctor," said the grateful patient, seizing the physician's hand, "I shall never forget that to you I owe my life."

"You exaggerate," returned the doctor mildly. "You owe me only for 15 visits. That is the point which I hope you will [illegible] to remember."

A JUMPING TOOTHACHE.

How It Won Its Victim Credit For Bravery In Battle.

"It was a toothache," said the veteran, "that won me a reputation for daring at the battle of Bull Run. That was the only fight I was ever in where I didn't wish I could find a hole to crawl into. All this talk about coolness on the eve of battle is nonsense, invented by people who have never been there or old soldiers whose tongues got away with their memories. Our men and officers were as brave as any in the war and made good records, but they all had the ague and longed for sick leave just about the time the bullets began to fly. But I had the toothache for two days before that battle, and if there is an aggravation on earth that will make a man want to hit his best friend in the face that is it.

"On the night before the fight I did not sleep a wink. The old tooth got to jumping like a goat, and I couldn't have suffered more from an amputated leg. I was also furiously mad. I felt that I'd either got to bolt for the rear in search of relief or encourage some rebel to put a ball through my head.

"We'd been waiting in battle line for an hour, and the boys had grown white and were all choked up. I had been entirely occupied with the old tooth, and the first thing I knew the fight was on. We were holding them in check, but that didn't suffice me. As I got hold of my gun and pulled the handkerchief off my jaw I yelled out for the boys to follow, and we struck a whole brigade and whirled it around and sent it back half a mile. I felt that I could lick the whole of Lee's army for an hour or two! They told me that I yelled and dodged death a thousand times, but I remember nothing but the jumps of that tooth. When they stopped, or for what particular reason, I could never say, but after a couple of hours I came to myself, as it were, and was being complimented on all sides, and the jumps had ceased."

CANADA'S GREATEST SCHOOL OF SHORTHAND AND BUSINESS

PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS SHOULD NOTICE

This institute has prepared over seventy teachers for other Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States, more than twice as many as all other Business Colleges in Canada, combined, have so placed.

The proprietors of five of the leading business colleges in Western Ontario, who are to-day among our strongest opponents in the field of Shorthand and Business training, received THEIR training under the Principal of this institution. Besides these, there are five others holding leading positions as teachers in Business Colleges in Ontario.

Since Sept 1st, seven of our pupils have accepted positions as teachers in Business Colleges and Commercial Schools in Canada and the United States; another is now negotiating for a similar opening in a Business College in a leading American city, and there are five unfilled calls of this kind on hand still.

DOES IT NOT PAY TO ATTEND THE BEST! You must decide.

[illegible] of our pupils secured good positions in seventeen months, and the good work of placing our students still continues.

THE PAVING CONTRACTS

decrease the dimensions, quantity of material or work . . . or vary in any other way the work contracted for . . . and the difference in expense occasioned thereby shall be added to or deducted from the amount payable under this contract."

I think what I have said, and what I have referred to, as to the conditions of the contract, must be my answers to the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th questions.

As to question 5, "Did the Inspector, the Town Engineer and the Chairman of the Board of Works respectively take all proper steps according to their duties to prevent or report any alterations or inferiority in the work called for by the contract?"

There is no charge against any of the Inspectors for any fraud. Mr. Ranney seems to be the only one who has been brought into the matter at all, and I have already pointed out what took place as far as he is concerned.

In regard to Town Engineer Hay, it is urged that he should not have allowed the use of "Ensign" cement in the concrete base. I have already observed upon that sufficiently, I think. It is said that he should have reported to the Board of Works or to the council, the proportions of granite used and concrete used, as an improper thing to be done by the contractors under the contract. There is nothing in the contract requiring Mr. Hay to do that, and having the large powers vested in him, if he had done so, he would, I should think, have been told that he was the man appointed to look after such matters, and that if he did not feel competent to do so, he had better retire and give place to someone else. There is nothing to show that anything done by Mr. Hay can bear the least suggestion or imputation of "malfeasance, breach of trust, or other misconduct," or of any conduct in any way adverse to the interests of the town.

There was no suggestion against any chairman of the Board of Works, except Mr. Langford, and in regard to him it is said that Mr. Ranney told that alderman 5 1-2 bags of cement only were being used, which he should have, but did not, communicate to the Board of Works or the council.

Mr. Ranney made this complaint and he was told to go with it to the Engineer, who was the proper person to whom such a complaint should be made. He did so accordingly and as I have shown the Engineer, settled it, and he didn't think it necessary to report the matter nor was it, having regard to the powers vested in him by the contract which I have already referred to.

It was no part of the duty of the Engineer to report such a matter and it was in his discretion to sanction it, I do not see why Alderman Langford should be called to account for not having so reported, and his failure to do so under these circumstances is in no sense a breach of any duty which he owed either to the Board of Works or the Town Council, and he is not chargeable in respect of this matter with malfeasance, breach of trust or misconduct.

As to the question "Is there any evidence of fraud upon the part of the contractors or any of their employees."

After what I have said, a simple reply to this in the negative might be all that would be required but as much of the evidence has been directed almost entirely to contractor Sheehy, I feel bound to say that his work has been done free from all fraud or mis-conduct or any reasonable ground for suspicion thereof. Although the council, having received Mr. Ranney's report, I do not see how an enquiry could have been avoided either by reference to a committee of the council or in the way it has been done.

An enquiry before a committee would not have been so thorough as there would be no power to compel the attendance of witnesses.

In regard to the last question, there has been no suggestion of misconduct on the part of any one except those to whom I have specially referred, I may say, however, that the Mayor, all the Aldermen, the Town Clerk and Treasurer were examined before me, and that there is no ground for supposing that there has been any sort of misconduct on the part of either of these in relation to those contractors, and if all our municipal matters continue to be as free from wrong-doing and corruption, as I hope and believe they will, the citizens of this town will have no ground of complaint.

The evidence was taken in shorthand by stenographers provided by you, and was very voluminous, covering in my short notes of it 122 pages of foolscap. I have not yet received a copy of it, but as soon as it is handed in to me, I shall forward it to you. In the meantime I send you my report, having been requested by your solicitor to do so.

Very respectfully submitted.
C. A. WELLER,
Judge County Court.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the graphophone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a graphophone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. COPPER MINING STOCKS

For several months shrewd investors have been putting their money into the shares of Copper Mines. This is true not only of men with large amounts of money at their disposal but also applies to those who have made a study of investments with a view to securing a large return for small investments. As high as THREE AND FOUR HUNDRED PER CENT. has to our knowledge already been realized on some of these investments. Americans were the first to make a specialty of Copper Stocks. They knew what they were doing, for the reason is not far to seek. Every Copper Mine in the world is at present taxed to its utmost limit to meet the growing demand for copper for electrical purposes. The reserve stores of copper are being depleted until it pays no longer to use copper in some eastern countries as a coin. Copper has gone up in price from 9c to 18 cents. The supply of Copper from the mines of the world to-day is only about 80 per cent. of the consumption. That is the reason why financiers have their engineers searching the four quarters of the globe for Copper Mines, and that is the reason the shares in promising copper companies are so eagerly picked up by investors.

If you have any money to invest we would ask you to consider the shares of the SUPERIOR GOLD & COPPER COMPANY, LIMITED. This Company owns and operates some valuable native copper properties. We are in a position to offer you a special opportunity in this stock which as an investment should give you a profit of at least 100 per cent in six months. Send for prospectus and particulars.

Occasionally we have an opportunity of giving our clients a special offer on some stocks, and we have this opportunity now. If you are interested write to us at once. These shares are sold in large or small blocks to suit buyers.

We deal in all legitimate mining shares on commission. If you want to buy or sell write us.

Death of an Old Resident.

The death is announced of one of the oldest residents of the town, Mrs. Margaret O'Connor, who has passed away at the age of eighty years. She was the widow of the late Patrick O'Connor, who passed away twenty-one years ago. They came out from Ireland in 1847 and were respected residents of the town for many years. The funeral of Mrs. O'Connor took place yesterday afternoon to St. Peter's cathedral and the Roman Catholic cemetery.

Valuable Stamps.

Mr. Kelsey Hall showed The Times two interesting postage stamps which have just come into his possession in return for a substantial quid pro quo. One is a shilling stamp of Newfoundland of 1857. It is very rare and no price is put upon it in the catalogues, but it is valued at $300. The other is also a Newfoundland stamp of the same date, representing sixpence half penny. This is valued at $75.

NOTES OF THE FRAY.

The Times never does anything by halves. It first finds out if it is right, then it goes ahead.

•• • ••

After all there is a certain fitness of things in getting first class Mayoralty timber out of the Crown Timber office.

•• • ••

Mr. Bradburn, in his speech the other night at Mr. Kendry's committee meeting, stated that their candidate was not going to have a walkover. He is having a walkover, nevertheless, as Mr. Kendry is not running worth a cent.

•• • ••

Ald. Langford in his speech the other night in Mr. Kendry's committee rooms said that all should support Mr. Kendry. The worthy Alderman knows that Mr. McWilliams' election means an end to his "pickings." Mr. W. H. Moore, chairman of the Town Trust, according to Ald. Sawers, says that Ald. Langford put in a bill for $50 more than he was entitled to in connection with the market square arbitration.

•• • ••

Now that Ald. Sawers has raised the point it would be a proper thing for the people to know just how much the Town Solicitor, Ald. Langford and the other arbitrators received for their very arduous (?) labors in connection with the market arbitration.

•• • ••

Ald. Neill, in his speech the other night said that he had taken an active part in opposing Ald. McWilliams. This action may appear very laudable from Mr. Neill's point of view, but the Times will venture to remark that it would have been more to the purpose had Ald. Neill taken a little of his surplus time in explaining just how much of the people's money was spent in the neighborhood of his and Mayor Davis' residence during the past summer.

•• • ••

Good morning. Have you been canvassed yet?

•• • ••

A plebiscite is to be taken on Monday as to whether or not the town of Peterborough will consent to be governed by a clique.

•• • ••

Post Election Philosophy.—'Tis better never to have bet at all than to have bet and lost. You bet.—St. Thomas Times.

•• • ••

Peterborough is at a critical point in its history. It has reached the point where it is recognized as the best business centre in Easter Ontario, and the question now is whether it will continue to progress and take a leading place among the cities of Canada. With a large and fruitful country on all sides, with unsurpassed natural water power, with the best of railway facilities, with every advantage as a residential centre, we have here the material from which to develop a most prosperous city.

•• • ••

All we need is a management of our town affairs characterized by ability and energy. With a strong, progressive Mayor and council our advantages would be used to the full extent and the town would again be a sharer in the prosperity which the country is now enjoying. Most of all we want a Mayor who has the force of character and steadiness of purpose to carry out a strong, progressive policy, and the electors, especially the business men, ought to have this in mind in the present contest. Let everybody study the addresses of the two candidates and then decide which is the more capable and progressive man.

•• • ••

It is curious to watch the changes of feeling among the workers on both sides. The Kendry men started out with the confident assertion that they had a sure thing, and that nobody ever had or could defeat their man. On the other hand the McWilliams supporters started in with a determination to work night and day and to leave no stone unturned in the efforts to elect their man. As the week has gone by and the opinions of the mass of the electors have been ascertained the McWilliams party have been steadily gaining confidence, and are already tasting Monday's victory. At the same time their opponents have realized the strength of Mr. McWilliams' support, and are now making desperate efforts to make up for lost time. Every day makes Mr. McWilliams' election more certain, and we shall not be surprised if he comes out first by a large majority.

•• • ••

Mr. Kendry's treatment of his own men at the Auburn Works is telling strongly against him. No professions of friendship however strong, can avail much against the hard facts of low wages and harsh treatment. The workingmen have a habit of remembering such things, and when contrasted with the steady service on their behalf in the Council of his opponent, they feel that there is but one course for them to take. Ald. McWilliams has merited their support, and he is going to get it in overwhelming numbers.

•• • ••

Mr. Kendry is finding that the men who made such large promises of support when pressing him to run are of little use when it comes to the fighting. The little clique who got up the magnificent requisition and called so loudly on Mr. Kendry to come and save them from that dreadful man have been careful to keep well out of the battle the most of the time, and when they have entered it the chief effect has been to demonstrate the hollowness of their promises.

•• • ••

Mr. Kendry is the candidate of a small set, not one of whom had the courage to enter the lists in person, and the public should remember this in voting. He has had more than a good share of the honors, and he had no right to enter the municipal field, and he is finding every day that many of his staunchest supporters in the old days will not vote for him now on that account.

PETERBORO'S MEET DEFEAT.

Aberdeens Turn Them Down by a Score of Nine to Seven.

The hockey match last night between the Aberdeens, of Ottawa, and the home team resulted in a beating for the Peterboroughs.

It was an exhibition game, but not a good exhibition of the game, the combination play of both teams being poor, although the two Kings did some good work together. The goal keepers on both teams were not in good form, and most of the goals were scored on long shots. Harry King scored the first goal, Hollingshead the second and Lionel King the next two. Then the Aberdeens took their turn and scored twice. At the end of the first half the score stood 4 to 2 for Peterborough.

The play was a little faster during the next half and the goals were scored oftener, too often for good hockey. Considerable rough play was done and a free fight indulged in. The score at the finish stood 6 to 7 in favor of the Aberdeens.

The teams were as follows—

Aberdeens—Goal, Shaw; point, Baskerville; cover point, Butterworth; forwards, J., S. and W. Gilmore and C. Aumont; umpire, W. Stroud.

Peterborough—Goal, Wasson; point, Crowley; cover, Hollingshead; and forwards, Lionel and Harry King, Riger Davidson and Chris. Graham.

Will Make a Good Trustee.

The Times is pleased to see that Mr. Harry Morgan is again in the field for public honors at the hands of Ashburnham electors. This year he is seeking office on the Public School Board of Ashburnham, and his indefatigable service in the interest of the village when a member of the council, together with an inherent aptitude for public work recommends him to the earnest consideration of his constituents. Ex-councillor Morgan is making no personal canvass, but relies, and justly too, on his past favorable record to insure a renewal of public confidence on Monday next, when it is to be hoped he will be returned as a public school trustee for the year 1900. Ratepayers of Ashburnham will make no mistake in casting their ballots for Harry Morgan

Sir,—1. How many men were killed and died of wounds and disease in the Franco-German war? 2. How many were killed in these battles: Metz, Sedan, Gettysburg and Waterloo? H. S.

[In the German armies the loss from all causes was 28,777; 3.1 per cent. Meyer's Konversations-Lexicon, however, gives the German death loss at 40,000 dead, and the French loss at about 80,000. 2. In the battles around Metz—Nouilly, Mars-la-Tour, Gravelotte, fought on Aug. 14, 16 and 18 1870, the death losses were very heavy; but even in the German cyclopaedias there is no discrimination in the matter of losses; it can be said only that the Germans lost in killed, wounded and missing some 25,201 men at least, and the French about the same number. At Sedan the death losses were 3,012 Germans; the French losses were heavier. At Gettysburg the Federal losses were 3,063 killed and died of wounds; the Confederate losses were at least 3,-[illegible] killed and died of wounds, besides others who died of wounds, but are not recorded.—Ed. [On Jan. 1, 1896, there were 26,374 Irish out of a total strength of 212,[illegible]; that is, 12.9 per. cent. were Irish.—Ed. Times.]

ASHBURNHAM ELECTION NOTES

A Hot Municipal Campaign Under Way in Little Brooklyn

Ashburnham is having a [illegible] election. Mr. Adams, the [illegible] Reeve, was elected by acclamation, but there is a big fight for the [illegible]. The candidates are: Councillors Rutherford, Craig and Pollock, and Messrs. John H. Smith, W. Johnston and W. Faint. Mr. Smith is an ex-councillor, having served for several years, when he did excellent work. The others are also good men, and no matter who is elected, the village is sure of a good council.

The School Board is also exciting considerable attention. Messrs. H. Morgan, E. A. Peck, R. R. Rogers and Wm. Mavice are seeking election. Three out of four are to be elected. The three last named are members of one church, and many of the ratepayers feel that no one church should dominate in school matters. Mr. Morgan is an ex-member of the Council, where he had a clean record. He should and no doubt will be elected. Mr. Peck is also sure of election, as he is just the man for a position of this kind.

THE MAYORALTY.

To the Ratepayers of the Town of Peterborough:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN.

At the request of hundreds of the ratepayers of the town expressed in a requisition presented to me, I have accepted nomination for the Mayoralty for 1900, and am in the field seeking your sufferages. I do not believe that it will be necessary to assure you that I did not seek the office, but only entered the contest because in the face of the request made of me by so many of our citizens I felt that it was a duty I owed to the public which I have been privileged to serve in different capacities so frequently. It was from no desire to monopolise offices that are within the gift of the people, but simply because I was made to feel that at the present time the citizens wanted my services and that when the demand was made so forcibly I would indeed be lacking in my duty if I did not respond, even though the response meant much personal sacrifice to myself.

Having accepted nomination I respectfully solicit your votes and influence, and if elected I promise to give my best attention to the duties of the office. I will give my time and what ability I possess to the advancement of the town's best interests. The town's interests are my interests, for I have, as you are aware, no small stake here, and economy and progress will be my watchwords. All questions coming before the Council will receive my careful and unprejudiced attention, and my aim will be to maintain that harmony and unity in the consideration of civic business that will allow the best results to be realized.

It will be impossible owing to the short time between now and election day for me to call personally on all of you, and I therefore solicit your support in this way, hoping for a renewal of the confidence expressed in me as a member of the Council and as Mayor in former years.

I desire to thank those who have already expressed their confidence in me by signing the handsome requisition presented to me.

Wishing you one and all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

I am ladies, and gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

JAS. KENDRY.

Prices have advanced 50 per cent in consequence and the stocks are very short.

London, Jan. 1.

The morning papers are inclined to refrain from commentin upon the Bundesrath incident, pending further information. The Daily Chronicle says: "The incident was most unfortunate, but the Germans may await the result of the inquiry with confidence in our fairness.

The Standard says: "We feel sure that Germany will recognize the unimpeachable validity of our position. We shall enforce such claims as we possess with every desire to cause the least possible inconvenience to trade among friendly states, but at the present time we will act with a firm determination to assert our rights as a bellegerent power.

In the absence of confirmation of the reported sorties from Ladysmith and Mafeking, the sotries are discredited. Col. Baden-Powell's silence however causes some uneasiness.

London, Jan. 1.

All the correspondents are beginning to hint of a forward movement on the part of Gen. Buller, the danger of which is indicated in a despatch to the Daily Telegraph from Frere, recording the unfortunate failure of his reconnaisances. In one case the Boer lines at Colenso were to have been bombarded at night. Mounted men drew the Boer fire and it was intended that the naval guns should be guard. This the latter failed to do and the reconneitering party was compelled to flounder back to camp, through the wet and stormy night. According to the same correspondent a similar fate waited another reconnaissauce in the opposite direction.

Lorenzo, Marquez, Delagoa Bay, Dec. 30.—The German steamer Bundesrath, belonging to the German East African Line, has been captured as a prize and taken to Durban. The Bundesrath arrived here from Mozambique. The Bundesrath sailed from Hamburg Nov. 8 for Tanga, East Africa.

Volunteers on Board.

A representative of the Associated Press has learned that there were three German officers and twenty men, attired in khaki and intending to serve the Boers on board the Bundesrath, which explains her capture.

OFF FOR SOUTH AFRICA.

London, Dec. 30.—Mr. Adelbert S. Hay, the new United States Consul at Pretoria, left Waterloo railroad station here this morning for Southampton on his way to Cape Town. Mr. Hay is charged with many commissions from relatives and friends of the British prisoners at Pretoria. The same train took Lord Edward Stanley, one of the junior Lords of the Treasury and eldest son of Earl Derby, formerly Governor-General of Canada. Lord Stanley has been appointed to a position on General Roberts' staff.

Sir William Stokes, surgeon in ordinary to Queen Victoria in Ireland and surgeon to the Meath hospital, Dublin, and a number of hospital nurses also left London for Southampton this morning in route to Cape Town.

London, Dec. 30.—The Queen has approved the appointment of the Duke of Connaught as commander-in-chief of the British forces in Ireland.

BRITISH SUBJECTS EXPELLED.

Lorenzo, Marquez, Dec. 27.— The Boers have expelled more British subjects from northern Natal and sent them to this place. Although they were living quietly on their farms and in the towns they were ordered to leave the country at a few hours' notice and were sent to the country on rough trucks without any adequate provision being made for the journey. Among the party were some women of over 70 years of age.
